1. CUSTOMS DUTIES

(1) INTRODUCTION

1. Nature of customs duties.

Historically, duties of customs, or customs duties, in the strict sense are pecuniary charges or tolls imposed by the state and payable upon goods¹ exported from² or imported into³ the country; and they may be contrasted with excise duties, which may be charged on importation and are payable on goods produced and consumed within the country⁴. However, in accordance with its obligations under the EC Treaty⁵, the United Kingdom applies the customs rules of the European Community⁶, and its application of excise duties is subject to various Directives issued by the Community⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'goods', in the context of customs duty, see Case 7/68 EC Commission v Italy [1968] ECR 423 at 428, [1969] CMLR 1 at 8, ECJ (products which can be valued in money and which are capable, as such, of forming the subject of commercial transactions; it was held that they included goods of an artistic, historic, archaeological or ethnographic nature which were classified as 'national treasures' under Italian law) (decided in relation to the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') art 9 (now renumbered as art 23): see PARA 6 post).

The Common Customs Tariff concerns only the importation of goods, ie tangible property, and does not apply to the importation of incorporeal property such as processes, services or know-how. Therefore, for the purpose of the determination of the value for customs purposes, it is in principle necessary to concentrate only on the intrinsic value of the article and to disregard the value of processes, which may be patented, in which it may be used: Case 1/77 Robert Bosch GmbH v Hauptzollamt Hildesheim [1977] ECR 1473, [1977] 2 CMLR 563, ECJ. As to the Common Customs Tariff see PARA 10 et seq post.

Certain items whose importation and use within the Community are wholly prohibited or prohibited except in trade which is strictly controlled and limited are not goods for this purpose, since the valuation provisions in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') arts 28-36 (as amended) (see PARA 46 et seq post) are based on the assumption that the goods are capable of being put on the market and being absorbed into commercial circulation: Case 50/80 Horvath v Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas [1981] ECR 385, [1982] 2 CMLR 522, ECJ; Case 221/81 Wolf v Hauptzollamt Düsseldorf [1982] ECR 3681, [1983] 2 CMLR 170, ECJ; Case 240/81 Einberger v Hauptzollamt Freiburg [1982] ECR 3699, [1983] 2 CMLR 170, ECJ (drugs); Case C-343/89 Witzemann v Hauptzollamt München-Mitte [1990] ECR 4477, ECJ (counterfeit money). Cf cases where the prohibition is conditional and not absolute, eg counterfeit perfume: Case C-3/97 Goodwin [1998] STC 699, ECJ. As to goods subject to an absolute prohibition see also PARA 286 post. As to the Community Customs Code see PARA 20 post.

2 Such duty may arise in relation to particular goods, generally those subject to the common agricultural policy. As to goods exported by post see PARA 95 post.

3 'Tax imposed on the importation of goods is a duty of customs within the ordinary meaning of that expression': Carmody v FC Lovelock Pty Ltd (1970) 44 ALJR 402, Aust HC, per Gibbs J. There appears to be no statutory definition of customs duties, other than that used for the purposes of the Customs Duty (Community Reliefs) Order 1984, SI 1984/719, art 2, which provides that 'customs duty' means Community customs duty and, except where the context otherwise requires, includes any agricultural levy, tax or charge provided for under the common agricultural policy or under any special arrangements which, pursuant to the EC Treaty art 23 (as renumbered) (see PARA 6 post), are applicable to goods resulting from the processing of agricultural products. As to the abolition of agricultural levies see the Uruguay Round Agreement on Agriculture (Marrakesh, 15 April 1994; Cm 2559; Misc 17 (1994); OJ L336, 23.12.94, p 22). As to goods imported by post see PARA 95 post.

4 See Street Law Dictionary; Wharton Law Lexicon; Murray New English Dictionary. See also Atlantic Smoke Shops Ltd v Conlon [1943] AC 550 at 564-565, PC. In the case of certain statutes it has been provided for administrative reasons that a tax imposed by the statute should be treated as an excise duty. Thus in the case of air passenger duty (see PARA 802 et seq post) it has been provided that the tax is to be a duty of excise, notwithstanding that the duty is not payable on goods but on services (see the Finance Act 1994 s 40(1); and PARA 802 post), the effect of this being to bring the duty under the care and management of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs. As to excise duties payable otherwise than on goods see PARA 712 et seq post. As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post.

5 See PARAS 4-5 post.

6 See PARA 6 post. 'United Kingdom' means Great Britain and Northern Ireland: Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. 'Great Britain' means England, Scotland and Wales: Union with Scotland Act 1706, preamble art I; Interpretation Act 1978 s 22(1), Sch 2 para 5(a). Except where statute otherwise provides, neither the Channel Islands nor the Isle of Man are within the United Kingdom. See further CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 3.

7 As to the general arrangements for products subject to excise duty and the holding, movement and monitoring of such products see EC Council Directive 92/12 (OJ L76, 23.3.92, p 1) (as amended); and PARA 390 et seq post.

2. The European Communities.

The three European Communities, the European Coal and Steel Community, the European Community¹ (formerly known as the European Economic Community) and the European Atomic Energy Community were established by Treaty as follows:

- 1 (1) the European Coal and Steel Community ('ECSC') was established by Treaty signed in Paris on 18 April 1951², which entered into force on 23 July 1952;
- 2 (2) the European Community ('EC') was established by Treaty signed in Rome on 25 March 1957³, which entered into force on 1 January 1958;
- 3 (3) the European Atomic Energy Community ('EURATOM') was established by Treaty signed in Rome on 25 March 1957⁴, which entered into force on 1 January 1958.

A single Council and a single Commission of the three European Communities has been established by treaty⁵.

The original members of the three European Communities were Belgium, Germany, France, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

TEXT AND NOTE 2--By virtue of art 97, the ECSC Treaty has now expired. Since 24 July 2002, the sectors previously covered by this Treaty, and the procedural rules and other secondary legislation derived from it, have been subject to the rules of the EC Treaty as well as the procedural rules and other secondary legislation derived from the EC Treaty.

3. Accessions to the European Communities.

By Treaty signed in Brussels on 22 January 1972 (the 'Accession Treaty')¹, the United Kingdom, Denmark and Ireland became members of the European Community² (formerly known as the European Economic Community) and of the European Atomic Energy Community. By decision of the Council of the European Communities of the same date, the same three states adhered to the European Coal and Steel Community (the 'ECSC'). The conditions of admission and the adjustments to the treaties necessitated thereby are set out in the Act of Accession annexed to the Accession Treaty³.

The Accession Treaty entered into force on 1 January 1973 and accession to the ECSC took effect on the same date.

Further accessions to the Communities took place with the accession of Greece with effect from 1 January 1981⁴, Portugal and Spain with effect from 1 January 1986⁵, Austria, Finland and Sweden with effect from 1 January 1995⁶, the Czech Republic, Estonia, Cyprus, Latvia, Lithuania, Hungary, Malta, Poland, Slovenia and the Slovak Republic with effect from 1 May 2004⁷, and Bulgaria and Romania with effect from 1 January 2007⁸.

3 Accessions to the European Communities

TEXT--By virtue of art 97, the ECSC Treaty has now expired. Since 24 July 2002, the sectors previously covered by this Treaty, and the procedural rules and other secondary legislation derived from it, have been subject to the rules of the EC Treaty as well as the procedural rules and other secondary legislation derived from the EC Treaty.

4. The Treaty on European Union.

On 7 February 1992 the Treaty on European Union was signed at Maastricht¹; it substantially amended and expanded the EC Treaty² and entered into force on 1 November 1993³. The amended EC Treaty provides that the European Community is to have as its task the promotion, throughout the Community, of a harmonious and balanced development of economic activities, sustainable and non-inflationary growth, respecting the environment, a high degree of convergence of economic performance, a high level of employment and of social protection, the raising of the standard of living and quality of life, and economic and social cohesion and solidarity among member states, by establishing a common market and an economic and monetary union and by implementing the common policies or activities more particularly specified⁴ in the amended EC Treaty⁵. Amongst the common policies are to be found:

- 4 (1) the elimination, as between member states, of customs duties and quantitative restrictions on the import and export of goods, and of all other measures having equivalent effect⁶;
- 5 (2) a common commercial policy⁷;
- 6 (3) an internal market characterised by the abolition, as between member states, of obstacles to the free movement of goods, persons, services and capital⁸;
- 7 (4) a system ensuring that competition in the internal market is not distorted⁹; and
- 8 (5) the approximation of the laws of member states to the extent required for the functioning of the common market¹⁰.

The provisions of the Maastricht Treaty were implemented in the United Kingdom by the European Communities (Amendment) Act 1993, which received the Royal Assent on 20 July 1993 and came into force on 23 July 1993 (see s 7). 5. Application of Community law.

The United Kingdom, like all member states, is obliged to take all appropriate measures, whether general or particular, to ensure fulfilment of the obligations arising out of the EC Treaty¹, or which result from actions taken by the institutions of the European Community². It is also obliged to facilitate the achievement of the Community tasks and to abstain from any measure which could jeopardise the attainment of the objectives of the EC Treaty³.

All such rights, powers, liabilities, obligations and restrictions from time to time created by or arising under the Treaties and all remedies and procedures from time to time provided for by or under the Treaties, as in accordance with the Treaties are without further enactment to be given legal effect or used in the United Kingdom, are to be recognised and available in law⁴, and to be enforced, allowed and followed accordingly⁵.

In order to carry out their task, and in accordance with the provisions of the EC Treaty, the European Parliament acting jointly with the EC Council, the Council and the EC Commission must make regulations and issue directives, take decisions, make recommendations and deliver opinions⁶. A regulation has general application and is binding in its entirety and is directly applicable in all member states⁷. A directive is binding, as to the result to be achieved, upon each member state to whom it is addressed; but it leaves to the national authorities the choice of form and methods⁸. A decision is binding in its entirety upon those to whom it is addressed⁹. Recommendations and opinions have no binding force¹⁰.

The customs rules of the Community consist of the Community Customs Code, established by regulations made by the Council¹¹ as implemented by regulations made by the Commission¹². As such, they have general application, are binding in their entirety and are directly applicable in the United Kingdom¹³.

1 Ie the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 6 ante.

2 Ibid art 10 (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). The institutions of the European Community are: the European Parliament; the Council of Ministers; the Commission; the Court of Justice; and the Court of Auditors.

3 EC Treaty art 10 (as renumbered: see note 2 supra). By the Act of Accession (1972) art 2 (see PARA 3 ante), the provisions of the original Treaties (ie the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community (Paris, 18 April 1951; TS 16 (1979); Cmnd 7461), the EC Treaty and the Treaty establishing the European Atomic Energy Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179), as supplemented or amended by subsequent Treaties or Acts), and the Acts adopted by the institutions of the Communities before accession, became binding on the new member states, including the United Kingdom, and became applicable in those states under the conditions laid down in the Treaties and in the Act of Accession. The accession of the United Kingdom was implemented in United Kingdom domestic law by the European Communities Act 1972.

4 For the purpose of all legal proceedings, any question as to the meaning or effect of any of the Treaties, or as to the validity, meaning or effect of any Community instrument, is to be treated as a question of law; and, if not referred to the European Court, is for determination as such in accordance with the principles laid down by, and any relevant decision of, the European Court or any court attached to it: European Communities Act 1972 s 3(1) (amended by the European Communities (Amendment) Act 1986 s 2). For these purposes, 'Community instrument' means any instrument issued by a Community institution; and 'Community institution' means any institution of any of the European Community, the European Coal and Steel Community and the European Atomic Energy Community or common to those Communities: European Communities Act 1972 s 1, Sch 1 Pt II; Interpretation Act 1978 Sch 1, Sch 2 para 4(1)(b). 'European Court' means the Court of Justice of the European Communities or the Court of First Instance: European Communities Act 1972 s 1(2), Sch 1 Pt II (amended by the European Communities (Amendment) Act 2002 s 2).

Judicial notice is to be taken of the Treaties, of the Official Journal of the Communities, and of any decision of, or expression of opinion by, the Court of Justice or any court attached to it on any question of a description mentioned in the European Communities Act 1972 s 3(1) (as amended); and the Official Journal is admissible as evidence of any instrument or other act thereby communicated of any of the Communities or of any Community institution: s 3(2) (amended by the European Communities (Amendment) Act 1986 s 2). See Case 26/62 NV Algemene Transport-en Expeditie Onderneming van Gend & Loos v Nederlandse administratie der belastingen (Netherlands Inland Revenue Administration) [1963] ECR 1 at 12, [1963] CMLR 105 at 129, ECJ (the Community constitutes a new legal order of international law for the benefit of which the states have limited their sovereign rights, albeit within limited fields, and the subjects of which comprise not only the member states but also their nationals; independently of the legislation of member states, Community law not only imposes obligations on individuals but is also intended to confer upon them rights which become part of their legal heritage; these rights arise not only where they are expressly granted by the Treaty but also by reason of obligations which the Treaty imposes in a clearly defined way upon individuals as well as upon the member states and upon the institutions of the Community).

5 European Communities Act 1972 s 2(1). The expression 'enforceable Community right' and similar expressions are to be read as referring to rights to which s 2(1) applies: s 2(1), Sch 1 Pt II.

6 EC Treaty art 249, 1st para (art 249 substituted by the Treaty on European Union (Maastricht, 7 February 1992; Cm 1934) Title II art G(60); and renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)).

7 EC Treaty art 249, 2nd para (as substituted and renumbered: see note 6 supra). Regulations, therefore, fall within the scope of the European Communities Act 1972 s 2(1), as Community instruments which create rights etc, to which legal effect is to be given without further enactment: see the text to notes 4-5 supra.

See also Case 158/80 Rewe Handelsgesellschaft Nord mbH v Hauptzollamt Kiel [1981] ECR 1805, [1982] 1 CMLR 449, ECJ. The effect of a regulation, as provided for in the EC Treaty art 249 (as substituted and renumbered), is to prevent the implementation of any legislative measure, even if it is enacted subsequently, which is incompatible with its provisions: Case 43/71 Politi SAS v Italian Ministry for Finance [1971] ECR 1039, [1973] CMLR 60, ECJ; Case 11/70 Internationale Handelsgesellschaft mbH v Einfuhr- und Vorratsstelle für Getreide und Futtermittel [1970] ECR 1125 at 1134, [1972] CMLR 255 at 283, ECJ (the validity of measures adopted by the institutions of the Community can only be judged in the light of Community law; the law stemming from the Treaty, an independent source of law, cannot because of its very nature be overridden by rules of national law, however framed, without being deprived of its character as Community law and without the legal basis of the Community itself being called in question; the validity of a Community measure or its effect within a member state cannot, therefore, be affected by allegations that it runs counter to either fundamental rights as formulated by the constitution of that state or the principles of its constitutional structure).

5 Application of Community law

NOTE 4--Where an Act passed after the commencement of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 20A (ie after 8 January 2007) refers to a Community instrument that has been amended, extended or applied by another such instrument, the reference, unless the contrary intention appears, is a reference to that instrument as so amended, extended or applied: s 20A (added by the Legislative and Regulatory Reform Act 2006 s 25(1)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(2) THE EUROPEAN BASIS OF CUSTOMS DUTY/ (ii) The Customs Union; Associations with Non-member States/6. The customs union of the European Community.

(ii) The Customs Union; Associations with Non-member States

6. The customs union of the European Community.

The European Community is based on a customs union which covers all trade in goods and which involves the prohibition between member states of customs duties on imports and exports and of all charges having equivalent effect¹, as well as the adoption of a common customs tariff in their relations with third countries². From its inception the EC Treaty has provided that member states are to refrain from introducing between themselves any new customs duties on imports or exports or any charges having equivalent effect, and must refrain from increasing those already applied in their trade with each other³. Member states were also progressively to abolish customs duties on imports, and charges having equivalent effect, in force between themselves during a transitional period⁴. In pursuance of this objective, such duties and equivalent charges have now been abolished⁵ in relation to intra-Community movements⁶.

Common customs tariff duties⁷ are to be fixed by the Council acting by a qualified majority on a proposal from the Commission⁸. In carrying out the tasks entrusted to it in relation to the customs union⁹, the Commission is to be guided by: (1) the need to promote trade between member states and third countries; (2) developments in conditions of competition within the Community, in so far as they lead to an improvement in the competitive capacity of undertakings; (3) the requirements of the Community as regards the supply of raw materials and semi-finished goods (and in this connection the Commission is to take care to avoid distorting conditions of competition between member states in respect of finished goods); and (4) the need to avoid serious disturbances in the economies of member states and to ensure rational development of production and an expansion of consumption within the Community¹⁰.

The Community may conclude with a third state, a union of states or an international organisation agreements establishing an association involving reciprocal rights and obligations, common action and special procedures¹¹.

1 The essential feature of a charge having an effect equivalent to a customs duty which distinguishes it from an internal tax resides in the fact that the former is borne solely by an imported product as such whilst the latter is borne both by imported and domestic products: Case 90/79 EC Commission v France [1981] ECR 283, [1981] 3 CMLR 1, ECJ. A charge which is levied both on domestic and imported products, the revenue from which is intended to finance activities benefiting the domestic products and which offsets the charge borne by those products is a charge having an effect equivalent to customs duty and as such is prohibited by the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') arts 9, 12 (now renumbered as arts 23, 25). If, however, the charge only partially offsets the burden on the domestic products, the charge is legal in principle but would be prohibited by art 95 (now renumbered as art 90) as a discriminatory internal tax and would have to be proportionately reduced: Case 77/72 Capolongo v Maya [1973] ECR 611, [1974] 1 CMLR 230, ECJ; Case 94/74 Industria Gomma Articoli Vari v Ente Nazionale per la Cellulosa e per la Carta [1975] ECR 699, [1976] 2 CMLR 37, ECJ; Case 77/76 Cucchi v Avez SpA [1977] ECR 987, ECJ; Joined Cases C-78-83/90 Compagni Commerciale de l'Ouest v Receveur Principal des Douanes de la Pallice-Port [1992] ECR I-1847, [1994] 2 CMLR 425, ECJ; Case C-347/95 Fazenda Pública v União das Co-operativas Abastecedoras de Leite de Lisboa, UCRL [1997] ECR I-4911, [1997] STC 1333, ECJ; Case C-28/96 Fazenda Pública v Fricarnes SA [1997] ECR I-4939, [1997] STC 1348n, ECJ. See also Case C-213/96 Outokumpu Oy [1998] ECR I-1777, ECJ (the EC Treaty art 95 (now renumbered as art 90) precludes an excise duty which forms part of a national system of taxation on sources of energy from being levied on electricity of domestic origin at rates which vary according to its method of production while being levied on imported electricity, whatever its method of production, at a flat rate which, although lower than the highest rate applicable to electricity of domestic origin, leads, if only in certain cases, to higher taxation being imposed on imported electricity). As to the relationship between the EC Treaty arts 23, 25 (as renumbered), on the one hand, and art 90 (as renumbered), on the other, see note 3 infra. See also Case C-517/04 Visserijbedrijf DJ Koorstra & Zoon v Productschap Vis [2006] 3 CMLR 565, ECJ.

The EC Treaty arts 23, 25 (as renumbered) do not apply to charges imposed on goods by reason of the fact that they cross a frontier if that charge constitutes consideration for a service actually rendered to an economic agent individually and represents a proportional payment for that service: Case 63/74 W Cadsky SpA v Istituto Nazionale per il Commercio Estero [1975] ECR 281, [1975] 2 CMLR 246, ECJ; Case 158/82 EC Commission v Denmark [1983] ECR 3573, [1984] 3 CMLR 658, ECJ; Case 18/87 EC Commission v Germany [1988] ECR 5427, ECJ (where it was held that the charge attaches to inspections carried out to fulfil obligations imposed by Community law, provided that the fees do not exceed the real costs of the inspections in connection with which they are charged, that the inspections in question are obligatory and uniform for all the products concerned in the Community, that they are prescribed by Community law in the general interest of the Community and that they promote the free movement of goods, in particular by neutralising obstacles which may arise from unilateral measures of inspection adopted in accordance with the EC Treaty art 36 (now renumbered as art 30)). The competent authorities of a member state are, however, forbidden from levying charges for customs clearance facilities accorded in the interest of the common market: Case 132/82 EC Commission v Belgium [1983] ECR 1649 at 1660, [1983] 3 CMLR 600 at 614, ECJ; Case 133/82 EC Commission v Luxembourg [1983] ECR 1669 at 1679, ECJ. Similarly, a member state is in breach of the EC Treaty arts 23, 25 (as renumbered) if, in respect of intra-Community trade, it charges economic agents the costs of inspections and administrative formalities carried out by customs offices: Case 340/87 EC Commission v Italy [1989] ECR 1483 at 1512, [1991] 1 CMLR 437 at 456-457, ECJ. This is equally true if the charge is imposed in the form of a 'taxe de passage' under a private contract between the importer and the managers of an international road station: Case C-16/94 Edouard Dubois et Fils SA v Garonor Exploitation SA [1995] ECR I-2421, [1995] All ER (EC) 821, [1995] 2 CMLR 771, ECJ.

Any charge which, by altering the price of an article exported has the same restrictive effect on the free circulation of the article as a customs duty is a charge having equivalent effect to customs duty. The relevant provisions of the EC Treaty make no distinction based on the purposes of the duties and charges whose abolition is required; and no distinction is drawn between charges which are and charges which are not of a fiscal nature: Case 7/68 EC Commission v Italy [1968] ECR 423 at 429, [1969] CMLR 1 at 9, ECJ. See also Case 29/72 Marimex SpA v Italian Finance Administration [1972] ECR 1309, [1973] CMLR 486, ECJ. Dock dues imposed in the French overseas departments under a system whereby a charge, proportional to the customs value of goods, was levied by a member state on goods imported from another member state by reason of their entry into a region of the territory of the former member state, constituted a charge having an effect equivalent to a customs duty on imports, prohibited by the EC Treaty arts 9, 12, 13 (now renumbered as arts 23, 25), notwithstanding the fact that the charge was also imposed on goods entering that region from another part of the same state: Case C-163/90 Administration des Douanes et Droits Indirects v Legros [1992] ECR I-4625, ECJ; Joined Cases C-363, 407-411/93 René Lancry SA v Direction Générale des Douanes [1994] ECR I-3957, ECJ. A member state may object to repayment to the trader of a national charge levied in breach of Community law only where it is established that the charge has been borne in its entirety by someone other than the trader and that reimbursement to the trader would amount to his unjust enrichment. It is for the national courts to determine, in the light of the facts in each case, whether those conditions have been satisfied. If the charge has been passed on only in part, it is for the national authorities to reimburse to the trader the sum not passed on: Joined Cases C-192-218/95 Société Comateb v Directeur Général des Douanes et Droits Indirects [1997] ECR I-165, ECJ. Any pecuniary charge, whatever its designation or mode of application, which is imposed unilaterally on goods by reason of the fact that they cross a frontier, and which is not a customs duty in the strict sense, constitutes a charge having equivalent effect to a customs duty within the meaning of the EC Treaty arts 9, 12, 13, 16 (now renumbered as arts 23, 25), even if it is not imposed on behalf of the state: Case 158/82 EC Commission v Denmark [1983] ECR 3573 at 3585, [1984] 3 CMLR 658 at 671, ECJ. See also Joined Cases 2, 3/69 Sociaal Fonds voor de Diamantarbeiders v SA Ch Brachfeld & Sons and Chougol Diamond Co [1969] ECR 211, [1969] CMLR 335, ECJ (it is irrelevant that the proceeds are not paid over to the state, or that there is no discriminatory or protective effect and even though the product so taxed does not compete with any similar product of national manufacture); Joined Cases 2, 3/62 EC Commission v Luxembourg and Belgium [1962] ECR 425, [1963] CMLR 199, ECJ; Case 34/73 Variola SpA v Amministrazione Italiana delle Finanze [1973] ECR 981, ECJ; Case 39/73 Rewe-Zentralfinanz GmbH v Direktor der Landwirtschaftskammer Westfalen-Lippe [1973] ECR 1039, [1977] 1 CMLR 630, ECJ; Case 46/76 Bauhuis v Netherlands [1977] ECR 5, ECJ; Case 132/78 Denkavit Loire Sarl v France [1979] ECR 1923, [1979] 3 CMLR 605, ECJ; Case 18/87 EC Commission v Germany [1988] ECR 5427, ECJ; Case 340/87 EC Commission v Italy [1989] ECR 1483, [1991] 1 CMLR 437, ECJ; Case C-130/93 Lamair NV v Nationale Dienst voor Afzet van Land-en Tuinbouwprodukten [1994] ECR I-3215, ECJ; Case C-45/94 Cámara de Comercio, Industria y Navegación de Ceuta v Ayuntamiento de Ceuta [1995] ECR I-4385, ECJ. The objective of the EC Treaty arts 23, 25 (as renumbered) is solely to prohibit charges having equivalent effect to customs duties with respect to trade 'between member states'. It follows that those provisions do not concern the importation or the exportation of products coming from or destined for non-member states: Case 148/77 Hansen and O C Balle GmbH & Co v Hauptzollamt Flensburg [1978] ECR 1787, [1979] 1 CMLR 604, ECJ. See Case C-72/03 Carbonati Apuani Srl v Comune di Carrara [2004] 3 CMLR 1282, ECJ (tax imposed on goods crossing boundary within member state infringed the EC Treaty art 23 (formerly art 9)).

2 EC Treaty art 23(1) (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)).

3 EC Treaty art 25 (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). The EC Treaty arts 23, 25 (as renumbered) cannot be applied at the same time as art 90 (as renumbered): Case 10/65 Deutschmann v Germany [1965] ECR 469, [1965] CMLR 259, ECJ; Case 57/65 Alfons Lütticke GmbH v Hauptzollamt Saarlouis [1966] ECR 205, [1971] CMLR 674, ECJ; Case 78/76 Steinike und Weinlig v Germany [1977] ECR 595, [1977] 2 CMLR 688, ECJ; Case 193/85 Co-operative Co-Frutta Srl v Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato [1987] ECR 2085, ECJ; Case C-266/91 Celulose Beira Industrial (CELBI) SA v Fazenda Pública [1993] ECR I-4337 at 4361, ECJ; Case C-347/95 Fazenda Pública v UCAL [1997] ECR I-4911, ECJ. It follows that the legality of fiscal or para-fiscal national rules falling within the EC Treaty art 23 (as renumbered) or art 25 (as renumbered) cannot be assessed at the same time in the light of art 90 (as renumbered). Article 23 (as renumbered) is a fundamental rule of the EC Treaty, and any exception to it must be clearly laid down: Joined Cases 90, 91/63 EEC Commission v Luxembourg and Belgium [1964] ECR 625, [1965] CMLR 58, ECJ. See also Case C-517/04 Visserijbedrijf DJ Koorstra & Zn vof v Productschap Vis [2006] 3 CMLR 565, ECJ.

4 EC Treaty art 13(1) (revoked). The object of the provisions of art 13 is in their entirety to prohibit all measures by member states taken by a unilateral decision and not under Community procedures, which, whatever they are called, and by whatever means they have been introduced, have, at the time of importation, the same discriminating effect as customs duties. Since art 13 was a fundamental provision for establishing the free movement of goods, it lays down an essential legal principle and consequently the only possible exceptions are those which on a strict construction of art 13 can clearly be allowed: Joined Cases 52, 55/65 Germany v EEC Commission [1966] ECR 159, [1967] CMLR 22, ECJ. See also Joined Cases 90, 91/63 EEC Commission v Luxembourg and Belgium [1964] ECR 625, [1965] CMLR 58, ECJ; Case 24/68 EC Commission v Italy [1969] ECR 193, [1971] CMLR 611, ECJ; Case 84/71 Marimex SpA v Italian Finance Administration [1972] ECR 89, [1972] CMLR 907, ECJ.

5 EC Treaty art 13(2) (revoked). The transitional period for the original member states expired on 31 December 1969: see art 8 (as originally enacted) and art 16 (revoked) in relation to exports and charges having equivalent effect.

6 On and after the relevant date there was to be charged, levied, collected and paid on goods imported into the United Kingdom such Community customs duty, if any, as was for the time being applicable in accordance with the Treaties or, if the goods were not within the Common Customs Tariff of the Community (see PARA 10 post) and the duties chargeable were not otherwise fixed by any directly applicable Community provision, such duty of customs, if any, as the Treasury, on the recommendation of the Secretary of State, might by order specify: European Communities Act 1972 s 5(1). For these purposes, 'the relevant date', in relation to any goods, was the date on and after which the duties of customs that might be charged thereon were no longer affected under the Treaties by any temporary provision made on or with reference to the accession of the United Kingdom to the Communities: European Communities Act 1972 s 5(1). Under the Act of Accession (1972) art 39(1) (see PARA 3 ante), the Common Customs Tariff had to be applied in full from 1 July 1977. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 6 ante. As to the Treasury see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 512-517.

7. Discriminatory taxation.

No member state may impose, directly or indirectly, on the products of other member states¹ any internal taxation of any kind² in excess of that imposed directly or indirectly³ on similar⁴ domestic products; nor may any member state impose on the products of other member states any internal taxation of such a nature⁵ as to afford indirect protection to other products⁶. Where a tax is found to be discriminatory, a member state may not adopt provisions relating to actions for repayment of that tax which are less favourable than those which would have applied to analogous domestic claims⁷.

1 The provisions of the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') art 90, 1st para, 2nd para (as renumbered) complement the provisions on the abolition of customs duties and charges having equivalent effect since their objective is to ensure the free movement of goods between member states under normal conditions of competition by eliminating any form of protection which may result in the application of internal taxation which discriminates against products from other member states. In that respect art 95 (now renumbered as art 90) guarantees the complete neutrality of internal taxation as regards competition between domestic products and imported products: Case 216/81 Cogis v Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato [1982] ECR 2701, [1983] 1 CMLR 685, ECJ; Case 171/78 EC Commission v Denmark [1980] ECR 447, [1981] 2 CMLR 688, ECJ. The provisions of the EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered) do not, however, prohibit member states from imposing internal taxation on products imported from other member states when there are no similar domestic products or other domestic products capable of being protected. Such similarity between products exists when the products in question are normally to be considered as coming within the same fiscal, customs or statistical classification, as the case may be: Case 27/67 Firma Fink-Frucht GmbH v Hauptzollamt München-Landsbergerstrasse [1968] ECR 223, [1968] CMLR 187, ECJ. Even when there is no similar domestic product or other domestic product capable of being protected, it would not be permissible for member states to impose on such products charges of such an amount that the free movement of goods within the common market would be impeded as far as those products were concerned. Such a restraint on the free movement of goods cannot, however, be presumed to exist when the rate of taxation remains within the general framework of the national system of taxation of which the tax in question is an integral part: Case 31/67 Stier v Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Ericus [1968] ECR 235, [1968] CMLR 187, ECJ. Even a tax relief the discriminatory effect of which is slight falls within the prohibition in the EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered): Case 277/83 EC Commission v Italy [1985] ECR 2049, [1987] 3 CMLR 324, ECJ. The EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered) applies only to products from member states and, where appropriate, to goods originating in non-member countries which are in free circulation in member states; and it is not applicable to products imported directly from non-member states: Case C-130/92 OTO SpA v Ministero delle Finanze [1994] ECR I-3281, [1995] 1 CMLR 84, ECJ; Case C-90/94 Haahr Petroleum Ltd v Havn [1997] ECR I-4085, ECJ.

2 A charge which is levied both on domestic and imported products, the revenue from which is intended to finance activities benefiting the domestic products and which offsets the charge borne by those products is a charge having an effect equivalent to customs duty and as such is prohibited by the EC Treaty arts 23, 25 (as renumbered). If, however, the charge only partially offsets the burden on the domestic products, the charge is legal in principle but would be prohibited by art 90 (as renumbered) as a discriminatory internal tax and would have to be proportionately reduced: Case 77/72 Capolongo v Maya [1973] ECR 611, [1974] 1 CMLR 230, ECJ; Case C-72/92 Firma Herbert Scharbatke GmbH v Germany [1993] ECR I-5509, ECJ; and see the other cases cited in PARA 6 note 1 ante. The levying by a member state of a tax on a product imported from another member state in accordance with a method of calculation or rules which differ from those used for the taxation of the similar domestic product, eg a flat-rate amount in one case and a graduated amount in another, would be incompatible with the EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered) if the latter product were subject, even if only in certain cases, by reason of graduated taxation, to a charge to tax lower than that on the imported product. Article 90 (as renumbered) does not, however, restrict the freedom of each member state to establish the system of taxation which it considers the most suitable in relation to each product, provided that the imported product is not subject to a charge to tax higher than that on the similar domestic product: Case 127/75 Bobie Getränkevertrieb GmbH v Hauptzollamt Aachen-Nord [1976] ECR 1079, ECJ. The EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered) precludes the levying by a member state of a charge which, although having the appearance of internal taxation, is, either by reason of the wording of the provisions imposing it or by reason of the manner in which the administrative authority applies it, such as to be levied upon imported products or certain categories of those products, to the exclusion of local products in the same category: Case C-45/94 Cámara de Comercio, Industria y Navegación de Ceuta v Ayuntamiento de Ceuta [1995] ECR I-4385, ECJ. A single flat-rate transference duty which is imposed on national products and imported products at the same rate, but has the effect, by reason of the different basis on which it is applied, of taxing imported products if they have been subjected to processing more heavily than national products at a similar stage of processing, is of a discriminatory nature and is contrary to the EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered): Case 77/69 EC Commission v Belgium [1970] ECR 237, [1974] 1 CMLR 203, ECJ. A system of taxation may be considered compatible with the EC Treaty art 95 (now renumbered as art 90) only if it is proved to be so structured as to exclude any possibility of imported products being taxed more heavily than domestic products, so that it cannot in any event have discriminatory effect: Case C-90/94 Haahr Petroleum Ltd v Havn [1997] ECR I-4085, ECJ; Case C-375/95 EC Commission v Greece [1997] ECR I-5981, ECJ; Case C-213/96 Outokumpu Oy [1998] ECR I-1777, ECJ.

See also Case C-387/01 Weigel v Finanzlandesdirektion für Vorarlberg [2004] 3 CMLR 931, ECJ (tax on registration of imported motor vehicle not discriminatory as based on actual value of vehicle calculated by reference to set of fixed scales; surcharge discriminatory, however, as in practice applied almost exclusively to imported vehicles); Case C-365/02 Lindfors v Finland [2005] All ER (EC) 745, ECJ (chargeable event for charging of tax on motor vehicle was use of car in traffic, even though tax usually charged on registration).

3 The EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered) is infringed where the taxation on the imported product and that on the similar domestic product are calculated in a different manner on the basis of different criteria, which lead, if only in certain cases, to higher taxation being imposed on the imported product: Case 45/75 Rewe-Zentrale des Lebensmittel-Großhandels GmbH v Hauptzollamt Landau/Pfalz [1976] ECR 181, [1976] 2 CMLR 1, ECJ; and see Case C-154/89 EC Commission v France [1991] ECR I-659, ECJ; Case C-327/90 EC Commission v Greece [1992] ECR I-3033, [1995] 2 CMLR 294, ECJ.

4 The EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered) does not apply if there is no similar or competing domestic production: Case C-47/88 EC Commission v Denmark [1990] ECR I-4509, ECJ; Case 90/79 EC Commission v France [1981] ECR 283, [1981] 3 CMLR 1, ECJ. In order to determine whether products are similar for these purposes, similarity being a concept which must be interpreted widely, it is necessary to consider whether the products at issue have similar characteristics and meet the same needs from the point of view of consumers, the test being not whether they are strictly identical but whether their use is similar and comparable: Joined Cases C-367-377/93 FG Roders BV v Inspecteur der Invoerrechten en Accijnzen [1995] ECR I-2229, ECJ; Case 216/81 Cogis v Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato [1982] ECR 2701, [1983] 1 CMLR 685, ECJ; Case 168/78 EC Commission v France [1980] ECR 347, [1981] 2 CMLR 631, ECJ; Case 171/78 EC Commission v Denmark [1980] ECR 447, [1981] 2 CMLR 688, ECJ. In order to determine whether two categories of beverages are similar, it is necessary first to consider certain objective characteristics and secondly to consider whether or not both categories of beverages are capable of meeting the same needs from the point of view of consumers, which must be assessed on the basis not of existing consumer habits but of the prospective development of those habits and, essentially, on the basis of objective characteristics which ensure that a product is capable of meeting the same needs as another product from the point of view of certain categories of consumers. The customs classification of beverages, which was designed to meet the requirements of external trade, cannot provide conclusive evidence with regard to the appraisal of the criterion of similarity: Case 106/84 EC Commission v Denmark [1986] ECR 833, [1987] 2 CMLR 278, ECJ; Case 243/84 John Walker & Sons Ltd v Ministeriet for Skatter og Afgifter [1986] ECR 875, [1987] 2 CMLR 275, ECJ.

5 A system of differential taxation whereby the grant of a tax exemption or the enjoyment of a reduced rate of taxation is conditional upon the possibility of inspecting production on national territory is discriminatory in nature and as such comes within the prohibition laid down by the EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered). The effect of such a condition which by definition cannot be satisfied by similar products from other member states is to preclude those products in advance from qualifying for the tax advantage in question and to confine that advantage to domestic production: Joined Cases 142, 143/80 Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato v Essevi SpA [1981] ECR 1413, ECJ. The purpose of the EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered), as a whole, is to ensure the free movement of goods between member states under normal conditions of competition, by eliminating all forms of protection which might result from the application of discriminatory internal taxes against products from other member states, and to guarantee absolute neutrality of internal taxes as regards competition between domestic and imported products. Against that background, art 95, 2nd para is more specifically intended to prevent any form of indirect fiscal protectionism affecting imported products which, although not similar within the meaning of art 95, 1st para to domestic products, are nevertheless in a competitive relationship with some of them, even if only partially, indirectly or potentially: Case 356/85 EC Commission v Belgium [1987] ECR 3299, ECJ. For the purposes of the application of that provision it is sufficient for the imported product to be in competition with the protected domestic production by reason of one or several economic uses to which it may be put, even though the condition of similarity for the purposes of the EC Treaty art 90, 1st para (as renumbered) is not fulfilled. Whilst the criterion indicated in art 95, 1st para (now renumbered as art 90) consists in the comparison of tax burdens, whether in terms of the rate, the mode of assessment or other detailed rules for the application thereof, in view of the difficulty of making sufficiently precise comparisons between the products in question, art 95, 2nd para (now renumbered as art 90) is based upon a more general criterion, in other words the protective nature of the system of internal taxation: Case 171/78 EC Commission v Denmark [1980] ECR 447, [1981] 2 CMLR 688, ECJ.

6 EC Treaty art 90, 1st para, 2nd para (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). On and after 1 January 1962 (ie the date on which art 95 (now renumbered as art 90) became fully effective) a member state could no longer be authorised to maintain in its tax law or fiscal practices any pre-existing discrimination in the system applicable to the importation of products originating in other member states: Joined Cases 142, 143/80 Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato v Essevi SpA [1981] ECR 1413, ECJ. The EC Treaty art 90 (as renumbered) is to be interpreted widely so that the prohibition laid down therein is to apply whenever a fiscal levy is likely to discourage imports of goods originating in other member states to the benefit of domestic production. It applies, therefore, not only to taxes directly affecting imported products but also to internal taxation which is imposed on the use of imported products where those products are essentially intended for such use and have been imported solely for that purpose: Case 252/86 Bergandi v Directeur Général des Impôts [1988] ECR 1343, [1989] 2 CMLR 933, ECJ. See also Case C-421/97 Tarantik v Direction des Services Fiscaux de Seine-et-Marne [1999] All ER (EC) 523, ECJ (banded system of motor vehicle taxation permitted by art 95 (now renumbered as art 90) provided that any increase between bands did not deter consumers from buying the types of foreign vehicle in the higher tax bands to the benefit of vehicles of domestic manufacture in the lower tax bands). 8. The European Economic Area ('EEA').

The Agreement on the European Economic Area signed at Oporto on 2 May 1992 and subsequently adjusted by the Protocol signed at Brussels on 17 March 1993¹ was made between the European Community and its member states² and the states of the European Free Trade Association ('EFTA')³, namely Austria, Finland, Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway, Switzerland and Sweden, and was intended to create an area of 19 countries throughout which the 'four freedoms' of the European Community, namely the free movement of goods, capital, services and people, would apply⁴. The Protocol adjusting the Agreement had the effect of excluding from the Agreement on the European Economic Area Switzerland, which chose on 1 December 1992 not to participate, and Liechtenstein; enabled the Agreement to enter into force without being ratified by those two countries; and allowed for Liechtenstein to join the Agreement at a future date⁵. Austria, Finland and Sweden, who were formerly member states of the European Economic Area, became full members of the European Community on 1 January 1995⁶.

Under the Agreement, customs duties on imports and exports, and any charges having equivalent effect, are prohibited between the parties to the Agreement in relation to specified products⁷ originating in the countries party to the Agreement⁸. Quantitative restrictions on imports and exports and all measures having equivalent effect are prohibited between the parties to the Agreement in relation to such products⁹. In order to facilitate trade, border controls and formalities are to be simplified between the parties to the Agreement¹⁰, who are to assist each other in customs matters in order to ensure that customs legislation is correctly applied¹¹ and are to strengthen and broaden co-operation with the aim of simplifying the procedures for trade in goods¹².

The Agreement was implemented in the United Kingdom by the European Economic Area Act 1993, which came into force on 5 November 1993. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1 note 6 ante.

3 The European Free Trade Association was formed in 1960 by seven European states which, whilst wishing to promote free trade, sought a less structured and less politicised form of co-operation than that envisaged by the European Community: see the Convention establishing the European Free Trade Association (Stockholm, 4 January 1960; TS 30 (1960); Cmnd 1026).

8 Ibid arts 2, 10. Without prejudice to the arrangements set out in Protocol 5, this also applies to customs duties of a fiscal nature: art 10.

Without prejudice to future developments of case law, the provisions of the Agreement, in so far as they are identical in substance to corresponding rules of the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') and the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community (Paris, 18 April 1951; TS 16 (1979); Cmnd 7461) (the 'ECSC Treaty') and to acts adopted in application of those two Treaties, are to be interpreted, in their implementation and application, in conformity with the relevant rulings of the European Court of Justice given prior to the date of signature of the Agreement on the European Economic Area: art 6. See Case T-115/94 Opel Austria GmbH v EC Council [1997] ECR II-39, CFI (where the Agreement on the European Economic Area art 10 was held to be identical in substance to the EC Treaty arts 12, 13, 16, 17 (now renumbered as arts 23, 25); Case E-1/01 Einarsson v Iceland [2002] 2 CMLR 34, EFTA Ct (imposition of higher rate of VAT on foreign language books was discriminatory against products from other EEA states and breached the prohibition on protection through internal taxation under the Agreement on the European Economic Area art 14).

9 Agreement on the European Economic Area arts 2, 11, 12. The provisions of arts 11, 12 do not preclude prohibitions or restrictions on imports, exports or goods in transit justified on grounds of public morality, public policy or public security; the protection of health and life of humans, animals or plants; the protection of national treasures possessing artistic, historic or archaeological value; or the protection of industrial and commercial property: art 13. Such prohibitions or restrictions do not, however, constitute a means of arbitrary discrimination or a disguised restriction on trade between the parties to the Agreement: art 13.

NOTE 8--By virtue of art 97, the ECSC Treaty has now expired. 9. Customs union with Turkey.

An Agreement establishing an Association between the European Community and Turkey was signed at Ankara on 12 September 1963 ('the Ankara Agreement')¹ under which the EC-Turkey Association Council was established for the purposes of (inter alia) entering into a customs union between the Community and Turkey. On 22 December 1995 a decision of the EC-Turkey Association Council was made on the implementation of the final phase of the customs union between the Community and Turkey², the decision entering into force on 31 December 1995³.

Import or export customs duties and charges having equivalent effect were wholly abolished between the Community and Turkey on 31 December 1995 for goods other than agricultural products produced in the Community or Turkey or in free circulation in one or other area; and the Community and Turkey were to refrain from introducing any new customs duties on imports or exports or any charges having equivalent effect from that date in respect of such goods⁴. Quantitative restrictions on imports and exports and all measures having equivalent effect were prohibited between the parties for such goods⁵. Turkey became obliged, in relation to countries which were not members of the Community, to align itself on the Common Customs Tariff⁶. The parties also have a common objective of moving towards free movement of agricultural products⁷. Turkey also became obliged to adopt provisions⁸ laying down implementing provisions on:

- 9 (1) origin of goods;
- 10 (2) customs value of goods;
- 11 (3) introduction of goods into the territory of the customs union;
- 12 (4) customs declaration;
- 13 (5) release for free circulation;
- 14 (6) suspensive arrangements and customs procedures with economic impact;
- 15 (7) movement of goods;
- 16 (8) customs debt; and
- 17 (9) rights of appeal⁹.

(iii) The Customs Tariff

A. IN GENERAL

10. The Common Customs Tariff.

Member states originally declared their readiness to contribute to the development of international trade and the lowering of barriers to trade by entering into agreements designed, on a basis of reciprocity and mutual advantage, to reduce customs duties¹. This is achieved, in part, by the adoption of a common customs tariff in the relations of member states with third countries². All customs duties within the European Community are based on the Customs Tariff of the Communities³.

1 Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) art 18 (revoked). By establishing a customs union between themselves, member states aim to contribute, in the common interest, to the harmonious development of world trade, the progressive abolition of restrictions on international trade and the lowering of customs barriers: art 131, 1st para (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). This common commercial policy is to be based on uniform principles, particularly in regard to changes in tariff rates, the conclusion of tariff and trade agreements, the achievement of uniformity in measures of liberalisation, export policy and measures to protect trade such as those to be taken in the event of dumping or subsidies: EC Treaty art 133(1) (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). The member states may not, subsequent to the establishment of the common customs tariff, introduce, in a unilateral manner, new charges on goods imported directly from third countries or raise the level of those in existence at that time: Joined Cases 37, 38/73 Sociaal Fonds voor de Diamantarbeiders v NV Indiamex and Association de Fait De Belder [1973] ECR 1609, [1976] 2 CMLR 222, ECJ. EC Council Regulation 2658/87 (OJ L256, 7.9.87, p 1) preamble, 8th recital provides that is essential that the Combined Nomenclature and any other nomenclature wholly or partly based on it should be applied in a uniform manner by all the member states; and, according to its final provisions, EC Council Regulation 2658/87 (OJ L256, 7.9.87, p 1) (as amended) is stated to be binding in its entirety and directly applicable in all member states. The provisions of the Combined Nomenclature must, therefore, be given an identical interpretation by each of the member states: Case C-201/96 Laboratoires de Thérapeutique Moderne v Fonds d'Intervention et de Régularisation du Marché du Sucre [1997] ECR I-6147, ECJ.

2 See the EC Treaty art 23(1) (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)); and PARA 6 ante. The Tariff itself is to be found in EC Council Regulation 2658/87 (OJ L256, 7.9.87, p 1) Annex I (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2261/98 (OJ L292, 30.10.98, p 1) art 1, Annex; and amended by EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 860/1999 (OJ L108, 27.4.99 p 10); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 861/1999 (OJ L108, 27.4.99 p 11); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1372/1999 (OJ L162, 26.6.99 p 46); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1506/1999 (OJ L175 10.7.99 p 7); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1835/1999 (OJ L224, 25.8.99 p 5); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 2204/1999 (OJ L278, 28.10.99 p 4); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 2626/1999 (OJ L321, 14.12.99 p 3); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1228/2000 (OJ L143, 16.6.2000, p 22); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1264/2000 (OJ L144, 17.6.2000, p 6); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 2559/2000 (OJ L293, 22.11.2000, p 1); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1229/2001 (OJ L168, 23.6.2001, p 5); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1230/2001 (OJ L168, 23.6.2001, p 6); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1776/2001 (OJ L240, 8.9.2001, p 3); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1777/2001 (OJ L240, 8.9.2001, p 4); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1783/2001 (OJ L241, 11.9.2001, p 7); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 2042/2001 (OJ L276, 19.10.2001, p 8); EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1832/2002 (OJ L290, 28.10.2002, p 1), 493/2005 (OJ L82, 31.3.2005, p 1); and EC Council and EC Commission Regulation 1719/2005 (OJ L286, 28.10.2005, p 1)). It is based on the Common Nomenclature of the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Brussels, 24 June 1986; TS 15 (1989); Cm 695). However, because the Combined Nomenclature is inadequate to enable certain specific Community measures to be dealt with within its framework, set out in EC Council Regulation 2658/87 (OJ L256, 7.9.87, p 1) Annex II (as amended), additional Community subdivisions have been made which are included in an integrated tariff of the European Communities ('TARIC') and are known as 'TARIC subheadings': see art 2. The Commission is responsible for the management and publication of the TARIC: see art 6.

The committee provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 247 (see PARA 344 post) may examine any matter referred to it by its chairman, either on his own initiative or at the request of a representative of a member state concerning: (1) the Combined Nomenclature; (2) the TARIC nomenclature and any other nomenclature which is wholly or partly based on the Combined Nomenclature or which adds any subdivisions to it, and which is established by specific Community provisions with a view to the application of tariff or other measures relating to trade in goods: EC Council Regulation 2658/87 (OJ L256, 7.9.87, p 1) art 8 (amended by EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 252(2)(a)). As to the Community Customs Code see PARA 20 post.

The Commission is to adopt each year, by means of a regulation, a complete version of the Combined Nomenclature together with the corresponding autonomous and conventional rates of duty of the Common Customs Tariff, as it results from measures adopted by the Council or by the Commission: see EC Council Regulation 2658/87 (OJ L256, 7.9.87, p 1) art 12. This is to be published not later than 31 October in the Official Journal of the European Communities and applies from 1 January of the following year: see art 12. As to the Customs Tariff of the European Communities see PARA 11 post.

3 See EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 20(1). The other measures prescribed by Community provisions governing specific fields relating to trade in goods are, where appropriate, to be applied according to the tariff classification of those goods: art 20(2).

UPDATE

10 The Common Customs Tariff

NOTE 2--EC Council Regulation 2658/87 (OJ L256, 7.9.87, p 1) Annex I most recently replaced by EC Commission Regulation 948/2009 (OJ L287, 31.10.2009, p 1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(2) THE EUROPEAN BASIS OF CUSTOMS DUTY/(iii) The Customs Tariff/A. IN GENERAL/11. The Customs Tariff of the European Communities.

11. The Customs Tariff of the European Communities.

The Customs Tariff of the European Communities comprises:

- 18 (1) the Combined Nomenclature¹ of goods²;
- 19 (2) any other nomenclature which is wholly or partly based on the Combined Nomenclature or which adds any subdivisions to it, and which is established by Community provisions governing specific fields with a view to the application of tariff measures relating to trade in goods;
- 20 (3) the rates and other items of charge normally applicable to goods covered by the Combined Nomenclature as regards customs duties and import charges laid down under the common agricultural policy or under the specific arrangements applicable to certain goods resulting from the processing of agricultural products;
- 21 (4) the preferential tariff measures contained in agreements which the Community has concluded with certain countries or groups of countries and which provide for the granting of preferential tariff treatment;
- 22 (5) preferential tariff measures adopted unilaterally by the Community in respect of certain countries, groups of countries or territories;
- 23 (6) autonomous suspensive measures providing for a reduction in or relief from import duties chargeable on certain goods³; and
- 24 (7) other tariff measures provided for by other Community legislation⁴.

The tariff classification of goods is the determination, according to the rules in force, of:

- 25 (a) the subheading of the Combined Nomenclature or the subheading of any other nomenclature referred to in head (2) above; or
- 26 (b) the subheading of any other nomenclature which is wholly or partly based on the Combined Nomenclature or which adds any subdivisions to it, and which is established by Community provisions governing specific fields with a view to the application of measures other than tariff measures relating to trade in goods, under which the aforesaid goods are to be classified⁵.

At a declarant's⁶ request, the measures referred in heads (4) to (6) above apply⁷, instead of those provided for in head (3) above, where the goods concerned fulfil the conditions laid down by the relevant measures; and an application may be made after the event, provided that the relevant conditions are fulfilled⁸. Where the application of the measures referred to in heads (4) to (6) above is restricted to a certain volume of imports, it must cease, in the case of tariff quotas, as soon as the stipulated limit on the volume of imports is reached, and, in the case of tariff ceilings, by ruling of the Commission⁹.

1 As to the Combined Nomenclature see PARA 10 note 2 ante.

2 The Common Customs Tariff concerns only the importation of goods, ie tangible property, and does not apply to the importation of incorporeal property such as processes, services or know-how. Therefore, for the purpose of the determination of the value for customs purposes, it is in principle necessary to concentrate only on the intrinsic value of the article and to disregard the value of processes, which may be patented, in which it may be used: Case 1/77 Robert Bosch GmbH v Hauptzollamt Hildesheim [1977] ECR 1473, [1977] 2 CMLR 563, ECJ. However, in Case C-79/89 Brown Boveri et Cie AG v Hauptzollamt Mannheim [1991] ECR I-1853, [1993] 1 CMLR 814, ECJ, the court held that, in the case of software, the fact that the value lay in the computer program recorded on the carrier medium was irrelevant, and the charge at the duty point on importation was on the total value of the goods imported; but this decision has now been reversed by EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 34, combined with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 167(1), which imposes duty only on the cost of the imported carrier medium itself and not the value of the data: see PARA 70 post. As to the Community Customs Code see PARA 20 post. No customs duty is, however, imposed on goods whose importation into the Community is wholly banned, eg narcotic drugs (save for those imported through economic channels strictly controlled by the relevant authorities for medical and scientific purposes): Case 221/81 Wolf v Hauptzollamt Düsseldorf [1982] ECR 3681, [1983] 2 CMLR 170, ECJ; Case 50/80 Horvath v Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas [1981] ECR 385, [1982] 2 CMLR 522, ECJ; Case 240/81 Einberger v Hauptzollamt Freiburg [1982] ECR 3699, ECJ; Case 294/82 Einberger v Hauptzollamt Freiburg (No 2) [1984] ECR 1177, [1985] 1 CMLR 765, ECJ.

3 The aim of suspending the autonomous common customs tariff duties pursuant to the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') art 28 (as originally enacted) was temporarily to meet the needs of the user industries of the Community. In adopting such provisions, the Council must take account not only of those needs but also of the requirements of legal certainty and of the difficulties confronting national customs administrations owing to the wide range and complexity of the tasks which they must carry out. It follows that the descriptions of goods on which customs duties have been suspended must be interpreted according to objective criteria derived from their wording and that they may not be applied contrary to their wording to other goods, even if their properties and application are no different from those covered by the suspension. In particular, a later amendment of the description of a product on which duties have been suspended cannot retroactively affect the interpretation of the description previously applied for that purpose: Case 58/85 Ethicon GmbH v Hauptzollamt Itzehoe [1986] ECR 1131, ECJ.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 20(3) (amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(5)). The favourable tariff treatment from which certain goods may benefit by reason of their nature or end-use is subject to the conditions laid down in accordance with the committee procedure: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 21(1). Where an authorisation is required, arts 86, 87 (see PARA 143 post) apply: art 21(1). For these purposes, the expression 'favourable tariff treatment' means a reduction in or suspension of an import duty as referred to in art 4(10) (as amended) (see PARA 81 note 6 post), even within the framework of a tariff quota: art 21(2). 'Committee procedure' means the procedure referred to either in arts 247 and 247a, or in arts 248 and 248a (see PARA 345 post): art 4(24) (substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(1)).

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 20(6). Although the Common Customs Tariff constitutes a measure of Community law to be interpreted uniformly in all member states, its application is entrusted to member states. Accordingly, it is for member states to designate the authorities and persons required to undertake the tariff classification of products and to decide their training in order to enable them properly to fulfil such tasks: Case 317/81 Howe & Bainbridge BV v Oberfinanzdirektion Frankfurt am Main [1982] ECR 3257, ECJ. In the interests of legal certainty and ease of verification, the decisive criterion for the classification of goods for customs purposes is in general to be sought in their objective characteristics and properties as defined in the wording of the relevant heading of the Common Customs Tariff and of the notes to the sections or chapters: Case 145/81 Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas v Ludwig Wünsche & Co [1982] ECR 2493, ECJ; Case 40/88 Paul F Weber (in liquidation) v Milchwerke Paderborn-Rimbeck eG [1989] ECR 1395, [1991] 2 CMLR 844, ECJ; Case C-395/93 Neckermann Versand AG v Hauptzollamt Frankfurt am Main-Ost [1994] ECR I-4027, ECJ; Case C-338/95 Wiener SI GmbH v Hauptzollamt Emmerich [1997] ECR I-6495, ECJ. For the purpose of interpreting the Common Customs Tariff, the court has consistently held that both the notes which head the chapters of the Common Customs Tariff and the Explanatory Notes to the Nomenclature of the Customs Co-operation Council are important means for ensuring the uniform application of the Tariff and as such may be regarded as useful aids to its interpretation: Case 200/84 Daiber v Hauptzollamt Reutlingen [1985] ECR 3363, ECJ; Case C-395/93 Neckermann Versand AG v Hauptzollamt Frankfurt am Main-Ost supra; Case C-338/95 Wiener SI GmbH v Hauptzollamt Emmerich supra; Case C-143/96 Leonhard Knubben Speditionen GmbH v Hauptzollamt Mannheim [1997] ECR I-7039, ECJ. For two United Kingdom decisions adopting the jurisprudence of the Community in this regard see the decision of Laws J in Customs and Excise Comrs v Cedar Health Ltd (21 May 1998, unreported) (applied in SmithKline Beecham plc v Customs and Excise Comrs [2000] V & DR 24) and that of Moses J in Unigreg Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [1998] 3 CMLR 128.

6 For these purposes, 'declarant' means the person making the customs declaration in his own name, or the person in whose name a declaration is made: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 4(18). 'Person' means a natural person, a legal person or, where the possibility is provided for under the rules in force, an association of persons recognised as having the capacity to perform legal acts but lacking the legal status of a legal person: art 4(1). 'Customs declaration' means the act whereby a person indicates in the prescribed form and manner a wish to place goods under a given customs procedure: art 4(17). For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 post.

7 le without prejudice to the rules on flat-rate charges.

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 20(4).

9 Ibid art 20(5). In the case of (1) the administration of any relief from customs duty under the Customs and Excise Duties (General Reliefs) Act 1979 s 1 (see PARA 858 post) where the relief is limited to a quota of imported goods; and (2) the implementation or administration of any like relief provided for by any Community instrument, in so far as those provisions are not excluded or modified by any statutory instrument or any directly applicable Community provision conferring or relating to such relief, relief from duty is not to be allowed in the case of any goods unless an entry, ie a declaration for release for free circulation, has been made in respect of the goods and unless at the time of delivery of such entry, or such later time as the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may in any case allow, application for the relief is made by the importer to the Commissioners in such form, at such place and verified in such manner as may be required by them before the quota is exhausted: Customs Duties Quota Relief (Administration) Order 1986, SI 1986/2174, arts 2(1), 3 (amended by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (7)). The importer must furnish such information as may be required for the purpose of the application: Customs Duties Quota Relief (Administration) Order 1986, SI 1986/2174, art 3. Article 3 is to be construed as requiring that the entry be accompanied by the necessary supporting documents, ie the documents may be lodged separately from the declaration, provided that the declaration and the documents are clearly identified as being connected: Rosemans International Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 32 (unreported). The reference in the Customs Duties Quota Relief (Administration) Order 1986, SI 1986/2174, art 3 to an entry on the importation of goods is to be treated as including an entry of such goods under the Customs Controls on Importation of Goods Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 5 (see PARAS 82 note 7, 85 note 8 post): Customs and Excise (Single Market etc) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/3095, reg 10(1), Sch 1.

Goods are to be treated as forming part of a quota in the order in which an entry of them is accepted on or after the date of the opening of the quota, and being an entry containing an application for relief from duty made in accordance with the Customs Duties Quota Relief (Administration) Order 1986, SI 1986/2174 (as amended): art 4(1). The Commissioners may, however, delay the acceptance of an application for relief from duty in respect of any goods for the purposes of art 4(1) for any period not exceeding seven days from the date of the opening of the quota, and in such a case may, if the amount of the quota is smaller than the total amount of the goods in respect of which applications are made in accordance with the Customs Duties Quota Relief (Administration) Order 1986, SI 1986/2174 (as amended) during that period, allocate the quota proportionally among all the applicants whose applications are accepted: art 4(2). Goods are not to be treated as forming part of a quota if customs duty would not otherwise be chargeable or would not be chargeable at a higher rate than that applying within the quota: art 4(3).

B. TARIFF CLASSIFICATION

12. Rules of tariff classification.

Under the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System¹, to which the European Community is a contracting party, each contracting party undertakes that, except as otherwise provided², its customs tariff and statistical nomenclatures will be in conformity with the Harmonised System³. It thus undertakes that, in respect of its customs tariff and statistical nomenclatures:

- 27 (1) it will use all the headings and subheadings of the Harmonised System without addition or modification, together with their related numerical codes;
- 28 (2) it will apply the general rules for the interpretation of the Harmonised System⁴ and all the section, chapter and subheading notes, and will not modify the scope of the sections, chapters, headings or subheadings of the Harmonised System; and
- 29 (3) it will follow the numerical sequence of the Harmonised System⁵.

The general rules for the interpretation of the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System⁶ require that the classification of goods in the Harmonised System are to be governed by the specified principles⁷.

1 *I*e the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Brussels, 14 June 1983; TS 15 (1989); Cm 695); Protocol of Amendment (Brussels, 24 June 1986; Misc 4 (1987); Cm 109), ratified by EC Council Decision 87/369 (OJ L198, 20.7.87, p 1).

2 *I*e except as provided in the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System art 3(1)(c). Nothing in art 3 requires a contracting party to use the subheadings of the Harmonised System in its customs tariff nomenclature, provided that it meets the obligations set out in art 3(1)(a)(i)-(iii) (see heads (1)-(3) in the text) in a combined tariff/statistical nomenclature: art 3(1)(c). As to partial application by developing countries see art 4.

3 *I*bid art 3. Nothing in art 3 prevents a contracting party from establishing, in its customs tariff or statistical nomenclatures, subdivisions classifying goods beyond the level of the Harmonised System, provided that any such subdivision is added and coded at a level beyond that of the six-digit numerical code set out in art 3, Annex: art 3(3). As to the creation of subdivisions in the nomenclature adopted by the Community see PARA 10 note 2 ante.

4 As to the general rules see the text and notes 6-7 infra; and PARAS 13-18 post.

5 International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System art 3(1)(a). In complying with the undertakings in art 3(1)(a), each contracting party is entitled to make such textual adaptations as may be necessary to give effect to the Harmonised System in its domestic law: art 3(2).

6 *I*e the general rules in the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System art 1(a), Annex. The Annex forms an integral part of the Convention: art 2. Only the English and French versions are authoritative: Case C-143/96 Leonhard Knubben Speditions GmbH v Hauptzollamt Mannheim [1997] ECR I-7039, ECJ.

7 International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex preamble. The principles so specified are those in Annex rr 1-6 (see PARAS 13-18 post): Annex preamble.

13. Rule 1: headings.

In the general rules for the interpretation of the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System¹, the titles of sections, chapters and sub-chapters are provided for ease of reference only². For legal purposes, classification is to be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relative section or chapter notes³ and, provided that such headings or notes do not otherwise require, according to the relevant provisions⁴.

1 The general rules in the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Brussels, 14 June 1983; TS 15 (1989); Cm 695) art 1(a), Annex. The Annex forms an integral part of the Convention: art 2.

2 Ibid Annex r 1.

3 The decisive criterion for the customs classification of goods is to be sought generally in their objective characteristics and qualities, as defined in the relevant heading of the Common Customs Tariff and in the notes to the sections or chapters. Moreover, for the purpose of interpreting the Common Customs Tariff, the European Court of Justice has consistently held that both the notes which head the chapters of the Common Customs Tariff and the explanatory notes to the nomenclature of the Customs Co-operation Council are important means for ensuring the uniform application of the tariff and as such may be regarded as useful aids to its interpretation. For the purpose of interpreting the tariff headings, it is, therefore, necessary to take account not only of the wording and system of the Common Customs Tariff but also of the explanatory notes: Case 200/84 Daiber v Hauptzollamt Reutlingen [1985] ECR 3363 at 3381, ECJ. See also Case 36/71 Henck v Hauptzollamt Emden [1972] ECR 187, [1972] CMLR 785, ECJ (the intended use of a product may constitute an objective criterion for classification if it is inherent to the product, and that inherent character must be capable of being assessed on the basis of the product's objective characteristics and properties); Case 38/75 Douaneagent der NV Nederlandse Spoorwegen v Inspecteur der Invoerrechten en Accijnzen [1975] ECR 1439, [1976] 1 CMLR 167, ECJ (the classification opinions expressed by the Customs Co-operation Council do not bind the contracting parties but they have a bearing on interpretation which is all the more decisive as those opinions emanate from an authority entrusted by the contracting parties with ensuring uniformity in the interpretation and application of the nomenclature). When such an interpretation reflects the general practice followed by the contracting states, it may be set aside only if it appears incompatible with the wording of the heading concerned or goes manifestly beyond the discretion conferred on the Customs Co-operation Council: Case 38/76 Industriemetall LUMA GmbH v Hauptzollamt Duisburg [1976] ECR 2027 at 2036, ECJ (whilst the Common Customs Tariff does indeed in certain cases contain references to manufacturing processes and to the use for which goods are intended, it is generally preferred, in the interests of legal certainty and ease of verification, to employ criteria for classification based on the objective characteristics and properties of products which can be ascertained when customs clearance is obtained); Case 62/77 Carlsen Verlag GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion Köln [1977] ECR 2343, ECJ; Case 54/79 Firma Hako-Schuh Dietrich Bahner v Hauptzollamt Frankfurt am Main-Ost [1980] ECR 311, ECJ (although the explanatory notes to the Common Customs Tariff cannot modify the text of that Tariff, they nevertheless constitute an important factor in its interpretation enabling the scope of the various Tariff headings or subheadings to be defined or clarified); Case 11/79 J Cleton en Co BV v Inspecteur des droits d'Entrée et Accises à Rotterdam [1979] ECR 3069, ECJ; Case 114/80 Dr Ritter GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion Hamburg [1981] ECR 895, ECJ (the scope of concepts incorporated in the tariff headings or subheadings (in this case, 'other beverages') is to be determined on the basis of criteria which are both objective and verifiable; it is not permissible, therefore, to make the scope of such concepts dependent on purely subjective, variable factors (such as, in this case, the manner in which the product is taken or the purpose for which it is consumed, eg to quench thirst or to improve health); Case 145/81 Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas v Ludwig Wünsche & Co [1982] ECR 2493, ECJ; Case 237/81 Almadent Dental-Handels- und Vertriebsgesellschaft mbH v Hauptzollamt Mainz [1982] ECR 2981, ECJ; Case 175/82 Hans Dinter GmbH v Hauptzollamt Köln-Deutz [1983] ECR 969, ECJ (the decisive criterion for the customs classification of goods under the Common Customs Tariff is, generally speaking, to be sought in the objective characteristics and properties of the products at the time of their presentation for customs clearance); Case 46/83 Gerlach & Co BV v Inspecteur der Invoerrechten en Accijnzen [1984] ECR 841, ECJ (where a favourable tariff classification is dependent on obtaining a written authorisation from the competent authorities, this obligation is designed to facilitate the task of the customs authorities and to avoid fraud; in the interest of legal certainty and the smooth functioning of the administration, the procedure provided for in the Community rules must be followed; failure to do so precludes the benefit of the tariff classification); Case 166/84 Thomasdünge GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion Frankfurt am Main [1985] ECR 3001, ECJ (both the explanatory notes to the Nomenclature of the Customs Co-operation Council and the classification slips issued by the Committee on Common Customs Tariff Nomenclature are important means for ensuring the uniform application of the Tariff and as such may be regarded as useful aids to its interpretation); Case 252/84 Collector Guns GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Koblenz [1985] ECR 3387, ECJ; Case 90/85 Handelsonderneming J Mikx BV v Minister van Economische Zaken [1986] ECR 1695, ECJ (the intended use of the goods, which is not one of their inherent characteristics, cannot be relied on as an objective criterion at the time of importation because it is impossible at that time to determine the actual use to which they will be put); Case 42/86 Directeur Général des Douanes et Droits Indirects v Artimport [1987] ECR 4817, ECJ; Case 40/88 Paul F Weber (in liquidation) v Milchwerke Paderborn-Rimbeck eG [1989] ECR 1395, [1991] 2 CMLR 844, ECJ (with regard to the question whether the method of manufacture of the product has an effect on classification for customs purposes, whilst the Customs Tariff does indeed in certain cases contain references to manufacturing processes it is generally preferred to employ criteria for classification based on the objective characteristics and properties of products which can be ascertained when customs clearance is obtained; consequently, manufacturing processes are decisive only when the subheading so provides; the same conclusion is to be drawn, for the same reasons, in regard to the geographical origin of some of the constituents used in the product at issue; the classification of a product for customs purposes is to be made solely on the basis of its objective characteristics, independently of the origin of the constituents used in it which is not provided for in the Common Customs Tariff); Case 164/88 Ministère Public v Rispal [1989] ECR 2041, ECJ; Joined Cases C-153-157/88 Ministère Public v Fauque [1990] ECR I-649, [1991] 3 CMLR 101, ECJ; Case C-233/88 Gijs van de Kolk-Douane Expéditeur BV v Inspecteur der Invoerrechten en Accijnzen [1990] ECR I-265, ECJ (in the interests of legal certainty and ease of verification, goods are to be classified on the basis of the objective characteristics and properties of products which can be ascertained when customs clearance is obtained; in order to apply criteria such as those set out in the note at issue, there are objective techniques of sensory analysis which have recently been developed; those methods of analysis allow, in particular, the goods as presented for customs clearance to be accurately assessed); Case C-401/93 GoldStar Europe GmbH v Hauptzollamt Ludwigshafen [1994] ECR I-5587, ECJ; Case C-219/89 WeserGold GmbH & Co KG v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1991] ECR I-1895, ECJ; Case C-228/89 Farfalla Flemming und Partner v Hauptzollamt München-West [1990] ECR I-3387, [1992] 1 CMLR 133, ECJ (just as any artistic value which an article may have is not a matter for assessment by the customs authorities, the method employed for producing the article and the actual use for which that article is intended cannot be adopted by those authorities as criteria for tariff classification, since they are factors which are not apparent from the external characteristics of the goods and cannot, therefore, be easily appraised by the customs authorities; for the same reasons, the price of the article in question is not an appropriate criterion for customs classification); Case C-384/89 Ministère Public v Tomatis and Fulchiron [1991] ECR I-127, ECJ; Case C-120/90 Ludwig Post GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1991] ECR I-2391, ECJ; Case C-338/90 Hamlin Electronics GmbH v Hauptzollamt Darmstadt [1992] ECR I-2333, ECJ; Case C-177/91 Bioforce GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1993] ECR I-45, ECJ; Case C-256/91 Emsland-Stärke GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1993] ECR I-1857, ECJ; Case C-33/92 Gausepohl-Fleisch GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion Hamburg [1993] ECR I-3047, ECJ; Case C-11/93 Siemens Nixdorf Informationssysteme AG v Hauptzollamt Augsburg [1994] ECR I-1945, ECJ; Case C-393/93 Walter Stanner GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Bochum [1994] ECR I-4011, ECJ; Case C-395/93 Neckermann Versand AG v Hauptzollamt Frankfurt am Main-Ost [1994] ECR I-4027, ECJ; Case C-38/95 Ministero delle Finanze Stato v Foods Import dei Fratelli Monti Srl [1996] ECR I-6543, [1997] 1 CMLR 1067, ECJ (the requirement that the objective characteristics and properties of products must be ascertainable when customs clearance is obtained does not presuppose that differences between products are apparent; certain characteristics of a product may be identifiable only microscopically, or by means of sensory analysis; indeed, a product's classification may depend on the process by which it is manufactured or the geographical origin of some of its constituents, those being characteristics which are not necessarily apparent); Case C-338/95 Wiener SI GmbH v Hauptzollamt Emmerich [1997] ECR I-6495, ECJ (it is settled case law that, in the interests of legal certainty and ease of verification, the decisive criterion for the classification of goods for customs purposes is in general to be sought in their objective characteristics and properties as defined in the wording of the relevant heading of the Common Customs Tariff and of the notes to the sections or chapters); Case C-382/95 Techex Computer und Grafik Vertriebs GmbH v Hauptzollamt München [1997] ECR I-7363, ECJ.

4 International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 1. The relevant provisions are those specified in Annex rr 1-6: Annex r 1.

14. Rule 2: references in headings.

Any reference in a heading in the general rules for the interpretation of the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System¹ to an article is to be taken to include:

- 30 (1) a reference to that article incomplete or unfinished, provided that, as presented, the incomplete or unfinished article has the essential character of the complete or finished article;
- 31 (2) a reference to that article complete or finished (or failing to be classified as complete or finished²), presented unassembled or disassembled³.

Any reference in a heading to a material or substance is to be taken to include a reference to mixtures or combinations of that material or substance with other materials or substances; and any reference to goods of a given material or substance is to be taken to include a reference to goods consisting wholly or partly of such material or substance⁴.

1 ie in the general rules in the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Brussels, 14 June 1983; TS 15 (1989); Cm 695) art 1(a), Annex. The Annex forms an integral part of the Convention: art 2.

2 ie by virtue of ibid Annex r 2(a).

3 Ibid Annex r 2(a). Rule 2(a) covers articles not yet assembled as well as articles which have been disassembled; and, to the extent to which the parts not yet assembled allow of the assembly of a complete article, they are covered by the provisions governing that article even though the Common Customs Tariff contains a specific heading for parts and fittings.

Rule 2(a) is to be interpreted as meaning that, when unassembled parts of an article are presented for customs clearance only, any surplus parts not allowing of the assembly of a complete article are to be regarded as 'parts and fittings' of that article within the meaning of the Common Customs Tariff: Case 165/78 IMCO-Michaelis GmbH & Co v Oberfinanzdirektion de Berlin [1979] ECR 1837, ECJ. The necessary component parts of an appliance covered by a tariff heading, which form a functional unit and, when fitted together, have the essential character of the complete article, are covered by the expression 'parts', even though they do not include all the component parts which normally go to make up the complete appliance: Case 60/77 Fritz Fuss KG v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1977] ECR 2453, ECJ.

In ordinary language, the concept of assembly is taken to mean the operation whereby the components (of a mechanism, a device or a complex object) are assembled in order to render it serviceable or to make it function. The essential requirement is, therefore, on the one hand, that the disassembled article must not be usable for the purposes expected of the finished product; and, on the other hand, that the component parts of the product must normally, in order to be of use, be assembled so as to constitute the finished product. A multiplicity of uses of the imported items will preclude their being treated as a disassembled form of one article into which they might be assembled. Thus in Case 295/81 International Flavors & Fragrances IFF (Deutschland) GmbH v Hauptzollamt Bad Reichenhall [1982] ECR 3239, ECJ, the products in issue (fruit-juice concentrates and flavour concentrates) had diverse uses in the form in which they were imported and could be marketed separately, of which mixing them was merely one possibility; as a result, for the purposes of tariff classification at the time of importation, it was wholly unnecessary to consider the possibility that the liquids could be mixed or 'assembled' when such a procedure was neither necessary nor clearly certain to take place. See also Case C-35/93 Develop Dr Eisbein GmbH & Co v Hauptzollamt Stuttgart-West [1994] ECR I-2655, ECJ (the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System r 2(a), 2nd sentence (see head (2) in the text) is to be interpreted as meaning that an article is to be considered to be imported unassembled or disassembled where the component parts, ie the parts which may be identified as components intended to make up the finished product, are all presented for customs clearance at the same time and no account is to be taken in that regard of the assembly technique or the complexity of the assembly method).

4 International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 2(b). The classification of goods consisting of more than one material or substance must be according to the principles of Annex r 3 (see PARA 15 post): Annex r 2(b). For examples of the application of Annex r 2(b) see Case 234/81 El Du Pont de Nemours Inc v Customs and Excise Comrs [1982] ECR 3515, ECJ; Case 37/88 Rheinkrone-Kraftfutterwerk Gebr Hübers GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas [1989] ECR 3013, ECJ; Case C-150/93 Directeur Général des Douanes et Droits Indirects v Société Superior France SA and Danzas SA [1994] ECR I-1161, ECJ.

15. Rule 3: goods prima facie classifiable under two headings.

When¹ goods are prima facie classifiable under two or more headings in the general rules for the interpretation of the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System², classification is to be effected as follows:

- 32 (1) the heading which provides the most specific description is to be preferred to headings providing a more general description; but when two or more headings each refer to only part of the materials or substances contained in mixed or composite goods or to only part of the items in a set put up for retail sale, those headings are to be regarded as equally specific in relation to those goods, even if one of them gives a more complete or precise description of the goods³;
- 33 (2) mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials or made up of different components⁴, and goods put up in sets for retail sale⁵, which cannot be classified by reference to head (1) above, are to be classified as if they consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character in so far as this criterion is applicable⁶;
- 34 (3) when goods cannot be classified by reference to head (1) or head (2) above, they are to be classified under the heading which occurs last in numerical order among those which equally merit consideration⁷.

1 le by the application of the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Brussels, 14 June 1983; TS 15 (1989); Cm 695) Annex r 2(b): see PARA 14 ante.

2 le the general rules in the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System.

3 Ibid Annex r 3(a). For an example of the application of Annex r 3(a) see Case C-164/95 Fabrica de Queijo Eru Portuguesa Lda v Alfândega de Lisboa [1997] ECR I-3441, ECJ. When a mixture is prima facie classifiable under two or more headings of the Common Customs Tariff, each of which relates to one of the materials composing the mixture, none of the headings can be regarded as more specific than the others on the sole ground that it gives a more precise or more complete description of the product referred to. In classifying such a product, the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b) (see head (2) in the text) or Annex r 3(c) (see head (3) in the text) must, therefore, be applied: Case 28/75 Baupla GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion Köln [1975] ECR 989, ECJ.

4 Although the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b) provides that mixtures of products which are not referred to in a specific heading must be classified in accordance with the material which gives them their essential character, the explanatory notes to the Brussels Nomenclature nevertheless state that that rule can only take effect provided the terms of headings or section or chapter notes do not otherwise require: Case 137/78 Henningsen Food Inc v Produktschap voor Pluimvee en Eieren [1979] ECR 1707 at 1720, ECJ. There has been considerable divergence over the identification of the 'essential characteristic' of goods under the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b); but it may be said that generally the essential characteristic will be determined by the tariff heading under which the goods are sought to be placed: see Case 205/80 ELBA Elektroapparate- und Maschinenbau Walter Goettmann KG v Hauptzollamt Berlin-Packhof [1981] ECR 2097 at 2105, ECJ (it cannot be argued that the 'essential character' of the article within the meaning of the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b) is determined by the materials used; the essential character of the article was in this case determined by its intended purpose as a decorative lighting appliance regardless of the material used for its frame); cf Case 130/82 Naamloze vennootschap Farr Co v Belgium [1983] ECR 327 at 339-340, ECJ (reference is made to the Customs Co-operation Council's explanatory notes (which in fact amount to specific applications of the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b)) according to which composite goods which consist of different materials or are made up of different components and which cannot be classified by reference to Annex r 3(a) are to be classified as if they consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character; in that connection, it should be emphasised that the essential character of filters derives from their filtering capacity; the description given in the questions put to the court shows that the sheets of textile material constituted, for all the filters in question, the component which is indispensable for the filtering process); Case 192/82 Kaffee-Contor Bremen GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Bremen-Nord [1983] ECR 1769 at 1779, ECJ (the wording of the tariff heading and the explanatory note of the Customs Co-operation Council thereon indicate that the decisive criteria for making a classification are not only the materials used, but both the external appearance of the articles in question and the use to which they are normally put); Case 298/82 Gustav Schickedanz KG v Oberfinanzdirektion Frankfurt am Main [1984] ECR 1829 at 1838, ECJ (in a case where the external layer of an upper was made entirely of textile fabric to which pieces of leather were attached in different places covering no more than approximately 70% of the textile fabric and thus leaving the remainder of the external layer exposed, the court considered that it was the textile fabric which gave the upper its essential character; the intrinsic value of the pieces of leather in relation to the textile fabric did not suffice for a finding that it was the leather which gave the essential character to the upper; even if the pieces of leather were of importance in the use of shoes, the goods in question had to be classified on the basis of the material which gave the upper its essential character and not on the basis of the use for which they were intended); Case 253/87 Sportex GmbH & Co v Oberfinanzdirektion Hamburg [1988] ECR 3351 at 3359, ECJ (when, in order to determine the tariff classification of mixtures, composite goods consisting of different components, and goods put up in sets, it is necessary to apply the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b), pursuant to which the classification must be carried out by reference to the material or component which gives the goods their essential character; this material may be identified by determining whether the product would retain its characteristic properties if one or other of its constituents were removed from it); Case 37/88 Rheinkrone-Kraftfutterwerk Gebr Hübers GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas [1989] ECR 3013, ECJ; Joined Cases C-153-157/88 Ministère Public v Fauque [1990] ECR I-649, [1991] 3 CMLR 101, ECJ; Case C-150/93 Directeur Général des Douanes et Droits Indirects v Société Superior France SA and Danzas SA [1994] ECR I-1161, ECJ; Case C-105/96 Codiesel-Sociedade de Apoio Técnico à Industria Lda v Conselho Técnico Aduaneiro [1997] ECR I-3465, ECJ; Case C-80/96 Quelle Schickedanz AG und Co v Oberfinanzdirektion Frankfurt am Main [1998] ECR I-123, ECJ (the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b) cannot apply if the characteristic property of the set would be taken away if either of its components (consisting, in this case, of a set of women's underclothes) were removed).

5 The fact that goods are intended, or are even specifically designed, to be used together and that they are presented for customs clearance together in the same package is not a sufficient reason for classifying them as a functional unit within the meaning of the Customs Co-operation Council's explanatory notes, if they can be used separately. The expression 'goods put up in sets' in the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b) implies that the goods are closely linked from the marketing point of view, with the result that they are not only presented together for customs clearance but are also normally supplied together, at the various marketing stages and, in particular, the retail stage, in a single package in order to satisfy a demand or to perform a specific function. Annex r 3(b) applies only where goods are prima facie classifiable under two or more headings and classification is not possible under Annex r 3(a), ie where there is no specific heading taking precedence over more general headings: Case 163/84 Hauptzollamt Hannover v Telefunken Fernseh und Rundfunk GmbH [1985] ECR 3299, ECJ; and see Case 223/84 Telefunken Fernseh und Rundfunk GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1985] ECR 3335, ECJ; Case 60/83 Metro International Kommanditgesellschaft v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1984] ECR 671 at 681, 682, ECJ (as regards the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 3(b), the Customs Co-operation Council's explanatory notes state that the expression 'goods put up in sets' is to be taken to mean goods which consist of products or articles having independent or complementary uses, grouped together for meeting a need or carrying out a specific activity, and are put up in retail packings). 16. Rule 4: goods which cannot otherwise be classified.

Goods which cannot otherwise be classified¹ are to be classified under the heading in the general rules for the interpretation of the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System² appropriate to the goods to which they are most akin³.

² I.e. the general rules in the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System.

³ Ibid Annex r 4. When a product can be classified under a specific tariff heading on the basis of its composition, there is no further possibility of classification by analogy within the meaning of Annex r 4, since such a classification can only be considered, according to that rule, in relation to goods not falling within any heading of the tariff: Case 38/76 Industriemetall LUMA GmbH v Hauptzollamt Duisburg [1976] ECR 2027, ECJ. The question whether goods are akin one to another for the purposes of the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 4 is to be decided on the basis not only of their physical characteristics but also of their use and commercial value. In the absence of special circumstances the commercial value of goods is their market price: Case 40/69 Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Oberelbe v Bollmann [1970] ECR 69, [1970] CMLR 141, ECJ. In the absence of any specific heading, it is necessary to refer to the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System Annex r 4; the appropriate heading must be selected on the basis of the essential characteristics and the particular nature of the apparatus in question: Case 223/84 Telefunken Fernseh und Rundfunk GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1985] ECR 3335 at 3348, ECJ.

17. Rule 5: specific goods.

The following rules are to apply¹ in respect of the goods referred to therein:

- 35 (1) camera cases, musical instrument cases, gun cases, drawing-instrument cases, necklace cases and similar containers, specially shaped or fitted to contain a specific article or set of articles, suitable for long-term use and presented with the articles for which they are intended, are to be classified with such articles when of a kind normally sold therewith; but this provision does not apply to containers which give the whole its essential character²;
- 36 (2) subject to the provisions of head (1) above, packing materials and packing containers presented with the goods therein are to be classified with the goods if they are of a kind normally used for packing such goods; but this provision is not binding when such packing materials or packing containers are clearly suitable for repetitive use³.

18. Rule 6: classification of goods in subheadings etc.

For legal purposes, the classification of goods in the subheadings of a heading in the general rules for the interpretation of the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System¹ is to be determined according to the terms of those subheadings and any related subheading notes and mutatis mutandis to the general rules², on the understanding that only subheadings at the same level are comparable; and for these purposes, the relative section and chapter notes also apply, unless the context otherwise requires³.

(iv) Quantitative Restrictions

19. Elimination of quantitative restrictions between member states.

Quantitative restrictions on imports, quantitative restrictions on exports and all measures having equivalent effect¹ are prohibited between member states². These requirements do not, however, preclude the prohibition or restriction of imports, exports or goods in transit justified on grounds of public morality, public policy or public security; the protection of health and life of human beings, animals or plants; the protection of national treasures possessing artistic, historic or archaeological value; or the protection of industrial and commercial property³.

1 The measures having equivalent effect to quantitative restrictions on imports or exports. It is settled law that any measure capable of hindering, directly or indirectly, actually or potentially, intra-Community trade is to be deemed a measure having equivalent effect within the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') art 30: see Case 8/74 Procureur du Roi v Dassonville [1974] ECR 837, [1974] 2 CMLR 436, ECJ (the requirement that a certificate of authenticity be provided on importation, a document which is less easily obtainable by importers of goods which have previously been placed in free circulation elsewhere in the Community, constitutes a measure equivalent to a quantitative restriction). However, the EC Treaty art 28 (as renumbered) does not preclude a member state from checking the authenticity of a product bearing a designation of origin by the expedient of examining the certificate of origin issued in the producer member state; but member states are under an obligation to ensure that importers of such products from another member state in which they were in free circulation are not placed at a disadvantage compared with direct importers, save to the extent necessary to ensure authenticity: Case 2/78 EC Commission v Belgium [1979] ECR 1761, [1980] 1 CMLR 216, ECJ. A requirement that an importer must indicate the country of origin in the customs declaration for products in free circulation where the Community status of the goods is attested by a Community movement certificate does not in itself constitute a measure having equivalent effect to a quantitative restriction if the goods in question are covered by a measure of commercial policy adopted by the member state in conformity with the EC Treaty. It would, however, constitute such a measure if the importer were obliged to declare something other than what he knew or might reasonably be expected to know or were subject to penalties for an omission or inaccuracy disproportionate to a contravention which is of a purely administrative nature: Case 52/77 Cayrol v Giovanni Rivoira e Figli [1977] ECR 2261, [1978] 2 CMLR 253, ECJ. See also Case 362/88 GB-INNO-BM v Confédération du Commerce Luxembourgeois [1990] ECR 667, [1991] 2 CMLR 801, ECJ; Joined Cases C-1, 176/90 Aragonesa de Publicidad Exterior SA and Publlivia SAE v Departamento de Sanidad y Seguridad Social de la Generalitat de Cataluña [1991] ECR I-4151, [1994] 1 CMLR 887, ECJ.

Where a product lawfully marketed and sold in one member state under a particular name which is so different, in terms of its composition or production, from the products generally understood as falling within that description within the Community that it could not be regarded as falling within the same category, a member state can require producers or vendors to alter the description of the product; where the difference is of minor importance, appropriate labelling should be sufficient to provide the purchaser or consumer with the necessary information: Case C-366/98 Criminal proceedings against Geffroy [2001] All ER (EC) 222, ECJ; considered in Case C-14/00 EC Commission v Italian Republic (see note 3 infra). Controlled designations of origin, which can have the effect of restricting free movement of imports and exports, may be considered necessary to safeguard the quality and also the reputation of particular products: Case C-388/95 Belgium (Denmark, intervening) v Spain (Italy, intervening) [2002] 1 CMLR 755, ECJ (rule that only wine produced and bottled in Rioja region could bear certified controlled designation of origin lawful). See Case C-325/00 Re Quality Label Scheme, European Commission v Germany [2003] 1 CMLR 1, ECJ (scheme set up under national law; awarding labels of quality only to domestic products created potential barrier to free movement of goods since consumers might be encouraged to buy more domestic products to exclusion of imported ones).

See also Case C-517/04 Visserijbedrijf DJ Koorstra & Zn vof v Productschap Vis [2006] 3 CMLR 565, ECJ.

2 EC Treaty arts 28, 29 (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). The EC Treaty arts 28, 29 (as renumbered) and the regulations on the common organisation of the markets confer on individuals rights which they may enforce before the courts of a member state: Case 222/82 Apple and Pear Development Council v KJ Lewis Ltd [1983] ECR 4083, ECJ. The doctrine of direct applicability is the quality of a provision of Community law which causes it to become law in each member state without being re-enacted in national law; and the doctrine of direct effect is the quality of a provision of Community law which causes it to confer upon individuals rights which national courts must protect.

There are certain imperative requirements, such as consumer protection and fair trading which may justify a measure liable to hinder intra-Community trade, despite the EC Treaty art 28 (as renumbered). Measures introduced for such a purpose must, however, apply without distinction to domestic and imported products (Case 120/78 Rewe-Zentral AG v Bundesmonopolverwaltung für Branntwein [1979] ECR 649, [1979] 3 CMLR 494, ECJ (the 'Cassis de Dijon' case); Case 113/80 EC Commission v Ireland [1981] ECR 1625, [1982] 1 CMLR 706, ECJ); and it must not be possible to achieve the objective by measures less restrictive of intra-Community trade (Case 25/88 Bouchara (née Wurmser) and Norlaine SA [1989] ECR 1105, [1991] 1 CMLR 173, ECJ). See also Case 75/81 Blesgen v Belgium [1982] ECR 1211, [1983] 1 CMLR 431, ECJ. The EC Treaty art 28 (as renumbered) does not apply to restrictions on the establishment of a business which provides only services; it is limited to restrictions on the free movement of goods: Case C-194/94 CIA Security International SA v Signalson SA [1996] ECR I-2201, [1996] All ER (EC) 557, [1996] 2 CMLR 781, ECJ. In such a case, the EC Treaty arts 49-55 (as renumbered) may apply. Article 28 (as renumbered) does not prevent rules prohibiting the residents of a member state from using vehicles brought in VAT-free under the temporary importation procedures: Case 823/79 Carciati [1980] ECR 2773, [1981] 2 CMLR 274, ECJ. National rules making the importation from a member state in which they are in free circulation of products originating in a non-member state subject to the issue of an import licence constitute a quantitative restriction prohibited by the EC Treaty art 28 (as renumbered), since the provisions of art 30 (now renumbered as art 28) are applicable without distinction to products originating in the Community and those which have been put into free circulation in any of the member states, and regardless of where those products first originated: Case 212/88 Levy [1989] ECR 3511, [1991] 1 CMLR 49, ECJ. Means of payment do not constitute goods whose transfer may fall within the EC Treaty arts 28-31 (as renumbered) (Case 7/78 R v Thompson [1980] QB 229, [1980] 2 All ER 102, [1978] ECR 2247, ECJ (Krugerrand gold coins smuggled into the United Kingdom from Germany)); but they are goods for the purposes of forfeiture under what is now the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 49 (see PARA 993 post) (Allgemeine Gold- und Silberscheideanstalt v Customs and Excise Comrs [1980] QB 390, [1980] 2 All ER 137, [1980] 1 CMLR 488, CA).

See Case C-412/97 ED Srl v Fenocchio [2000] 3 CMLR 855, ECJ (provision of foreign enactment which prohibited service of enforcement order outside jurisdiction for non-payment for goods held to be compatible with EC Treaty art 34 (now renumbered as art 29)); Case C-314/98 Snellers AutoBV v Algemeen Directeur Van de Dienst Wegverkeer [2000] 3 CMLR 1275, ECJ (Dutch legislation on vehicle registration made it significantly more difficult for parallel importers to obtain registration certificates, and therefore constituted an obstacle to free movement of goods contrary to EC Treaty art 30 (now renumbered as art 28)); R (on the application of Pfizer Ltd) v Secretary of State for Health [2002] EWCA Civ 1566, [2003] 1 CMLR 642 (exclusion of drug from supply on NHS prescription compatible with EC Treaty art 29); Case C-71/02 Herbert Karner Industrie-Auktionen GmbH v Troostwijk GmbH [2004] 2 CMLR 75, ECJ (Austrian legislation, which prohibited reference to fact that goods came from insolvent estate when no longer part of it, compatible with EC Treaty art 28 (as renumbered)). The detention pursuant to domestic intellectual property provisions of goods lawfully manufactured in another member state which are being exported to a non-member country contravenes art 28 (as renumbered): Case C-115/02 Administration des douanes et droits indirects v Rioglass SA [2004] FSR 753, ECJ.

A quantitative restriction might be justified on the grounds of the exercise of a right under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969): C-112/00 Schmidberger, Internationale Transporte und Planzüge v Austria [2003] 2 CMLR 1043, ECJ (public demonstration obstructing transport justified by right of assembly and freedom of speech).

It is an unjustifiable restriction on the free movement of goods between member states to refuse to issue marketing authorisation for a medicinal product which is authorised in another member state, unless there are imperative needs, particularly the protection of public health: Case C-112/02 Kohlpharma GmbH v Bundesrepublik Deutschland [2004] 2 CMLR 324, ECJ.

See also Case C-166/03 Re 'Gold Alloy' Designation, EC Commission v France [2004] 3 CMLR 108, ECJ (requirement to sell gold of fineness less than 750 parts per thousand in France as 'gold alloy', whereas in countries of origin they were marketed as 'gold' was measure having equivalent effect).

Although the quarantine system applied to animals imported into the United Kingdom is a restriction on the right to import goods as set out in the EC Treaty art 28 (formerly art 30), it can be justified under the public health exception set out in art 30 (formerly art 36): R v Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, ex p Geiden [2000] 1 CMLR 289, ECJ. The imposition on a national scale of a requirement of local establishment in order to trade on a rounds basis, so as to prevent any deterioration in the quality of the goods when being transported over regions of geographical extremes, is not justified under art 30 (formerly art 36): Case C-254/98 Schutzverband Gegen Unlauteren Wettbewerb v TK-Heimdienst SASS GmbH [2002] 1 CMLR 736, ECJ.

3 EC Treaty art 30 (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). Such prohibitions or restrictions must not constitute a means of arbitrary discrimination or a disguised restriction on trade between member states. The function of this latter restriction is to prevent limitations on trade based on art 30, 1st sentence (as renumbered) from being diverted from their proper purpose and used in such a way as to create discrimination in respect of goods originating in other member states or indirectly to protect certain national products: Case 34/79 R v Henn and Darby [1981] AC 850, [1980] 2 All ER 166, [1979] ECR 3795, ECJ.

The EC Treaty art 30 (as renumbered), as a derogation from a fundamental rule of the EC Treaty, must be interpreted strictly and cannot be extended to cover objectives not expressly enumerated therein, such as safeguarding consumer interests: Case 229/83 Association des Centres Distributeurs Edouard Leclerc v Au Blé Vert Sarl [1985] ECR I, [1985] 2 CMLR 286, ECJ. Recourse by the member states to the EC Treaty art 30 (as renumbered) is not permitted if Community rules have been established which provide for the necessary measures to ensure protection of the interests set out in art 30 (as renumbered); national measures are permitted only if the protection of the interests of the member state are insufficiently guaranteed by the Community measures: Case 72/83 Campus Oil Ltd v Minister for Industry and Energy [1984] ECR 2727, [1984] 3 CMLR 544, ECJ. The prohibitions or restrictions on imports and exports referred to in the EC Treaty art 30 (as renumbered) are by nature clearly distinguished from customs duties and assimilated charges whereby the economic conditions of importation or exportation are affected without restricting the freedom of decision of those involved in commercial transactions. Because such measures constitute an exception to the fundamental principle of the elimination of all obstacles to the free movement of goods between member states, they must be strictly construed: Case 7/68 EC Commission v Italy [1968] ECR 423, [1969] CMLR 1, ECJ.

A measure concerned with the conservation of biodiversity among animals is permitted under art 30 (as renumbered), provided the measure is appropriate and proportionate: Case C-67/97 Re Criminal proceedings against Bluhme [1999] 1 CMLR 612, ECJ. A proprietor cannot deploy national trade mark law to interfere with the use of his own mark by an importer on, or in relation to, the proprietor's goods, unless such use causes substantial damage to the specific subject matter of the mark: Glaxo Group v Dowelhurst Ltd (No 2) [2000] FSR 529. Although product label language requirements constitute a barrier to trade, they may be justified in order to protect consumers; however, such language requirements are restricted to mandatory information which is not capable of being otherwise conveyed: Case C-33/97 Colim NV v BiggContinent Noord NV [2000] CMLR 135, ECJ. Where Community measures restrict imports or exports on health grounds, a member state cannot rely on the EC Treaty art 30 (as renumbered) to justify national measures restricting imports or exports on the same health grounds; the member state should instead challenge the Community measures under art 230 (as renumbered) (see PARA 304 note 24 post) or take steps to ensure that the Community adopts appropriate measures restricting imports or exports: Case C-241/01 National Farmers' Union v Secrétariat Général du Gouvernement [2002] 3 CMLR 957, ECJ. National legislation that requires products containing vegetable fats other than cocoa butter to be labelled as chocolate substitute has a negative connotation that is disproportionate to the aim of consumer protection: Case 14/00 EC Commission v Italian Republic (2003) Times, 21 January, ECJ. A national prohibition on the sale by mail-order of medicinal products except to pharmacies in the member state concerned is a measure having an effect equivalent to a quantitative restriction for the purposes of the EC Treaty art 28 (as renumbered); such a prohibition may be justified under art 30 (as renumbered) only in respect of medicinal products subject to prescription: Case C-322/01 Deutscher Apothekerverband eV v 0800 DocMorris NV (2005) 81 BMLR 33, ECJ. The EC Treaty art 30 (as renumbered) does not preclude a prior authorisation requirement for marketing food containing prohibited nutrients, where such food was lawfully manufactured and marketed in another member state, provided the authorisation procedure satisfies specified requirements of fairness: Case C-95/01 Criminal proceedings against Greenham [2005] All ER (EC) 903, ECJ.

NOTE 1--A requirement of a licence under national legislation which seeks to restrict or prohibit selling arrangements amounts to a measure having equivalent effect to a quantitative restriction: Case C-158/04 Alfa Vita Vassilopoulos AE v Elliniko Dimosio; Case C-159/04 Carrefour-Marinopoulos AE v Elliniko Dimosio [2007] CMLR 71, ECJ. A requirement under national legislation for a national resident, who imports a vehicle registered in another member state, to have to apply for a transfer licence in order to put the vehicle into circulation, amounts to a measure having equivalent effect to a quantitative restriction: Case C-54/05 EC Commission v Finland [2007] 2 CMLR 849, ECJ. A prohibition on the sale and transfer by mail order of image storage media which has not been examined and classified by a higher regional authority or a national voluntary self-regulation body for the purposes of protecting young persons does not necessarily amount to a measure having equivalent effect to a quantitative restriction: Case C-244/06 Dynamic Medien Vertriebs GmbH v Avides Media AG [2009] All ER (EC) 1098, ECJ. A requirement under national legislation that imported vehicles more than three years old and registered in another member state are to undergo testing as to their general condition prior to their registration amounts to a measure having equivalent effect to a quantitative restriction: Case C-297/05 Re Law on Registration of Motor Vehicles: EC Commission v The Netherlands [2008] 1 CMLR 1, ECJ. A requirement that a product based on a herb not listed in the relevant national legislation but lawfully produced or marketed in another member state as a food supplement or dietary product could be marketed in Spain only after going through the marketing authorisation procedure amounts to a measure having equivalent effect to a quantitative restriction: Case C-88/07 Re Marketing of Herbal Medicines: Commission of the European Communities v Spain [2009] 2 CMLR 1385, ECJ. A national measure prohibiting a supplier in a distance sale from requiring an advance or payment before expiry of the period for withdrawal constituted a measure having equivalent effect to a quantitative restriction: Case C-205/07 Criminal proceedings against Gysbrechts [2009] 2 All ER (Comm) 951, ECJ.

NOTES 2, 3--A requirement of prior authorisation for the importation of high strength alcohol amounts to a measure having equivalent effect to a quantitative restriction, but may be justified on the basis of health and public policy concerns: Case C-434/04 Criminal proceedings against Ahokainen and Leppik [2007] 1 CMLR 345, ECJ. See also Case C-170/04 Rosengren v Riksäklagaren [2009] All ER (EC) 455, ECJ (prohibition on importation of alcohol by private individuals was not justified on public health grounds as was simply a means of protecting state monopoly over retail sales of alcohol); Case C-110/05 Re Motorcycle Trailers: Commission of the European Communities v Italy [2009] 2 CMLR 876, ECJ (prohibition on a motorcycle with an unapproved trailer was appropriate for the purpose of ensuring road safety as that combination could be dangerous); Case C-445/06 Danske Slagterier v Germany [2010] All ER (EC) 74, ECJ (direct effect of EC Treaty art 28 in claim for loss suffered by incorrect transposition of EC directive); Case C-531/07 Fachverband Der Buch-Und Medienwirtschaft v Libro Handelsgesellschaft MBH [2009] 3 CMLR 972, ECJ (national legislation fixing price of imported books to be regarded as measure having equivalent effect to an import restriction contrary to EC Treaty art 28).

(v) The Community Customs Code

20. The Community Customs Code.

Community customs rules consist of the Community Customs Code¹ and the provisions adopted at Community level or nationally to implement them². The Code applies, without prejudice to special rules laid down in other fields, to trade between the Community and third countries³ and to goods covered by the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community⁴, the Treaty establishing the European Community⁵ or the Treaty⁶ establishing the European Atomic Energy Community⁷.

1 The Community Customs Code is to be found in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') (amended by the Fourth Act of Accession (OJ C241, 29.8.94, p 1), as adjusted by EC Council Decision 95/1 (OJ L1, 1.1.95, p 1); European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1); EC Council Regulation 955/1999 (OJ L119, 7.5.99 p 1); European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17); and EC Parliament and Council Regulation 648/2005 (OJ L117, 4.2.2005, p 13)): see PARA 21 et seq post. EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (as amended), which consolidated the majority of Community customs legislation, applied from 1 January 1994, with the exception of art 161 (export: see PARAS 210-211 post), art 182 (as amended) (re-exportation, destruction and abandonment: see PARA 221 post) and art 183 (goods leaving the customs territory of the Community: see PARA 223 post), all of which applied with effect from 1 January 1993: see art 253, 2nd para, 4th para. In addition, Title VIII (arts 243-246) (appeals: see PARAS 336-338 post) did not apply to the United Kingdom until 1 January 1995: art 253, 3rd para.

2 Ibid art 1. It is apprehended that the word 'them' refers to the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (as amended).

Exhaustive provisions for the implementation of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (as amended) are laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93 p 1) (corrected by the corrigenda published in OJ L268, 19.10.94, p 32; OJ L180, 19.7.96, p 34; OJ L156, 13.6.97, p 59; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1); the Fourth Act of Accession (OJ C241, 29.8.94, p 1), as adjusted by EC Council Decision 95/1 (OJ L1, 1.1.95, p 1); the Act of Accession 2003 (OJ L236, 23.9.2003, p 33); EC Commission Regulation 655/94 (OJ L82, 25.3.94, p 15); EC Commission Regulation 1500/94 (OJ L162, 30.6.94, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 2193/94 (OJ L235, 9.9.94, p 6); EC Commission Regulation 3254/94 (OJ L346, 31.12.94, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 1762/95 (OJ L171, 21.7.95, p 8); EC Commission Regulation 482/96 (OJ L70, 20.3.96, p 4); EC Commission Regulation 1676/96 (OJ L218, 28.8.96, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1); European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 89/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 28); EC Commission Regulation 1427/97 (OJ L196, 24.7.97, p 31); EC Commission Regulation 75/98 (OJ L7, 13.1.98, p 3); EC Commission Regulation 1677/98 (OJ L212, 30.7.98, p 18); EC Commission Regulation 46/99 (OJ L10, 15.1.99, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 1662/1999 (OJ L197, 29.7.99, p 25); EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1); EC Commission Regulation (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11); EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 1335/2003 (OJ L187, 26.7.2003, p 16); EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1); EC Council Regulation 837/2005 (OJ L139, 2.6.2005, p 1); EC Commission Regulation 883/2005 (OJ L148, 11.6.2005, p 5); EC Commission Regulation 215/2006 (OJ L38, 9.2.2006, p 11); EC Commission Regulation 402/2006 (OJ L070, 9.3.2006, p 35); EC Commission Regulation 1792/2006 (OJ L362, 20.12.2006, p 1); and EC Commission Regulation 1875/2006 (OJ L360, 19.12.2006, p 64)): see PARA 21 et seq post. EC Council Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) (as amended) also applied from 1 January 1994 (see art 915, 2nd para); and it is binding in its entirety and directly applicable in all member states (art 915, 4th para).

3 For these purposes, the phrase 'third countries' appears to mean (but is not defined as) territories or countries other than those within the customs territory of the Community, as defined in EC Council Regulation

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

21. The customs territory of the Community.

Save as may otherwise be provided, either under international convention or customary practices of a limited geographic and economic scope or under autonomous Community measures, Community customs rules apply uniformly throughout the customs territory of the Community¹.

The customs territory of the Community comprises:

- 37 (1) the territory of the Kingdom of Belgium;
- 38 (2) the territory of the Kingdom of Denmark, except the Faeroe Islands and Greenland;
- 39 (3) the territory of the Federal Republic of Germany, except the Island of Heligoland and the territory of Büsingen;
- 40 (4) the territory of the Kingdom of Spain, except Ceuta and Melilla;
- 41 (5) the territory of the French Republic, except the overseas territories and Saint-Pierre and Miquelon and Mayotte;
- 42 (6) the territory of the Hellenic Republic;
- 43 (7) the territory of Ireland;
- 44 (8) the territory of the Italian Republic, except the municipalities of Livigno and Campione d'Italia and the national waters of Lake Lugano which are between the bank and the political frontier of the area between Ponte Tresa and Porto Ceresio;
- 45 (9) the territory of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg;
- 46 (10) the territory of the Kingdom of the Netherlands in Europe;
- 47 (11) the territory of the Republic of Austria;
- 48 (12) the territory of the Portuguese Republic;
- 49 (13) the territory of the Republic of Finland;
- 50 (14) the territory of the Kingdom of Sweden,
- 51 (15) the territory of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man;
- 52 (16) the territory of the Czech Republic;
- 53 (17) the territory of the Republic of Estonia;
- 54 (18) the territory of the Republic of Cyprus;
- 55 (19) the territory of the Republic of Latvia;
- 56 (20) the territory of the Republic of Lithuania;
- 57 (21) the territory of the Republic of Hungary;
- 58 (22) the territory of the Republic of Malta;
- 59 (23) the territory of the Republic of Poland;
- 60 (24) the territory of the Republic of Slovenia;
- 61 (25) the territory of the Slovak Republic².

Although situated outside the territory of the French Republic, the territory of the Principality of Monaco³ is also considered to be part of the customs territory of the Community⁴.

The customs territory of the Community includes the territorial waters, the inland maritime waters and the airspace of the member states and likewise of the Principality of Monaco⁵.

1 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 2(1). Certain provisions of customs rules may also apply outside the customs territory of the Community within the framework of either rules governing specific fields or international conventions: art 2(2).

2 Ibid art 3(1) (amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)(a); and by the Fifth Act of Accession (OJ L236, 23.9.2003, p 33)).

3 le as defined in the Customs Convention signed in Paris on 18 May 1963 (Official Journal of the French Republic, 27 September 1963, p 8679).

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 3(2) (substituted by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)(b)).

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 3(3). It does not, however, include the territorial waters, the inland maritime waters and the airspace of those territories which are not part of the customs territory of the Community pursuant to art 3(1) (as amended) (see the text to note 2 supra): art 3(3).

23. Non-preferential origin of goods.

For non-preferential purposes, goods originating in a country are those wholly obtained or produced in that country¹. 'Goods wholly obtained in a country'² means:

- 65 (1) mineral products extracted within that country;
- 66 (2) vegetable products harvested therein;
- 67 (3) live animals born and raised therein;
- 68 (4) products derived from live animals raised therein;
- 69 (5) products of hunting or fishing carried on therein;
- 70 (6) products of sea-fishing and other products taken from the sea outside a country's territorial sea by vessels registered or recorded in the country concerned and flying the flag of that country³;
- 71 (7) goods obtained or produced on board factory ships from the products referred to in head (6) above originating in that country, provided that such factory ships are registered or recorded in that country and fly its flag;
- 72 (8) products taken from the sea bed or subsoil beneath the sea bed outside the territorial sea, provided that that country has exclusive rights to exploit that sea bed or subsoil;
- 73 (9) waste and scrap products derived from manufacturing operations and used articles, if they were collected therein and are fit only for the recovery of raw materials;
- 74 (10) goods which are produced therein exclusively from goods referred to in heads (1) to (9) above or from their derivatives, at any stage of production⁴.

Goods whose production involved more than one country are deemed to originate in the country where they underwent their last, substantial⁵, economically justified processing or working in an undertaking equipped for that purpose and resulting in the manufacture of a new product or representing an important stage of manufacture⁶.

1 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 23(1).

The International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures ('the Kyoto Convention') (Kyoto, 13 March 1973; TS 36 (1975); Cmnd 5938; OJ L166, 4.7.77, p 1) Annex D.1 explains that the rules applied to determine origin employ two different basic criteria: (1) the criterion of goods 'wholly produced' in a given country, where only one country enters into consideration in attributing origin; and (2) the criterion of 'substantial transformation', where two or more countries have taken part in the production of the goods. The 'wholly produced' criterion applies mainly to 'natural' products and to goods made entirely from them, so that goods containing any parts or materials imported or of undetermined origin are generally excluded from its field of application. The 'substantial transformation' criterion (see the text and note 5 infra) can be expressed by a number of different methods of application.

2 For these purposes, the expression 'country' covers that country's territorial sea: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 23(3). As to the extent of the territorial sea (or waters) of the United Kingdom see the Territorial Sea Act 1987 s 1; and INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 124; WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 100 (2009) PARA 31.

3 See Case 100/84 EC Commission v United Kingdom [1985] ECR 1169, [1985] 2 CMLR 199, ECJ (in the case of a joint fishing operation conducted by vessels flying different flags or registered in different countries, the origin of the fish was to be determined by reference not to the flag flown by the vessel which merely raised the nets out of the water but to the flag flown by the vessel which carried out the essential part of the operation of catching fish, ie, in particular, the location of the fish and netting them so that they could no longer move freely in the sea).

5 The International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures ('the Kyoto Convention') Annex D.1 explains that, in practice, the substantial transformation criterion (ie the criterion according to which origin is determined by regarding as the country of origin the country in which the last substantial manufacturing or processing, deemed sufficient to give the commodity its essential character, has been carried out) can be expressed: (1) by a rule requiring a change of tariff heading in a specified nomenclature, with lists of exceptions; and/or (2) by a list of manufacturing or processing operations which confer, or do not confer, upon the goods the origin of the country in which those operations were carried out; and/or (3) by the ad valorem percentage rule, where either the percentage value of the materials utilised or the percentage of the value added reaches a specified level. 'It would not seem sufficient to seek criteria defining the origin of goods in the tariff classification of the processed products, for the Common Customs Tariff has been conceived to fulfil special purposes and not in relation to the determination of the origin of products. On the contrary, in order to meet the purposes and requirements of EC Council Regulation 802/68 (OJ L148, 28.6.68, p 1) [(repealed)], the determination of the origin of goods must be based on a real and objective distinction between raw material and processed product, depending fundamentally on the specific material qualities of each of those products. Therefore, the last process or operation referred to in art 5 [(repealed: see now EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 24)] is only 'substantial' for the purposes of that provision if the product resulting therefrom has its own properties and a composition of its own, which it did not possess before that process or operation. In providing that the said process or operation must, in order to confer a particular origin, result in the manufacture of a new product or represent an important stage of manufacture . . . [EC Council Regulation 802/68] art 5 [(repealed)] shows in fact that activities affecting the presentation of the product for the purposes of its use, but which do not bring about a significant qualitative change in its properties, are not of such a nature as to determine the origin of the said product'.

As to the meaning of 'substantial' see also Case 49/76 Gesellschaft für Überseehandel mbH v Handelskammer Hamburg [1977] ECR 41, ECJ; Case 34/78 Yoshida Nederland BV v Kamer van Koophandel en Fabrieken voor Friesland [1979] ECR 115, [1979] 2 CMLR 747, ECJ; Case 114/78 Yoshida GmbH v Industrie- und Handelskammer Kassel [1979] ECR 151, [1979] 2 CMLR 747, ECJ; Case 162/82 Cousin [1983] ECR 1101, [1984] 2 CMLR 780, ECJ; Case 93/83 Zentralgenossenschaft des Fleisnergewerbes eG v Hauptzollamt Bochum [1984] ECR 1095, ECJ; Case C-26/88 Brother International GmbH v Hauptzollamt Giessen [1989] ECR 4253, [1990] 3 CMLR 658, ECJ.

6 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 24. Any processing or working in respect of which it is established, or in respect of which the facts as ascertained justify the presumption, that its sole object was to circumvent the provisions applicable in the Community to goods from specific countries are, under no circumstances, to be deemed to confer on the goods thus produced the origin of the country where it is carried out within the meaning of art 24: art 25. The transfer of assembly from the country in which the parts were manufactured to another country in which use is made of existing factories does not in itself justify the presumption that the sole object of the transfer was to circumvent the applicable provisions unless the transfer of assembly coincides with the entry into force of the relevant regulations: Case C-26/88 Brother International GmbH v Hauptzollamt Giessen [1989] ECR 4253, [1990] 3 CMLR 658, ECJ. As to the working or processing conferring origin see PARA 24 post.

23 Non-preferential origin of goods

NOTE 6--See Case C-372/06 Asda Stores v Revenue and Customs Comrs [2007] All ER (D) 197 (Dec), ECJ.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(3) ORIGIN OF GOODS/(i) Non-preferential Origin of Goods/24. Working or processing conferring origin.

24. Working or processing conferring origin.

For textiles and textile articles¹, a complete process² is regarded as a working or processing which confers³ origin⁴.

Working or processing as a result of which the products obtained receive a classification under a heading of the Combined Nomenclature, other than those covering the various non-originating materials used, are generally regarded as complete processes⁵. However, for certain types of textile and textile articles⁶ only, the specific processes⁷ in connection with each product obtained are regarded as complete, whether or not they involve a change of heading⁸. For these purposes, the following activities are, in any event, considered as insufficient working or processing to confer the status of originating products, whether or not the result of the activity is that the article falls under a different heading:

- 75 (1) operations to ensure the preservation of products in good condition during transport and storage (ventilation, spreading out, drying, removal of damaged parts and like operations);
- 76 (2) simple operations consisting of removal of dust, sifting or screening, sorting, classifying, matching (including the making-up of sets of articles), washing, cutting up;
- 77 (3) changes of packing and breaking-up and assembly of consignments;
- 78 (4) simple placing in bags, cases, boxes, fixing on cards or boards etc, and all other simple packing operations;
- 79 (5) the affixing of marks, labels or other like distinguishing signs on products or their packaging;
- 80 (6) simple assembly of parts of products to constitute a complete product; or
- 81 (7) a combination of two or more operations specified in heads (1) to (6) above⁹.

In the case of products other than textiles¹⁰, the working or processing specified¹¹ in relation to those products is regarded as a process or operation conferring origin¹². Accessories, spare parts or tools delivered with any piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle¹³ which form part of its standard equipment are deemed to have the same origin as that piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle¹⁴. In addition, essential spare parts¹⁵ for use with any piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle put into free circulation or previously exported are deemed¹⁶ to have the same origin as that piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle¹⁷. The presumption of origin is, however, to be so accepted only if:

- 82 (a) it is necessary for importation into the country of destination; and
- 83 (b) if the incorporation of those essential spare parts in the piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle concerned at the production stage would not have prevented the equipment etc from having Community origin or that of the country of manufacture¹⁸.

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

B. GENERALISED SYSTEM OF PREFERENCES

26. The concept of 'originating products'.

The Community grants generalised, that is to say unilateral, tariff preferences to certain products¹ which originate in developing countries ('beneficiary countries')². Products are considered to originate in a beneficiary country where they are:

- 86 (1) wholly obtained in that country³; or
- 87 (2) obtained in that country in circumstances where their manufacture⁴ involved the use of products other than those falling within head (1) above, provided that those latter products have undergone⁵ sufficient working or processing⁶.

The above provisions apply mutatis mutandis in order to establish the origin of products obtained in the Community⁷.

Products which are thus treated as originating in the Community but which are subject in a beneficiary country to a certain level of working or processing⁸ are considered as originating in that beneficiary country⁹. In so far as Norway and Switzerland grant generalised tariff preferences to such products originating in the beneficiary countries and apply a corresponding definition of the concept of origin, products originating in the Community, Norway or Switzerland and which are subject in a beneficiary country to sufficient working or processing¹⁰ are considered as originating in that beneficiary country, provided that the products so originating in the Community, Norway or Switzerland are exported directly to the beneficiary country¹¹.

1 For these purposes, 'product' means the product being manufactured, even if it is intended for later use in another manufacturing operation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 66(c) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). For the meaning of 'manufacture' see note 4 infra.

Sets, as defined in the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (Brussels, 14 June 1983; TS 15 (1989); Cm 695) Annex r 3 (see PARA 15 ante), are regarded as originating when all the component products are originating products; nevertheless, when a set is composed of originating and non-originating products, the set as a whole is regarded as originating, provided that the value of the non-originating products does not exceed 15% of the ex-works price of the set: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 74 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). For these purposes, the 'ex-works price' means the price paid for the product ex-works to the manufacturer in whose undertaking the last working or processing is carried out, provided that the price includes the value of all materials used, minus any internal taxes which are, or may be, repaid when the product obtained is exported: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 66(f) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)); and 'Harmonised System' means the International Convention on the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (see PARA 12 et seq ante): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 1(9). 'Material' means any ingredient, raw material, component or part etc, used in the manufacture of the product: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 66(b) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

3 le within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 68 (as substituted): see PARA 29 post.

4 For these purposes, 'manufacture' means any kind of working or processing including assembly or specific operations: ibid art 66(a) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). However, in order to determine whether a product is an originating product, it is unnecessary to determine the origin of any of the following which might be used in its manufacture: (1) energy and fuel; (2) plant and equipment; (3) machines and tools; and (4) goods which do not, and are not intended to, enter into the final composition of the product: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 75 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). In addition, accessories, spare parts and tools dispatched with a piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle which are part of the normal equipment and included in the price or not separately invoiced are regarded as one with the piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 73 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). 'Goods' means both materials and products: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 66(d) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

5 le have undergone sufficient working or processing within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 69 (as substituted): see PARA 28 post.

6 Ibid art 67(1) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

7 Ibid art 67(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). For these purposes, the term 'Community' does not cover Ceuta and Melilla; and the term 'products originating in the Community' does not cover products originating in Ceuta and Melilla: art 96(1) (art 96 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). However, EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 66-97 (as substituted) apply mutatis mutandis in determining whether products may be regarded as originating in the exporting beneficiary country benefiting from the generalised system of preferences when imported into Ceuta and Melilla or as originating in Ceuta and Melilla, which for these purposes are to be regarded as a single territory: art 96(2), (3) (as so substituted).

8 le working or processing going beyond that described in ibid art 70 (as substituted): see PARA 28 post.

9 Ibid art 67(2) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

10 See note 8 supra.

11 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 67(4), 1st para (as substituted: see note 2 supra). The provisions of art 67(4), 1st para (as substituted) apply only to products originating in the Community, Norway or Switzerland, according to the rules of origin relative to the tariff preferences in question, which are exported directly to the beneficiary country: art 67(4), 2nd para (as so substituted). The provisions of art 67(4), 1st para (as substituted) do not apply to products falling within the Harmonised System Chs 1-24: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 67(4), 3rd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 46/99 (OJ L10, 15.1.99, p 1) art 1(1); substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The Commission must publish in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series) the date from which the provisions laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 67(4), 1st para, 2nd para (as substituted) apply: art 67(4), 4th para (as so substituted). The provisions of art 67(4) (as substituted) apply only on condition that Norway and Switzerland grant, by reciprocity, the same treatment to Community products: art 67(5) (as so substituted).

27. Conditions to be satisfied.

The conditions relating to the acquisition of originating status¹ must be satisfied without interruption in the beneficiary country² or in the Community³.

If originating goods exported from the beneficiary country or from the Community to another country are returned, they are considered as non-originating unless it can be demonstrated to the satisfaction of the competent authorities that:

- 88 (1) the goods returned are the same goods as those exported; and
- 89 (2) they have not undergone any operations beyond what is necessary to preserve them in good condition while in that country or while being exported⁴.

28. Working and processing of products.

For the purposes of the provisions relating to unilateral tariff preference¹, products² which are not wholly obtained in a beneficiary country³ or in the Community⁴ are considered to be sufficiently worked or processed when the prescribed conditions⁵ are fulfilled⁶.

The following operations are considered as insufficient working or processing to confer the status of originating products, regardless of whether or not the above requirements⁷ are satisfied:

- 90 (1) preserving operations to ensure that the products remain in good condition during transport and storage;
- 91 (2) breaking-up and assembly of packages;
- 92 (3) washing, cleaning, removal of dust, oxide, oil, paint or other coverings;
- 93 (4) ironing or pressing of textiles;
- 94 (5) simple painting and polishing operations;
- 95 (6) husking, partial or total milling, polishing and glazing of cereals and rice;
- 96 (7) operations to colour sugar or form sugar lumps, and partial or total milling of sugar;
- 97 (8) peeling, stoning and shelling of fruits, nuts and vegetables;
- 98 (9) sharpening, simple grinding or simple cutting;
- 99 (10) sifting, screening, sorting, classifying, grading or matching (including the making-up of sets of articles);
- 100 (11) simple placing in bottles, cans, flasks, bags, cases, boxes, fixing on cards or boards and all other simple packaging operations;
- 101 (12) affixing or printing marks, labels, logos and other like distinguishing signs on products or their packaging;
- 102 (13) simple mixing of products, whether or not of different kinds, where one or more components of the mixtures do not meet the prescribed conditions⁸ to enable them to be considered as originating in a beneficiary country or in the Community;
- 103 (14) simple assembly of parts of articles to constitute a complete article or disassembly of products into parts;
- 104 (15) a combination of two or more of the operations specified in heads (1) to (14) above; and
- 105 (16) slaughter of animals⁹.

1 Ie EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 67 (as substituted): see PARA 26 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'product' see PARA 26 note 1 ante. The unit of qualification for the application of the provisions of ibid arts 67-97 (as substituted and amended) is the particular product which is considered as the basic unit when determining classification using the nomenclature of the Harmonised System: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 70a(1), 1st para (art 70a added by EC Commission Regulation 46/99 (OJ L10, 15.1.99, p 1) art 1(4); and substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). Accordingly, when a product composed of a group or assembly of articles is classified under the terms of the Harmonised System in a single heading, the whole constitutes the unit of qualification (EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 70a(1), 2nd para (as so added and substituted)); and when a consignment consists of a number of identical products classified under the same heading of the Harmonised System, each product must be taken individually when applying the provisions of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 67-97 (as substituted and amended) (art 70a(1), 3rd para (as so added and substituted)). Where, under the Harmonised System Annex r 5 (see PARA 17 ante), packaging is included with the product for classification purposes, it is to be included for the purposes of determining origin: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 70a(2) (as so added and substituted). For the meaning of 'Harmonised System' see PARA 26 note 1 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'beneficiary countries' see PARA 26 ante.

4 As to the meaning of 'Community' see PARA 26 note 7 ante.

5 Ie the conditions set out in the list in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 69, Annex 15 (Annex 15 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(28), Annex II): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 69, 1st para (art 69 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 art 1(5)). Those conditions indicate, for all products covered by EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 67-97 (as substituted and amended), the working or processing which must be carried out on non-originating materials used in manufacturing and apply only in relation to such materials: art 69, 2nd para (as so substituted). If a product which has acquired originating status by fulfilling the conditions set out in the list is used in the manufacture of another product, the conditions applicable to the product in which it is incorporated do not apply to it; and no account is to be taken of the non-originating materials which may have been used in its manufacture: art 69, 3rd para (as so substituted).

6 Ibid art 69, 1st para (as substituted: see note 5 supra). By way of derogation from the provisions of art 69 (as substituted), non-originating materials may be used in the manufacture of a given product, provided that their total value does not exceed 10% of the ex-works price of the product: art 71(1), 1st para (art 71 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 art 1(5)). Where, in the list, one or several percentages are given for the maximum value of non-originating materials, such percentages must not be exceeded through the application of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 71(1), 1st para (as substituted): art 71(1), 2nd para (as so substituted). Article 71(1) (as substituted) does not apply to products falling within the Harmonised System Chs 50-63: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 71(2) (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'ex-works price' see PARA 26 note 1 ante.

The rules for the determination of origin for the generalised system of tariff preferences may be made stricter than those applicable under bilateral agreements. 'The Commission may, therefore, where appropriate, apply the concept of the origin of goods in a different and stricter manner in the field of generalised tariff preferences than in the framework of the common rules . . . Such an application may, in fact, be necessary to attain the objective of the generalised tariff preferences of ensuring that the preferences benefit only industries which are established in developing countries and which carry out the main manufacturing processes in those countries': Case 385/85 SR Industries v Administration des Douanes [1986] ECR 2929, [1988] 1 CMLR 378, ECJ.

8 Ie ibid arts 67-97 (as substituted and amended).

9 Ibid art 70(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(1)). All the operations carried out in either a beneficiary country or the Community on a given product must be considered together when determining whether the working or processing undergone by that product is to be regarded as insufficient within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 70(1) (as substituted): art 70(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(3) ORIGIN OF GOODS/(ii) Preferential Origin of Goods/B. GENERALISED SYSTEM OF PREFERENCES/29. Products considered to be wholly obtained in a beneficiary country or in the Community.

29. Products considered to be wholly obtained in a beneficiary country or in the Community.

Products¹ which are wholly obtained in a beneficiary country² or in the Community³, including, as the case may be, the territorial waters of the beneficiary country or of the member states, are:

- 106 (1) mineral products extracted from its soil or from its sea bed;
- 107 (2) vegetable products harvested there;
- 108 (3) live animals born and raised there;
- 109 (4) products obtained there from live animals;
- 110 (5) products obtained by hunting or fishing conducted there;
- 111 (6) products of sea fishing and other products taken from the sea⁴ outside their territorial waters by their vessels⁵;
- 112 (7) products made on board their factory ships exclusively from the products referred to in head (6) above;
- 113 (8) used articles collected there fit only for the recovery of raw materials;
- 114 (9) waste and scrap resulting from manufacturing⁶ operations conducted there;
- 115 (10) products extracted from the sea bed or below the sea bed which is situated outside their territorial waters, but where it has exclusive exploitation rights;
- 116 (11) goods produced there exclusively from products specified in heads (1) to (10) above⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'product' see PARA 26 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'beneficiary countries' see PARA 26 ante.

3 As to the meaning of 'Community' see PARA 26 note 7 ante.

4 As to the meaning of 'taken from the sea' see Case 100/84 EC Commission v United Kingdom [1985] ECR 1169, [1985] 2 CMLR 199, ECJ (cited in PARA 23 note 3 ante).

5 For these purposes, the terms 'their vessels' and 'their factory ships' apply only to vessels and factory ships: (1) which are registered or recorded in the beneficiary country or in a member state; (2) which sail under the flag of a beneficiary country or of a member state; (3) which are owned to the extent of at least 50% by nationals of the beneficiary country or of member states or by a company having its head office in that country or in one of those member states, of which the manager or managers, chairman of the board of directors or of the supervisory board, and the majority of the members of such boards are nationals of the beneficiary country or of the member states and of which, in addition, in the case of companies, at least half the capital belongs to that beneficiary country or to the member states or to public bodies or nationals of that beneficiary country or to the member states; (4) of which the master and officers are nationals of the beneficiary country or of the member states; and (5) of which at least 75% of the crew are nationals of the beneficiary country or of the member states: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 68(2) (art 68 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

In Joined Cases C-153, 204/94 R v Customs and Excise Comrs, ex p Faroe Seafood Co Ltd [1996] ECR I-2465, [1996] All ER (EC) 606, [1996] 2 CMLR 821, ECJ, it was held that 'crew' in EC Council Regulation 2051/74 (OJ L212, 2.8.74, p 33) Annex IV (definition of 'Faroe Islands vessels' for the purpose of determining whether products could be considered as originating in the Faroe Islands: see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 789 et seq) did not include persons not forming part of the vessel's normal complement, who were engaged in addition thereto to work on a particular voyage as trainees or as unskilled hands below deck, in order to comply with a joint venture agreement entered into with an undertaking in a non-member state for the purpose of enabling the vessel to fish inside the exclusive economic zone of that country.

Vessels which operate on the high seas, including factory ships on which the fish caught is worked or processed, are considered as part of the territory of the beneficiary country or the member state to which they belong, provided that they satisfy the conditions set out in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 68(2) (as substituted): art 68(4) (as so substituted).

6 For the meaning of 'manufacture' see PARA 26 note 4 ante.

7 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 68(1), (3) (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

30. Products sent for exhibition.

Products¹ sent from a beneficiary country² for exhibition in another country and sold for importation into the Community³ are to benefit, on importation, from unilateral tariff preference⁴, on condition that the products meet the requirements⁵ entitling them to be recognised as originating in the beneficiary country and provided that it is shown to the satisfaction of the competent Community customs authorities that:

- 117 (1) an exporter has consigned the products from the beneficiary country directly to the country in which the exhibition is held and has exhibited them there;
- 118 (2) the products have been sold or otherwise disposed of by that exporter to a person in the Community;
- 119 (3) the products have been consigned during the exhibition or immediately thereafter to the Community in the state in which they were sent for exhibition;
- 120 (4) the products have not, since they were consigned for exhibition, been used for any purpose other than demonstration at the exhibition⁶.

The above provisions apply to any trade, industrial, agricultural or crafts exhibition, fair or similar public show or display which is not organised for private purposes in shops or business premises with a view to the sale of foreign products, and during which the products remain under customs control⁷.

A certificate of origin Form A⁸ must be produced to the Community customs authorities in the normal manner indicating the name and address of the exhibition; and, where necessary, additional documentary evidence of the nature of the products and the conditions under which they have been exhibited may be required⁹.

31. Members of regional groups etc.

By way of derogation from unilateral tariff preference¹, for the purposes of determining whether a product² manufactured³ in a beneficiary country⁴ which is a member of a regional group⁵ originates in that beneficiary country, products originating in any of the countries of that regional group and used in further manufacture in another country of the group are to be treated as if they originated in the country of further manufacture ('regional cumulation')⁶.

Regional cumulation applies to three separate regional groups of beneficiary countries which benefit from the generalised system of preferences:

- 121 (1) Group I: Brunei-Darussalam, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, Vietnam;
- 122 (2) Group II: Bolivia, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama, Peru, Venezuela; and
- 123 (3) Group III: Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan, Sri Lanka⁷.

Derogations from the provisions of the generalised system of preferences⁸ may also be made on the request of a least-developed beneficiary country when the development of existing industries or the creation of new industries justifies them⁹.

1 I.e. the tariff preference referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 67 (as substituted): see PARA 26 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'manufacture' see PARA 26 note 4 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'beneficiary countries' see PARA 26 ante.

5 For these purposes, 'regional group' is to be taken to mean Group I, Group II or Group III, as the case may be: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 72(4) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(2)).

For these purposes, when the principle of regional cumulation applies, the country of origin of the final product is to be determined by rules set out in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 72a (as substituted): art 72(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). UPDATE20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

C. BENEFICIARY COUNTRIES OR TERRITORIES

32. The concept of 'originating products'.

The Community grants tariff preferences to certain products¹ which originate in the Republics of Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Croatia, in the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (for certain wines), and in the Republic of Slovenia (for certain wines) ('beneficiary countries or territories')². Products are considered to originate in a beneficiary country or territory where they are:

- 124 (1) wholly obtained in that beneficiary country or territory³; or
- 125 (2) obtained in that beneficiary country or territory in circumstances where their manufacture⁴ involved the use of products other than those falling within head (1) above, provided that those latter products have undergone⁵ sufficient working or processing⁶.

The above provisions apply mutatis mutandis in order to establish the origin of products obtained in the Community⁷.

Products which are thus treated as originating in the Community but which are subject in a beneficiary country or territory to a certain level of working or processing⁸ are considered as originating in that beneficiary country or territory⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'product' see PARA 26 note 1 ante. Sets, as defined in the Harmonised System, general rule 3, are regarded as originating when all the component products are originating; but, where a set is composed of both originating and non-originating products, the set as a whole is regarded as originating provided that the value of the non-originating products does not exceed 15% of the ex-works price of the set: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 104 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). For the meanings of 'ex-works price' and 'Harmonised System' see PARA 26 note 1 ante.

3 I.e. within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 99 (as substituted): see PARA 35 post.

4 For the meaning of 'manufacture' see PARA 26 note 4 ante. However, in order to determine whether a product is an originating product, it is unnecessary to determine the origin of any of the following which might be used in its manufacture: (1) energy and fuel; (2) plant and equipment; (3) machines and tools; and (4) goods which do not, and are not intended to enter, into the final composition of the product: ibid art 105 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). In addition, accessories, spare parts and tools dispatched with a piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle which are part of the normal equipment and included in the price or not separately invoiced are regarded as one with the piece of equipment, machine, apparatus or vehicle in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 103 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

5 le have undergone sufficient working or processing within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 100 (as substituted): see PARA 34 post.

6 Ibid art 98(1) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

7 Ibid art 98(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). For these purposes, the term 'Community' does not cover Ceuta and Melilla; and the term 'products originating in the Community' does not cover products originating in Ceuta and Melilla: ibid art 123(1) (art 123 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). However, EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 98-123 (as substituted and amended) apply mutatis mutandis in determining whether products may be regarded as originating in the exporting beneficiary countries or territories benefiting from the preferences when imported into Ceuta and Melilla or as originating in Ceuta and Melilla, which for these purposes are to be regarded as a single territory: art 123(2), (3) (as so substituted; and art 123(2) amended by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(4)).

8 le working or processing going beyond that described in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 101 (as substituted): see PARA 34 post.

9 Ibid art 98(2) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

33. Conditions to be satisfied.

The conditions relating to the acquisition of originating status¹ must be satisfied without interruption in the beneficiary country or territory² or in the Community³.

If originating goods exported from the beneficiary country or territory or from the Community to another country are returned, they are considered as non-originating unless it can be demonstrated to the satisfaction of the competent authorities that:

- 126 (1) the goods returned are the same goods as those exported; and
- 127 (2) they have not undergone any operation beyond that necessary to preserve them in good condition while in that country or while being exported⁴.

34. Working and processing of products.

For the purposes of the provisions relating to tariff preferences¹, products² which are not wholly obtained in a beneficiary country or territory³ or in the Community⁴ are considered to be sufficiently worked or processed when specified conditions are met⁵.

The following operations are considered as insufficient working or processing to confer the status of originating products, regardless of whether or not the above requirements⁶ are satisfied:

- 128 (1) preserving operations to ensure that the products remain in good condition during transport and storage;
- 129 (2) breaking-up and assembly of packages;

Products which are not wholly obtained in a beneficiary country or in the Community must be considered to be sufficiently worked or processed when the conditions set out in the list in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 15 are fulfilled: art 100, 1st para (as so substituted). The conditions indicate, for all products covered by arts 98-123, the working or processing which must be carried out on non-originating materials used in manufacturing and apply only in relation to such materials: art 100, 2nd para (as so substituted). If a product which has acquired originating status by fulfilling the conditions set out in the list is used in the manufacture of another product, the conditions applicable to the product in which it is incorporated do not apply to it, and no account is taken of the non-originating materials which may have been used in its manufacture: art 100, 3rd para (as so substituted).

By way of derogation from the provisions of art 100 (as substituted and amended), non-originating materials may be used in the manufacture of a given product, other than a product falling within the Harmonised System Chs 50-63, provided that their total value does not exceed 10% of the ex-works price of the final product, and subject to the conditions laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 14 Pt B note 3.4 (Annex 14 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(15), Annex II): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 102(1), (2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). 8 Ibid art 101(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(5)). All the operations carried out in either a beneficiary country or territory or the Community on a given product must be considered together when determining whether the working or processing undergone by that product is to be regarded as insufficient within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 101(1) (as substituted): art 101(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5); and amended by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(4)).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L45, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(3) ORIGIN OF GOODS/(ii) Preferential Origin of Goods/C. BENEFICIARY COUNTRIES OR TERRITORIES/35. Products considered to be wholly obtained in a beneficiary country or territory or in the Community.

35. Products considered to be wholly obtained in a beneficiary country or territory or in the Community.

Products¹ which are wholly obtained in a beneficiary country or territory² or in the Community³, including, as the case may be, the territorial waters of the beneficiary country or territory or of the member states, are:

- 144 (1) mineral products extracted from its soil or from its sea bed;
- 145 (2) vegetable products harvested there;
- 146 (3) live animals born and raised there;
- 147 (4) products obtained there from live animals;
- 148 (5) products obtained by hunting or fishing conducted there;
- 149 (6) products of sea fishing and other products taken from the sea⁴ outside their territorial waters by their vessels⁵;
- 150 (7) products made on board their factory ships⁵ exclusively from the products referred to in head (6) above;
- 151 (8) used articles collected there fit only for the recovery of raw materials;
- 152 (9) waste and scrap resulting from manufacturing⁶ operations conducted there;
- 153 (10) products extracted from the sea bed or below the sea bed which is situated outside their territorial waters, but where it has exclusive exploitation rights;
- 154 (11) products produced there exclusively from products specified in heads (1) to (10) above⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'product' see PARAS 26 note 1, 32 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'beneficiary country or territory' see PARA 32 ante.

3 As to the meaning of 'Community' see PARA 32 note 7 ante.

4 As to the meaning of 'taken from the sea' see Case 100/84 EC Commission v United Kingdom [1985] ECR 1169, [1985] 2 CMLR 199, ECJ (cited in PARA 23 note 3 ante).

5 For these purposes, the terms 'their vessels' and 'their factory ships' apply only to vessels and factory ships: (1) which are registered or recorded in the beneficiary country or territory or in a member state; (2) which sail under the flag of a beneficiary country or territory or of a member state; (3) which are owned to the extent of at least 50% by nationals of the beneficiary country or territory or of member states or by a company having its head office in that country or territory or in a member state, of which the manager or managers, chairman of the board of directors or of the supervisory board, and the majority of the members of such boards are nationals of the beneficiary country or territory or of the member states and of which, in addition, in the case of companies, at least half the capital belongs to that beneficiary country or territory or to the member states or to public bodies or nationals of that beneficiary country or territory or of the member states; (4) of which the master and officers are nationals of the beneficiary country or territory or of the member states; and (5) of which at least 75% of the crew are nationals of the beneficiary country or territory or of the member states: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 99(2) (art 99 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5); and amended by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(4)). 36. Products sent for exhibition.

Products¹ sent from a beneficiary country or territory² for exhibition in another country and sold for importation into the Community³ are to benefit, on importation, from tariff preferences⁴, on condition that the products meet the requirements⁵ entitling them to be recognised as originating in the beneficiary country or territory and provided that it is shown to the satisfaction of the customs authorities that:

- 155 (1) an exporter has consigned the products from the beneficiary country or territory directly to the country in which the exhibition is held and has exhibited them there;
- 156 (2) the products have been sold or otherwise disposed of by that exporter to a person in the Community;
- 157 (3) the products have been consigned during the exhibition or immediately thereafter to the Community in the state in which they were sent for exhibition;
- 158 (4) the products have not, since they were consigned for exhibition, been used for any purpose other than demonstration at the exhibition⁶.

The above provisions apply to any trade, industrial, agricultural or crafts exhibition, fair or similar public show or display which is not organised for private purposes in shops or business premises with a view to the sale of foreign products, and during which the products remain under customs control⁷.

An EUR.1 movement certificate⁸ must be submitted to the customs authorities of the Community in the normal manner indicating the name and address of the exhibition⁹. Where necessary, additional documentary evidence of the nature of the products and the conditions under which they have been exhibited may be required¹⁰.

- 160 (2) certificates of origin for certain agricultural products subject to special import arrangements⁵.

38. Universal certificates of origin.

If the origin of a product is or has to be proved on importation by the production of a certificate of origin, that certificate must fulfil the following conditions:

- 161 (1) it must be made out by a reliable authority or agency duly authorised for that purpose by the country of issue;
- 162 (2) it must contain all the particulars necessary for identifying the product to which it relates, in particular:
 - 1. (a) the number of packages, their nature, and the marks and numbers they bear;
 - 2. (b) the type of product;
 - 3. (c) the gross and net weight of the product, although these particulars may be replaced by others, such as the number or volume, when the product is subject to appreciable changes in weight during carriage or when its weight cannot be ascertained or when it is normally identified by such other particulars;
 - 4. (d) the name of the consignor; and
- 163 (3) it must certify unambiguously that the product to which it relates originated in a specific country¹.

A certificate of origin issued by the competent authorities or authorised agencies of the member states must comply with the conditions prescribed by heads (1) and (2) above²; and it must certify that the goods originated in the Community, although, where the exigencies of export trade so require, the certificate may certify that the goods originated in a particular member state³.

Certificates of origin are to be issued upon the written request of the person concerned⁴. The competent authorities or authorised agencies of the member states which issue certificates of origin must retain for a minimum of two years either the applications for the certificates of origin or copies of the applications, if these have the same probative value under the law of the member state concerned⁵.

Exceptionally, a certificate of origin may be issued after the export of the products to which they relate, where the failure to issue them at the time of such export was a result of involuntary error or omission or special circumstances⁶. Use of this procedure for the issue of certificates of origin is dependent, unless the relevant special import arrangements provide otherwise, on the setting up of an administrative co-operation procedure⁷.

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

(iv) Proof of Preferential Origin of Goods

40. Proof of the preferential origin of goods.

Preference is given under the generalised system of tariff preferences to products¹ originating in a beneficiary country² on the submission of either:

- 164 (1) a certificate of origin Form A³; or
- 165 (2) in certain cases⁴, a declaration given by the exporter on an invoice, a delivery note or any other commercial document, which describes the products concerned in sufficient detail to enable them to be identified ('the invoice declaration')⁵.

In the case of products originating in a beneficiary country or territory⁶, preference is granted on the submission of either an EUR.1 movement certificate⁷ or an invoice declaration⁸.

In some cases, products originating in the Community, which are subject in a beneficiary country to specified working or processing, are considered as originating in that beneficiary country⁹. In such a case, evidence of originating status of Community products must be furnished either by production of an EUR.1 movement certificate or by production¹⁰ of an invoice declaration¹¹.

The discovery of slight discrepancies between the statements made in a certificate of origin Form A, in an EUR.1 movement certificate or in an invoice declaration, and those made in the documents produced to the customs office¹² for the purpose of carrying out the formalities for importing the products does not ipso facto render the certificate or declaration null and void, provided that it is duly established that the document does correspond to the products concerned¹³.

Products sent as small packages¹⁴ from private persons to private persons or forming part of travellers' personal luggage¹⁵ are admitted as originating products benefiting from the tariff preferences¹⁶ without requiring the presentation of a certificate of origin Form A or an invoice declaration (or, in the case of imports from a beneficiary country or territory, an EUR.1 movement certificate), provided that such products are not imported by way of trade¹⁷ and have been declared as meeting the conditions required for the application of the system of tariff preferences, and where there is no doubt as to the veracity of such a declaration¹⁸.

1 I.e. products deemed to originate in a developing country to which generalised tariff preferences granted by the Community apply, in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 67 (as substituted): see PARA 26 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'beneficiary countries' see PARA 26 ante.

3 I.e. in the form prescribed by EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 17 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(17), Annex V): see further PARA 41 post.

4 I.e. the cases specified in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 89(1) (as substituted). An invoice declaration may be made out by: (1) an approved exporter; or (2) by any exporter for any consignment consisting of one or more packages containing originating products whose total value does not exceed 6,000 euros, provided that the beneficiary country assists the Community by allowing the customs authorities of the member states to verify the authenticity of the document or the accuracy of the information regarding the true origin of the products in question, in accordance with art 81(1) (as substituted), and provided that the products concerned can be considered as originating in the Community or in a beneficiary country: art 89(1), (2) (art 89 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). For these purposes, 'approved exporter' means an exporter who has been authorised by the customs authorities of the Community to make out invoice declarations, irrespective of the value of the products concerned; and such authorisation may be given to any exporter who makes frequent shipments of products originating in the Community (within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 67(2) (as substituted): see PARA 26 ante) and who offers, to the satisfaction of the customs authorities, all guarantees necessary to verify the originating status of the products as well as the fulfilment of the other requirements relating to the generalised system of tariff preferences: art 90 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). 'Consignment' means products which are either sent simultaneously from one exporter to one consignee or covered by a single transport document covering their shipment from the exporter to the consignee or, in the absence of such a document, by a single invoice: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 66(j) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

The exporter making an invoice declaration must be prepared to submit at any time, at the request of the customs or other competent governmental authorities of the exporting country, all appropriate documents proving the originating status of the products concerned and the fulfilment of the other conditions laid down for the purposes of unilateral tariff relief: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 89(3) (as so substituted).

The provisions of arts 67-97 (as substituted) concerning the use and subsequent verification of certificates of origin Form A apply mutatis mutandis, with the exception of the provisions concerning their issue, to invoice declarations: art 90a(3) (art 90a substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

5 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 80 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). A proof of origin is valid for ten months from the date of issue in the exporting country, and must be submitted within that period to the customs authorities of the importing country: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 90b(1) (art 90b substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). Proofs of origin which are submitted to the customs authorities of the importing country after the final date for presentation may be accepted for the purpose of applying tariff preferences where the failure to submit these documents by the final date set is due to exceptional circumstances: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 90b(2) (as so substituted). In other cases of belated presentation, the customs authorities of the importing country may accept the proofs of origin where the products have been submitted before the final date: art 90b(3) (as so substituted). At the request of the importer and having regard to the conditions laid down by the customs authorities of the importing member state, a single proof of origin may be submitted to the customs authorities at the importation of the first consignment when the goods: (1) are imported within the framework of frequent and continuous trade flows of a significant commercial value; (2) are the subject of the same contract of sale, the parties of this contract being established in the exporting country or in the Community; (3) are classified in the same code (eight digits) of the Combined Nomenclature; (4) come exclusively from the same exporter, are destined for the same importer, and are made the subject of entry formalities at the same customs office in the Community: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 90b(4) (as so substituted). This procedure is applicable for the quantities and a period determined by the competent customs authorities; this period cannot, in any circumstances, exceed three months: art 90b(4) (as so substituted). As to the Combined Nomenclature see PARA 10 note 2 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'beneficiary countries or territories' see PARA 32 ante.

7 A specimen of an EUR.1 certificate is set out in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 21: art 90a(1)(a) (as substituted: see note 4 supra). The provisions of arts 67-97 (as substituted) concerning the issue, use and subsequent verification of certificates of origin Form A apply mutatis mutandis to movement certificates EUR.1: art 90a(3) (as so substituted).

8 Ibid art 109 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5); and amended by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(4)).

As to the circumstances in which an invoice declaration may be made see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 116, 117 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). These correspond to EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 89, 90 (as substituted) (see note 4 supra).

9 See ibid art 67(2) (as substituted); and PARA 26 ante.

10 Ie a declaration as referred to in ibid art 89 (as substituted): see note 4 supra. The competent authorities of the beneficiary country called on to issue a certificate of origin Form A for products in the manufacture of which materials originating in the Community, Norway or Switzerland are used, in accordance with art 67(2), (3) or (4) (as substituted) (see PARA 26 ante) must rely on the EUR.1 movement certificate or, where necessary, the invoice declaration: art 91 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

11 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 90a(1) (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

12 For these purposes, 'customs office' means any office at which all or some of the formalities laid down by customs rules may be completed: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 4(4).

14 The total value of the products must not exceed 500 euros in the case of small packages: see ibid art 90c(2), 2nd para (art 90c substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)) (in relation to imports from beneficiary countries); and EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 119(2), 2nd para (art 119 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)) (in relation to imports from beneficiary countries).

15 The total value of the products must not exceed 1,200 euros in the case of travellers' personal luggage: see EC Commission Regulation (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 90c(2), 2nd para (as substituted: see note 14 supra) (in relation to imports from beneficiary countries); and art 119(2), 2nd para (as substituted: see note 14 supra) (in relation to imports from beneficiary countries).

16 Is the system of tariff preferences referred to in ibid art 67 (as substituted): see PARA 26 ante.

17 Imports which are occasional and consist solely of products for the personal use of the recipients or travellers or their families are not considered as imports by way of trade if it is evident from the nature and quantity of the products that no commercial purpose is in view: see ibid art 90c(2), 1st para (as substituted: see note 14 supra) (in relation to imports from beneficiary countries); and art 119(2), 1st para (as substituted: see note 14 supra) (in relation to imports from beneficiary countries).

18 See ibid art 90c(1) (as substituted: see note 14 supra) (in relation to imports from beneficiary countries); and art 119(1) (as substituted: see note 14 supra) (in relation to imports from beneficiary countries).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(3) ORIGIN OF GOODS/(iv) Proof of Preferential Origin of Goods/41. Certificates of origin Form A.

41. Certificates of origin Form A.

Originating products¹ are eligible, on importation into the Community, to benefit from the tariff preferences² if they have been transported directly³ from the exporting beneficiary country to the Community, on submission of a certificate of origin Form A⁴, issued either by the customs authorities, or by other competent governmental authorities of the exporting beneficiary country, provided that the latter country:

- 166 (1) has communicated to the Commission the required information⁵; and
- 167 (2) assists the Community by allowing the customs authorities of member states to verify the authenticity of the document or the accuracy of the information regarding the true origin of the products in question⁶.

Such a certificate of origin may be issued only where it can serve as the documentary evidence required for the purposes of the relevant tariff preferences⁷. A written application must be made for its issue by the exporter or his authorised representative⁸; and it must be accompanied by any appropriate supporting document proving that the products to be exported qualify for the issue of the certificate⁹. The certificate must be issued by the competent governmental authority of the beneficiary country if the products to be exported can be considered products originating in that country¹⁰; and, for the purpose of verifying this, the authority has the right to call for any documentary evidence or to carry out any check which it considers appropriate¹¹. The certificate must be made available to the exporter as soon as the export has taken place or is ensured¹².

1 For the meaning of 'originating products' see PARA 26 ante.

2 I.e. the tariff preferences referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 67 (as substituted); see PARA 26 ante.

3 The following are to be considered as transported direct from one beneficiary country to the Community, or vice versa: (1) products transported without passing through the territory of any other country, except in the case of the territory of another country of the same regional group where ibid art 72 (as substituted) (see PARA 31 ante) is applied; (2) products constituting one single consignment transported through the territory of countries other than the beneficiary country or the Community, with, should the occasion arise, transshipment or temporary warehousing in those countries, provided that the products remained under the surveillance of the customs authorities in the country of transit or of warehousing and did not undergo operations other than unloading, reloading or any operation designed to preserve them in good condition; (3) products transported through the territory of Norway or Switzerland and subsequently re-exported in full or in part to the Community or to the beneficiary country, provided that the products remained under the surveillance of the customs authorities of the country of transit or of warehousing and did not undergo operations other than unloading, reloading or any operation designed to preserve them in good condition; and (4) products transported by pipeline without interruption across a territory other than that of the exporting beneficiary country or of the Community: art 78(1) (art 78 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). For the meaning of 'beneficiary countries' see PARA 26 ante; as to the meaning of 'Community' see PARA 26 note 7 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

Evidence that the conditions specified in heads (2), (3) supra have been fulfilled must be supplied to the competent customs authorities by the production of: (a) a single transport document covering the passage from the exporting country through the country of transit; or (b) a certificate issued by the customs authorities of the country of transit: (i) giving an exact description of the products; (ii) stating the dates of unloading and reloading of the products and, where applicable, the names of the ships, or the other means of transport used; and (iii) certifying the conditions under which the products remained in the country of transit; or (c) failing these, any substantiating documents: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 78(2) (as so substituted).

4 A specimen form of certificate appears in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 17 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(17), Annex V): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 80(a) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The beneficiary countries must inform the Commission of the names and addresses of the governmental authorities situated in their territory empowered to issue certificates of origin Form A, and provide specimen impressions of the stamps used by those authorities and the names and addresses of the relevant governmental authorities responsible for the control of the certificates of origin Form A and the invoice declarations: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 93(1) (art 93 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The stamps are valid from the date of receipt of the specimens by the Commission: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 93(1) (as so substituted). The Commission must forward this information to the customs authorities of the member states: art 93(1) (as so substituted). When these communications are made within the framework of an amendment of previous communications, the Commission must indicate the date of entry into use of those new stamps according to the instructions given by the competent governmental authorities of the beneficiary countries: art 83(1) (as so substituted). Although the information is for official use, when goods are to be released for free circulation, the customs authorities in question may allow the importer or his duly authorised representative to consult the specimen impressions of the stamps: art 83(1) (as so substituted). The Commission must publish in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series) the date on which each new beneficiary country meets its obligation under art 93(1) (as substituted): art 93(2) (as so substituted). Until the relevant information has been provided to the Commission, tariff preference is not available: art 81(1), 1st indent (art 81 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

As to the rules allowing the presentation of a single proof of origin where certain dismantled or non-assembled products are imported by instalments see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 82 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

5 le the information required by EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 93 (as substituted) (administrative co-operation): see note 4 supra.

6 Ibid art 81(1) (as substituted: see note 4 supra). It is the responsibility of the competent governmental authority of the exporting country to take any steps necessary to verify the origin of the products and to check the other statements on the certificate, since the certificate of origin Form A constitutes the documentary evidence for the application of the provisions concerning the tariff preferences referred to in art 67 (as substituted): art 83 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). Proofs of origin must be submitted to the customs authorities of the member states of importation in accordance with the procedures laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 62: art 84 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). Such authorities may require a translation of a proof of origin and may also require the import declaration to be accompanied by a statement from the importer to the effect that the products meet the conditions required for the application of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 67-97 (as substituted and amended): art 84 (as so substituted).

7 Ibid art 81(2) (as substituted: see note 4 supra). For these purposes, the relevant tariff preferences are those referred to in art 67 (as substituted): art 81(2) (as so substituted).

8 Ibid art 81(3) (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

9 Ibid art 81(4) (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

10 Ibid art 81(5) (as substituted: see note 4 supra). For these purposes, 'originating products' means originating products within the meaning of arts 67-97 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 26 ante): art 81(5) (as so substituted). As to methods of administrative co-operation, including the notification to the Commission of the names of the competent governmental authorities, see art 93 (as substituted); and note 4 supra. It is the responsibility of the competent governmental authority of the beneficiary country to ensure that both applications and certificates are duly completed: art 81(7) (as so substituted). The completion of box 2 of the certificate of origin Form A is optional; box 12 must be duly completed by indicating 'European Community' or one of the member states: art 81(8) (as so substituted). The date of issue of the certificate of origin Form A must be indicated in box 11 and the signature to be entered in that box, which is reserved for the competent governmental authorities issuing the certificate, must be handwritten: art 81(9) (as so substituted).

11 Ibid art 81(6) (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

12 Ibid art 81(5) (as substituted: see note 4 supra). However, by way of derogation from art 81(5) (as so substituted), a certificate of origin Form A may exceptionally be issued after exportation of the products to which it relates if: (1) it was not issued at the time of exportation because of errors or accidental omissions or special circumstances; or (2) it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the customs authorities that a certificate of origin Form A was issued but was not accepted on importation for technical reasons: art 85(1) (art 85 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The competent governmental authority may issue a certificate of origin retrospectively only after verifying that the particulars contained in the exporter's application conform with those contained in the corresponding export documents and that a certificate of origin Form A satisfying the provisions of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 67-97 (as substituted and amended) was not issued when the products in question were exported: art 85(2) (as so substituted). In the event of the theft, loss or destruction of a certificate of origin Form A, the exporter may apply to the competent governmental authority which issued it for a duplicate to be made out on the basis of the export documents in its possession: art 86(1) (art 86 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The duplicate then takes effect for the purposes of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 90b (as substituted) (see PARA 40 note 5 ante) from the date of the original: art 86(2) (as so substituted).

When originating products are placed under the control of a customs office in the Community, it is possible to replace the original proof of origin by one or more certificates of origin Form A for the purpose of sending all or some of these products elsewhere within the Community or to Switzerland or Norway: art 87(1) (art 87 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The replacement certificate of origin Form A is to be issued by the customs office under whose control the products are placed: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 87(1) (as so substituted). The re-exporter must sign the certificate of origin in box 12, concerning the country of origin and country of destination of the goods; but, provided that he signs in good faith, he is not responsible for the accuracy of the particulars entered in the original certificate: art 87(3), 7th para (as so substituted).

Correspondingly, products which are considered to be originating products for the purposes of unilateral relief are eligible on importation into the Community to benefit from the tariff preferences referred to in art 67 (as substituted) on production of a replacement certificate of origin Form A issued by the customs authorities of Norway or Switzerland on the basis of a certificate of origin Form A issued by the competent authorities of the beneficiary country, provided that: (a) the conditions laid down in art 78 (as substituted) (see note 3 supra) have been satisfied; and (b) Norway or Switzerland assists the Community by allowing its customs authorities to verify the authenticity and accuracy of the issued certificates: art 88 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The post-clearance verification process established by EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 94 (as substituted) (see PARA 44 post) applies mutatis mutandis to such replacement certificates; and the time limit laid down in art 94(3) (as substituted) is extended to eight months: art 88 (as so substituted).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(3) ORIGIN OF GOODS/(iv) Proof of Preferential Origin of Goods/42. EUR.1 movement certificates relating to beneficiary countries or territories.

42. EUR.1 movement certificates relating to beneficiary countries or territories.

Originating products¹ are eligible, on importation into the Community, to benefit from the tariff preferences², if they have been transported directly³ from the exporting beneficiary country or territory into the Community, on submission⁴ of an EUR.1 movement certificate⁵ issued by the customs or governmental authorities of Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia or Slovenia, and on condition that those beneficiary countries or territories have communicated to the Commission the required information⁶ and assist the Community by allowing the customs authorities of member states to verify the authenticity of the document or the accuracy of the information regarding the true origin of the products in question⁷.

Such an EUR.1 movement certificate may be issued only where it can serve as the documentary evidence required for the purposes of the relevant tariff preferences⁸. A written application must be made for its issue by the exporter or by his authorised representative⁹; and it must be accompanied by any appropriate supporting documents proving that the products to be exported qualify for the issue of the certificate¹⁰. The certificate must be issued by the competent authorities if the products to be exported can be considered relevant originating products¹¹; and, for the purpose of verifying this, the competent authorities of the beneficiary country or territory, or the customs authorities of the exporting member state, have the right to call for any documentary evidence or to carry out any check which they consider appropriate¹². The certificate must be issued by the competent authorities of the beneficiary country or territory or by the customs authorities of the exporting member state when the products to which it relates are exported, and it must be made available to the exporter as soon as exportation has actually been effected or ensured¹³.

1 For the meaning of 'originating products' see PARA 32 ante.

2 I.e. the tariff preferences referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 98 (as substituted and amended): see PARA 32 ante.

3 I.e. within the meaning of ibid art 107 (as substituted and amended). The following are to be considered as transported direct from the beneficiary country or territory to the Community, or vice versa: (1) products transported without passing through the territory of any other country; (2) products constituting one single consignment transported through the territory of countries other than the exporting beneficiary country or territory or the Community, with, should the occasion arise, transshipment or temporary warehousing in those countries, provided that they remain under the surveillance of the customs authorities in the country of transit or of warehousing and do not undergo operations other than unloading, reloading or any operation designed to preserve them in good condition; (3) products which are transported by pipe-line without interruption across a territory other than that of the exporting beneficiary country or territory or of the Community: art 107(1) (art 107 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5); and amended by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(4)). For the meaning of 'beneficiary country or territory' see PARA 32 ante; as to the meaning of 'Community' see PARA 32 note 7 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

Evidence that the conditions set out in head (2) supra have been satisfied is to be supplied to the competent customs authorities by the production of either: (a) a single transport document covering the passage from the exporting country through the country of transit; and (b) a certificate issued by the customs authorities of the country of transit: (i) giving an exact description of the products; (ii) stating the dates of unloading and reloading of the products and, where applicable, the names of the ships or the other means of transport used; and (iii) certifying the conditions under which the products remained in the transit country; or (c) failing these, any substantiating documents: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 107(2) (as so substituted and amended).

4 A proof of origin is valid for four months from the date of issue in the exporting country, and must be submitted within that period to the customs authorities in the importing country: ibid art 118(1) (art 116 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(2)).

A proof of origin which is submitted to the customs authorities of the importing country after the final date for presentation specified in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 118(1) (as substituted) may be accepted for the purpose of applying the tariff preferences, where the failure to submit the document by the final date set is due to exceptional circumstances: art 118(2) (as so substituted). In other cases of belated presentation, the customs authorities of the importing country may accept the proofs of origin where the products have been submitted to them before the final date for presentation: art 118(3) (as so substituted). At the request of the importer and having regard to the conditions laid down by the customs authorities of the importing member state, a single proof of origin may be submitted to the customs authorities at the importation of the first consignment when the goods: (1) are imported within the framework of frequent and continuous trade flows of a significant commercial value; (2) are the subject of the same contract of sale, the parties of this contract being established in the exporting country or in the Community; (3) are classified in the same code (eight digits) of the Combined Nomenclature; (4) come exclusively from the same exporter, are destined for the same importer, and are made the subject of entry formalities at the same customs office in the Community: art 118(4) (as so substituted). This procedure is applicable for the quantities and a period determined by the competent customs authorities; this period cannot, in any circumstances, exceed three months: art 118(4) (as so substituted). As to the Combined Nomenclature see PARA 10 note 2 ante.

As to the rules allowing the presentation of a single proof of origin where certain dismantled or non-assembled products are imported by instalments see art 111 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

5 A specimen form of application appears in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 21: see art 110(3) (art 110 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The beneficiary countries or territories are to inform the Commission of the names and addresses of the governmental authorities situated in their territory which are empowered to issue EUR.1 movement certificates, and to provide specimen impressions of the stamps used by those authorities and the names and addresses of the relevant governmental authorities responsible for the control of the EUR.1 movement certificates and the invoice declarations: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 121(1) (art 121 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5); and amended by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 art 1(4)). The stamps are valid as from the date of receipt of the specimens by the Commission: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 121(1) (as so substituted). The Commission must forward this information to the customs authorities of the member states: art 121(1) (as so substituted). When these communications are made within the framework of an amendment of previous communications, the Commission must indicate the date of entry into use of those new stamps according to the instructions given by the competent governmental authorities of the beneficiary countries or territories: art 121(1) (as so substituted and amended). Although this information is for official use, when goods are to be released for free circulation, the customs authorities in question may allow the importer or his duly-authorised representative to consult the specimen impressions of stamps: art 121(1) (as so substituted). Until the relevant information has been provided to the Commission, tariff preference is not available: art 110(1), 3rd indent (as so substituted: see supra). The Commission must send, to the beneficiary countries or territories, the specimen impressions of the stamps used by the customs authorities of the member states for the issue of EUR.1 movement certificates: art 121(2) (as so substituted and amended).

6 See the information required under ibid art 121 (as substituted and amended): see note 5 supra.

7 Ibid art 110(1) (as substituted and amended: see note 5 supra). It is the responsibility of the competent governmental authority of the beneficiary country or territory to take any steps necessary to verify the origin of the goods and to check the other statements on the certificate, since the EUR.1 movement certificate constitutes the documentary evidence for the application of the preferential arrangements set out in art 98 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 32 ante): art 110(6) (as so substituted and amended).

8 Ibid art 110(2) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). The relevant tariff preferences are those referred to in art 98 (as substituted and amended): art 110(2) (as so substituted).

9 Ibid art 110(3) (as substituted and amended: see note 5 supra). Applications for EUR.1 movement certificates must be kept for at least three years by the competent authorities of the exporting beneficiary country or territory or member state: art 110(3) (as so substituted and amended).

10 Ibid art 110(4) (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

11 Ibid art 110(5) (as substituted and amended: see note 5 supra). For these purposes, 'originating products' means originating products within the meaning of arts 98-123 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 32 ante):

art 110(5) (as so substituted). As to methods of administrative co-operation, including the notification to the Commission of the names of the competent governmental authorities, see art 121 (as substituted and amended); and note 5 supra. It is the responsibility of the authority to ensure that both applications and certificates are duly completed: art 110(8) (as so substituted and amended).

12 Ibid art 110(7) (as substituted and amended: see note 5 supra).

13 Ibid art 110(10) (as substituted and amended: see note 5 supra). However, by way of derogation from art 110(10) (as substituted and amended), an EUR.1 movement certificate may exceptionally be issued after exportation of the products to which it relates if: (1) it was not issued at the time of exportation because of errors or involuntary omissions or special circumstances; or (2) it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the competent authorities that an EUR.1 movement certificate was issued but was not accepted at importation for technical reasons: art 113(1) (art 113 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)).

The competent authorities may issue an EUR.1 movement certificate retrospectively only after verifying that the information supplied in the exporter's application agrees with that in the corresponding export file and that an EUR.1 movement certificate satisfying the provisions relating to preference for certain goods from beneficiary countries or territories was not issued when the products in question were exported: art 113(2) (as so substituted). In the event of the theft, loss or destruction of an EUR.1 movement certificate, the exporter may apply to the competent authorities which issued it for a duplicate to be made out on the basis of the export documents in their possession: art 114(1) (art 114 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The duplicate, which must bear the date of the issue of the original, takes effect from that date: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 114(4) (as so substituted).

When originating products are placed under the control of a customs office in the Community, it is possible to replace the original proof of origin by one or more EUR.1 movement certificates for the purpose of sending all or some of those products elsewhere in the Community: art 115 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). The replacement EUR.1 movement certificate or certificates must be issued by the customs office under whose control the products are placed: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 115 (as so substituted).

(v) Verification of Documents certifying Origin

44. Certificates of origin Form A.

Subsequent verification of certificates of origin Form A and invoice declarations is to be carried out at random or whenever the customs authorities¹ in the Community have reasonable doubts as to the authenticity of such documents, the originating status of the products concerned or the fulfilment of the other requirements of the rules governing the provision of tariff preference to such products².

The verification is to be carried out by the customs authorities in the Community returning the certificate of origin Form A and the invoice, if it has been submitted, the invoice declaration, or a copy of these documents, to the competent governmental authorities in the exporting beneficiary country³, giving, where appropriate, the reasons for the inquiry⁴. The customs authorities must also forward, in support of the request for verification, any documents and information obtained suggesting that the information given on the proof of origin is incorrect⁵.

The verification must be carried out and its results communicated to the customs authorities in the Community within a maximum of six months⁶. The results must be such as to establish whether the proof of origin in question applies to the products actually exported and whether these products can be considered as products originating in the beneficiary country or in the Community⁷. In cases of reasonable doubt, where there is no reply within the permitted six months' period, or if the reply does not contain sufficient information to determine the authenticity of the document in question or the real origin of the products, the competent authorities must be sent a second communication⁸. If, after the second communication, the results of the verification are not communicated to the requesting authorities within four months, or if these results do not allow the authenticity of the document in question or the real origin of the products to be determined, the requesting authorities must, except in the case of exceptional circumstances, refuse entitlement to the preferential tariff measures⁹.

Where the verification procedure or any other available information appears to indicate that the provisions relating to the granting of unilateral tariff preference are being contravened, the exporting beneficiary country must, on its own initiative or at the request of the Community, carry out appropriate inquiries or arrange for such inquiries to be carried out with due urgency to identify and prevent such contraventions¹⁰.

1 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 94(1) (art 94 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5)). For the purposes of the subsequent verification of certificates of origin Form A, copies of the certificates, as well as any export documents referring to them, must be kept for at least three years by the competent governmental authorities of the exporting beneficiary country: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 94(7) (as so substituted).

3 For the meaning of 'beneficiary countries' see PARA 26 ante.

4 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 94(2), 1st para (as substituted: see note 2 supra). If the customs authorities in the Community decide to suspend the granting of tariff preferences pending the results of the verification, they must offer release of the products to the importer subject to any precautionary measures judged necessary: art 94(2), 2nd para (as so substituted). For these purposes, 'release of the products' means the act whereby the customs authorities make goods available for the purposes stipulated by the customs procedure under which they are placed: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 4(20). The customs authorities of an importing member state may, after having permitted without reserve the final importation of goods and the application of the preferential tariff treatment granted to products originating in developing countries: (1) require the state benefiting from the exportation to verify the certificate of origin on Form A relating to those goods; and (2) if the outcome of that verification is negative, demand payment of the duty which was not paid at the time of importation: Case 827/79 Amministrazione delle Finanze v Ciro Acampora [1980] ECR 3731 at 3745, [1981] 2 CMLR 349 at 357, ECJ (it must be recognised that the possibility of checking after importation without the importer having been previously warned may cause him difficulties when in good faith he has thought he was importing goods benefiting from tariff preferences in reliance on certificates which, unbeknown to him, were incorrect or falsified; it must, however, be pointed out that in the first place the Community does not have to bear the adverse consequences of the wrongful acts of the suppliers of its nationals, in the second place the importer can attempt to obtain compensation from the perpetrator of the fraud and in the third place, in calculating the benefits from trade in goods likely to enjoy tariff preferences, a prudent trader aware of the rules must be able to assess the risks inherent in the market which he is considering and accept them as normal trade risks). The fact that an importer has been acting in good faith does not release him from his liability to pay the customs debt where it is he who has declared the imported goods. If it did, the importer would have an incentive to refrain from verifying the accuracy of the information which the exporter provided to the authorities of the state of exportation and the exporter's good faith, which would give rise to abuse: Case C-97/95 Pascoal & Filhos Ld v Fazenda Pública [1997] ECR I-4209, ECJ.

6 Ibid art 94(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

7 Ibid art 94(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). As to originating products see PARA 32 ante. In the case of certificates of origin Form A issued in accordance with art 91 (as substituted) (see PARA 40 ante), the reply must include a copy (or copies) of the EUR.1 movement certificate (or certificates) or, where necessary, of the corresponding invoice declaration or declarations: art 94(4) (as so substituted).

8 Ibid art 94(5), 1st para (as substituted: see note 2 supra). These provisions apply between the countries of the same regional group for the purposes of the subsequent verification of the certificates of origin Form A issued in accordance with arts 67-97 (as substituted): art 94(5), 2nd para (as so substituted). Distinctions may arise in the verification of origin in cases of bilateral agreements from those of preferential tariff arrangements adopted unilaterally by the Community: see Case 218/83 Les Rapides Savoyards Sàrl v Directeur Général des Douanes et Droits Indirects [1984] ECR 3105, [1985] 3 CMLR 116, ECJ; Case C-432/92 R v Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, ex p SP Anastasiou (Pissouri) Ltd [1994] ECR I-3087 at 3131, [1995] 1 CMLR 569 at 606, ECJ (in the case of an agreement concluded between the Community and a non-member state, the system whereby movement certificates are regarded as evidence of the origin of products is founded on the principle of mutual reliance and co-operation between the competent authorities of the exporting state and those of the importing state; acceptance of certificates by the customs authorities of the importing state reflects their total confidence in the system of checking the origin of products as implemented by the competent authorities of the exporting state; and it also shows that the importing state is in no doubt that subsequent verification, consultation and settlement of any disputes in respect of the origin of products or the existence of fraud will be carried out efficiently with the co-operation of the authorities concerned).

Cf Case C-12/92 Huygen [1993] ECR I-6381, ECJ (the Agreement between the European Community and Austria (OJ L300, 31.12.72, p 2) Protocol 3 (substituted by Agreement in the form of an exchange of letters consolidating and modifying Protocol 3 (OJ L323, 11.12.84, p 2)), relating to the definition of the concept of 'originating products' and methods of administrative co-operation, which establishes, within the framework of the free trade envisaged by the Agreement, preferential arrangements for products originating in Austria or the Community, is to be interpreted as meaning that, where the exporting state, having been requested to check the EUR.1 certificate of origin, does not succeed in establishing the correct origin of the goods, it must conclude that they are of unknown origin and, therefore, that the EUR.1 certificate and the preferential tariff have been wrongly granted. However, in a situation in which the customs authorities of the exporting state, having regard to the impossibility of furnishing the usual proof of the origin of the goods envisaged by the Protocol, are not in a position duly to carry out such a check, the importing state is not definitively bound, for the purpose of demanding payment of unpaid customs duties, by the negative result of such verification, but may take account of other evidence as to the origin of the goods (so that the importer is entitled, according to the circumstances, to invoke as force majeure the fact that the customs authorities in the exporting member state are unable, by reason of their own negligence, to establish the correct origin of the goods by means of a subsequent verification)); Joined Cases C-153, 204/94 R v Customs and Excise Comrs, ex p Faroe Seafood Co Ltd [1996] ECR I-2465, [1996] All ER (EC) 606, [1996] 2 CMLR 821, ECJ; Shaneel Enterprises Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [1996] V & DR 23; Seafood Vardo Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1997) Customs Decision 41 (unreported).

45. EUR.1 movement certificates.

Subsequent verifications of EUR.1 movement certificates or invoice declarations are to be carried out at random or whenever the customs authorities¹ in the importing member state or the competent governmental authorities of the beneficiary countries or territories² have reasonable doubts as to the authenticity of such documents, the originating status of the products concerned or the fulfilment of the other requirements of the rules governing the provision of tariff preference to such products³. In such cases, the competent authorities of the importing member state or of the beneficiary country or territory must return the EUR.1 movement certificate and the invoice, if it has been submitted, the invoice declaration, or a copy of these documents, to the competent authorities in the exporting beneficiary country or territory or member state, giving, where appropriate, the reasons for the inquiry⁴. Any documents and information obtained suggesting that the information given on the proof of origin is incorrect must be forwarded in support of the request for verification⁵.

The verification must be carried out, and the customs authorities of the importing member state or the competent governmental authorities of the beneficiary country or territory requesting the verification must be informed of the results of this verification⁶, within six months⁷. The results of the verification must establish whether the proof of origin in question applies to the products actually exported, and whether these products can be considered as originating in the beneficiary country or territory or in the Community⁸. If, in cases of reasonable doubt, there is no reply within the specified six months, or if the reply contains insufficient information to determine the authenticity of the document in question, or the real origin of the products, a second communication must be sent to the competent authorities and if, after the second communication, the results of the verification are not communicated to the requesting authorities within four months, or if these results do not allow the authenticity of the document in question or the real origin of the products to be determined, the requesting authorities must, except in exceptional circumstances, refuse entitlement to the tariff preferences⁹.

3 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 122(1) (art 122 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(5); and amended by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(4)). To enable subsequent verification, the competent governmental authorities of the beneficiary countries or territories or the customs authorities of the exporting member state must keep copies of EUR.1 movement certificates and invoice declarations, as well as any export documents referring to them, for at least three years: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 122(6) (as so substituted and amended).

4 Ibid art 122(2), 1st para (as substituted and amended: see note 3 supra). If the customs authorities in the importing member state decide to suspend the granting of the tariff preferences to the products concerned while awaiting the results of the verification, release of the products must be offered to the importer subject to any precautionary measures judged necessary: art 122(2), 2nd para (as so substituted).

5 Ibid art 122(2), 1st para (as substituted and amended: see note 3 supra).

6 In the context of a bilateral agreement for preferential tariff treatment (ie EC Council Decision 86/283 (OJ L175, 1.7.86, p 1)), the purpose of the 'results of the verification' is to allow the authorities of the member state of importation to determine whether the disputed EUR.1 certificate applies to the goods actually exported and whether the goods can in fact qualify for the application of the preferential arrangements. The provision does not imply any obligation on the part of the authorities of the state of exportation to justify to the importer their conclusions concerning the validity of the certificate. A communication merely confirming that the certificate was improperly issued and must, therefore, be cancelled without setting out in detail the reasons justifying cancellation submitted may accordingly be described as 'results of the verification' within the meaning of the provision. Further, where the competent authorities of the state of exportation declare, following subsequent verification, that an EUR.1 certificate does not apply to the goods actually exported, that is sufficient to enable the authorities of the state of importation to hold that duties legally due have not been required and consequently institute proceedings to recover them. Nothing in the rules obliges the latter authorities to establish the accuracy of the results of the verification or the true origin of the goods: Case C-97/95 Pascoal & Filhos Ld v Fazenda Pública [1997] ECR I-4209, ECJ.

8 Ibid art 122(3) (as substituted and amended: see note 3 supra). As to originating products see PARA 32 ante.

9 Ibid art 122(4) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). The person liable cannot entertain a legitimate expectation with regard to the validity of the certificates by virtue of the fact that they were initially accepted by the customs authorities of a member state, since the role of those authorities in regard to the initial acceptance of declarations in no way prevents subsequent checks from being carried out: Joined Cases 98, 230/83 Van Gend en Loos NV v EC Commission [1984] ECR 3763, ECJ; Joined Cases C-153, 204/94 R v Customs and Excise Comrs, ex p Faroe Seafood Co Ltd [1996] ECR I-2465, [1996] All ER (EC) 606, [1996] 2 CMLR 821, ECJ.

(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION

(i) In general

46. Valuation of goods for customs purposes; the fundamental rules.

The provisions of the Community Customs Code relating to customs valuation¹ are to be used to determine the customs value of imported goods for the purposes of applying both the Customs Tariff of the European Communities² and non-tariff measures laid down by Community provisions³ governing specific fields relating to trade in goods⁴.

In applying those provisions, as well as the regulations implementing them⁵, member states must comply with the interpretative notes⁶ on customs value⁷.

If it is necessary to make reference to generally accepted accounting principles⁸ in determining the customs value, the provisions relating to the application of those principles⁹ are to apply¹⁰. These provide (inter alia) that, for the purposes of the application of the customs valuation provisions, the customs administration concerned is to utilise information prepared in a manner consistent with generally accepted accounting principles in the country which is appropriate for the provision in question¹¹.

The material time for customs valuation is the time of importation¹².

1 Ie EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') arts 28-36 (as amended).

2 As to the Customs Tariff of the European Communities see PARA 11 ante. The Common Customs Tariff concerns only the importation of goods, ie tangible property, and does not apply to the importation of incorporeal property such as processes, services or know-how. Therefore, for the purpose of the determination of the value for customs purposes, it is in principle necessary to concentrate only on the intrinsic value of the article and to disregard the value of processes, which may be patented, in which it may be used: Case 1/77 Robert Bosch GmbH v Hauptzollamt Hildesheim [1977] ECR 1473, [1977] 2 CMLR 563, ECJ.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION/(ii) Transaction Value/A. IN GENERAL/47. In general.

(ii) Transaction Value

A. IN GENERAL

47. In general.

The customs value of imported goods is, as a general rule, taken to be the 'transaction value', that is the price actually paid or payable¹ for the goods when sold for export to the customs territory of the Community², adjusted, where necessary, in accordance with rules laid down by the Community Customs Code³. The application of this value is subject to the following conditions:

- 168 (1) that there are no restrictions as to the disposal or use of the goods by the buyer, other than restrictions which:
 - 5. (a) are imposed or required by a law or by the public authorities in the Community; or
 - 6. (b) which limit the geographical area in which the goods may be resold; or
 - 7. (c) which do not substantially affect the value of the goods⁴;
- 169 (2) that the sale or price is not subject to some condition or consideration for which a value cannot be determined with respect to the goods being valued⁵;
- 170 (3) that no part of the proceeds of any subsequent resale, disposal or use of the goods by the buyer will accrue directly or indirectly to the seller, unless an appropriate adjustment can be made in accordance with the relevant provision⁶ of the Community Customs Code⁷; and
- 171 (4) that the buyer and seller are not related (although, if the buyer and seller are related, the transaction value may still be accepted if it proves acceptable⁸ for customs purposes in accordance with the prescribed tests)⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'the price actually paid or payable' see PARA 48 post.

2 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante. The fact that the goods which are the subject of a sale are declared for free circulation is regarded as adequate indication that they were sold for export to the customs territory of the Community: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 147(1) (amended by EC Commission Regulation 1762/95 (OJ L171, 21.7.95, p 8) art 1(2)(b)). In the case of successive sales before valuation, only the last sale, which led to the introduction of the goods into the customs territory of the Community, or a sale taking place in the customs territory of the Community before entry for free circulation of the goods, constitutes an adequate indication that they were sold for export to the Community: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 147(1) (as so amended). Where a price is declared which relates to a sale taking place before the last sale on the basis of which the goods were introduced into the customs territory of the Community, it must be demonstrated to the satisfaction of the customs authorities that that particular sale of goods took place for export to the customs territory in question: art 147(1) (as so amended). The provisions of arts 178-181a (as amended) (declarations of particulars and documents to be furnished: see PARAS 48, 74-75 post) apply for these purposes: art 147(1) (as so amended). Where goods are used in a third country between the time of sale and the time of entry into free circulation, the customs value need not be the transaction value: art 147(2). In order to take advantage of art 147(1) (as amended), the buyer need satisfy no condition other than that of being a party to the contract of sale: art 147(3). For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq post.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 29. Article 29 is without prejudice to the specific provisions regarding the determination of the value for customs purposes of goods released for free circulation after being assigned a different customs-approved treatment or use: art 36(1). For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 post.

Where a payment is made both for goods supplied from overseas and for services supplied in the United Kingdom, the transaction value may be the whole payment and the whole payment is then subject to customs duty: see Case C-491/04 Dollond and Aitchison Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [2006] 2 CMLR 1334, ECJ.

Commission Regulation 1224/80 (OJ L134, 31.5.80, p 1) (revoked: see now EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29) replaced the concept of 'normal price' which was the basis for the calculation of customs value under the previous rules, by the concept of 'transaction value', which, as a general rule, is the price actually paid or payable for the goods. Under the new system, the customs value must, therefore, be calculated on the basis of the conditions on which the individual sale was made, even if they do not accord with trade practice or may appear unusual for the type of contract in question. The use of arbitrary or fictitious customs values has no place in this system; and that is reflected in those provisions of the regulation which define the transaction value or make adjustments to it: Case 65/85 Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Ericus v Van Houten International GmbH [1986] ECR 447 at 455-456, [1988] 2 CMLR 941 at 949, ECJ.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(1)(a). As regards art 29(1)(a), 3rd indent (see head (1)(a) in the text) an example of such a restriction would be the case where a seller requires a buyer of automobiles not to sell or exhibit them prior to a fixed date which represents the beginning of a model year: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 141(2), Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(1)(b). Some examples of this include: (1) the seller establishes the price of the imported goods on condition that the buyer will also buy other goods in specified quantities; (2) the price of the import goods is dependent upon the price or prices at which the buyer of the imported goods sells other goods to the seller of the imported goods; (3) the price is established on the basis of a form of payment extraneous to the imported goods, such as where the imported goods are semi-finished goods which have been provided by the seller on condition that he will receive a specified quantity of the finished goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. However, conditions or considerations relating to the production or marketing of the imported goods are not to result in rejection of the transaction value, eg the fact that the buyer furnishes the seller with engineering and plans undertaken in the country of importation is not to result in rejection of the transaction value for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(1): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note.

6 In accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32: see PARA 51 et seq post.

7 Ibid art 29(1)(c).

8 As to the tests of acceptability see PARA 49 post.

9 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(1)(d). As to when persons are 'related', and as to the tests to determine whether or not the transaction value is nevertheless to be taken as the customs value of the imported goods, see PARA 50 post.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

48. Meaning of 'the price actually paid or payable'.

'The price actually paid or payable'¹ is the total payment made or to be made by the buyer to or for the benefit of the seller for the imported goods; and it includes all payments made or to be made as a condition of sale of the imported goods by the buyer to the seller, or by the buyer to a third party to satisfy an obligation of the seller². The payment need not necessarily take the form of a transfer of money; it may be made by way of letters of credit or negotiable instrument, and it may be made directly or indirectly³. If the price has not actually been paid at the material time for valuation for customs purposes, the price payable for settlement at that time is, as a general rule⁴, to be taken as the basis for customs value⁵.

Customs authorities⁶ need not determine the customs valuation of imported goods on the basis of the transaction value method if, in accordance with the prescribed procedure⁷, they are not satisfied, on the basis of reasonable doubts, that, for these purposes, the declared value represents the total amount paid or payable⁸.

1 'The definition of the transaction value . . . according to which that value corresponds to the 'price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export in the customs territory of the Community', takes no account of the place of establishment of the parties to the contract of sale. The price stipulated in a contract of sale concluded between persons established in the Community may, therefore, be regarded as the transaction value within the meaning of that provision': Case C-11/89 Unifert Handels GmbH v Hauptzollamt Münster [1990] ECR I-2275, ECJ; and see Case C-299/90 Hauptzollamt Karlsruhe v Gebr Hepp GmbH & Co KG [1991] ECR I-4301, [1993] 3 CMLR 328, ECJ (where a buying agent has acted in his own name but in fact represented the importer who bore the financial risks of the transaction in acting for his own account, the transaction to be taken into account in order to determine the customs value of the imported goods is that between the manufacturer or supplier and the importer; the price in that transaction constitutes the customs value; and the buying commission paid by the importer to the agent is not to be included in that value, even if the importer has described the buying agent as the seller and has declared the price of the goods as invoiced by that agent).

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 29(3)(a). 'The price actually paid or payable' refers to the price for the imported goods; and thus the flow of dividends or other payments from the buyer to the seller that do not relate to the imported goods are not part of the customs value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante.

The price may include the price of integral services supplied in the United Kingdom where the services are paid for together with goods supplied from overseas: see Case C-491/04 Dollond and Aitchison Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [2006] 2 CMLR 1334, ECJ.

Where goods declared for free circulation are part of a larger quantity of the same goods purchased in one transaction, the price actually paid or payable for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(1) (see PARA 47 ante) is that price represented by the proportion of the total price paid which the quantity declared for free circulation bears to the total quantity purchased: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 145(1), 1st para (art 145 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(6)). Apportioning the price actually paid or payable also applies in the case of the loss of part of a consignment or when the goods being valued have been damaged before entry into free circulation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 145(1), 2nd para (as so substituted). The price actually paid or payable should not be reduced proportionately where a discrepancy is found between the quantity of goods unloaded and the quantity purchased which does not exceed the weight discrepancy allowance agreed upon between the parties and does not lead to a reduction of the stipulated purchase price: Case C-11/89 Unifert Handels GmbH v Hauptzollamt Münster [1990] ECR I-2275, ECJ.

After release of the goods for free circulation, an adjustment made by the seller, to the benefit of the buyer, of the price actually paid or payable for the goods may be taken into consideration for the determination of the customs value in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29, if it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the customs authorities that: (1) the goods were defective at the moment referred to in art 67 (see PARA 85 post); (2) the seller made the adjustment in performance of a warranty obligation provided for in the contract of sale, concluded before release for free circulation of the goods; (3) the defective nature of the goods has not already been taken into account in the relevant sales contract: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 145(2) (as so substituted).

The price actually paid or payable for the goods, adjusted in accordance with art 145(2) (as substituted), may be taken into account only if that adjustment was made within a period of 12 months following the date of acceptance of the declaration for entry to free circulation of the goods: art 145(3) (as so substituted).

Article 145(2) (as substituted) is to be interpreted as meaning that, in the event of a deterioration of goods which reduces their customs value, no distinction is to be made according to whether it occurred before or after the risk passed to the buyer: Case C-59/92 Hauptzollamt Hamburg-St Annen v Ebbe Sönnichsen GmbH [1993] ECR 2193, ECJ.

Where the price actually paid or payable for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(1) (see PARA 47 ante) includes an amount in respect of any internal tax applicable within the country of origin or export in respect of the goods in question, that amount is not to be incorporated in the customs value if it can be demonstrated to the satisfaction of the customs authorities concerned that the goods in question have been or will be relieved from that tax for the benefit of the buyer: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 146.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(3)(a). Where, in applying art 29(1)(b) (see PARA 47 head (2) ante), it is established that the sale or price of imported goods is subject to a condition or consideration the value of which can be determined with respect to the goods being valued, that value is to be regarded as an indirect payment by the buyer to the seller, and part of the price actually paid or payable, provided that the condition or consideration does not relate either: (1) to an activity to which art 29(3)(b) (see PARA 49 post) applies; or (2) to a factor in respect of which an addition is to be made to the price actually paid or payable under the provisions of art 32 (see PARA 51 et seq post): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 148. An example of an indirect payment would be the settlement by the buyer, whether in whole or in part, of a debt owed by the seller: Annex 23, note. As to the payment for a warranty on the purchase of a car as a condition of sale see Daihatsu (UK) Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 10 (unreported). As to the interpretation of the phrase 'condition of sale' see BSC Footwear Supplies Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (8 June 1985, unreported) per Robert Walker J.

4 The Commission and the member states are to consult within the Customs Code Committee (see PARA 344 post) as to the application of this provision: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 144(2).

5 Ibid art 144(1).

6 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

7 Where the customs authorities have doubts, as described in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 181a(1) (as added) (see the text and note 8 infra), they are entitled to ask for additional information in accordance with art 178(4) (see PARA 74 post): art 181a(2) (added by EC Commission Regulation 3254/94 (OJ L346, 31.12.94, p 1) art 1(9)). If those doubts continue, the customs authorities must, before reaching a final decision, notify the person concerned, in writing if requested, of the grounds for their doubts and must provide him with a reasonable opportunity to respond; and they must then communicate in writing a final decision, and the grounds for it, to the person concerned: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 181a(2) (as so added).

8 Ibid art 181a(1) (added by EC Commission Regulation 3254/94 (OJ L346, 31.12.94, p 1) art 1(9)).

The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION/(ii) Transaction Value/A. IN GENERAL/49. Acceptability of transaction value.

49. Acceptability of transaction value.

In determining whether the transaction value is acceptable for customs purposes¹, the fact that the buyer and the seller are related² is not in itself sufficient grounds for regarding the transaction value as unacceptable: where necessary, the circumstances surrounding the sale must be examined; and the transaction value must be accepted, provided that the relationship did not influence the price³. If, however, in the light of information provided by the declarant or otherwise, the customs authorities have grounds for considering that the relationship influenced the price, they must communicate their grounds to the declarant and give him a reasonable opportunity to respond; and, if the declarant so requests, the communication of the grounds must be in writing⁴.

Activities, including marketing activities⁵, undertaken by the buyer on his own account⁶ are not considered as constituting an indirect payment to the seller, even though they might be regarded as being of benefit to the seller or might have been undertaken by agreement with the seller, and their cost is not to be added to the price actually paid or payable in determining the customs value of imported goods⁷.

1 le for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 29(1): see PARA 47 ante.

2 As to when persons are related see PARA 50 note 1 post.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(2)(a). Article 29(2)(a) and art 29(2)(b) (see PARA 50 post) provide different means of establishing the acceptability of a transaction value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 141(1), Annex 23, note. It is not intended, in consequence of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(2)(a), that there should be an examination of the circumstances in all cases where the buyer and the seller are related; such an examination will only be required where there are doubts about the acceptability of the price; but, if the customs authorities have no doubts about the acceptability of the price, the price ought to be accepted without requesting further information from the declarant: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. For example, the customs authorities might have previously examined the relationship, or might already have detailed information concerning the buyer and the seller, and might already be satisfied from such examination or information that the relationship did not influence the price: Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante. For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

Where, however, the customs authorities are unable to accept the transaction value without further inquiry, they should give the declarant an opportunity to supply such further detailed information as may be necessary to enable them to examine the circumstances surrounding the sale; and, in this context, the customs authorities should be prepared to examine relevant aspects of the transaction, including the way in which the buyer and seller organise their commercial relations and the way in which the price in question was arrived at, in order to determine whether the relationship influenced the price: Annex 23, note. Where it can be shown that the buyer and seller, although related under the provisions of art 143 (see PARA 50 note 1 post), buy from and sell to each other as if they were not related, this would demonstrate that the price had not been influenced by the relationship: Annex 23, note. For example: (1) if the price had been settled in a manner consistent with the normal pricing practices of the industry in question or with the way the seller settles prices for sales to buyers who are not related to him, this would demonstrate that the price had not been influenced by the relationship; (2) if it were shown that the price is adequate to ensure recovery of all costs plus a profit which is representative of the firm overall profit realised over a representative period of time, eg on an annual basis, in sales of goods of the same class or kind, this would demonstrate that the price had not been influenced: Annex 23, note.

5 For these purposes, the term 'marketing activities' means all activities relating to advertising and promoting the sale of the goods in question and all activities relating to warranties or guarantees in respect of them: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 149(1). Such activities undertaken by the buyer are to be regarded as having been undertaken on his own account even if they are performed in pursuance of an obligation on the buyer following an agreement with the seller: art 149(2).

6 le other than those for which an adjustment is provided in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32: see PARA 51 et seq post.

7 Ibid art 29(3)(b). See also note 3 supra.

50. Sales between related persons.

In a sale between related persons¹, the transaction value² must be accepted and the goods valued at the transaction value³ wherever the declarant⁴ is able to demonstrate that that value closely approximates⁵ to one of the following occurring at or about the same time:

- 172 (1) the transaction value in sales, between buyers and sellers who are not related in any particular case, of identical or similar goods for export to the Community⁶;
- 173 (2) the customs value of identical or similar goods, as determined⁷ by reference to unit price⁸; or
- 174 (3) the customs value of identical or similar goods, as determined⁹ by reference to computed value¹⁰.

In applying these tests, due account must be taken of demonstrated differences in commercial levels, quantity levels, certain other elements¹¹ and costs incurred by the seller in sales in which he and the buyer are not related and, where such costs are not incurred by the seller, in sales in which he and the buyer are related¹². These tests¹³ are to be used at the initiative of the declarant and only for comparison purposes¹⁴.

1 For the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') Title II Ch 3 (arts 28-36) (as amended), and for the purposes of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Title V (arts 141-181a) (as amended), persons are deemed to be related only if: (1) they are officers or directors of one another's businesses; (2) they are legally recognised partners in business; (3) they are employer and employee; (4) any person directly or indirectly owns, controls or holds 5% or more of the outstanding voting stock or shares of both of them; (5) one of them directly or indirectly controls the other; (6) both of them are directly or indirectly controlled by a third person; (7) together they directly or indirectly control a third person; or (8) they are members of the same family: art 143(1)(a)-(h) (amended by EC Commission Regulation 46/99 (OJ L10, 15.1.99, p 1) art 1(8)). Persons are deemed to be members of the same family only if they stand in any of the following relationships to one another: (a) husband and wife; (b) parent and child; (c) brother and sister, whether by whole or half blood; (d) grandparent and grandchild; (e) uncle or aunt and nephew or niece; (f) parent-in-law and son-in-law or daughter-in-law; or (g) brother-in-law and sister-in-law: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 143(1)(h).

Persons who are associated in business with one another, in that one is the sole agent, sole distributor or sole concessionaire, however described, of the other are deemed to be related only if they fall within the criteria of art 143(1) (as amended): art 143(2). One person is deemed to control another for the purposes of art 143(1)(e) (see head (5) supra) when the former is legally or operationally in a position to exercise restraint or direction over the latter: Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante. 'Comparison of the versions in the different languages of the Community of the text of EC Commission Regulation 1788/69 (OJ L230, 11.9.69, p 8) art 2 shows that these terms must not be interpreted in the strict technical sense which the terms 'agent' or 'concessionaire' may have in the law of one or other of the member states but may be interpreted widely and in a non-technical manner. The terms 'sole agent' and 'sole concessionaire' must not be understood as referring to two quite distinct and mutually exclusive legal constructions but as intended to include the different constructions which in the legal systems of the member states refer under the one or the other of these designations to contractual relationships belonging to the category thus indicated. Consequently a contract by which primarily territorial distribution rights are transferred in return for royalties and, in addition, the right, assigned free of charge, to manufacture the imported product, falls within the provisions of art 2(1) (a)': Case 82/76 Farbwerke Hoechst AG v Hauptzollamt Frankfurt-am-Main [1977] ECR 335 at 344, [1977] 1 CMLR 565 at 583, ECJ.

2 For the meaning of 'transaction value' see PARA 47 ante.

3 In accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(1): see PARA 47 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

5 A number of factors must be taken into consideration in determining whether one value 'closely approximates' to another value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. These factors include the nature of the imported goods, the nature of the industry itself, the season in which the goods are imported and whether the difference in values is commercially significant: Annex 23, note. Since these factors may vary from case to case, it would be impossible to apply a uniform standard, such as a fixed percentage, in each case: Annex 23, note. For example, a small difference in value in a case involving one type of goods could be unacceptable while a large difference in a case involving another type of goods might be acceptable in determining whether the transaction value closely approximates to the 'test' values set out in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(2)(b): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note.

6 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(2)(b)(i). As to the relationship between art 29(2)(a) (see PARA 49 ante) and art 29(2)(b) see PARA 49 note 3 ante. Article 29(2)(b) provides an opportunity for the declarant to demonstrate that the transaction value closely approximates to a 'test' value previously accepted by the customs authorities and which is, therefore, acceptable under the provisions of art 29: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. If a test under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29(2)(b) is met, it is unnecessary to examine the question of art 29(2)(a); and if the customs authorities already have sufficient information to be satisfied, without further detailed inquiries, that one of the tests provided in art 29(2)(b) has been met, there is no reason for them to require the declarant to demonstrate that the test can be met: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note.

EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 29 is without prejudice to the specific provisions regarding the determination of the value for customs purposes of goods released for free circulation after being assigned a different customs-approved treatment or use: art 36(1). For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 post. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq post.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION/(ii) Transaction Value/B. SUMS TO BE ADDED TO THE PRICE/51. In general.

B. SUMS TO BE ADDED TO THE PRICE

51. In general.

In determining the customs value by reference to the transaction value of the imported goods¹, certain sums² are to be added to the price actually paid or payable³ for the imported goods⁴.

Additions to the price actually paid or payable are to be made⁵ only on the basis of objective and quantifiable data⁶. Where such data do not exist with regard to such additions, the transaction value cannot be determined in accordance with the general rule⁷. No additions may be made to the price actually paid or payable in determining the customs value except those for which provision is⁸ duly made⁹.

Where a customs debt¹⁰ is incurred in respect of non-Community goods¹¹ and the customs value of those goods is based on a price actually paid or payable which includes the cost of warehousing or of preserving the goods while they remain in the free zone¹² or free warehouse¹³, those costs are not to be included in the customs value if they are shown separately from the price actually paid or payable for the goods¹⁴.

1 I.e. under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 29: see PARA 47 et seq ante.

2 I.e. the sums specified in ibid art 32(1)(a)-(e): see PARA 52 et seq post.

3 For the meaning of 'the price actually paid or payable' see PARA 48 ante.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1). Article 32 is without prejudice to the specific provisions regarding the determination of the value for customs purposes of goods released for free circulation after being assigned a different customs-approved treatment or use: art 36(1). For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 post. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq post.

5 I.e. under ibid art 32.

6 Ibid art 32(2). By way of derogation from the provisions of art 32(2), the customs authorities may, at the request of the person concerned, authorise certain charges which are not to be included in the customs value, in cases where the amounts relating to such elements are not shown separately at the time of incurrence of the customs debt, to be determined on the basis of appropriate and specific criteria: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 156a(1), 1st indent (art 156a added by EC Commission Regulation 1676/96 (OJ L218, 28.6.96, p 1) art 1(1)). In such cases, the declared customs value is not to be considered as provisional within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 254, 2nd indent (incomplete declarations for release for free circulation): art 156a, 2nd para (as so added). Such an authorisation is to be granted under the following conditions: (1) the carrying out of the procedures provided for by EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 259 (incomplete declarations for release for free circulation) would, in the circumstances, represent disproportionate administrative costs; (2) recourse to an application of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 30, 31 appears to be inappropriate in the particular circumstances; (3) there are valid reasons for considering that the amount of import duties to be charged in the period covered by the authorisation will not be lower than that which would be levied in the absence of an authorisation; and (4) competitive conditions amongst operators are not distorted: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 156a(2) (as so added).

7 Ibid Annex 23, note. As an illustration of this, a royalty is paid on the basis of the price in a sale in the importing country of a litre of a particular product that was imported by the kilogram and made up into a solution after importation: Annex 23, note. If the royalty is based partially on the imported goods and partially on other factors which have nothing to do with the imported goods, such as when the imported goods are mixed with domestic ingredients and are no longer separately identifiable, or when the royalty cannot be distinguished from special financial arrangements between the buyer and the seller, it would be inappropriate to attempt to make an addition for the royalty: Annex 23, note. If, however, the amount of this royalty is based only on the imported goods and can be readily quantified, an addition to the price actually paid or payable can be made: Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante; and as to royalties see PARA 54 post.

8 See note 5 supra.

9 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(3). It followed that the cost of buying export quota in a non-member state in order to be able to export goods to the Community could not be taken into account for the calculation of the valuation of goods for customs purposes: Case 7/83 Ospig Textilgesellschaft KG v Ahlers v Hauptzollamt Bremen-Ost [1984] ECR 609, [1985] 1 CMLR 469, ECJ; Case C-29/93 Ospig Textil-Gesellschaft W Ahlers GmbH & Co v Hauptzollamt Bremen-Freihafen [1994] ECR I-1963, ECJ. Cf Case C-219/88 Malt GmbH v Hauptzollamt Düsseldorf [1990] ECR I-1481 at 1500-1501, ECJ ('under the system of importation applicable to beef of high quality the certificate of authenticity and the goods are inseparably connected, the function of the certificate being to certify that the goods comply with the [relevant] specifications; since those specifications concern the state of the beef cattle, the certificate cannot be issued without examination of the cattle by the slaughterhouse which issues the certificate. Contrary to what happens under the system for quotas applicable to textiles, certificates of authenticity cannot lawfully be traded separate from the goods to which they relate. . . . It follows that the costs of the acquisition of certificates of authenticity must be regarded as an integral part of the 'price paid or payable for the goods' and, therefore, of the customs value'); Case C-340/93 Klaus Thierschmidt GmbH v Hauptzollamt Essen [1994] ECR I-3905 at 3925, ECJ ('although quotas allocated free of charge may have a commercial value for the seller, they entail no charges for him. Thus, amounts invoiced in respect of those quotas relate . . . to notional quota charges, which in reality constitute a disguised element of the price of the goods. If such notional amounts fell to be deducted from the price invoiced for the goods, the customs value would be artificially reduced . . .').

Where the goods have undergone, in a free zone or free warehouse, one of the usual forms of handling within the meaning of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 109(1) (see PARA 156 post), the nature of the goods, the customs value and the quantity to be taken into consideration in determining the amount of import duties, is, at the request of the declarant and provided that such handling was covered by an authorisation granted in accordance with art 109(3) (see PARA 156 post), to be those which would be taken into account in respect of those goods, at the time referred to in art 214 (see PARA 287 post), had they not undergone such handling: art 178(2). For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 post; and for the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

Derogations from art 178(2) may, however, be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 178(2). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. At the request of the declarant, in cases where art 178(2) applies, the information sheet INF8 may be issued where goods placed in a free zone or free warehouse, which have been submitted to the usual forms of handling, are declared for a customs approved treatment or use: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 818(2), 1st para (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 3254/94 (OJ L346, 31.12.94, p 1) art 1(28)).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION/(ii) Transaction Value/B. SUMS TO BE ADDED TO THE PRICE/52. Commissions etc.

52. Commissions etc.

In determining the customs value by reference to the transaction value of the imported goods¹, there must be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods, to the extent that they are incurred by the buyer, but are not included in the price actually paid or payable² for the goods (inter alia) the following items:

- 175 (1) commissions and brokerage, except buying commissions³;
- 176 (2) the cost of containers⁴ which are treated as being one, for customs purposes, with the goods in question; and
- 177 (3) the cost of packing, whether for labour or materials⁵.

1 Ie under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 29: see PARA 47 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'the price actually paid or payable' see PARA 48 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'buying commissions' means fees paid by an importer to his agent for the service of representing him in the purchase of the goods being valued: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(4). All sums paid by the buyer to the seller as consideration for the sales transaction are included in the price actually paid or payable and, therefore, in the transaction value; art 32(1)(a)(i) does in fact exclude buying commissions from the customs value; but art 32(4) provides that the term 'buying commission' means a fee paid by an importer to his agent for the service of representing him in the purchase of the goods being valued, and it does not include, therefore, an amount paid by the buyer to the seller if the amount is calculated in such a way as to permit the seller to cover his administrative costs and other general costs not directly related to the sale in question: see Case C-11/89 Unifert Handels GmbH v Hauptzollamt Münster [1990] ECR I-2275, ECJ. See also Case C-299/90 Hauptzollamt Karlsruhe v Gebr Hepp GmbH & Co KG [1991] ECR I-4301, [1993] 3 CMLR 328, ECJ. A buying commission is to be considered part of the transaction value, and therefore dutiable, if included in the customs value declared and not shown separately on the import declaration: Case C-379/00 Overland Footwear Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [2003] 1 CMLR 1247, ECJ.

4 Where containers are to be the subject of repeated importations, their cost is, at the request of the declarant, to be apportioned, as appropriate, in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 154. For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante; and for the meaning of 'generally accepted accounting principles' see PARA 46 note 8 ante.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(a). See also PARA 51 ante. Article 32 is without prejudice to the specific provisions regarding the determination of the value for customs purposes of goods released for free circulation after being assigned a different customs-approved treatment or use: art 36(1). For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 post. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq post.

Where packings are not purchased by the importer but merely placed at his disposal by the seller on condition that they are returned, and where the price payable by the importer does not include the price of the packings, their value is not included in the customs value since it is not part of the transaction value. The price actually paid or payable is, however, to be increased by the cost of packing, amongst other things, to the extent to which it has been incurred by the buyer but is not included in the price of the goods. In a case in which the cost of packing is represented by the payment of financial compensation for the loss of containers, to be determined and paid separately after the imported goods have been consumed, it is necessary to adjust ex post facto the value of those goods for customs purposes and to recover the outstanding amount of customs duty by the post-clearance recovery of import duties or export duties which have not been required of the person liable for payment on goods entered for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay such duties: Case 357/87 Firma Albert Schmid v Hauptzollamt Stuttgart-West [1988] ECR 6239, [1990] 1 CMLR 605, ECJ.

52 Commissions etc

NOTE 3--The expressions used in the definition of 'buying commission' should be ascribed their natural meaning as understood by an English court; the test is one of substance rather than form and the relationship has to be categorised by reference to objective criteria: Umbro International Ltd v Revenue and Customs Comrs [2009] EWHC 438 (Ch), [2009] STC 1345.

53. Goods and services.

In determining the customs value by reference to the transaction value of the imported goods¹, there must be added to the price actually paid or payable² (inter alia) the value, apportioned as appropriate, of the following goods and services, where supplied directly or indirectly by the buyer free of charge or at reduced cost for use in connection with the production and sale for export of the imported goods, and to the extent that that value has not been included in the price actually paid or payable:

- 178 (1) materials, components, parts and similar items incorporated in the imported goods³;
- 179 (2) tools, dies, moulds and similar items used in the production of the imported goods⁴;
- 180 (3) materials consumed in the production of the imported goods⁵; and
- 181 (4) engineering, development, artwork, design work, and plans and sketches undertaken elsewhere than in the Community and necessary for the production of the imported goods⁶.

1 Ie under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 29: see PARA 47 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'the price actually paid or payable' see PARA 48 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(b)(i); and see PARA 51 ante. See also Case C-116/89 BayWa AG v Hauptzollamt Weiden [1991] ECR I-1095, ECJ (there is no general principle which excludes from customs valuation services provided and goods produced within the customs territory of the Community).

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(b)(ii). Article 32 is without prejudice to the specific provisions regarding the determination of the value for customs purposes of goods released for free circulation after being assigned a different customs-approved treatment or use: art 36(1). For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 post. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq post.

There are two factors involved in the apportionment of the elements specified in art 32(1)(b)(ii) to the imported goods, ie the value of the element itself and the way in which that value is to be apportioned to the imported goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. The apportionment of these elements should be made in reasonable manner appropriate to the circumstances and in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles: Annex 23, note. As far as the value of the element is concerned, if the buyer acquires the element from a seller not related to him at a given cost, the value of the element is that cost: Annex 23, note. If the element was produced by the buyer or by a person related to him, its value would be the cost of producing it: Annex 23, note. If the element had been previously used by the buyer, regardless of whether it had been acquired or produced by him, the original cost of acquisition or production would have to be adjusted downwards to reflect its use in order to arrive at the value of the element: Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante. For the meaning of 'generally accepted accounting principles' see PARA 46 note 8 ante

Once a value has been determined for the element, it is necessary to apportion that value to the imported goods and various possibilities exist: Annex 23, note. For example: (1) the value might be apportioned to the first shipment, if the buyer wished to pay duty on the entire value at one time; or (2) the buyer might request that the value be apportioned over the number of units produced up to the time of the first shipment; or (3) he might request that the value be apportioned over the entire anticipated production where contracts or firm commitments exist for that production: Annex 23, note. The method of apportionment used will depend upon the documentation provided by the buyer, eg where a buyer provides the producer with a mould to be used in the production of the imported goods and contracts with him to buy 10,000 units and, by the time of arrival of the first shipment of 1,000 units, the producer has already produced 4,000 units, the buyer may request the customs authorities to apportion the value of the mould over 1,000, 4,000 or 10,000 units: Annex 23, note.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(b)(iii).

6 Ibid art 32(1)(b)(iv). For these purposes, the cost of research and preliminary design sketches is not to be included in the customs value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 155. Additions for the elements specified in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(b)(iv) should be based on objective and quantifiable data: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. In order to minimise the burden for both the declarant and customs authorities in determining the values to be added, data readily available in the buyer's commercial record system should be used in so far as possible: Annex 23, note. For those elements supplied by the buyer which were purchased or leased by the buyer, the addition would be the cost of the purchase or the lease; and no addition should be made for those elements available in the public domain, other than the cost of obtaining copies of them: Annex 23, note.

The ease with which it may be possible to calculate the values to be added will depend on a particular firm's structure and management practice, as well as its accounting methods: Annex 23, note. For example: (1) it is possible that a firm which imports a variety of products from several countries maintains the records of its design centre outside the country of importation in such a way as to show accurately the costs attributable to a given product, and in such cases a direct adjustment may appropriately be made under the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32; and (2) a firm may carry the cost of the design centre outside the country of importation as a general overhead expense without allocation to specific products, and in this instance an appropriate adjustment could be made under the provisions of art 32 with respect to the imported goods by apportioning total design centre costs over total production benefiting from the design centre and adding such apportioned cost on a unit basis to imports: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. Variations in such circumstances would require different factors to be considered in determining the proper method of allocation; and, in cases where the production of the element in question involves a number of countries over a period of time, the adjustment should be limited to the value actually added to that element outside the Community: Annex 23, note.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION/(ii) Transaction Value/B. SUMS TO BE ADDED TO THE PRICE/54. Royalties and licence fees.

54. Royalties and licence fees.

In determining the customs value by reference to the transaction value of the imported goods¹, there must be added to the price actually paid or payable² for the goods (inter alia) royalties and licence fees³ related to the goods being valued⁴ that the buyer must pay, either directly or indirectly, as a condition of sale of the goods being valued, to the extent that such royalties and fees are not included in the price actually paid or payable⁵.

Notwithstanding the above provisions, charges for the right to reproduce the imported goods in the Community may not be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods in determining the customs value; and payments made by the buyer for the right to distribute or resell the imported goods may not be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods, if those payments are not a condition of the sale for export to the Community of the goods⁶. Moreover⁷, when the customs value of imported goods is determined as the transaction value of the imported goods⁸, a royalty or licence fee must be added to the price actually paid or payable only when this payment is related to the goods being valued, and constitutes a condition of sale of those goods⁹.

A royalty or licence fee in respect of the right to use a trade mark is only to be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods where:

- 182 (1) the royalty or licence fee refers to goods which are resold in the same state or which are subject only to minor processing after importation;
- 183 (2) the goods are marketed under the trade mark, affixed before or after importation, for which the royalty or licence fee is paid; and
- 184 (3) the buyer is not free to obtain such goods from other suppliers unrelated to the seller¹⁰.

1 Ie under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 29: see PARA 47 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'the price actually paid or payable' see PARA 48 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'royalties and licence fees' is to be taken to mean in particular payment for the use of rights relating: (1) to the manufacture of imported goods (in particular, patents, designs, models and manufacturing know-how); or (2) to the sale for exportation of imported goods (in particular, trade marks and registered designs); or (3) to the use or resale of imported goods (in particular, copyright and manufacturing processes inseparably embodied in the imported goods): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 157(1). The royalties and licence fees referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(c) may include, among other things, payments in respect of patents, trade marks and copyrights: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante.

In applying EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(c), the country of residence of the recipient of the payment of the royalty or licence fee is not a material consideration: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 162.

4 Where the method of calculation of the amount of a royalty or licence fee derives from the price of the imported goods, it may be assumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary that the payment of that royalty or licence fee is related to the goods to be valued: ibid art 161, 1st para. Where, however, the amount of a royalty or licence fee is calculated regardless of the price of the imported goods, the payment of that royalty or licence fee may nevertheless be related to the goods to be valued: art 161, 2nd para.

When the imported goods are only an ingredient or component of goods manufactured in the Community, an adjustment to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods may only be made when the royalty or licence fee relates to those goods: art 158(1). Where goods are imported in an unassembled state or only have to undergo minor processing before resale, such as diluting or packing, this is not to prevent a royalty or licence fee from being considered related to the imported goods: art 158(2). If royalties or licence fees relate partly to the imported goods and partly to other ingredients or component parts added to the goods after their importation, or to post-importation activities or services, an appropriate apportionment may be made only on the basis of objective and quantifiable data, in accordance with Annex 23, note (see PARA 51 text and note 7 ante): art 158(3).

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(c). See also PARA 51 ante. Article 32 is without prejudice to the specific provisions regarding the determination of the value for customs purposes of goods released for free circulation after being assigned a different customs-approved treatment or use: art 36(1). For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 post. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq post.

6 Ibid art 32(5).

7 Ie without prejudice to ibid art 32(5): see the text and note 6 supra.

8 Ie under ibid art 29: see PARA 47 ante.

9 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 157(2). When the buyer pays royalties or licence fees to a third party, the conditions provided for in art 157(2) are not to be considered as met unless the seller or a person related to him requires the buyer to make that payment: art 160. As to when persons are related see PARA 50 note 1 ante.

C. AMOUNTS TO BE EXCLUDED FROM CUSTOMS VALUE

57. In general.

Provided that they are shown separately from the price actually paid or payable¹, certain charges² are not to be included³ in the customs value⁴.

Where a customs debt⁵ is incurred in respect of import goods and the customs value of such goods is based on a price actually paid or payable which includes the cost of warehousing and of preserving goods while they remain in the warehouse, those costs need not be included in the customs value if they are shown separately from the price actually paid or payable for the goods⁶.

1 For the meaning of 'the price actually paid or payable' see PARA 48 ante.

2 I.e. the charges mentioned in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 33(1)(a)-(f): see PARA 58 et seq post.

3 I.e. included in the customs value for the purposes mentioned in ibid art 28: see PARA 46 ante. By way of derogation from the provisions of art 33, the customs authorities may, at the request of the person concerned, authorise certain charges which are not to be included in the customs value, in cases where the amounts relating to such elements are not shown separately at the time of incurrence of the customs debt, to be determined on the basis of appropriate and specific criteria: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 156a(1), 1st indent (added by EC Commission Regulation 1676/96 (OJ L218, 28.6.96, p 1) art 1(1)). In such cases, the declared customs value is not to be considered as provisional within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 254, 2nd indent (incomplete declarations for release for free circulation): art 156a, 2nd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 1676/96 (OJ L218, 28.6.96, p 1) art 1(1)). Such an authorisation is to be granted under the following conditions: (1) the carrying out of the procedures provided for by EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 259 (incomplete declarations for release for free circulation) would, in the circumstances, represent disproportionate administrative costs; (2) recourse to an application of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 30, 31 appears to be inappropriate in the particular circumstances; (3) there are valid reasons for considering that the amount of import duties to be charged in the period covered by the authorisation will not be lower than that which would be levied in the absence of an authorisation; and (4) competitive conditions amongst operators are not distorted: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 156a(2) (added by EC Commission Regulation 1676/96 (OJ L218, 28.6.96, p 1) art 1(1)).

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

58. Charges for transport of goods.

Provided that they are shown separately from the price actually paid or payable¹, charges for the transport² of goods after their arrival at the place of introduction³ into the customs territory of the Community are not to be included in the customs value⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'the price actually paid or payable' see PARA 48 ante.

2 In applying EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 32(1)(e) (see PARA 56 ante) and art 33(1)(a) (see the text and note 4 infra), where goods are carried by the same mode of transport to a point beyond the place of introduction into the customs territory of the Community, transport costs are to be assessed in proportion to the distance covered outside and inside the customs territory of the Community, unless evidence is produced to the customs authorities to show the costs that would have been incurred under a general compulsory schedule of freight rates for the carriage of the goods to the place of introduction into the customs territory of the Community: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 164(a). The proportional assessment of costs according to the distance covered outside and inside the Community required when the goods are carried 'by the same means of transport' is precluded in cases where several means of transport are used involving the application of different schedules of freight rates. Since container transport may be effected in different ways and the cost varies depending on the way chosen, it cannot be regarded as a 'means of transport' for these purposes: Case C-17/89 Hauptzollamt Frankfurt am Main-Ost v Deutsche Olivetti GmbH [1990] ECR I-2301, [1992] 2 CMLR 859, ECJ. For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

Where goods are invoiced at a uniform free domicile price (see Case 84/79 Richard Meyer-Uetze KG v Hauptzollamt Bad Reichenhall [1980] ECR 291, [1981] 1 CMLR 434, ECJ) which corresponds to the price at the place of introduction, transport costs within the Community may not be deducted from that price, but such a deduction is allowed if evidence is produced to the customs authorities that the free-frontier price would be lower than the uniform free domicile price: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 164(b). Where transport is free or provided by the buyer, transport costs to the place of introduction, calculated in accordance with the schedule of freight rates normally applied for the same modes of transport, must be included in the customs value: art 164(c).

In the case of postal charges, all such charges levied up to the place of destination in respect of goods sent by post must be included in the customs value of these goods, with the exception of any supplementary postal charge levied in the country of importation (art 165(1)); but no adjustment to the declared value is to be made in respect of such charges in determining the value of consignments of a non-commercial nature (art 165(2)). However, the provisions of art 165(1), (2) do not apply to goods carried by the express postal services known as EMS-Datapost (or, in Denmark, EMS-Jetpost; in Germany, EMS-Kurierpostsendungen; and, in Italy, CAI-Post): art 165(3).

The air transport costs to be included in the customs value of goods are determined by applying the rules and percentages shown in Annex 25 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(29), Annex III): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 166.

3 For these purposes, and for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(e) (see PARA 56 ante), the place of introduction into the customs territory of the Community is: (1) for goods carried by sea, the port of unloading, or the port of transhipment, subject to transhipment being certified by the customs authorities of that port; (2) for goods carried by sea and then, without transhipment, by inland waterway, the first port where unloading can take place either at the mouth of the river or canal or further inland, subject to proof being furnished to the customs office that the freight to the port of unloading is higher than that to the first port; (3) for goods carried by rail, inland waterway, or road, the place where the first customs office is situated; (4) for goods carried by other means, the place where the land frontier of the customs territory of the Community is crossed: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 163(1).

The customs value of goods introduced into the customs territory of the Community and then carried to a destination in another part of that territory through the territories of Belarus, Russia, Switzerland, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia or the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia is to be determined by reference to the first place of introduction into the customs territory of the Community, provided that goods are carried direct through the territories of those countries by a usual route across such territory to the place of destination: art 163(2) (substituted by the Fifth Act of Accession (OJ L236, 23.9.2003, p 33; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1792 (OJ L362, 20.12.2006, p 1)). This provision also refers to the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia; however, in 2003 the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia became the State Union of Serbia and Montenegro, and in 2006 Montenegro declared its independence, so that Serbia remains as the continuing international personality of the former union.

The customs value of goods introduced into the customs territory of the Community and then carried by sea to a destination in another part of that territory is determined by reference to the first place of introduction into the customs territory of the Community, provided that the goods are carried direct by a usual route to the place of destination: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 163(3).

Article 163(2) (as substituted) and art 163(3) also apply where the goods have been unloaded, transhipped or temporarily immobilised in the territories of Belarus, Russia, Switzerland, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia or the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia for reasons related solely to their transport: art 163(4) (substituted by the Fifth Act of Accession; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1792 (OJ L362, 20.12.2006, p 1)). This provision also refers to the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia: see above.

For goods introduced into the customs territory of the Community and carried directly from one of the French overseas departments to another part of the customs territory of the Community or vice versa, the place of introduction to be taken into consideration is the place referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 163(1) and art 163(2) (as substituted), situated in that part of the customs territory of the Community from which the goods came, if: (a) they were unloaded or transhipped there; and (b) this was certified by the customs authorities: art 163(5). If the conditions specified in art 163(2) (as substituted) and art 163(3), (5) are not fulfilled, the place of introduction to be taken into consideration is the place specified in art 163(1) situated in that part of the customs territory of the Community to which the goods are consigned: art 163(6).

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 33(1)(a); and see PARA 57 ante. See also Case 290/84 Hauptzollamt Schweinfurt v Mainfrucht Obstverwertung GmbH [1985] ECR 3909, [1987] 1 CMLR 684, ECJ (where an importer has paid a supplier, in addition to the price of the goods, an amount in respect of 'intra-Community transport costs' on the basis of a separate invoice, the transaction value for customs purposes includes only the first of those amounts; but the competent customs authorities may, if the circumstances warrant it, check the invoice relating to the costs in question in order to verify that they are not fictitious).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

59. Charges for construction etc of goods.

Provided that they are shown separately from the price actually paid or payable¹, charges for construction, erection, assembly, maintenance or technical assistance, undertaken after importation of imported goods such as industrial plant, machinery or equipment, are not to be included in the customs value².

60. Charges for interest.

Provided that they are shown separately from the price actually paid or payable¹, charges for interest under a financing arrangement entered into by the buyer and relating to the purchase of imported goods, irrespective of whether the finance is provided by the seller or another person, and provided that the financing arrangement has been made in writing and, where required, that the buyer can demonstrate that:

- 187 (1) such goods are actually sold at the price declared as the price actually paid or payable; and Accordingly, in the absence of any provision to the contrary, it must be considered that, where a seller of goods allows the buyer time to pay, that constitutes a 'financing arrangement' as soon as the buyer accepts the deferred payment. In that connection, it is not necessary for the deferred payment to be the subject of a specific agreement between the seller and the buyer, separate from the agreement relating to the sale of the imported goods. The provision requires the charges for interest under a financing arrangement to be distinguished from the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods. Where charges for interest payable as consideration for the deferred payment agreed by the seller are a separate item on the invoice sent to the buyer, it must be considered that, where there is no objection on the part of the buyer, he has in effect agreed to the charges for interest relating to the deferred payment'). See also Case C-93/96 Indústria e Comércio Têxtil SA v Fazenda Pública [1997] ECR I-2881, ECJ.

It is inadequate, as proof of the existence of a price different from the price for forward payment, to show that the price for forward payment payable includes credit charges. What must be proved is the existence of another price of a definite amount which the buyer or other buyers in similar circumstances are entitled to settle in the event of payment before the agreed date. It is for the national court to judge in every case of this kind whether or not proof has been furnished of the existence of a different price: Case 8/73 Hauptzollamt Bremerhaven v Massey-Ferguson GmbH [1973] ECR 897, ECJ.

Certificates of authenticity paid, as an integral part of the price payable for the goods, to an Argentinean slaughterhouse which issued the certificate, could not be regarded as 'taxes payable in the Community' which by their nature are collected by the competent authorities of the member states, despite the appellant's contention that they represented the substantial equivalent of the levies which the Community waived under the relevant tariff quota: Case 219/88 Malt GmbH v Hauptzollamt Düsseldorf [1990] ECR I-1481, ECJ.

64. Alternative methods of determining customs value.

Where the customs value cannot be determined as the transaction value of the imported goods under the general rule¹, it is to be determined by proceeding sequentially through the methods set out in heads (1) to (4) below to the first head under which that value can be determined, subject to the proviso that the order of application of heads (3) and (4) below is to be reversed if the declarant² so requests³. It is only when the customs value cannot be determined under a particular head that the provisions of the next head in the sequence⁴ can be applied⁵.

The customs value, as so determined, is:

- 189 (1) the transaction value of identical goods sold for export to the Community and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued⁶;
- 190 (2) the transaction value of similar goods sold for export to the Community and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued⁷;
- 191 (3) the value based on the unit price at which the imported goods or identical or similar imported goods are sold within the Community in the greatest aggregate quantity to persons not related to the sellers⁸;
- 192 (4) the computed value, consisting of the sum of:⁵
 - 8. (a) the cost or value of materials and fabrication or other processing employed in producing the imported goods;
 - 9. (b) an amount for profit and general expenses equal to that usually reflected in sales of goods of the same class or kind as the goods being valued which are made by producers in the country of exportation for export to the Community; and
 - 10. (c) the cost or value⁹ of transport and insurance of the imported goods and loading and handling charges associated with the transport of the imported goods to the place of introduction into the customs territory of the Community¹⁰.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION/(iii) Alternative Methods of Valuation/65. Value determined by reference to the customs value of identical goods.

65. Value determined by reference to the customs value of identical goods.

Where the customs value cannot be determined as the transaction value of the imported goods¹, it must be determined, if possible, as the transaction value of identical goods, sold for export to the Community and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued².

For these purposes, 'identical goods' means goods produced³ in the same country which are the same in all respects, including physical characteristics, quality and reputation; but minor differences in appearance do not preclude goods otherwise conforming to the definition from being regarded as identical⁴. 'Identical goods' does not, however, include goods which incorporate or reflect engineering, development, artwork, design work, or plans and sketches, for which no adjustment to the customs value of the goods has been made⁵ because such elements were undertaken in the Community⁶.

In applying this method of valuation⁷, the customs value is to be determined by reference to the transaction value of identical goods⁸ in a sale at the same commercial level and in substantially the same quantity as the goods being valued⁹. Where no such sale is found, the transaction value of identical goods sold at a different commercial level and/or¹⁰ in different quantities, adjusted to take account of differences attributable to commercial level and/or to quantity, is to be used, provided that such adjustments can be made on the basis of demonstrated evidence which clearly establishes the reasonableness and accuracy of the adjustment, whether the adjustment leads to an increase or a decrease in the value¹¹. Where certain costs and charges¹² are included in the transaction value, an adjustment must be made to take account of significant differences in such costs and charges between the imported goods and the identical goods in question arising from differences in distances and modes of transport¹³.

If, in applying the above provisions¹⁴, more than one transaction value of identical goods is found, the lowest such value is to be used to determine the customs value of the imported goods¹⁵. In applying the above provisions, a transaction value for goods produced by a different person is to be taken into account only when no transaction value can be found¹⁶ for identical goods produced by the same person as the goods being valued¹⁷.

3 For these purposes, 'produced goods' includes goods which are grown, manufactured or mined: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 142(1)(b).

7 Ie under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(a): see the text and notes 1-2 supra.

8 For these purposes, 'the transaction value of identical imported goods' means a customs value previously determined under ibid art 29, adjusted as provided for in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 150(1), (2): art 150(5) (corrected by the corrigendum published in OJ L268, 19.10.94, p 32).

10 The expression 'and/or' allows the flexibility to use the sales and make the necessary adjustments in any one of the three conditions described in ibid Annex 23, note (see note 11 heads (1)-(3) infra): Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante.

11 Ibid art 150(1). In applying EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(a), the customs authorities should, where possible, use a sale of identical goods at the same commercial level and in substantially the same quantity as the goods being valued: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. If no such sale can be found, a sale of identical goods that takes place under any one of the following three conditions may be used: (1) a sale at the same commercial level but in a different quantity; (2) a sale at a different commercial level but in substantially the same quantity; or (3) a sale at a different commercial level and in a different quantity: Annex 23, note. For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

Having found a sale under any one of these three conditions, adjustments will then be made, as the case may be, for: (a) quantity factors only; (b) commercial level factors only; or (c) both commercial level and quantity factors: Annex 23, note. It is a condition for adjustment because of different commercial levels or different quantities that such adjustment, whether it leads to an increase or a decrease in the value, may be made only on the basis of demonstrated evidence that clearly establishes the reasonableness and accuracy of the adjustment, eg valid price lists containing prices referring to different levels or different quantities: Annex 23, note. As an example of this, if the imported goods being valued consist of a shipment of ten units and the only identical imported goods for which a transaction value exists involved a sale of 500 units, and it is recognised that the seller grants quantity discounts, the required adjustment may be accomplished by resorting to the seller's price list and using that price applicable to a sale of ten units: Annex 23, note. This does not require that a sale had to have been made in quantities of ten as long as the price list has been established as being bona fide through sales at other quantities: Annex 23, note. In the absence of such an objective measure, the determination of a customs value under the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(a) (see the text and notes 1-2 supra) is inappropriate: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. The provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 33(1)(c) (see PARA 60 ante) are to apply mutatis mutandis where the customs value is to be determined by applying a method other than the transaction value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 156.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

66. Value determined by reference to the customs value of similar goods.

Where the customs value cannot be determined as the transaction value of the imported goods¹, or as the transaction value of identical goods, sold for export to the Community and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued², it must be determined, if possible, as the transaction value of similar goods sold for export to the Community and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued³.

For these purposes, 'similar goods' means goods produced⁴ in the same country which, although not alike in all respects, have like characteristics and like component materials which enable them to perform the same functions and to be commercially interchangeable; and, in determining whether goods are similar, the quality of the goods, their reputation and the existence of a trademark are among the factors to be considered⁵. 'Similar goods' does not, however, include goods which incorporate or reflect engineering, development, artwork, design work, or plans and sketches, but for which no adjustment to the customs value of the goods has been made⁶ in respect of those elements because they were undertaken in the Community⁷.

In applying this method of valuation⁸, the customs value is to be determined by reference to the transaction value of similar goods⁹ in a sale at the same commercial level and in substantially the same quantity as the goods being valued¹⁰. Where no such sale is found, the transaction value of similar goods sold at a different commercial level and/or¹¹ in different quantities, adjusted to take account of differences attributable to commercial level and/or quantity, is to be used, provided that such adjustments can be made on the basis of demonstrated evidence which clearly establishes the reasonableness and accuracy of the adjustment, whether the adjustment leads to an increase or a decrease in the value¹². Where certain costs and charges¹³ are included in the transaction value, an adjustment must be made to take account of significant differences in such costs and charges between the imported goods and the similar goods in question arising from differences in distances and modes of transport¹⁴.

If, in applying the above provisions¹⁵, more than one transaction value of similar goods is found, the lowest such value is to be used to determine the customs value of the imported goods¹⁶. In applying the above provisions, a transaction value for goods produced by a different person is to be taken into account only when no transaction value can be found¹⁷ for similar goods produced by the same person as the goods being valued¹⁸.

8 le under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(b): see the text and notes 1-3 supra.

9 For these purposes, 'the transaction value of similar goods' means a customs value previously determined under ibid art 29, adjusted as provided for by art 151(1), (2): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 151(5) (corrected by the corrigendum published in OJ L268, 19.10.94, p 32).

11 The expression 'and/or' allows the flexibility to use the sales and make the necessary adjustments in any one of the three conditions described in ibid Annex 23, note (see note 12 heads (1)-(3) infra): Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante.

12 Ibid art 151(1). In applying EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(b), the customs authorities should, where possible, use a sale of similar goods at the same commercial level and in substantially the same quantity as the goods being valued: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. If no such sale can be found, a sale of similar goods that takes place under any one of the following three conditions may be used: (1) a sale at the same commercial level but in a different quantity; (2) a sale at a different commercial level but in substantially the same quantity; or (3) a sale at a different commercial level and in a different quantity: Annex 23, note. For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

Having found a sale under any one of these three conditions, adjustments will then be made, as the case may be, for: (a) quantity factors only; (b) commercial level factors only; or (c) both commercial level and quantity factors: Annex 23, note. It is a condition for adjustment because of different commercial levels or different quantities that such adjustment, whether it leads to an increase or a decrease in the value, may be made only on the basis of demonstrated evidence that clearly establishes the reasonableness and accuracy of the adjustment, eg valid price lists containing prices referring to different levels or different quantities: Annex 23, note. As an example of this, if the imported goods being valued consist of a shipment of ten units and the only identical imported goods for which a transaction value exists involved a sale of 500 units, and it is recognised that the seller grants quantity discounts, the required adjustment may be accomplished by resorting to the seller's price list and using that price applicable to a sale of ten units: Annex 23, note. This does not require that a sale had to have been made in quantities of ten as long as the price list has been established as being bona fide through sales at other quantities: Annex 23, note. In the absence of such an objective measure, the determination of a customs value under the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(b) (see the text and notes 1-3 supra) is inappropriate: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. The provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 33(1)(c) (see PARA 60 ante) are to apply mutatis mutandis where the customs value is to be determined by applying a method other than the transaction value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 156.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

67. Value determined by reference to unit price.

Where the customs value cannot be determined as the transaction value of the imported goods¹, or as the transaction of identical goods² or of similar goods³, sold for export to the Community and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued, it must be determined, if possible, as the value based on the unit price at which the imported goods, or identical or similar imported goods, are sold within the Community in the greatest aggregate quantities to persons not related to the sellers⁴ (the 'deductive method').

If the imported goods or identical⁵ or similar⁶ imported goods are sold in the Community in the condition as imported, the customs value of imported goods, when determined by this method⁷, must be based on the unit price at which the imported goods or identical or similar imported goods are so sold in the greatest aggregate quantity⁸, at or about the time of the importation of the goods being valued, to persons who are not related⁹ to the persons from whom they buy such goods, subject to deductions for the following:

- 193 (1) either the commissions¹⁰ usually paid or agreed to be paid or the additions usually made for profit and general expenses¹¹, including the direct and indirect costs of marketing the goods in question, in connection with sales in the Community of imported goods of the same class or kind;
- 194 (2) the usual costs of transport and insurance and associated costs incurred within the Community;
- 195 (3) the import duties¹² and other charges payable in the Community by reason of the importation or sale of the goods¹³.

If neither the imported goods nor identical nor similar imported goods are sold at or about the time of importation of the goods being valued, the customs value of imported goods¹⁴ is to be based¹⁵ on the unit price at which the imported goods or identical or similar imported goods are sold in the Community in the condition as imported at the earliest date¹⁶ after the importation of the goods being valued but before the expiration of 90 days after such importation¹⁷.

If neither the imported goods nor identical nor similar imported goods are sold in the Community in the condition as imported, then, if the importer so requests, the customs value is to be based on the unit price at which the imported goods, after further processing, are sold in the greatest aggregate quantity to persons in the Community who are not related to the persons from whom they buy such goods, due allowance being made for the value added by such processing and the deductions provided for¹⁸ under the above provisions¹⁹.

Any further conditions and rules for the application of art 30(2) are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 30(3). 8 For these purposes, the unit price at which imported goods are sold in the greatest aggregate quantity is the price at which the greatest number of units is sold in sales to persons who are not related to the persons from whom they buy such goods at the first commercial level after importation at which such sales take place: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 152(3). For examples of the application of art 152(3) where: (1) goods are sold from a price list which grants favourable unit prices for purchases made in larger quantities; (2) two sales occur; and (3) various quantities are sold at various prices, see Annex 23, note. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante.

9 As to the circumstances in which persons are deemed to be related see PARA 50 note 1 ante.

10 In determining either the commissions or the usual profits and general expenses under EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 152(1)(a)(i), the question whether certain goods are of the same class or kind as other goods must be determined on a case-by-case basis by reference to the circumstances involved: Annex 23, note. Sales in the country of importation of the narrowest group or range of imported goods of the same class or kind, which includes the goods being valued, for which the necessary information can be provided, should, therefore, be examined: Annex 23, note. For these purposes, 'goods of the same class or kind' includes goods imported from the same country as the goods being valued as well as goods imported from other countries: Annex 23, note.

11 The words 'profit and general expenses' in ibid art 152(1)(a)(i) should be taken as a whole and the figure for the purposes of this deduction should be determined on the basis of information supplied by the declarant unless his figures are inconsistent with those obtaining in sales in the country of importation of imported goods of the same class or kind: Annex 23, note. Where the declarant's figures are inconsistent with such figures, the amount for profit and general expenses may be based upon relevant information other than that supplied by the declarant: Annex 23, note. The provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 33(1)(c) (see PARA 60 ante) are to apply mutatis mutandis where the customs value is to be determined by applying a method other than the transaction value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 156.

12 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 post.

13 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 152(1)(a). Any sale in the Community to a person who supplies directly or indirectly free of charge or at reduced cost for use in connection with the production and sale for export of the imported goods any of the elements specified in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(b) (see PARA 53 ante) may not be taken into account in establishing the unit price for the purposes of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 152: art 152(4). As to simplified valuation procedures for perishable goods see PARA 71 post.

15 Ie subject otherwise to the provisions of ibid art 152(1)(a): see the text and notes 5-13 supra.

16 For these purposes, the 'earliest date' is the date by which sales of the imported goods or of identical or similar imported goods are made in sufficient quantity to establish the unit price: ibid art 152(5).

18 Ie in ibid art 152(1)(a): see heads (1)-(3) in the text.

19 Ibid art 152(2). Where the method of valuation provided by art 152 (as amended) is used, deductions made for the value added by further processing is to be based on objective and quantifiable data relating to the cost of such work: Annex 23, note. Accepted industry formulae, recipes, methods of construction, and other industry practices would form the basis of the calculations: Annex 23, note.

The method of valuation prescribed by art 152 (as amended) would normally not be applicable when, as a result of the further processing, the imported goods lose their identity: Annex 23, note. There can, however, be instances where, although the identity of the imported goods was lost, the value added by the processing can be determined accurately without unreasonable difficulty; but there can also be instances where the imported goods maintained their identity but formed such a minor element in the goods sold in the country of importation that the use of this valuation method would be unjustified: Annex 23, note. In view of the above, each situation of this type must be considered on a case-by-case basis: Annex 23, note.

UPDATE20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION/(iii) Alternative Methods of Valuation/68. Customs value determined on a computed value basis.

68. Customs value determined on a computed value basis.

Where the customs value cannot be determined as the transaction value of the imported goods¹, or as the transaction of identical goods² or of similar goods³, sold for export to the Community and exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued, nor as a value based on the unit price at which the imported goods, or identical or similar imported goods, are sold within the Community in the greatest aggregate quantities to persons not related to the sellers⁴, it must be determined, if possible, as a computed value⁵.

The computed value is to consist of the sum of:

11. (1) the cost or value of materials and fabrication⁶ or other processing employed in producing the imported goods;
12. (2) an amount for profit and general expenses⁷ equal to that usually reflected in sales of goods of the same class or kind⁸ as the goods being valued which are made by producers in the country of exportation for export to the Community; and
13. (3) the cost or value⁹ of transport and insurance of the imported goods and loading and handling charges associated with the transport of the imported goods to the place of introduction into the customs territory of the Community¹⁰.

As a general rule, customs value arrived at by the computed value method is determined on the basis of information readily available in the Community. In order to determine a computed value, it may, however, be necessary to examine the cost of producing the goods being valued and other information which has to be obtained from outside the Community. Furthermore, in most cases the producer of the goods will be outside the jurisdiction of the authorities of the member states. The use of the computed value method is, therefore, generally limited to those cases where the buyer and seller are related, and the producer is prepared to supply to the authorities of the country of importation the necessary costings and to provide facilities for any subsequent verification which may be necessary¹¹.

3 Ie under ibid art 30(2)(b): see PARA 66 ante.

4 Ie under ibid art 30(2)(c): see PARA 67 ante.

5 Ibid art 30(1), (2)(d). See also PARA 64 ante. Any further conditions and rules for the application of art 30(2) are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 30(3). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

6 The cost or value of materials and fabrication referred to in ibid art 30(2)(d), 1st indent (see head (1) in the text) includes the cost of elements specified in art 32(1)(a)(ii), (iii) (see PARA 52 heads (2), (3) ante): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 153(2), 1st para. It is also to include the value, duly apportioned, of any product or service specified in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(b) (see PARA 53 head (2) ante) which has been supplied directly or indirectly by the buyer for use in connection with the production of the imported goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 153(2), 2nd para. The value of the elements specified in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(b)(iv) (see PARA 53 head (4) ante) which are undertaken in the Community is to be included only to the extent that such elements are charged to the producer: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 153(2), 2nd para.

The cost or value referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(d), 1st indent is to be determined on the basis of information relating to the production of the goods being valued supplied by or on behalf of the producer; and it is to be based upon the commercial accounts of the producer, provided that such accounts are consistent with the generally accepted accounting principles applied in the country where the goods are produced: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. As an overriding rule, no cost or value of the elements referred to in the relevant indicative provision of Annex 23 is to be counted twice in determining the computed value: Annex 23, note. For the meaning of 'generally accepted accounting principles' see PARA 46 note 8 ante. As to the application of Annex 23 see PARA 46 ante.

7 The 'general expenses' referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(d), 3rd indent (see head (3) in the text) cover those direct and indirect costs of producing and selling the goods for export which are not included under art 30(2)(d), 1st indent (see head (1) in the text): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 153(5) (sic).

The 'amount for profit and general expenses' referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(d), 2nd indent (see head (2) in the text) is to be determined on the basis of information supplied by or on behalf of the producer, unless his figures are inconsistent with those usually reflected in sales of goods of the same class or kind as the goods being valued which are made by producers in the country of exportation for export to the country of importation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. It should be noted that the 'amount for profit and general expenses' has to be taken as a whole: Annex 23, note. It follows that, if, in any particular case, the producer's profit figure is low and his general expenses are high, his profit and general expenses, taken together, may nevertheless be consistent with that usually reflected in sales of goods of the same class or kind: Annex 23, note. Such a situation might occur eg if a product were being launched in the Community and the producer accepted a nil or low profit to offset high general expenses associated with the launch: Annex 23, note. Where the producer can demonstrate that he is taking a low profit on his sales of the imported goods because of particular commercial circumstances, his actual profit figures are to be taken into account, provided that he has valid commercial reasons to justify them and his pricing policy reflects usual pricing policies in the branch of industry concerned: Annex 23, note. Such a situation might occur eg where producers have been forced to lower prices temporarily because of an unforeseeable drop in demand, or where they sell goods to complement a range of goods being produced in the country of importation and accept a low profit to maintain competitiveness: Annex 23, note. Where the producer's own figures for profit and general expenses are inconsistent with those usually reflected in sales of goods of the same class or kind as the goods being valued which are made by producers in the country of exportation for export to the country of importation, the amount for profit and general expenses may be based upon relevant information other than that supplied by or on behalf of the producer of the goods: Annex 23, note.

The provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 33(1)(c) (see PARA 60 ante) are to apply mutatis mutandis where the customs value is to be determined by applying a method other than the transaction value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 156.

8 Whether certain goods are 'the same class or kind' as other goods is to be determined on a case-by-case basis with reference to the circumstances involved: ibid Annex 23, note. In determining the usual profits and general expenses under the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(d), sales for export to the country of importation of the narrowest group or range of goods, which includes the goods being valued, for which the necessary information can be provided, must be examined: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. For the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(d), 'goods of the same class or kind' must be from the same country as the goods being valued: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note.

9 The cost or value of the items referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 32(1)(e): see PARA 56 ante.

10 Ibid art 30(2)(d). For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

11 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. For the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(d), the customs authorities may not require or compel any person not resident in the Community to produce for examination, or to allow access to, any account or other record for the purposes of determining this value: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 153(1). Information supplied by the producer of the goods for the purposes of determining the customs value under art 153 may, however, be verified in a non-Community country by the customs authorities of a member state with the agreement of the producer and provided that such authorities give sufficient advance notice to the authorities of the country in question and the latter do not object to the investigation: art 153(1). Where information other than that supplied by or on behalf of the producer is used for the purposes of determining a computed value, the customs authorities must inform the declarant, if the latter so requests, of the source of such information, the data used and the calculations based on such data, subject to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 15 (confidential information covered by obligation of professional secrecy: see PARA 341 post): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 153(1).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

69. Residual method of determination of customs value.

Where the customs value of imported goods cannot otherwise be determined¹, it is to be determined on the basis of data available in the Community, using reasonable means consistent with the principles and general provisions of:

- 196 (1) the agreement on implementation of Article VII of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (1994)²;
- 197 (2) Article VII of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (1994);
- 198 (3) the provisions of the Community Customs Code³ relating to the value of goods for customs purposes⁴.

No customs value is, however, to be determined under the above provisions on the basis of:

- 199 (a) the selling price in the Community of goods produced in the Community;
- 200 (b) a system which provides for the acceptance for customs purposes of the higher of two alternative values;
- 201 (c) the price of goods on the domestic market of the country of exportation;
- 202 (d) the cost of production, other than computed values⁵ which have been determined for identical or similar goods;
- 203 (e) prices for export to a country not forming part of the customs territory of the Community⁶;
- 204 (f) minimum customs values; or
- 205 (g) arbitrary or fictitious values⁷.

As to the application of the principles in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (1994) see Case C-17/89 Hauptzollamt Frankfurt am Main-Ost v Deutsche Olivetti GmbH [1990] ECR I-2301, [1992] 2 CMLR 859, ECJ. As to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (1994) see further INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 460.

Notwithstanding the wording of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 31(1) (as amended) (see the text and note 4 infra), for the purposes of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 141-181a (as amended), 'the Agreement' means the Agreement on Implementation of Article VII of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (Geneva, 12 April 1979; Misc 21 (1979); Cmd 7663) concluded in the framework of the multilateral trade negotiations of 1973-1979 and referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 31(1), 1st indent (sic) (see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 142(1)(a)), no corresponding consequential amendment thereto having yet been made.

3 Ie EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 28-36 (as amended): see PARA 46 et seq ante.

4 Ibid art 31(1) (amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(6)). Customs values determined under the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 31(1) (as amended) should, to the greatest extent possible, be based on previously determined customs values; and the methods of valuation to be employed under art 31(1) (as amended) should be those laid down in art 29 (see PARA 47 et seq ante) and art 30(2) (see PARAS 65-68 ante), but a reasonable flexibility in the application of such methods would be in conformity with the aims and provisions of art 31(1) (as amended): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 23, note. This note provides some examples of reasonable flexibility, namely:

- 1 (1) as regards identical goods:
 1. (a) the requirement that the identical goods should be exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued could be flexibly interpreted;
 2. (b) identical imported goods produced in a country other than the country of exportation of the goods being valued could be the basis for customs valuation;
 3. (c) customs values of identical imported goods already determined under the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(c) (see PARA 67 ante) and art 30(2)(d) (see PARA 68 ante) could be used;
 - 2 (2) as regards similar goods:
 4. (a) the requirement that the similar goods should be exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued could be flexibly interpreted;
 5. (b) similar imported goods produced in a country other than the country of exportation of the goods being valued could be the basis for customs valuation;
 6. (c) customs values of similar imported goods already determined under the provisions of art 30(2)(c), (d) could be used;
 - 3 (3) as regards the application of a deductive method:
 7. (a) the requirement that the goods should have been sold in the 'condition as imported' in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 152(1)(a) (see PARA 67 ante) could be flexibly interpreted;
 8. (b) the '90 days' requirement (see PARA 67 ante) could be administered flexibly.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

70. Customs value of certain kinds of carrier media.

Specific rules may be laid down in accordance with the committee procedure¹ to determine the customs value of carrier media for use in data-processing equipment and bearing data or instructions².

1 For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 34. Such rules were formerly provided for by EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 167, but art 167 was revoked by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(7). The purpose of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 167(1) (revoked) was to avoid the levying of customs duties on software imported on carrier media. That objective has since been achieved by the Agreement on trade in information technology products ('ITA'), approved by EC Council Decision 97/359 (OJ L155, 12.6.1997, p 1). Without prejudice to the application of GATT Decision 4.1 of 12 May 1995, it is therefore no longer necessary to provide special implementing provisions for the determination of the customs value of carrier media: see EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) recital (7).

71. Simplified valuation procedures for perishable goods.

By way of derogation from the general provisions of the Community Customs Code relating to customs valuation¹, the customs value of perishable goods usually delivered on consignment may, at the request of the declarant², be determined under simplified rules drawn up for the whole Community in accordance with the committee procedure³. Thus a procedure has been set up for the determination of the prices of certain perishable goods imported on consignment⁴, and for this purpose the unit prices are to be notified to the Commission by the member states and disseminated by the Commission⁵ via TARIC⁶.

- 4 (1) after the deductions provided for in art 152(1)(a) (see PARA 67 ante), a unit price per 100 kg net for each category of goods is to be notified by the member states to the Commission; the member states may fix standard amounts for the costs of transport, insurance etc referred to in art 152(1)(a)(ii), which are to be made known to the Commission;
- 5 (2) the unit price may be used to determine the customs value of the imported goods for periods of 14 days, each period beginning on a Friday;
- 6 (3) the reference period for determining the unit prices is to be the preceding period of 14 days which ends on the Thursday preceding the week during which new unit prices are to be established;
- 7 (4) the unit prices are to be notified by the member states to the Commission in euro not later than 12 noon on the Monday of the week in which they are disseminated by the Commission, but if that day is a non-working day, notification must be made on the working day immediately preceding that day; unit prices will only apply if this notification is disseminated by the Commission.

(iv) Currency Issues

72. National exchange rates for euro.

The value of the euro in national currencies which is to be applied for the purposes of determining the tariff classification of goods and import duties is to be fixed once a month¹. The rates used for this conversion are those published in the Official Journal of the European Communities on the penultimate working day of the month; and those rates apply throughout the following month².

The value of the euro in national currencies to be applied within the framework of customs legislation in cases other than those referred to above³ are fixed once a year⁴. The rates used for this conversion⁵ are to be those published in the Official Journal of the European Communities on the first working day of October, with effect from 1 January of the following year⁶.

The customs authorities may retain unchanged the national currency value of an amount expressed in euros if, at the time of the annual adjustment provided for above⁷, the conversion of that amount, prior to any rounding-off⁸, results in a variation of less than 5 per cent in the national currency value or a reduction in that value⁹.

Where, however, the rate applicable at the start of the month differs by more than 5% from that published on the penultimate working day before the fifteenth of that same month, the latter rate applies from the fifteenth until the end of the month in question: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 18(1), 2nd para (substituted by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(4)). In certain circumstances, bilateral agreements will require the determination of customs value and exchange rates to be made by the customs authorities of the other contracting party, in lieu of those provided for by the Community Customs Code: see eg Case 218/83 Les Rapides Savoyardes Sàrl v Directeur Général des Douanes et Droits Indirects [1984] ECR 3105, [1985] 3 CMLR 116, EC].

73. Currency issues in customs valuation.

Where factors used to determine the customs value of goods are expressed in a currency¹ other than that of the member state where the valuation is made, the rate of exchange to be used is that duly published² by the authorities competent in the matter³. That rate must reflect as effectively as possible the current value of such currency in commercial transactions in terms of the currency of such member state and is to apply during such period as may be determined in accordance with the committee procedure⁴. Where such a rate does not exist, the rate of exchange to be used is to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure⁵.

The rate of exchange to be used to determine that value in terms of the currency of the member state concerned is the rate recorded⁶ on the second-last Wednesday of a month and published on that or the following day⁷. This rate is to be used during the following calendar month unless it is superseded by a rate established under those rules⁸ which apply where there is a significant fluctuation in rates⁹. In cases where a rate of exchange is not so recorded on the second-last Wednesday of a month, or, if recorded, is not published on that or the following day, the last rate recorded for the currency in question published within the preceding 14 days is deemed to be the rate recorded on that Wednesday¹⁰. If a rate of exchange cannot be so established¹¹, the rate of exchange to be used for the application of the customs valuation provisions of the Community Customs Code¹² must be designated by the member state concerned and must reflect as effectively as possible the current value of the currency in question in commercial transactions in terms of the currency of that member state¹³.

Where a rate of exchange recorded on the last Wednesday of a month and published on that or the following day differs by 5 per cent or more from the rate established in accordance with the general procedure for entry into use the following month¹⁴, it replaces the latter rate from the first Wednesday of that month as the rate to be applied for the application of the customs valuation provisions¹⁵ of the Community Customs Code¹⁶. Where, in the course of a period of application¹⁷, a rate of exchange recorded on a Wednesday and published on that or the following day differs by 5 per cent or more from the rate being used in accordance with the rules provided¹⁸, it replaces the latter rate and enters into use on the Wednesday following as the rate to be used for the application of the customs valuation provisions¹⁹ of the Community Customs Code²⁰. The replacement rate remains in use for the remainder of the current month, unless itself superseded due to the operation²¹ of the rate replacement provisions²².

If the customs authorities of a member state authorise a declarant²³ to furnish or supply at a later date certain details concerning the declaration for free circulation²⁴ of the goods in the form of a periodic declaration, the authorisation may, at the declarant's request, provide that a single rate be used for conversion into that member state's currency of elements forming part of the customs value as expressed in a particular currency²⁵. In such a case, the rate to be used is the rate, established in accordance with the ordinary principles²⁶, which is applicable on the first day of the period covered by the declaration in question²⁷.

74. Declarations of particulars for customs valuation purposes.

Where it is necessary to establish a customs value for the purposes of the provisions of the Community Customs Code relating to customs valuation¹, a declaration of particulars relating to customs value (a 'value declaration') must accompany the customs entry made in respect of the imported goods². The value declaration may be made only by a person established in the Community³ who is in possession of the relevant facts⁴. The customs authorities may waive the requirement of a declaration on the prescribed form where the customs value of the goods in question cannot be determined⁵ as the transaction value of the imported goods⁶. In such a case, the person who would otherwise make the value declaration⁷ must furnish, or cause to be furnished, to the customs authorities such other information as may be requested for the purposes of determining the customs value under another provision of the Community Customs Code⁸; and that other information must be supplied in such form and manner as may be prescribed by the customs authorities⁹.

The lodging with a customs office of a declaration of particulars relating to customs value¹⁰ is, without prejudice to the possible application of penal provisions, equivalent to the engagement of responsibility by the person required to make the declaration¹¹ in respect of the accuracy and completeness of the particulars given in the declaration, the authenticity of the documents produced in support of these particulars, and the supply of any additional information or document necessary to establish the customs value of the goods¹².

2 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 178(1). The value declaration must be drawn up on a form DVI, corresponding to the specimen in art 178(1), Annex 28, supplemented, where appropriate, by one or more forms DV1 bis corresponding to the specimen in art 178(1), Annex 29: art 178(1). Article 178 (as amended) does not apply in respect of goods for which the customs value is determined under the simplified procedure system for perishable goods established in accordance with the provisions of arts 173-177 (see PARA 71 ante): art 178(5).

Where computerised systems are used, or where the goods concerned are the subject of a general, periodic or recapitulative declaration, the customs authorities may authorise variations in the form of presentation of data required for the determination of customs value: art 180.

3 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

4 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 178(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1677/98 (OJ L212, 30.7.98, p 18) art 1(1)). The provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 64(2)(b), 2nd indent (see PARA 86 head (2)(b) post) and art 64(3) (see PARA 86 post) apply mutatis mutandis: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 178(2) (as so substituted).

The procedure is for the person in question to furnish the customs authorities with a copy of the invoice on the basis of which the value of the imported goods is declared: art 181(1). If the customs value is declared in writing, this copy is to be retained by the customs authorities: art 181(1). In the case of written declarations of the customs value, when the invoice for the imported goods is made out to a person established in a member state other than that in which the customs value is declared, the declarant must furnish the customs authorities with two copies of the invoice: art 181(2). One of these copies is to be retained by the customs authorities; the other, bearing the stamp of the office in question and the serial number of the declaration at the said customs office, is to be returned to the declarant for forwarding to the person to whom the invoice is made out: art 181(2). The customs authorities may extend the provisions of art 181(2) to cases where the person to whom the invoice is made out is established in the member state in which the customs value is declared: art 181(3). For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(4) CUSTOMS VALUATION/(iv) Currency Issues/75. Exceptions to the requirement to provide a value declaration.

75. Exceptions to the requirement to provide a value declaration.

Except where it is essential for the correct application of import duties¹, the customs authorities² must waive the requirement of all or part of the value declaration³:

- 206 (1) where the customs value of the imported goods in a consignment does not exceed 10,000 euros⁴, provided that they do not constitute split or multiple consignments from the same consignor to the same consignee; or
- 207 (2) where the importations involved are of a non-commercial nature; or
- 208 (3) where the submission of the particulars in question is not necessary for the application of the Customs Tariff of the European Communities⁵ or where the customs duties provided for in the Tariff are not chargeable pursuant to specific customs provisions⁶.

In the case of continuing traffic in goods supplied by the same seller to the same buyer under the same commercial conditions, the customs authorities may waive the requirement that all particulars in the value declaration⁷ be furnished in support of each customs declaration, but must require them whenever the circumstances change, and at least once every three years⁸.

2 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

3 I.e. the declaration provided for in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93 p 1) art 178(1): see PARA 74 ante.

4 The amount in euros is to be converted in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 18 (as substituted) (see PARA 72 ante); and the sum arrived at after conversion may be rounded off upwards or downwards by the customs authorities: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 179(2), 1st para. The customs authorities may maintain unamended the exchange value in national currency of the amount determined in euros if, at the time of the annual adjustment provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 18 (as substituted), the conversion of this amount, before the rounding-off, leads to an alteration of less than 5% in the exchange value expressed in national currency or to a reduction thereof: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 179(2), 2nd para.

A waiver granted under EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 179 (as amended) may be withdrawn and the submission of a DV1 (see PARA 74 note 2 ante) may be required where it is found that a condition necessary to qualify for that waiver was not or is no longer met: art 179(4).

(5) GOODS BROUGHT INTO THE CUSTOMS TERRITORY OF THE COMMUNITY UNTIL ASSIGNED A CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE

76. Summary declaration.

Goods brought into the customs territory of the Community¹ must be covered by a summary declaration, with the exception of goods carried by means of transport only passing through the territorial waters or the airspace of the customs territory without a stop within the territory². The summary declaration must be lodged at the customs office of entry³, but customs authorities may allow the summary declaration to be lodged at another customs office, provided that this office immediately communicates or makes available electronically the necessary particulars to the customs office of entry⁴. Customs authorities may accept, instead of the lodging of the summary declaration, the lodging of a notification and access to the summary declaration data in the economic operator's computer system⁵. The summary declaration must be lodged before the goods are brought into the customs territory of the Community⁶.

The committee procedure⁷ must be used to establish: (1) the time limit by which the summary declaration is to be lodged before the goods are brought into the customs territory of the Community; (2) the rules for exceptions from, and variations to, such time limit; and (3) the conditions under which the requirement for a summary declaration may be waived or adapted, in accordance with the specific circumstances and for particular types of goods traffic, modes of transport and economic operators and where international agreements provide for special security arrangements⁸.

The committee procedure is to be used to establish a common data set and format for the summary declaration, containing the particulars necessary for risk analysis and the proper application of customs controls, primarily for security and safety purposes, using, where appropriate, international standards and commercial practices⁹. The summary declaration must be made using a data-processing technique. Commercial, port or transport information may be used, provided that it contains the necessary particulars¹⁰. Customs authorities may accept paper-based summary declarations in exceptional circumstances, provided that they apply the same level of risk management as that applied to summary declarations made using a data-processing technique¹¹.

The summary declaration must be lodged by the person who brings the goods, or who assumes responsibility for the carriage of the goods into the customs territory of the Community¹². However, notwithstanding the obligation of such person, the summary declaration may be lodged instead by: (a) the person in whose name such person acts; or (b) any person who is able to present the goods in question or to have them presented to the competent customs authority; or (c) a representative of one of the persons referred to above¹³.

The person referred to above is, at his request, to be authorised to amend one or more particulars of the summary declaration after it has been lodged¹⁴. However, no amendment is possible after the customs authorities: (i) have informed the person who lodged the summary declaration that they intend to examine the goods; or (ii) have established that the particulars in questions are incorrect; or (iii) have allowed the removal of the goods¹⁵.

The customs office of entry may waive the lodging of a summary declaration in respect of goods for which, before expiry of the prescribed time limit¹⁶, a customs declaration is lodged¹⁷. In such case, the customs declaration must contain at least the particulars necessary for a summary declaration and, until such time as the former is accepted by the customs authorities¹⁸, it will have the status of a summary declaration¹⁹.

Customs authorities may allow the customs declaration to be lodged at a customs office of import²⁰ different from the customs office of entry, provided that this office immediately communicates or makes available electronically the necessary particulars to the customs office of entry²¹.

Where the customs declaration is lodged otherwise than by use of data-processing technique, the customs authorities must apply the same level of risk management to the data as that applied to customs declarations made using a data-processing technique²².

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

77. Entry of goods into the customs territory of the Community.

Goods brought into the customs territory of the Community¹ are, from the time of their entry, to be subject to customs supervision². They may be subject to customs controls³ in accordance with the provisions in force⁴; and they remain under such supervision for as long as may be necessary to determine their customs status⁵, if appropriate, and, in the case of non-Community goods⁶, until their customs status is changed, they enter a free zone⁷ or free warehouse⁸, or they are⁹ re-exported or destroyed¹⁰.

1 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 37(1). For these purposes, 'supervision by the customs authorities' means action taken in general by those authorities with a view to ensuring that customs rules and, where appropriate, other provisions applicable to goods subject to customs supervision are observed: art 4(13). 3 For the meaning of 'control by the customs authorities' see PARA 30 note 7 ante.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 37(1) (amended by EC Parliament and Council Regulation 648/2005 (OJ L117, 4.2.2005, p 13) art 1(7)). For these purposes, 'provisions in force' means Community or national provisions: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 4(23).

5 For these purposes, 'customs status' means the status of goods as Community or non-Community goods: ibid art 4(6). 'Non-Community goods' are goods other than Community goods: art 4(8). 'Community goods' are goods: (1) wholly obtained in the customs territory of the Community under the conditions referred to in art 23 (see PARA 23 ante) and not incorporating goods imported from countries or territories not forming part of the customs territory of the Community; (2) imported from countries or territories not forming part of the customs territory of the Community which have been released for free circulation; or (3) obtained or produced in the customs territory of the Community, either from goods falling within head (2) supra alone or from goods falling within both heads (1) and (2) supra: art 4(7) (amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.2.97, p 1) art 1(2)). Goods obtained from goods placed under a suspensive arrangement are not to be deemed to have Community status in cases of special economic importance determined in accordance with the committee procedure: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 4(7), 1st indent, 2nd sentence (as so amended). In the cases referred to in art 4(7), 1st indent, 2nd sentence (as amended), any products or goods obtained from goods placed under a suspensive arrangement are to be considered as being placed under the same arrangement: art 87a (added by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.2.97, p 1) art 1(9)). UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

78. Transfer to a customs office.

Goods brought into the customs territory of the Community¹ must be conveyed by the person bringing them into the Community without delay, by the route specified by the customs authorities² and in accordance with their instructions, if any:

- 209 (1) to the customs office³ designated by the customs authorities or to any other place designated or approved by those authorities; or
- 210 (2) to a free zone⁴, if the goods are to be brought into that free zone either direct by sea or air, or if they are to be brought into the free zone by land but without passing through another part of the customs territory of the Community, in a case where the free zone adjoins the land frontier between a member state and a third country⁵.

Any person who assumes responsibility for the carriage of goods after they have been brought into the customs territory of the Community (inter alia) as a result of transshipment becomes responsible for compliance with the obligation to convey goods without delay to a customs office or into a free zone⁶.

The provisions of head (1) above do not, however, preclude implementation of any provisions in force⁷ with respect to tourist traffic, frontier traffic, postal traffic or traffic of negligible economic importance, provided that customs supervision⁸ and customs control⁹ possibilities are not jeopardised as a result¹⁰. Nor do the above provisions¹¹ apply:

- 211 (a) to goods which temporarily leave the customs territory of the Community while moving between two points in that territory by sea or air, provided that the carriage is effected by a direct route and by regular air or shipping services without a stop outside the customs territory of the Community¹²; or
- 212 (b) to goods on board vessels or aircraft crossing the territorial sea or airspace of the member states without having as their destination a port or airport situated in those member states¹³.

Goods which, although still outside the customs territory of the Community, may be subject to the customs control by a member state under the provisions in force, as a result of (inter alia) an agreement concluded between that member state and a third country, are to be treated in the same way as goods brought into the customs territory of the Community¹⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'customs office' see PARA 40 note 12 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'free zone' see PARA 213 post.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 38(1)(a), (b). Article 38 (as amended), with the exception of art 38(1)(a) (see head (1) in the text), and arts 39-53 (see PARA 79 et seq post) do not apply when goods already placed under a transit procedure are brought into the customs territory of the Community: art 54. As to Community transit procedures see PARA 108 et seq post. Where, by reason of unforeseeable circumstances or force majeure, the obligation laid down in art 38(1) cannot be complied with, the person who is bound by that obligation or any other person acting in his place (see the text to note 6 infra) must inform the customs authorities of the situation without delay: art 39(1). If the unforeseeable circumstances or force majeure do not result in total loss of the goods, the customs authorities must also be informed of their precise location: art 39(1). The customs authorities must then determine the measures to be taken in order to permit customs supervision of the goods and to ensure, where appropriate, that they are subsequently conveyed to a customs office or other place designated or approved by the authorities: art 39(3).

As to the meaning of 'force majeure' see Case 266/84 Denkavit France Sarl v Fonds d'Orientation et de Régularisation des Marchés Agricoles [1986] ECR 149, ECJ. The concept of force majeure must be understood in the sense of unusual and unforeseeable circumstances, beyond the trader's control (or beyond the control of the party by whom it is pleaded) the consequences of which could not have been avoided even if all due care had been exercised: Case 145/85 Denkavit Belgie NV v Belgium [1987] ECR 565, [1988] 2 CMLR 679, ECJ. If it is referred to in a regulation, it must be considered in the context in which it is set: Case 284/82 Acciaiere e Ferriere Bussoni SpA v EC Commission [1984] ECR 557, ECJ (apart from special cases in specific areas in which it is used, the concept of force majeure requires basically unusual circumstances making accomplishment of the matter in hand impossible; even though it does not presuppose absolute impossibility, it nevertheless requires abnormal difficulties, independent of the will of the person concerned and apparently inevitable even if all due care is taken); Joined Cases 98, 230/83 Van Gend en Loos NV v EC Commission [1984] ECR 3763, ECJ (recognition of a case of force majeure presupposes that the external cause relied on has irresistible and inevitable consequences to the point of making it objectively impossible for the persons concerned to fulfil their obligations; a customs agent, by the very nature of his functions, renders himself liable both for the payment of import duty and for the validity of the documents which he presents to the customs authorities; being furnished with certificates of origin which are invalid, even though issued by the customs authorities of the countries named in them, is one of the professional risks which he runs and cannot, for these purposes, constitute a special circumstance); Case 296/86 Anthony McNicholl Ltd v Minister for Agriculture [1988] ECR 1491, [1988] 2 CMLR 275, ECJ (as regards the concept of force majeure, whilst that concept does not presuppose absolute impossibility, it nevertheless requires the non-performance of the act in question to be due to circumstances beyond the control of the person claiming force majeure, which are abnormal and unforeseeable and of which the consequences could not have been avoided despite the exercise of all due care; it follows that a trader who, on purchasing the goods, entered into a contractual obligation to export them cannot escape that obligation by claiming force majeure where the goods are stolen as a result of fraud or negligence on the part of his own employees).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(5) GOODS BROUGHT INTO THE CUSTOMS TERRITORY OF THE COMMUNITY UNTIL ASSIGNED A CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE/79. Presentation of goods to customs.

79. Presentation of goods to customs.

Goods entering the customs territory of the Community¹ must be presented to customs by the person who brings them into that territory or, if appropriate², by the person who assumes responsibility for carriage of the goods following such entry, with the exception of goods carried on means of transport only passing through the territorial waters or the airspace of the customs territory of the Community without a stop within this territory³. The person presenting the goods must make a reference to the summary declaration or customs declaration previously lodged in respect of the goods⁴.

The above requirements do not, however, prevent the implementation of rules in force relating to goods carried by travellers⁵ or placed under a customs procedure but not presented to customs⁶.

Goods which are brought into the customs territory of the Community from a third country by sea or air and which are consigned under cover of a single transport document by the same mode of transport, without transshipment, to another port or airport in the Community, must be presented to customs only at the port or airport where they are unloaded or transhipped⁷.

'Presentation of goods to customs' means the notification to the customs authorities, in the manner laid down, of the arrival of goods at the customs office or at any other place designated or approved by the customs authorities⁸.

Goods may, once they have been presented to customs, and with the permission of the customs authorities, be examined or samples may be taken, in order that they may be assigned a customs-approved treatment or use⁹. Such permission is to be granted on request to the person authorised to assign the goods such treatment or use¹⁰.

Where the circumstances so require, the customs authorities may have goods presented to customs destroyed; and the customs authorities must notify the holder of the goods accordingly¹¹. The costs of destroying the goods are to be borne by the holder¹².

Where customs authorities find that goods have been brought unauthorised into the customs territory of the Community or have been withheld from customs surveillance, they may take any measures necessary, including sale of the goods, in order to regularise their situation¹³.

1 I.e. pursuant to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 38(1)(a): see PARA 78 head (1) ante. For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

2 See ibid art 38(2); and PARA 78 ante.

3 Ibid art 40 (substituted by EC Parliament and Council Regulation 648/2005 (OJ L117, 4.2.2005, p 13) art 1(9)). Under United Kingdom law, notification to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs of the arrival of goods, in a case when presentation of the goods is required under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 40 (as substituted), is to be made in the prescribed form or a form to the like effect approved by the Commissioners: Customs Controls on Importation Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, regs 2, 3(1) (amended by SI 1993/3014; and by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (7)). As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post. For the prescribed form of notification see the Customs Controls on Importation Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 3(1), Sch 1 (amended by SI 1993/3014). Where, however, a computerised inventory system has been approved by the Commissioners, presentation may consist in a computerised record capable of being printed out: Customs Controls on Importation Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 3(2).

Notification must be made within three hours of the arrival of the ship or aircraft carrying the relevant goods at the wharf or airport at which the goods are to be unloaded, at the customs office for the wharf or airport: reg 3(3). If, however, notification is impossible because the office is closed during the relevant period, the period for notification ends one hour following the re-opening of the office: reg 3(3).

In the event of contravention or failure to comply with any provision of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) specified in the Customs Controls on Importation Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 8(a), Sch 4 (substituted by SI 1993/3014), or with the Customs Controls on Importation Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 3 (as amended), reg 4 (as amended) (summary declaration) or reg 5 (as amended) (see PARAS 82 note 7, 85 note 8 post), the person responsible for the contravention or failure is liable on summary conviction to a penalty of level 3 on the standard scale; and any goods in respect of which the offence was committed are liable to forfeiture: reg 8(a), (d). 'Standard scale' means the standard scale of maximum fines for summary offences as set out in the Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 37 (as amended): see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1 (definition added by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 170(1), Sch 15 para 58); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142. At the date at which this volume states the law, the standard scale is as follows: level 1, £200; level 2, £500; level 3, £1,000; level 4, £2,500; level 5, £5,000: Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 37(2) (substituted by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 17(1)). As to the determination of the amount of the fine actually imposed, as distinct from the level on the standard scale which it may not exceed, see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 164; and MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 807. As to forfeiture see PARA 1155 et seq post.

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 4(19). A member state fails to fulfil its obligations under the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') arts 23, 25 (as renumbered) (see PARA 6 note 1 ante) by requiring from each undertaking individually, where services are rendered simultaneously to several undertakings in connection with the completion of customs formalities in intra-Community trade, payment of an amount which is, in certain cases, disproportionate to the cost of the service rendered to traders, since as many charges are levied as there are undertakings involved and the charge payable by them may, therefore, exceed the actual cost of the inspections: Case C-209/89 EC Commission v Italy [1991] ECR I-1575, [1993] 1 CMLR 155, ECJ.

As to the manner for presentation of goods to customs see the Customs (Presentation of Goods for Export) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/467 (amended by SI 2003/2155).

9 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 42. For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 post.

Permission to examine the goods is to be granted at the oral request of the person empowered to assign the goods a customs-approved treatment or use, except where the customs authorities consider, having regard to the circumstances, that a written request is required: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 182(1). Permission to take samples may be authorised only at the written request of the person concerned; and the authorities must indicate in writing the quantity of goods to be taken: art 182(1), 2nd para; art 182(2), 2nd para. Prior examination of the goods and the taking of samples is to be carried out under the supervision of the customs authorities, who must indicate the procedure to be followed in each case: art 182(3), 1st para. The person concerned bears the risk and cost of unpacking and repacking as well as of any other operation involving the goods and any costs in connection with analysis: art 182(3), 2nd para. The samples taken themselves are to be the subject of formalities with a view to assigning them a customs-approved treatment or use; but, where the examination of the sample results in its being destroyed or irretrievably lost, no debt (ie customs debt) is deemed to be incurred: art 182(4). Any waste or scrap resulting from destruction is, however, assigned a customs-approved treatment or use prescribed for non-Community goods, in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 182(5) (see PARA 221 note 3 post): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 182(4).

CUSTOMS DUTIES/(5) GOODS BROUGHT INTO THE CUSTOMS TERRITORY OF THE COMMUNITY UNTIL ASSIGNED A CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE/80. Unloading of goods presented to customs.

80. Unloading of goods presented to customs.

Goods may be unloaded or transhipped from the means of transport carrying them solely with the permission of the customs authorities¹ in places designated or approved by those customs authorities². Such permission is not, however, required in the event of the imminent danger necessitating the immediate unloading of all or part of the goods; in this case, the customs authorities must be informed accordingly forthwith³. Nor may goods be removed from their original position without the permission of the customs authorities⁴. The customs authorities may at any time require goods to be unloaded and unpacked for the purpose of inspecting goods and the means of transport carrying them⁵.

Goods covered by a summary declaration which have not been unloaded from the means of transport carrying them must be re-presented intact by the person who made and signed the summary declaration⁶ whenever the customs authorities so require, until such time as the goods in question are assigned a customs-approved treatment or use⁷.

81. Temporary storage of goods.

Until such time as they are assigned a customs-approved treatment or use¹, goods which have been presented to customs² have, following such presentation, the status of goods in temporary storage³. Such goods may be stored only in places which are approved by the customs authorities⁴ and in accordance with the conditions which are laid down by those authorities⁵. The person holding the goods may be required by the customs authorities to provide security with a view to ensuring payment of any customs debt⁶ which may arise, either on the unlawful removal of the goods from customs supervision⁷ or on non-fulfilment of one of the obligations arising⁸ from the temporary storage of the goods⁹.

Goods in temporary storage may be subject only¹⁰ to such forms of handling as are designed to ensure their preservation in an unaltered state without modifying their appearance or technical characteristics¹¹.

2 For the meaning of 'presentation of goods to customs' see PARA 79 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 51(1). Places which have been approved on a permanent basis for the placing of goods in temporary storage are known as 'temporary storage facilities': EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 185(1).

In order to ensure the application of customs rules, the customs authorities may, where they do not themselves manage the temporary storage facility, require that: (1) temporary storage facilities be double-locked, one key being held by the customs authorities; and (2) the person operating the temporary storage facility keep stock accounts which enable the movements of goods to be traced: art 185(2).

Goods must be placed in a temporary storage facility on the basis of a summary declaration; but the customs authorities may require the lodging of a specific declaration on a form corresponding to the model they have determined: art 186. At the date at which this volume states the law no such form has been determined by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs. As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post.

6 For these purposes, 'customs debt' means the obligation on a person to pay the amount of the import duties (custom debt on importation) or export duties (customs debt on exportation) which apply to specific goods under the Community provisions in force: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 4(9). As to customs debts see PARA 277 et seq post.

'Import duties' means: (1) customs duties and charges having an effect equivalent to customs duties payable on the importation of goods; and (2) import charges introduced under the common agricultural policy or under the specific arrangements applicable to certain goods resulting from the processing of agricultural products: art 4(10) (amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(2)(c)).

'Export duties' means: (a) customs duties and charges having an effect equivalent to customs duties payable on the exportation of goods; and (b) export charges introduced under the common agricultural policy or under the specific arrangements applicable to certain goods resulting from the processing of agricultural products: art 4(11) (amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(2)(d)).

(6) THE PLACING OF GOODS UNDER A CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE

82. Customs-approved treatment or use.

'Customs-approved treatment or use of goods' means:

- 213 (1) the placing of goods under a customs procedure¹;
- 214 (2) their entry into a free zone² or free warehouse³;
- 215 (3) their re-exportation from the customs territory of the Community⁴;
- 216 (4) their destruction;
- 217 (5) their abandonment to the Exchequer⁵.

Except in so far as provision is otherwise made, goods may at any time, under the conditions laid down, be assigned any customs-approved treatment or use irrespective of their nature or quantity, or their country of origin, consignment or destination⁶.

Where goods are covered by a summary declaration, the formalities necessary for them to be assigned a customs-approved treatment or use must be carried out within:

- 218 (a) 45 days from the date on which the summary declaration is lodged in the case of goods carried by sea; or
- 219 (b) 20 days from the date on which the summary declaration is lodged in the case of goods carried otherwise than by sea⁷.

Where circumstances so warrant, the customs authorities⁸ may set a shorter period or authorise an extension of these periods, not exceeding the genuine requirements justified by the circumstances⁹.

The customs authorities must without delay take all measures necessary, including the sale of the goods, in order to regularise the situation of goods in respect of which the formalities necessary for them to be assigned a customs-approved treatment or use are not initiated within the periods specified in heads (a) and (b) above¹⁰. They may, in particular, and at the risk and expense of the person holding them, have the goods in question transferred to a special place, which is under their supervision, until the situation of the goods is regularised¹¹.

Non-Community goods¹² presented to customs must be assigned a customs-approved treatment or use for such non-Community goods¹³.

1 For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 post.

2 For the meaning of 'free zone' see PARA 213 post.

3 For the meaning of 'free warehouse' see PARA 213 post.

4 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 4(15).

6 Ibid art 58(1). Article 58(1) does not, however, preclude the imposition of prohibitions or restrictions justified on grounds of public morality, public policy or public security, the protection of health and life of humans, animals or plants, the protection of national treasures possessing artistic, historic or archaeological value or the protection of industrial and commercial property: art 58(2). Cf the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') art 30 (as renumbered): see PARA 19 ante. The existence, as a consequence of the customs union, of a general principle of freedom of transit of goods within the Community does not have the effect of precluding the member states from verifying the nature of goods in transit, pursuant to the EC Treaty, in particular, art 30 (as renumbered). Article 36 (as renumbered) authorises the member states to impose restrictions on the transit of goods on grounds of public security, which covers both a member state's internal security and its external security, of which the latter manifestly requires to be taken into consideration in the case of goods capable of being used for strategic purposes. Accordingly, the legislation of a member state is not precluded from requiring, on external security grounds, that special authorisation be obtained for the transit through its territory of goods described as strategic material, irrespective of the Community transit document issued by another member state. However, the measures adopted by the member state as a consequence of the failure to comply with that requirement must not be disproportionate to the objective pursued: Case C-367/89 Richardt and Les Accessoires Scientifiques SNC [1991] ECR I-4621, [1992] 1 CMLR 61, ECJ. See also Case C-177/95 Ebony Maritime SA v Prefetto della Provincia di Brindisi [1997] ECR I-1111, ECJ.

7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 49(1). The formalities will include eg the making of the declaration specified for the customs procedure under which the goods are to be placed. The time limits in art 49 have been incorporated into United Kingdom law by the Customs Controls on Importation of Goods Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 5(1) (amended by SI 1992/3095; SI 1993/3014), which provides that goods must be entered ('entry' being the term historically used in the United Kingdom for the necessary customs formalities) not later than: (1) 45 days from the date on which the summary declaration is lodged in the case of goods carried by sea; or (2) 20 days from the date on which the summary declaration is lodged in the case of goods carried otherwise than by sea. As to the penalty for failure to comply with this requirement see the Customs Controls on Importation of Goods Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 8; and PARA 79 note 3 ante. As to the validity of a supplemental levy for failure to comply with the time limits see Case C-36/94 Siesse-Soluções Integrais em Sistemas Software e Aplicações Lda v Director da Alfândega, Alcântara [1995] ECR I-3573, ECJ.

In its application to goods contained in postal packets brought into the United Kingdom, the Customs Controls on Importation of Goods Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 5 (as amended) applies only in any case, or class of cases, in which the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs require an entry to be made in accordance therewith: Postal Packets (Customs and Excise) Regulations 1986, SI 1986/260, reg 5A (added by SI 1992/3224; and amended by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (7)). As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post. As to inward entry see the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 ss 35-42 (as amended); and PARA 950 et seq post.

8 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

10 Ibid art 53(1). Such rules are subject to the operation of the principle of proportionality: Case 41/76 Criel v Procureur de la République [1976] ECR 1921, [1972] 2 CMLR 535, ECJ ('in these circumstances it may be admitted that knowledge of that origin is necessary both for the member state concerned, so that it may determine the scope of commercial policy measures which it is authorised to adopt pursuant to the EC Treaty, and for the Commission, for the purpose of exercising the right of supervision and decision conferred on it. Nevertheless the member states may not require from the importer more in this respect than an indication of the origin of the products, in so far as he knows it or may reasonably be expected to know it. In addition the fact that the importer did not comply with the obligation to declare the real origin of goods cannot give rise to the application of penalties which are disproportionate taking account of the purely administrative nature of the contravention. In this respect seizure of the goods or any pecuniary penalty fixed according to the value of the goods would certainly be incompatible with the provisions of the treaty as being equivalent to an obstacle to the free movement of goods'). Cf Case C-177/95 Ebony Maritime SA v Prefetto della Provincia di Brindisi [1997] ECR I-1111, ECJ (where a Community regulation does not specifically provide any penalty for an infringement or refers for that purpose

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

(7) THE PLACING OF GOODS UNDER A CUSTOMS PROCEDURE

(i) In general

83. Customs procedures.

'Customs procedure' means:

- 220 (1) release for free circulation¹;
- 221 (2) transit²;
- 222 (3) customs warehousing³;
- 223 (4) inward processing⁴;
- 224 (5) processing under customs control⁵;
- 225 (6) temporary admission⁶;
- 226 (7) outward processing⁷; and
- 227 (8) exportation⁸.

All goods intended to be placed under a customs procedure must be covered by a declaration for that customs procedure⁹. The customs declaration¹⁰ must be made:

- 228 (a) in writing¹¹; or
- 229 (b) using a data-processing technique¹²; or
- 230 (c) by means of an oral declaration¹³ or by any other act¹⁴ whereby the holder of the goods expresses his wish to place them under a customs procedure¹⁵.

Community goods¹⁶ declared for an export, outward processing, transit or customs warehousing procedure are subject to customs supervision¹⁷ from the time of acceptance of the customs declaration until such time as they leave the customs territory of the Community¹⁸ or are destroyed or the customs declaration is invalidated¹⁹.

In so far as Community customs legislation lays down no rules on the matter, member states are to determine the competence of the various customs offices²⁰ situated in their territory, account being taken, where applicable, of the nature of the goods and the customs procedure under which they are to be placed²¹.

EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 61(c) refers to 'a normal declaration' but it is apprehended that this is a typographical error and should read as 'an oral declaration'. This would be consistent with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 225-229 (as amended), which make specific provision for the occasions on which an oral declaration may be made: see PARAS 88-90 post.

84. The fiscal representative.

Any person may¹ appoint a representative in his dealings with the customs authorities² to perform the acts and formalities laid down by customs rules³. Such representation may be direct, in which case the representative must act in the name of, and on behalf of, another person, or indirect, when the representative must act in his own name but on behalf of another person⁴. A member state may restrict the right to make customs declarations⁵ either by direct or by indirect representation to representatives who are customs agents carrying on business in that country's territory⁶.

A representative must state that he is acting on behalf of the person represented, must specify whether that representation is direct or indirect, and must be empowered to act as a representative⁷. If a person fails to state that he is acting in the name of, or on behalf of, another person, or he states that he is acting in the name of, or on behalf of, another person without being empowered to do so, he is deemed to be acting in his own name and on his own behalf⁸. The customs authorities may require any person who states that he is acting in the name of, or on behalf of, another to produce evidence of his powers to act as a representative⁹.

A customs agent, by the very nature of his functions, renders himself liable both for the payment of import duty and for the validity of the documents which he presents to the customs authorities¹⁰.

1 Ie under the conditions set out in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 64(2) (see PARA 86 head (2) post) and subject to the provisions adopted within the framework of art 243(2)(b) (see PARA 337 head (2) post).

2 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

4 Ibid art 5(2), 1st para. This distinction between direct and indirect representatives is a creature of civil law, which has no direct equivalent in common law. Under civil law, only the party to the contract is bound, so that, if the principal is not named in the contract, he is not bound. Thus a direct representative makes contracts in the name of the principal, so as to bind the principal but not himself. In the case of an indirect representative, the agent is bound (since the contract is in his name) but his principal is not. Article 5 recognises the civil law distinction, but the Community Customs Code itself seeks to circumvent the ordinary consequences of it. Thus eg art 201(3) (see PARA 277 post) makes the person liable for the customs debt incurred on the release of goods for free circulation both the declarant and, in the case of indirect representation (ie where the representative makes the declaration in his own name), the person on whose behalf the customs declaration is made. See [1997] BTR 144-147; Storefast Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 30 (unreported). As to member states infringing the right of agents to make declarations in their own name and on behalf of another see Case C-323/90 EC Commission v Portugal [1992] ECR I-1887, [1994] 3 CMLR 394, ECJ; Case C-119/92 EC Commission v Italy [1994] ECR I-393, [1994] 3 CMLR 774, ECJ.

5 For the meaning of 'customs declaration' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

6 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 5(2), 2nd para. In any event, a representative must be established in the Community, save in the cases referred to in art 64(2)(b), (3) (see PARA 86 post): art 5(3). For these purposes, 'person established in the Community' means: (1) in the case of a natural person, any person who is normally resident there; (2) in the case of a legal person or an association of persons, any person that has in the Community its registered office, central headquarters or a permanent business establishment: art 4(2). For the meaning of 'person' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

7 Ibid art 5(4), 1st para. Article 5(4) requires the provision of information which enables the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs to know who is the relevant declarant to whom they can look for the payment of duty.

Where a representative fails to state that he is acting in the name of another (ie that he is a direct representative), the Commissioners are entitled to treat him as acting in his own name (ie as being an indirect representative): Storefast Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 30 (unreported). As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post.

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 5(4), 2nd para.

9 Ibid art 5(5).

10 Accordingly, being furnished with certificates of origin which are invalid, even though issued by the customs authorities of the countries named in them, is one of the professional risks which he runs and cannot constitute a special circumstance within the meaning of EC Council Regulation 1430/79 (OJ L175, 12.7.79, p 1) art 13 (revoked: see now EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 236; and PARA 312 post): Joined Cases 98, 230/83 Van Gend en Loos NV v EC Commission [1984] ECR 3763, ECJ.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(7) THE PLACING OF GOODS UNDER A CUSTOMS PROCEDURE/(ii) Declarations in Writing; Normal Procedure/85. Form of declaration.

(ii) Declarations in Writing; Normal Procedure

85. Form of declaration.

Declarations in writing must be made on a form which corresponds to the official specimen prescribed for the purpose¹. The official model for written declarations to customs by the normal procedure, for the purposes of placing goods under a customs procedure², or re-exporting them³, is the single administrative document⁴; but other forms may be used for this purpose where the provisions of the customs procedure in question permit⁵. The declaration must be signed and contain all the particulars which are necessary for implementation of the provisions governing the customs procedure for which the goods are declared⁶. The declaration must also be accompanied by all the documents required to implement the provisions governing the customs procedure for which the goods are declared⁷. If a declaration complies with these rules, the customs authorities must immediately accept it, provided that the goods to which it refers are presented to customs⁸.

Where, in Community legislation, reference is made to an export, re-export or import declaration or a declaration placing goods under another customs procedure, member states may not require any administrative documents other than those which are:

- 231 (1) expressly created by Community acts or provided for by such acts;
- 232 (2) required under the terms of international Conventions compatible with the EC Treaty⁹;
- 233 (3) required from operators to enable them to qualify, at their request, for an advantage or specific facility;
- 234 (4) required, with due regard for the provisions of the EC Treaty, for the implementation of specific regulations which cannot be implemented solely by the use of the single administrative document¹⁰.

1 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 62(1).

2 For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante.

3 In accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 182(3) (as amended): see PARA 221 post.

4 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 205(1). See also note 5 infra. The single administrative document must be completed in accordance with the explanatory note contained in Annex 37 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1)): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 212(1). As to the detailed rules relating to the use of the single administrative document see arts 206-217. The advantage of the single administrative document is that it may be used to cover several customs procedures in relation to the same goods and may be extended by the use of sub-sets where the Community transit procedure, or the common transit procedure, is preceded or followed by another customs procedure: art 208(2). Where this is the case, each party involved is liable only as regards the particulars relating to the procedure for which he applied as declarant, principal, or as the representative of one of these: art 209(1). More generally, where the single administrative document is used to cover several successive customs procedures, the customs authorities must satisfy themselves that the particulars given in the declarations relating to the various procedures in question all agree: art 210. For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

5 Ibid art 205(2). The provisions of art 205(1) (see the text and notes 2-4 supra) and art 205(2) do not preclude: (1) waiver of the written declaration prescribed in arts 225-236 (as amended) (see PARA 88 et seq post) for release for free circulation, export or temporary importation; (2) waiver by the member states of the single administrative document where the special provisions laid down in arts 237, 238 (see PARA 95 post) with regard to consignments by letter or parcel post apply; (3) use of special forms to facilitate the declaration in specific cases, where the customs authorities so permit; (4) waiver by the member states of the single administrative document in the case of existing or future agreements or arrangements concluded between the administrations of two or more member states with a view to greater simplification of formalities in all or part of the trade between those member states; (5) use by the persons concerned of loading lists for the completion of Community transit formalities in the case of consignments composed of more than one kind of goods; (6) printing of export, transit or import declarations and documents certifying the Community status of goods not being moved under internal Community transit procedure by means of official or private-sector data-processing systems, if necessary on plain paper, on conditions laid down by the member states; or (7) provision by the member states to the effect that, where a computerised declaration-processing system is used, the declaration, within the meaning of art 205(1) (see the text and notes 2-4 supra) may take the form of the single administrative document printed out by that system: art 205(3).

6 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 62(1). Where a customs declaration covers two or more articles, the particulars relating to each article are regarded as a separate declaration: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 198(1). Component parts of industrial plant coming under a single CN code are, however, regarded as constituting a single item of goods: art 198(2).

7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 62(2). In order for a declaration to be 'accompanied' by documents as required by art 62(2), it is sufficient if the documents are lodged separately from the declaration, provided that the declaration and documents are clearly identified as being connected: Rosemans International Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 32 (unreported).

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 63. Non-payment of duty is a bar to release of the goods but not to the acceptance of the declaration; but it is only when both goods and declaration have been presented that the declaration can be accepted: Rosemans International Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 32 (unreported). As to the presentation of goods to customs see PARA 79 ante.

Save as may otherwise expressly be provided, the date to be used for the purposes of all the provisions governing the customs procedure for which the goods are declared is to be the date of acceptance of the declaration by the customs authorities: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 67. By way of derogation from art 67, provided that the import duty chargeable on the goods is one of the duties referred to in art 4(10), 1st indent (see PARA 81 note 6 head (1) ante) and that the rate of duty is reduced after the date of the acceptance of the declaration but before the release of the goods for free circulation, the declarant may request the application of the more favourable rate: art 80(1). Article 80(1) does not apply where it has not been possible to release the goods for reasons attributable to the declarant alone: art 80(2). As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq post.

As to lodging the customs declaration see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 201 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1875 (OJ L360, 19.12.2006, p 64)).

Except with the permission of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs, no entry (ie declaration) may be delivered by the importer to the proper officer before presentation of the goods at the proper office: see the Customs Controls on Importation of Goods Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, regs 2, 5(3) (reg 2 amended by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (7)). Where the Commissioners permit an entry to be delivered before presentation of the goods, the goods must be presented to the proper office within such time as the Commissioners may allow; and, if the goods are not so presented, the entry is treated as not having been delivered: see the Customs Controls on Importation of Goods Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 5(4). As to the penalty for failure to comply with this requirement see reg 8; and PARA 79 note 3 ante. As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post.

As to the meaning of 'day of importation' see Case 113/78 NGJ Schouten BV v Hoofdproduktschap voor Akkerbouwprodukten [1979] ECR 695 at 704-705, [1979] 2 CMLR 720 at 729-730, ECJ. It is implicit in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 68 (see PARA 99 post) that the customs authorities may accept a declaration without having verified it and without having examined the documents accompanying it: Rosemans International Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 32 (unreported).

86. Person who must make declaration.

A customs declaration¹ may be made² by any person³ who is able to present the goods in question, or to have them presented to the competent customs authority, together with all the documents which are required to be produced for the application of the provisions governing the customs procedure⁴ in respect of which the goods were declared⁵.

However:

- 235 (1) where acceptance of a customs declaration imposes particular obligations on a specific person, the declaration must be made by that person or on his behalf⁶;
 - 236 (2) the declarant must be established in the Community⁷, but the condition regarding such establishment does not apply to persons who:⁸
 - 14. (a) make a declaration for transit or temporary importation;
 - 15. (b) declare goods on an occasional basis, provided that the customs authorities consider this to be justified⁸.

The lodging⁹ with a customs office of a declaration signed by the declarant or his representative renders him responsible¹⁰ for the accuracy of the information given in the declaration, the authenticity of the documents attached and for compliance with all the obligations relating to the entry of the goods in question under the procedure concerned¹¹.

Documents accompanying a declaration are to be kept by the customs authorities unless the authorities provide otherwise, or unless the declarant requires them for other operations: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 200. In the latter case the customs authorities must take the necessary steps to ensure that the documents in question cannot subsequently be used except in respect of the quantity or value of goods for which they remain valid: art 200. For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

The fact that the owner cannot employ an attorney who neither has possession of the goods nor is in a position to present them to the customs but that the owner has to have recourse to a self-employed or employee customs agent cannot constitute a measure having effect equivalent to a quantitative restriction since the other means of making the declaration offer him an effective and reasonable choice allowing him, if he thinks it is in his interest, to avoid having to have recourse to a professional customs agent: Case 159/78 EC Commission v Italy [1979] ECR 3247, [1980] 3 CMLR 446, ECJ. UPDATE

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(7) THE PLACING OF GOODS UNDER A CUSTOMS PROCEDURE/(iii) Declarations using Data-processing Techniques/87. Customs declarations made using a data-processing technique.

(iii) Declarations using Data-processing Techniques

87. Customs declarations made using a data-processing technique.

A customs declaration¹ may be made using a data-processing technique where this is provided for by provisions laid down in accordance with the committee procedure² or where authorised by the customs authorities³.

Under the conditions and in the manner which they are to determine, and with due regard to the principles laid down by customs rules, the customs authorities may provide that formalities must be carried out by a data-processing technique⁴. The conditions laid down for carrying out formalities by a data-processing technique are to include (inter alia) measures for checking the source of data and for protecting data against the risk of unauthorised access, loss, alteration or destruction⁵.

Where the customs declaration is made by a data-processing technique, the prescribed particulars of the written declaration⁶ are replaced by sending to the customs office designated for that purpose, with a view to their processing by computer, data in codified form or data made out in any other form specified by the customs authorities and corresponding to the particulars required for written declarations⁷.

A customs declaration made by electronic data interchange ('EDI') is considered to have been lodged when the EDI message is received by the customs authorities⁸. Acceptance of a customs declaration made by EDI is to be communicated to the declarant by means of a response message⁹; and, in such a case, the release of the goods must be notified to the declarant, indicating at least the identification details of the declaration and the date of release¹⁰.

Correspondingly, the customs authorities may, under the conditions and in the manner which they are to determine, authorise the documents required for the entry of goods for a customs procedure to be made out and transmitted by electronic means¹¹.

1 For the meaning of 'customs declaration' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 61(b). Where a customs declaration is made by means of a data-processing technique, arts 62-76 (see PARAS 85 ante, 96 et seq post) apply mutatis mutandis without prejudice to the principles set out therein: art 77. For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

4 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 4a(1), 1st para (art 4a added by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(2)). For these purposes, 'data-processing technique' means: (1) the exchange of EDI standard messages with the customs authorities; (2) the introduction of information required for completion of the formalities concerned into customs data-processing systems: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 4a(1), 2nd para (as so added). 'EDI' (electronic data interchange) means the transmission of data structured according to agreed message standards, between one computer system and another, by electronic means: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 4a(1), 2nd para (as so added). 'Standard message' means a predefined structure recognised for the electronic transmission of data: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 4a(1), 2nd para (as so added).

As to the waiver of the requirement to provide certain information for test programmes using data-processing techniques designed to evaluate possible simplifications see art 4c (added by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(1)).

5 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 4a(2) (as added: see note 4 supra). Where formalities are carried out by a data-processing technique, the customs authorities are also to determine the rules for replacement of the hand-written signature by another technique which may be based on the use of codes: art 4b (added by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(2)).

Where the declarant uses data-processing systems to produce his customs declarations, the customs authorities may provide that the handwritten signature may be replaced by another identification technique which may be based on the use of codes; but this facility may be granted only if the technical and administrative conditions laid down by the customs authorities are complied with: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 199(2), 1st para (added by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(11)). The customs authorities may also provide that declarations produced using customs data-processing systems may be directly authenticated by those systems, in place of the manual or mechanical application of the customs office stamp and the signature of the competent official: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 199(2), 2nd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(11)).

Under the conditions and in the manner which they are to determine, the customs authorities may allow some of the particulars of the written declaration referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 37 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1)) to be replaced by sending these particulars to the customs office designated for that purpose by electronic means, where appropriate in coded form: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 199(3) (added by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(11)).

As to security arrangements see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 4e (added by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1875 (OJ L360, 19.12.2006, p 64)).

As to electronic systems for the exchange of certain information between customs offices see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 4d (added by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1875 (OJ L360, 19.12.2006, p 64)).

6 le the particulars referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 37 (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

8 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 222(2), 1st para (as substituted: see note 7 supra). In such a case, the customs authorities must lay down the rules for implementing art 247 (verification of declaration and accompanying documents: see PARA 99 note 10 post): art 222(3) (as so substituted). Where the particulars of the customs declaration are introduced into the customs data-processing systems, art 222(2)-(4) (as substituted) applies mutatis mutandis: art 222(5) (as so substituted).

If a paper copy of the customs declaration is required for the completion of other formalities, this is, at the request of the declarant, to be produced and authenticated either by the customs office concerned, or, where provision has so been made, in accordance with art 199(2) (as added) (see note 5 supra): art 223 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(13)). For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

9 The message must contain at least the identification details of the message received and/or the registration number of the customs declaration and the date of acceptance: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 222(2), 2nd para (as substituted: see note 7 supra).

10 Ibid art 222(4) (as substituted: see note 7 supra).

11 Ibid art 224 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(13)).

(iv) Oral Declarations

88. Oral declarations for release for free circulation.

Customs declarations¹ may be made orally for the release for free circulation² of the following goods:

- 237 (1) goods of a non-commercial nature³ contained in travellers⁴ personal luggage, or sent to private individuals, or in other cases of negligible importance, where this is authorised by the customs authorities⁵;
- 238 (2) goods of a commercial nature, provided that the total value per consignment and per declarant⁶ does not exceed the statistical threshold laid down in the Community provisions in force, and the consignment is not part of a regular series of similar consignments, and the goods are not being carried by an independent carrier as part of a larger freight movement;
- 239 (3) goods for which an oral declaration may be made for their temporary importation⁷, where these qualify for relief as returned goods;
- 240 (4) certain agricultural products⁸ and means of transport⁹ entitled to relief as returned goods¹⁰.

If goods so declared orally to customs are subject to import¹¹ or export¹² duty, the customs authorities must issue a receipt to the person concerned against payment of the duty owing¹³.

(v) Declarations by any other Act

91. Acts considered to be customs declarations.

A customs declaration¹ may be made by means of any act whereby the holder of the goods expresses his wish to place them under a customs procedure², where such a possibility is provided for by the rules adopted in accordance with the committee procedure³.

In specified cases⁴, the act which is considered to be a customs declaration may take the following forms:

- 253 (1) in the case of goods conveyed to a customs office⁵ or to any other designated or approved place⁶:
- 10
- 16. (a) going through the green or 'nothing to declare' channel in customs offices where the two-channel system is in operation;
- 17. (b) going through a customs office which does not operate the two-channel system without spontaneously making a customs declaration; or
- 18. (c) affixing a 'nothing to declare' sticker or customs declaration disc to the windscreen of passenger vehicles where this possibility is provided for in national provisions⁷;
- 11
- 254 (2) in the case of exemption from the obligation to convey goods to customs⁸, the sole act of crossing the frontier of the customs territory of the Community⁹.

In cases where the conditions necessary for a customs declaration to be made by any other act¹⁰ are fulfilled, the goods are considered to have been presented to customs¹¹, and the declaration to have been accepted and release to have been granted, at the time when the act referred to in head (1) or head (2) above is carried out¹². Where a check reveals that that act has been carried out but the goods imported or taken out do not fulfil the necessary conditions¹³, the goods concerned are considered to have been imported or exported unlawfully¹⁴.

(vi) Postal Traffic

95. Declarations and postal traffic.

The following postal consignments are considered to have been declared to customs for release for free circulation¹ at the time when they are introduced into the customs territory of the Community²:

- 266 (1) postcards and letters containing personal messages only;
- 267 (2) Braille letters;
- 268 (3) printed matter not liable for import duties³; and
- 269 (4) all other consignments sent by letter or parcel post which are exempt⁴ from the obligation to be conveyed to customs⁵.

Consignments sent by letter or parcel post other than those referred to in heads (1) to (4) above are considered to have been declared for release for free circulation at the time when they are presented to customs, provided that they are accompanied by the appropriate declaration⁶.

The consignee, in each of the cases in heads (1) to (4) above, is considered to be the declarant⁷ and, where applicable, the debtor⁸; but the customs authorities may provide that the postal administration is to be considered as the declarant and, where applicable, as the debtor⁹. In the case of goods not liable to duty, those goods are considered to have been presented to customs¹⁰ and the customs declaration to have been accepted and release granted when the goods are delivered to the consignee¹¹.

Postal consignments are considered to have been declared to customs for export in the following cases:

- 270 (a) at the time when they are accepted by the postal authorities, in the case of consignments by letter and parcel post which are not liable to export duties; and
- 271 (b) at the time of their presentation to customs, in the case of consignments sent by letter or parcel post which are liable to export duties, if they are accompanied by the appropriate declaration¹².

The consignor, in each of the cases in heads (a) and (b) above, is considered to be the declarant and, where applicable, the debtor; but the customs authorities may provide that the postal administration is to be considered as the declarant and, where applicable, as the debtor¹³. In the case of goods not liable to duty, those goods are considered to have been presented to customs¹⁴ and the customs declaration to have been accepted and release granted when the goods are delivered to the consignor¹⁵.

None of the above provisions relating to the making of customs declarations on importation or exportation by post applies:

- 272 (i) to consignments containing goods for commercial purposes of an aggregate value exceeding the statistical threshold laid down by the Community provisions in force¹⁶;
- 273 (ii) to consignments containing goods for commercial purposes which form part of a regular series of like operations;
- 274 (iii) where a customs declaration¹⁷ is made in writing¹⁸, orally¹⁹ or using a data-processing technique²⁰; or
- 275 (iv) to consignments containing goods²¹ in respect of which the payment of refunds or other amounts or the repayment of duties is sought, or which are subject to a prohibition or restriction or to any other special formality²².

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(7) THE PLACING OF GOODS UNDER A CUSTOMS PROCEDURE/(vii) Simplified Procedures/96. Simplified procedures for customs declarations.

(vii) Simplified Procedures

96. Simplified procedures for customs declarations.

In order to simplify completion of formalities and procedures as far as possible, while ensuring that operations are conducted in a proper manner, customs authorities¹ must, under conditions laid down in accordance with the committee procedure², grant permission for:

- 276 (1) written customs declarations³ to omit certain particulars⁴ or for some of the requisite documents⁵ not to be attached;
- 277 (2) a commercial or administrative document, accompanied by a request for the goods to be placed under the customs procedure⁶ in question, to be lodged in place of the normal written declaration⁷; and
- 278 (3) the goods to be entered for the procedure in question by means of an entry in the records; and in this case the customs authorities may waive the requirement that the declarant⁸ presents the goods to customs⁹.

In every case, the simplified declaration, commercial or administrative document or entry in the records must contain at least the particulars necessary for identification of the goods; and where the goods are entered in the records, the date of such entry must be included¹⁰.

Except in cases to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure, the declarant must furnish a supplementary declaration which may be of a general, periodic or recapitulative nature¹¹.

There are three kinds of simplified procedure:

- 279 (a) the procedure for incomplete declarations, which allows the customs authorities to accept, in a duly justified case, a declaration which does not contain all the particulars required, or which is not accompanied by all the documents necessary for the customs procedure in question¹²;
- 280 (b) the simplified declaration procedure, which enables goods to be entered for the customs procedure in question on presentation of a simplified declaration with subsequent presentation of a supplementary declaration which may be of a general, periodic or recapitulative nature, as appropriate¹³; and
- 281 (c) the local clearance procedure, which enables the entry of goods for the customs procedure in question to be carried out at the premises of the person concerned, or at other places designated or approved by the customs authorities¹⁴.

Special simplified procedures for Community transit must also be laid down in accordance with the committee procedure¹⁵.

As to the relevant simplified procedures see: (1) EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 173-177 (simplified valuation techniques to be applied in respect of certain perishable goods); and (2) arts 253-289 (as amended) (general rules for the application of simplified procedures).

When a simplified procedure is applied using data-processing systems to produce customs declarations or using a data-processing technique, art 199(2), (3) (as added) (see PARA 87 note 5 ante) and arts 222-224 (see PARA 87 ante) apply mutatis mutandis: art 253a (added by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(18)). As to customs declarations made using a data-processing technique see PARA 87 ante.

The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may: (a) give such directions as they think fit for enabling an entry ('entry' being the term historically used in the United Kingdom for the necessary customs formalities) under the Customs Controls on Importation of Goods Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2724, reg 5 (as amended) (see PARAS 82 note 7, 85 note 8 ante) to consist of an initial entry and a supplementary entry where the importer is authorised to do so, in accordance with the directions; and (b) include in the directions such supplementary provision in connection with entries consisting of initial and supplementary entries as they think fit: see the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 37A(1) (as added, substituted and amended); and PARA 964 post. As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post.

11 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 76(2). Supplementary declarations and the simplified declarations referred to in art 76(1)(a)-(c) (see heads (1)-(3) in the text) are deemed to constitute a single, indivisible instrument taking effect on the date of acceptance of the simplified declarations; and, in the cases referred to in art 76(1)(c), entry in the records has the same legal force as acceptance of the declaration referred to in art 62 (see PARA 85 ante): art 76(3).

For the purposes of the customs and excise Acts, an entry of goods is taken to have been delivered when an initial entry of the goods has been delivered and accepted when an initial entry has been accepted: see the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 37A(4) (as added); and PARA 964 post.

An importer who makes an initial entry under the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 37A(1) (as added and substituted) (see PARA 964 post) must complete the entry by delivering the supplementary entry within such time as the Commissioners may direct: see s 37A(3) (as added and substituted); and PARA 964 post.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code

streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

(viii) Amendment and Invalidation of Declarations

97. Amendment of declarations.

A declarant¹ is, at his request, authorised to amend one or more of the particulars of the declaration after it has been accepted by customs; but the amendment does not have the effect of rendering the declaration applicable to goods other than those it originally covered². No amendment by the declarant is, however, permitted where authorisation is requested after the customs authorities³:

- 282 (1) have informed the declarant that they intend to examine the goods; or
- 283 (2) have established that the particulars in question are incorrect; or
- 284 (3) have released the goods⁴.

The customs authorities may allow or require the corrections to be so made by the lodging of a new declaration intended to replace the original declaration; and, in that event, the relevant date for determination of any duties payable and for the application of any other provisions governing the customs procedure⁵ in question is the date of the acceptance of the original declaration⁶.

Under domestic law, where goods have been entered for home use or for free circulation, the importer may correct any of the particulars contained in an entry of the goods after it has been accepted if:

- 285 (a) the goods have not been cleared from customs and excise charge; and
- 286 (b) the importer has not been notified by an officer that the goods are to be examined; and
- 287 (c) the entry has not been found by an officer to be incorrect⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante. EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 65 reads 'The declaration shall . . . ' but it is apprehended that it should read 'The declarant shall . . . '.

2 Ibid art 65, 1st para. It is to be inferred that a customs declaration may be amended without authorisation before it has been accepted: see Rosemans International Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 32 (unreported).

3 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 65, 2nd para. Although there is no right to amend the declaration after the goods have been released, art 78 (see PARA 103 post) gives the customs authorities the discretion to make post-release amendments. In the absence of such permission, the applicant is unable to depart from his declaration: Case C-79/89 Brown Boveri et Cie AG v Hauptzollamt Mannheim [1991] ECR I-1853, [1993] 1 CMLR 814, ECJ; Case C-11/89 Unifert Handels GmbH v Hauptzollamt Münster [1990] ECR I-2275, ECJ (where, in successive sales of goods, more than one price actually paid or payable fulfils the requirements laid down for determining the transaction value for customs valuation purposes, any of those prices may be chosen by the importer for the purposes of determining the transaction value). If, however, the importer has referred to one of those prices in the customs value declaration, he may not correct the declaration after the goods have been released for free circulation (cf the position of the customs authorities): see Case 357/87 Firma Albert Schmid v Hauptzollamt Stuttgart-West [1988] ECR 6239, [1990] 1 CMLR 605, ECJ.

On a proper interpretation of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 78 and art 236 (see PARAS 103, 312 post), after the release of the imported goods, the customs authorities, presented with an application from the declarant seeking revision of his customs declaration in relation to those goods, are required, subject to the possibility of a subsequent court action, either to reject the application by a reasoned decision or to carry out the revision applied for; where they find, at the conclusion of that revision, that the declared customs value erroneously included a buying commission, they are required to regularise the situation by reimbursing the import duties applied to that commission: Case C-468/03 Overland Footwear Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [2005] All ER (D) 234 (Oct), ECJ.

5 For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante.

7 See the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 38B(1) (as added); and PARA 966 post. The proper officer may permit or require any correction which may be made under s 38B(1) (as added) to be made by the delivery of a substituted entry: see s 38B(2) (as added); and PARA 966 post.

98. Invalidation of declarations.

At the request of a declarant¹, the customs authorities² must invalidate a declaration which has already been accepted, where the declarant furnishes proof that the goods were declared in error for the customs procedure³ covered by the declaration or that, as a result of special circumstances, the placing of the goods under the customs procedure for which they have been declared is no longer justified⁴. Nevertheless, where the customs authorities have informed the declarant of their intention to examine the goods, a request for invalidation is not to be accepted until after the examination has taken place⁵.

The declaration may not be invalidated after the goods have been released, except in cases defined in accordance with the committee procedure⁶.

Under domestic law, an entry of goods may, at the request of the importer, be cancelled at any time before the goods are cleared from customs and excise charge if he proves to the satisfaction of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs that the entry was delivered by mistake or that the goods cannot be cleared for free circulation⁷.

(ix) Verification of Declarations; Identification of Goods

99. Verification of declarations.

In order to carry out verifications of declarations which they have accepted, the customs authorities¹ may:

- 288 (1) examine the documents covering the declaration and the documents accompanying it, and require the declarant² to present other documents for the purpose of verifying the accuracy of the particulars contained in the declaration³;
- 289 (2) examine⁴ the goods⁵ and take samples for analysis or for detailed examination⁶.

Where only part of the goods covered by a declaration are examined, the results of the partial examination are considered to apply to all the goods covered by that declaration⁷. The declarant may, however, request a further examination of the goods if he considers that the results of the partial examination are not valid as regards the remainder of the goods declared⁸.

The results of verifying the declaration are to be used for the purposes of applying the provisions which govern the customs procedure⁹ under which the goods have been placed¹⁰; but, where the verification process is not applied, those provisions are to be applied on the basis of the particulars contained in the declaration¹¹.

1 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 68(a).

4 The goods are to be examined in the places designated and during the hours appointed for that purpose by the customs authorities; but the customs authorities may, at the request of the declarant, authorise the examination of goods in places or during other hours, any costs involved being borne by the declarant: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 239(1), (2). If the customs authorities elect to examine goods, they must so inform the declarant or his representative: art 240(1). Where they decide to examine a part of the goods only, the customs authorities, whose choice is final, must inform the declarant or his representative which items they wish to examine: art 240(2).

5 Transport of the goods to the places where they are to be examined and samples are to be taken, and all the handling necessitated by such examination or taking of samples, must be carried out by or under the responsibility of the declarant: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 69(1). The costs incurred are to be borne by the declarant: art 69(1). The declarant is entitled to be present when the goods are examined and when samples are taken; and where the customs authorities deem it appropriate, they may require him to be present or represented when the goods are examined or samples are taken in order to provide them with the assistance necessary to facilitate such examination or taking of samples: art 69(2). The customs authorities are not liable for payment of any compensation in respect of any sampling carried out, provided that it is done in accordance with the provisions in force; but they must bear the costs of the analysis or examination: art 69(3). For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'provisions in force' see PARA 77 note 4 ante.

The declarant or the person designated by him must be present at the examination of the goods and must render the customs authorities the assistance required to facilitate their work: EC Commission Regulation

2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 241(1). If the customs authorities consider the assistance rendered unsatisfactory, they may require the declarant to designate another person able to give the necessary assistance: art 241(1). If the declarant refuses to be present at the examination of the goods or to designate a person able to give the assistance which the customs authorities consider necessary, the customs authorities must set a deadline for compliance, unless they consider that such an examination may be dispensed with: art 241(2), 1st para. If, on expiry of the deadline, the declarant has not complied with the requirements of the customs authorities, the latter must proceed with the examination of the goods, at the declarant's risk and expense, calling on the services of an expert or any other person designated in accordance with the provisions in force: art 241(2), 2nd para. The findings made by the customs authorities during the examination carried out under the conditions referred to in art 241(2) have the same validity as if the examination had been carried out in the declarant's presence: art 241(3). Alternatively, instead of the measures laid down in art 241(2), (3), the customs authorities have the option of deeming a declaration invalid if it is clear that the declarant's refusal to be present at the examination or to designate a person able to give the necessary assistance neither prevents nor seeks to prevent the authorities from finding that the rules governing the entry of the goods for the relevant customs procedure have been breached, and neither evades nor seeks to evade the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 66(1) (invalidation of customs declaration at the request of the declarant: see PARA 98 ante) or art 80(2) (see PARA 85 ante): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 241(4).

6 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 68(b). Where the customs authorities decide to take samples, they must inform the declarant or his representative: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 242(1). The samples are to be taken by the customs authorities themselves; but they may ask that it be done under their supervision by the declarant or a person designated by him: art 242(2), 1st para. Samples must be taken in accordance with the methods laid down in the provisions in force: art 242(2), 2nd para. The quantities taken as samples should not exceed what is needed for analysis or more detailed examination including possible check analysis: art 242(3).

The declarant or the designated person must render the customs authorities all the assistance needed to facilitate the operation: art 243(1). Where the declarant refuses to be present or to designate a person to attend the taking of samples, the provisions of art 241(1), 2nd sentence and of art 241(2)-(4) (see note 5 supra) apply: art 243(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 482/96 (OJ L70, 20.3.96, p 4) art 1(2)).

Where the customs authorities take samples for analysis or more detailed examination, they must authorise the release of the goods in question without waiting for the results of the analysis or examination, unless there are other grounds for not doing so, and provided that, where a customs debt has been or is likely to be incurred, the duties in question have already been entered in the accounts and paid or secured: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 244. For the meaning of 'customs debt' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 70(1), 1st para. Where, however, a declaration form covers two or more items, the particulars relating to each item are to be treated as constituting a separate declaration: art 70(2). If the customs authorities decide to examine a part only of the goods, they must inform the declarant or his representative of which items they wish to examine; and their choice is final: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 240(2).

9 For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante.

10 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 71(1). The customs authorities must indicate the basis and results of any verification or examination in the copy of the declaration which they retain, together with the particulars of the consignment examined in cases of partial examination: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 247(1). In cases where the result of the verification of the declaration and accompanying documents or examination of the goods is not in accordance with the particulars given in the declaration, the customs authorities must specify the particulars to be taken into account for the purposes of the application of charges on the goods in question and, where appropriate, calculating any refunds or other amounts payable on exportation, and for applying the other provisions governing the customs procedure for which the goods are entered: art 247(2).

(x) Release of Goods

101. Release of goods covered by a declaration.

Where the conditions for placing goods under a customs procedure¹ are fulfilled and provided that the goods are not subject to any prohibitive or restrictive measures, the customs authorities² must³ release the goods⁴ as soon as the particulars in the declaration have been verified, or have been accepted without verification; and the same applies where the verification cannot be completed within a reasonable period of time and the goods are no longer required to be present for verification purposes⁵. All the goods covered by the same declaration must be released at the same time⁶.

The granting of release gives rise to the entry in the accounts⁷ of the import duties, which entry is to be determined in accordance with the particulars contained in the customs declaration; and if the customs authorities consider that the checks which they have undertaken may enable an amount of import duties higher than that resulting from the particulars made in the declaration to be assessed, they must require a security to be lodged sufficient to cover the difference between the amount due according to the particulars in the declaration and the amount which may finally prove payable on the goods⁸. However, the declarant⁹ may, instead of lodging such security, request the immediate entry in the accounts of the amount of duties to which the goods may ultimately be liable¹⁰.

If, however, on the basis of the checks which they have carried out, the customs authorities assess an amount of import duties different from the amount which results from the particulars contained in the declaration, the release of the goods gives rise to an immediate entry in the accounts of the amount so assessed¹¹.

If the acceptance of a customs declaration gives rise to a customs debt, the goods covered by the declaration must not be released unless the customs debt has been paid or secured¹². Similarly, where the customs authorities require the provision of a security, pursuant to the provisions governing the customs procedure for which the goods are declared, the goods must not be released until the security has been provided¹³.

3 le without prejudice to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 74: see PARA 277 post.

4 The customs authorities are to determine the form of release, taking due account of the place in which the goods are located and of the special arrangements for their supervision: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 249(1). If the declaration is made in writing, a reference to the release and its date must be made on the declaration or, where applicable, on a document attached, and a copy returned to the declarant: art 249(2).

6 Ibid art 73(2), 1st para. Where, however, a declaration form covers two or more items, the particulars relating to each item are deemed to constitute a separate declaration: art 73(2), 2nd para.

7 For the meaning of 'entry in the accounts' see PARA 296 post.

8 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 248(1) (corrected by the corrigendum published in OJ L180, 19.7.96, p 34). For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante. As to verification of declarations see PARA 99 ante; and as to the calculation of duty payable see PARA 296 et seq post.

The customs authorities may, however, refrain from taking security in respect of goods which are the subject of a drawing request on a tariff quota if they determine, at the time when the declaration for release for free circulation is accepted, that the tariff quota is non-critical, within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 308c (as added): art 248(4) (added by EC Commission Regulation 1427/97 (OJ L196, 24.7.97, p 31) art 1(1)). For these purposes, a tariff quota is to be considered as critical as soon as 75% of the initial volume has been used, or at the discretion of the competent authorities: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 308c(1) (art 308c added by EC Commission Regulation 1427/97 art 1(4); and substituted by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(7)). By way of derogation from the above, a tariff quota is to be considered from the date of its opening as critical in any of the following cases: (1) where it is opened for less than three months; (2) where tariff quotas having the same product coverage and origin and an equivalent quota period as the tariff quota in question (equivalent tariff quotas) have not been opened in the previous two years; (3) where an equivalent tariff quota opened in the previous two years had been exhausted on or before the last day of the third month of its quota period or had a higher initial volume than the tariff quota in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 308c(2) (as so added and substituted). A tariff quota whose sole purpose is the application, under the rules of the World Trade Organisation, of either a safeguard measure or a retaliatory measure is to be considered as critical as soon as 75% of the initial volume has been used irrespective of whether or not equivalent tariff quotas were opened in the previous two years: art 308c(3) (as so added and substituted).

The issue arose, but was not resolved, whether the requirement to seek security is permissive or directory, having regard to other language versions of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 248(2), in Shaneel Enterprises Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [1996] V & DR 23 (where the decision to require security was reviewed on the basis that it was normative).

12 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 74(1). However, without prejudice to art 74(2) (see the text and note 13 infra), art 74(1) does not apply to the temporary importation procedure with partial relief from import duties (see PARA 193 post): art 74(1).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(7) THE PLACING OF GOODS UNDER A CUSTOMS PROCEDURE/(x) Release of Goods/102. Goods which cannot be released.

102. Goods which cannot be released.

Customs authorities¹ must take any necessary measures, including confiscation and sale, to deal with goods which cannot be released:

- 290 (1) because it has not been possible to undertake or continue examination of the goods within the period prescribed by the customs authorities for reasons attributable to the declarant²; or
- 291 (2) because the documents which must be produced before the goods can be placed under the customs procedure³ requested have not been produced; or
- 292 (3) because the payments or security which should have been made or provided in respect of import duties⁴ or export duties⁵, as the case may be, have not been made or provided within the period prescribed⁶; or
- 293 (4) because the goods are subject to bans or restrictions⁷.

If the customs authorities have been unable to grant release for one of the reasons specified in head (2) or head (3) above, they must set a time limit for the declarant to regularise the situation of the goods⁸.

The customs authorities must also take all such measures as may be necessary to deal with goods which are not removed within a reasonable period after their release⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'export duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

6 In security cases, the deposit or guarantee need not accompany the declaration; the declaration must state that security is to be provided and how it is to be provided and, if it is to be by deposit, the relevant forms must accompany the declaration. The actual provision of the security is necessary for the release of the goods but not for the acceptance of the declaration: Rosemans International Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 32 (unreported).

7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 75(a). The rule is subject to the general Community principle of proportionality: see the authorities cited in PARA 82 note 10 ante. As to the procedure for uncleared and unexamined goods see the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 40 (as amended); and PARA 968 post.

If the customs authorities have doubts about whether or not a prohibition or restriction applies and this cannot be resolved until the results of the checks the authorities have carried out are available, the goods in question cannot be released: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 248(3).

8 Ibid art 250(1). If, in the circumstances referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 75(a), 2nd indent (see head (2) in the text), the declarant fails to produce the requisite documents within the time limit so given by the customs authorities, the declaration is deemed to be invalid and must be cancelled by the customs office: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 250(2).

In the circumstances referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 75(a), 3rd indent (see head (3) in the text), and without prejudice to any measures taken under art 66(1), 1st para (see PARA 98 ante) or art 182 (see PARA 221 post), where the declarant has neither paid nor guaranteed the duties due within the given time limit, the customs authorities may start the preliminary formalities for the sale of the goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 250(3), 1st para. In this case, the goods must be sold, unless the requisite conditions are fulfilled in the interim, if necessary by forced sale, where the law of the member state of the authorities in question so permits: art 250(3), 1st para. The customs authorities must inform the declarant that the goods are to be sold: art 250(3), 1st para. The customs authorities may, at the risk and expense of the declarant, transfer the goods in question to special premises under their supervision: art 250(3), 2nd para.

9 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 75(b). Where customs authorities sell Community goods in accordance with this provision, it is to be done in accordance with the procedures in force in the member states: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 252 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 3665/93 (OJ L335, 31.12.93, p 1) art 1(16)).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. (xi) Post-clearance Examination 103. The post-clearance examination of declarations.

The customs authorities¹ may, on their own initiative or at the request of the declarant², amend the declaration after release of the goods³. They may also, after releasing the goods and in order to satisfy themselves as to the accuracy of the particulars contained in the declaration, inspect the commercial documents and data relating to the import or export operations in respect of the goods concerned or to subsequent commercial operations involving those goods; these inspections may be carried out at the premises of the declarant, of any other person directly or indirectly involved in those operations in a business capacity, or of any other person in possession of the commercial documents and data for business purposes; and the customs authorities may also examine the goods where it is still possible for them to be produced⁴.

If the revision of the declaration or the post-clearance examination indicates that the provisions governing the customs procedure concerned have been applied on the basis of incorrect or incomplete information, the customs authorities must, in accordance with any provisions laid down, take the measures necessary to regularise the situation, taking account of the new information available to them⁵.

The effect is to make it exceptionally difficult for the declarant to recover excess duty paid in consequence of an error in his declaration. However, by amending the declaration, the customs authorities become entitled to make a post-clearance demand for duty: see art 220; and PARA 298 post. NOTE 5--See Cases C-430/08 and C-431/08 Terex Equipment Ltd v Revenue and Customs Comrs [2010] STC 575, ECJ.

(8) RELEASE FOR FREE CIRCULATION

104. Release for free circulation.

Release for free circulation confers on non-Community goods¹ the customs status of Community goods². Products coming from a third country are to be considered to be in free circulation in a member state if the import formalities have been complied with, and any customs duties or charges having equivalent effect which are payable have been levied in that state, and provided that they have not benefited from a total or partial drawback³ of such duties or charges⁴. Subject to specified exceptions⁵, all goods in the customs territory of the Community⁶ are deemed to be Community goods unless it is established that they do not have Community status⁷.

Release for free circulation entails the application of commercial policy measures⁸, completion of the other formalities laid down in respect of the importation of goods⁹ and the charging of any duties legally due¹⁰.

A customs debt¹¹ is incurred through the release for free circulation of goods liable for import duties¹² and is incurred at the time of acceptance of the customs declaration¹³. The debtor¹⁴ is the declarant¹⁵, except in a case of indirect representation¹⁶, when the person on whose behalf the customs declaration is made is also a debtor¹⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 79(1), 1st para. For the meaning of 'Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante. As to loss of status as Community goods see PARA 106 post. The measures laid down in the provisions of the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') dealing with the liberalisation of intra-community trade are applicable without distinction to products originating in the member states and to those coming from non-member states which have been put into free circulation in the Community. Once the latter products have been duly imported into the Community in accordance with the provisions in force relating to tariffs and trade, they are definitively and wholly assimilated to products originating in member states: Case 288/83 EC Commission v Ireland [1985] ECR 1761, [1985] 3 CMLR 152, ECJ.

3 As to drawback see PARA 170 post.

4 EC Treaty art 24 (renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). Since 1 January 1993, and the abolition of fiscal frontiers, the procedure has been one of release for free circulation within the Community, rather than within a particular member state. However, even before that date, it had been established that goods imported into the Community from a third country were to be treated as in free circulation in a member state if the import formalities had been complied with and the customs duties had been paid in another member state: Case C-83/89 Openbaar Ministerie and Minister van Financien v Vincent Houben [1990] ECR I-1161, [1991] 2 CMLR 321, ECJ.

5 Ie subject to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 180 (see PARAS 216, 220 post) and the exceptions listed in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 313(2) (as substituted) (see PARA 105 post).

6 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

7 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 313(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 75/98 (OJ L7, 13.1.98, p 3) art 1(4)).

8 For these purposes, 'commercial policy measures' means non-tariff measures established, as part of the common commercial policy, in the form of Community provisions governing the import and export of goods, such as surveillance or safeguard measures, quantitative restrictions or limits and import or export prohibitions: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 1(7). The expression 'commercial policy measures' is not, however, defined in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1); but as to the common commercial policy of the Community see PARA 347 et seq post.

9 The following documents must accompany the customs declaration for release for free circulation: (1) the invoice on the basis of which the customs value of the goods is declared, as required under EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 181 (see PARA 74 ante); (2) where it is required under art 178 (as amended) (see PARA 74 ante), the declaration of particulars for the assessment of the customs value of the goods declared, drawn up in accordance with the conditions laid down therein; (3) the documents required for the application of preferential tariff arrangements or other measures derogating from the legal rules applicable to the goods declared; and (4) all other documents required for the application of the provisions governing the release for free circulation of the goods declared: art 218(1). The customs authorities may require transport documents or documents relating to the previous customs procedure, if appropriate, to be produced when the declaration is lodged: art 218(2), 1st para. If a single item is presented in two or more packages, the customs authorities may also require the production of a packing list or equivalent document indicating the contents of each package: art 218(2), 2nd para. If, however, goods qualify for the flat rate of duty referred to in the preliminary provisions of the Combined Nomenclature Section II(D), or if goods qualify for relief from import duties, the documents described in heads (1)-(3) supra are not obligatory unless the customs authorities consider it necessary for the purpose of applying the provisions governing the release of goods for free circulation: art 218(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 482/96 (OJ L70, 20.3.96, p 4) art 1(1)). As to the Combined Nomenclature see PARA 10 note 2 ante.

10 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 79, 2nd para. As to the simplified administrative procedures which may be followed on release for free circulation see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 254-267 (as amended).

11 For the meaning of 'customs debt' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

13 See EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 201(2); and PARA 277 post. As to the incurring of customs debts, and as to the measures for their recovery, see PARA 277 et seq post. See also the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 43 (as amended); and PARA 970 post.

The Council may, acting by a qualified majority on a proposal from the Commission, determine the cases in which, on account of special circumstances, relief from import or export duties is to be granted on release for free circulation or exportation: see EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 184; and PARA 224 post.

14 For the meaning of 'debtor' see PARA 95 note 8 ante.

15 For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

16 As to fiscal representatives see PARA 84 ante.

17 See EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 201(3), 1st para; and PARA 277 post. In addition, where a customs declaration in respect of (inter alia) the release of goods for free circulation is drawn up on the basis of information which leads to all or part of the duties legally owed not being collected, the persons who provided the information required to draw up the declaration and who knew, or who ought reasonably to have known that such information was false, may also be considered debtors in accordance with the national provisions in force: see art 201(3), 2nd para; and PARA 277 post.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

105. Goods not deemed to be Community goods.

The following are not deemed to be Community goods¹ unless it is established² that they do have Community status:

- 294 (1) goods brought into the customs territory of the Community³;
- 295 (2) goods in temporary storage or in a free zone of control type I⁴ or in a free warehouse⁵;
- 296 (3) goods placed under a suspensive procedure or in a free zone of control type II⁶.

Goods brought into the customs territory of the Community are nevertheless deemed to be Community goods unless it is established that they do not have Community status:

- 297 (a) where, if carried by air, the goods have been loaded or transhipped at an airport in the Community customs territory, for consignment to another airport in the Community customs territory, provided that they are carried under cover of a single transport document drawn up in a member state; or
- 298 (b) where, if carried by sea, the goods have been shipped between ports in the Community customs territory by a duly authorised⁷ regular shipping service⁸.

Where a shipping company defining its service makes an application, the customs authorities of a member state in whose territory that company is established may, with the agreement of the other member states concerned, authorise the establishment of a regular shipping service⁹. Authorisation may be so granted only to shipping companies which:

- 299 (i) are established in the Community and whose records will be available to the competent customs authorities;
- 300 (ii) have not committed any serious or repeated offences in connection with the operation of a regular shipping service;
- 301 (iii) are able to satisfy the customs authorities that they operate a regular shipping service; and
- 302 (iv) undertake that, on the routes for which authorisation is requested, no calls will be made at any port in a third country or at any free zone of control type I in a port in the customs territory of the Community, and that no transhipments will be made on the high seas, and that the authorisation certificate will be carried on board and presented on request to the competent customs authorities¹⁰.

Once authorisation has been granted, it must be used by the shipping company; and any withdrawal or change in the characteristics of the service must be notified by the company to the authorising authorities¹¹.

Where goods are not deemed to be Community goods, their Community status may not be so established¹² unless:

- 303 (A) they have been brought from another member state without crossing the territory of a third country on the way; or

- 304 (b) they have been brought from another member state through the territory of a third country, and carried under cover of a single transport document issued in a member state; or
- 305 (c) they have been transhipped in a third country on a means of transport other than that onto which they were initially loaded and a new transport document has been issued, provided that the new transport document is accompanied by a copy of the original document covering carriage from the member state of departure to the member state of destination, and, in such a case, the customs authorities at the customs office of destination must carry out post-clearance checks to determine the accuracy of the information entered in the copy of the original transport document¹³.

8 Ibid art 313(2), 1st para (as substituted: see note 6 supra). For these purposes, 'regular shipping service' means a regular service which carries goods in vessels that ply only between ports situated in the customs territory of the Community and may not come from, go to or call at any points outside this territory or in a free zone of control type I within the meaning of art 799 (see PARA 213 post) of a port in this territory: art 313a(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(12)). The customs authorities may require proof that the provisions on authorised shipping services have been observed; and where they establish that the provisions on authorised shipping services have not been observed, they must inform all customs authorities concerned: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 313a(2) (substituted by EC Council Regulation 75/98 (OJ L7, 13.1.98, p 3) art 1(4)).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

(9) COMMUNITY TRANSIT

(i) In general

108. In general.

Transit is a form of customs procedure¹. There are two types of transit procedure:

- 308 (1) the external transit procedure²; and
- 309 (2) the internal transit procedure³.

The advantage of the transit procedure is that it enables goods already placed under a transit procedure which are brought into the customs territory of the Community⁴ to avoid the immediate application of customs formalities⁵, at least, in the case of non-Community goods⁶, until the goods have reached their destination in the customs territory of the Community and have been presented to customs in accordance with the rules governing transit⁷.

The procedures relating to Community transit apply to external and internal Community transit, except if provided otherwise⁸. The Community transit procedure is compulsory in respect of goods carried by air only if they are loaded or reloaded at an airport in the Community⁹. Use of the Community transit procedure is compulsory for goods carried by sea if they are carried by a regular authorised¹⁰ shipping service¹¹.

1 See EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 4(16)(b); and PARA 83 head (2) ante. In order to secure compliance with the relevant Community provisions, the Customs and Excise (Transit) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/1353, have been made, coming into force on 23 June 1993 (reg 1). In the event of any contravention of any relevant Community provision, or any requirement or condition imposed by or under any such provision, the person responsible for the contravention or failure and the person then in charge of the goods are each liable on summary conviction to a penalty of level 5 on the standard scale; and any goods in respect of which the offence was committed are liable to forfeiture: reg 3. The Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 139, Sch 3 (as amended) (detention, seizure and condemnation of goods: see PARA 1155 et seq post) apply to any goods liable to forfeiture under the Customs and Excise (Transit) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/1353, reg 3 as if the goods were liable to forfeiture under the customs and excise Acts: Customs and Excise (Transit) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/1353, reg 4(1). The Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 ss 144-148, 150-155 (as amended) (proceedings for offences, mitigation of penalties, proof and other matters: see PARA 1166 et seq post) apply in relation to offences and penalties under the Customs and Excise (Transit) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/1353, reg 3 and to proceedings for such offences or for condemnation of anything as being forfeited under reg 3 as they apply in relation to offences and penalties and proceedings for offences or for condemnation under the customs and excise Acts: Customs and Excise (Transit) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/1353, reg 4(2). As to the standard scale see PARA 79 note 3 ante.

2 As to the external transit procedure see PARA 109 et seq post.

3 As to the internal transit procedure see PARAS 112-114 post.

4 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 54. The provisions of art 38, other than art 38(1)(a) (see PARA 78 ante), and arts 39-53 (see PARA 78 et seq ante) do not apply when such goods are brought into the customs territory of the Community: art 54. 'The development of Community transit thus enabled importers to convey their goods from the frontier to public warehouses situated in the interior of the country without paying duties and taxes. In those warehouses, importers may have customs clearance operations carried out and they also have the opportunity to place the goods in temporary storage there, in particular when they do not wish to assign the goods immediately to a specific customs procedure': Case 133/82 EC Commission v Luxembourg [1983] ECR 1669, ECJ; and see Case 132/82 EC Commission v Belgium [1983] ECR 1649, [1983] 3 CMLR 600, ECJ.

The existence within the Community of a customs union characterised by the free movement of goods implies freedom of transit within the Community. That freedom of transit means that a member state may not apply to goods in its territory in transit to or from another member state transit duties or other charges imposed in respect of transit. The imposition of charges or fees which represent the costs of transportation or of other services connected with transit cannot, however, be regarded as incompatible with freedom of transit as defined above, bearing in mind that it is necessary to take account not only of direct and specific services connected with the movement of goods but also of the more general benefits derived from the use of harbour waters or installations for the navigability and maintenance of which the public authorities are responsible: Case 266/81 Società Italiana per l'Oleodotto Transalpino v Ministero delle Finanze [1983] ECR 731, [1984] 2 CMLR 231, ECJ; Case C-367/89 Richardt and Les Accessoires Scientifiques SNC [1991] ECR I-4621, [1992] 1 CMLR 61, ECJ. Even though completion of the customs procedures in the economic agent's own country confers certain advantages, they are linked with the customs formalities which, regardless of where they are completed, are obligatory in all cases. Moreover, those advantages derive from the Community transit procedure which was established in order to make goods flow more freely and to facilitate transport within the Community. There can, therefore, be no question of levying any charges for customs clearance facilities accorded in the interests of the common market. In those circumstances, a member state is in breach of its obligations under the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') arts 23, 25 (as renumbered) if, in respect of intra-Community trade, it charges economic agents the costs of inspections and administrative formalities carried out by customs offices: Case C-16/94 Edouard Dubois et Fils SA v Garonor Exploitation SA [1995] ECR I-2421, [1995] All ER (EC) 821, [1995] 2 CMLR 771, ECJ.

10 Ie authorised in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 313a, 313b (as added).

11 Ibid art 340e(2) (as added: see note 9 supra). This is without prejudice to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 91(1) (as amended) (see PARA 109 post).

109. The external transit procedure.

The external transit procedure¹ allows the movement, from one point to another within the customs territory of the Community², of:

- 310 (1) non-Community goods³, without their being subject to import duties⁴ and other charges⁵ or to commercial policy measures⁶; and
- 311 (2) Community goods⁷, in cases and on conditions determined in accordance with the committee procedure⁸, in order to prevent products covered by or benefiting from export measures from either evading or benefiting unjustifiably from such measures⁹.

1 The external transit procedure applies without prejudice to the specific provisions applicable to the movement of goods placed under a customs procedure with economic impact: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 91(3). UPDATE

4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

112. The internal transit procedure.

The internal transit procedure allows, under certain conditions¹, the movement of Community goods² from one point to another within the customs territory of the Community³ passing through the territory of a third country without any change in their customs status⁴.

The conditions under which Community goods may move, without being subject to a customs procedure⁵, from one point to another within the customs territory of the Community and temporarily out of that territory without alteration of their customs status are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure⁶.

1 le under the conditions laid down in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 163(2)-(4): see PARAS 113-114 post. Goods to which the Community transit procedure applies may be carried between two points in the Community customs territory via the territory of a third country other than an EFTA country provided that they are carried through that third country under cover of a single transport document drawn up in a member state; where this is so, the effect of the transit procedure is suspended in the territory of the third country: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 340d (added by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). See eg Case 99/83 Fioravanti v Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato [1984] ECR 3939, ECJ. For the meaning of 'EFTA country' see PARA 109 note 9 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 163(1). For the meaning of 'customs status' see PARA 77 note 5 ante. Article 163(1) is without prejudice to the application of art 91(1)(b) (see PARA 109 head (2) ante): art 163(1). Community goods are to be placed under the internal Community transit procedure if they are consigned: (1) from a part of the customs territory of the Community where the provisions of EC Council Directive 77/388 (OJ L145, 13.6.77, p 1) apply, to a part of the customs territory of the Community where those provisions do not apply; or (2) from a part of the customs territory of the Community where the provisions of EC Council Directive 77/388 (OJ L145, 13.6.77, p 1) do not apply, to a part of the customs territory of the Community where those provisions do apply; or (3) from a part of the customs territory of the Community where the provisions of EC Council Directive 77/388 (OJ L145, 13.6.77, p 1) do not apply, to a part of the customs territory of the Community where those provisions do not apply either: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 340c(1) (art 340c added by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). Community goods which are consigned from one point in the customs territory of the Community to another through the territory of one or more EFTA countries pursuant to the Convention on a Common Transit Procedure (20 May 1987; OJ L226, 13.8.87, p 2), are to be placed under the internal Community transit procedure: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 340c(2), 1st para (as so added). However, such goods which are carried entirely by sea or air are not required to be placed under the internal Community transit procedure: art 340c(2), 2nd para (as so added). The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

114. Operation of the internal Community transit procedure.

Most of the provisions of the Community Customs Code which govern the operation of the external Community transit procedure¹ apply² mutatis mutandis to the internal Community transit procedure³.

Accordingly, the internal transit procedure ends and the obligations of the holder must be met when the goods placed under the procedure and the required documents are produced at the customs office of destination⁴ in accordance with the provisions of the procedure in question⁵.

Similarly, the principal⁶ is obliged, in the circumstances specified by the Community Customs Code, to provide a guarantee in order to ensure the payment of any customs debt⁷ or other charges which might be incurred in relation to the goods⁸.

The detailed rules for the operation of the procedure and the exemptions are determined in accordance with the committee procedure⁹.

1 le EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 92 (as substituted) (see PARA 116 post), art 94 (as substituted) (see PARAS 124, 132 post), art 95 (see PARA 124 post), art 96 (see PARA 123 post) and art 97 (as substituted) (see PARA 129 post).

2 le in the case referred to in ibid art 163(2)(a): see PARA 113 head (1) ante.

3 Ibid art 163(3).

4 For these purposes, 'office of destination' means the customs office where goods placed under the Community transit procedure must be presented in order to end the procedure: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 340b(3) (added by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). Each member state must provide the Commission with a list, in the agreed format, of the customs offices competent to handle Community transit operations, indicating their respective identification numbers and duties and stating the days and hours when they are open; and any changes to this information must be communicated to the Commission: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 343 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). The Commission must communicate this information to the other member states: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 343 (as so substituted).

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 92(1), 163(3) (art 92 substituted by EC Council Regulation 955/1999 (OJ L119, 7.5.99 p 1) art 1(2)).

6 For these purposes, the principal is the person holding the internal Community transit procedure: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 96(1), 163(3). As to the responsibilities of the principal and any carrier or recipient of the goods in question see PARA 123 post.

As to the cases in which a guarantee need not be furnished, and as to the nature of the requisite guarantee, see PARA 123 et seq post. As to guarantee waivers see PARA 132 et seq post.

9 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 97(1), 163(3) (art 97 substituted by EC Council Regulation 955/1999 (OJ L119, 7.5.99 p 1) art 1(5)). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. As to the operation of the internal Community transit procedure see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 340a et seq (as amended).

Provided that the implementation of Community measures applying to goods is guaranteed: (1) member states have the right, by bilateral or multilateral arrangement, to establish between themselves simplified procedures consistent with criteria to be set according to the circumstances and applying to certain types of goods traffic or specific undertakings; (2) each member state has the right to establish simplified procedures in certain circumstances for goods not required to move in the territory of another member state: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 97(2), 163(3) (art 97 as so substituted).

(ii) Procedure

A. MEANS OF TRANSPORT AND DECLARATIONS

115. Transit declarations.

Each transit declaration must include only the goods loaded or to be loaded on a single means of transport¹ for carriage from one office of departure² to one office of destination³. A single means of transport may be used for loading goods at more than one office of departure and for unloading at more than one office of destination⁴.

Transit declarations must comply with the specified structure and particulars⁵, and must be lodged at the office of departure using a data-processing technique⁶. Nevertheless, the customs authorities⁷ must accept a transit declaration made in writing on a form corresponding to the specimen of the single administrative document⁸ and in accordance with the procedure defined by the customs authorities in agreement with each other if: (1) the customs authorities' computerised transit system is not functioning; or (2) the principal's application is not functioning⁹. Where the goods are transported by travellers who have no direct access to the customs' computerised system and so have no means of lodging the transit declaration using a data-processing technique at the office of departure, the customs authorities must authorise the traveller to use a transit declaration made in writing on a form corresponding to the specimen of the single administrative document¹⁰. In this case the customs authorities must ensure that the transit data is exchanged between customs authorities using information technology and computer networks¹¹.

In the case of consignments comprising both goods which must be placed under the external Community transit procedure¹² and goods which must be placed under the internal Community transit procedure¹³, the transit declaration bearing the 'T' symbol must be supplemented by: (a) continuation sheets bearing the 'T1bis', 'T2bis' or 'T2Fbis' symbol, as appropriate; or (b) loading lists bearing the 'T1', 'T2' or 'T2F' symbol, as appropriate¹⁴.

Where a transit declaration is processed at an office of departure by a computer system, copies number 4 and number 5 of the declaration must be replaced by a transit accompanying document corresponding to the prescribed¹⁵ specimen and notes¹⁶. In these circumstances the office of departure must retain the declaration and authorise release of the goods by issuing the transit accompanying document to the principal¹⁷. Where appropriate, the transit accompanying document must be supplemented by a list of items corresponding to the prescribed¹⁸ specimen and notes; this list forms an integral part of the transit accompanying document¹⁹. Where authorised, the transit accompanying document may be printed out from the principal's computer system²⁰.

1 For these purposes, the following are to be regarded as constituting a single means of transport, on condition that the goods carried are to be dispatched together: (1) a road vehicle accompanied by its trailer or trailers or semi-trailer or semi-trailers; (2) a set of coupled railway carriages or wagons; (3) boats constituting a single chain; (4) containers loaded on a single means of transport within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 349 (as substituted): art 349(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)).

2 For these purposes, 'office of departure' means the customs office where declarations placing goods under the Community transit procedure are accepted: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 340b(1) (art 340b added by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

B. FORMALITIES AT OFFICE OF DEPARTURE

116. Route and time limit.

Goods placed under the Community transit procedure¹ must be carried to the office of destination² along an economically justified route³. The office of departure must set a time limit within which the goods must be presented at the office of destination, taking into account the itinerary, any current transport or other legislation and, where appropriate, the details communicated by the principal⁴.

The time limit prescribed by the office of departure is binding on the customs authorities of the member states whose territory is entered during a Community transit operation and may not be altered by those authorities⁵. Where the goods are presented at the office of destination after expiry of the time limit prescribed by the office of departure and where this failure to comply with the time limit is due to circumstances which are explained to the satisfaction of the office of destination and are not attributable to the carrier or the principal, the latter will be deemed to have complied with the time limit prescribed⁶.

The Community transit procedure ends when the goods and the corresponding documents have been produced at the customs office of destination in accordance with the provisions of the relevant customs procedure⁷.

1 As to the Community transit procedure see PARA 108 et seq ante.

2 For the meaning of 'office of destination' see PARA 114 note 4 ante.

3 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 355(1) (art 355 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). Without prejudice to the power to grant an exemption from the requirement to follow a prescribed itinerary (see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 387 (as substituted and amended); and PARA 138 post), for goods in Annex 44c (as added), or when the customs authorities or the principal consider it necessary, the office of departure must prescribe an itinerary and enter in box 44 of the transit declaration at least the member states to be transited, taking into account any details communicated by the principal: art 355(2) (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'office of departure' see PARA 115 note 2 ante. As to the principal see PARA 114 note 6 ante. The goods involving higher risk of fraud are listed in Annex 44c (added by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(66), Annex VII). When a provision of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) refers to that Annex, any measure related to goods in that Annex applies only when the quantity of those goods exceeds the corresponding minimum: art 340a, 2nd para (art 340a added by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1((25)). EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 44c (as added) must be reviewed at least once a year: art 340a, 2nd para (as so added).

117. Sealing of goods.

Goods to be placed under the Community transit procedure¹ may not be released unless they are sealed². The following must be sealed:

- 326 (1) the space containing the goods, where the means of transport has been approved or recognised by the office of departure³ as suitable for sealing⁴;
- 327 (2) each individual package, in other cases⁵.

The office of departure may dispense with sealing if, having regard to other possible measures for identification, the description of the goods in the transit declaration⁶ or in the supplementary documents makes them readily identifiable⁷. Where the office of departure grants a waiver from sealing, it must enter a prescribed indorsement in the transit declaration⁸.

3 For the meaning of 'office of departure' see PARA 115 note 2 ante.

4 Means of transport may be recognised as suitable for sealing on condition that: (1) seals can be simply and effectively affixed to them; (2) they are so constructed that no goods can be removed or introduced without leaving visible traces or without breaking the seals; (3) they contain no concealed spaces where goods may be hidden; (4) the spaces reserved for the load are readily accessible for inspection by the customs authorities: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 357(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante. Any road vehicle, trailer, semi-trailer or container approved for the carriage of goods under customs seal in accordance with an international agreement to which the European Community is a party is to be regarded as suitable for sealing: art 357(3) (as so substituted).

C. FORMALITIES EN ROUTE

118. Documentation for goods in transit.

Goods placed under the Community transit procedure¹ must be carried under cover of copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration² returned to the principal by the office of departure³. The consignment and copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration must be presented at each office of transit⁴.

The carrier must present a transit advice note made out on a form corresponding to the prescribed specimen⁵ to each office of transit, where the note is to be kept. However, when the transit data is exchanged between the office of departure and the office of transit using information technology and computer networks the transit advice note is not to be presented⁶. Where goods are carried via an office of transit other than that mentioned in copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration, the office of transit used must send the transit advice note without delay to the office of transit initially specified, or notify the passage to the office of departure in the cases and according to the procedure mutually agreed by the customs authorities⁷.

The carrier is required to make the necessary entries in copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration and present them with the consignment to the customs authorities of the member state in whose territory the means of transport is located:

- 328 (1) if the prescribed itinerary is changed because the goods are those with a higher risk of fraud or the customs authorities or the principal consider it necessary⁸;
- 329 (2) if seals⁹ are broken in the course of a transport operation for reasons beyond the carrier's control;
- 330 (3) if goods are transferred to another means of transport; any such transfer must be made under the supervision of the customs authorities which may, however, authorise transfers to be made without their supervision;
- 331 (4) in the event of imminent danger necessitating immediate partial or total unloading of the means of transport;
- 332 (5) in the event of any incident or accident capable of affecting the ability of the principal or the carrier to comply with his obligations¹⁰.

Where the customs authorities consider that the Community transit operation concerned may continue in the normal way they must take any steps that may be necessary and then indorse copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration¹¹.

D. FORMALITIES AT OFFICE OF DESTINATION

119. Presentation and indorsement of transit declaration.

The goods placed under the Community transit procedure¹ and copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration² must be presented at the office of destination³. The office of destination must register copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration, record on them their date of arrival and enter the details of any controls carried out⁴. At the request of the principal, and to provide evidence of the procedure having ended⁵, the office of destination must indorse an extra copy number 5 or a copy of copy number 5 of the transit declaration with the phrase 'Alternative proof' or the equivalent in one of the other languages of the Community⁶.

A transit operation may end at an office other than the one entered in the transit declaration. That office then becomes the office of destination⁷. Where the new office of destination comes under the jurisdiction of a member state other than the one having jurisdiction over the office originally designated, the new office of destination must enter a specified indorsement⁸ in addition to the usual observations it is required to make⁹.

The office of destination must issue a receipt on request to the person presenting copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration¹⁰. The receipt must be completed in advance by the person concerned; it may contain other particulars relating to the consignment, except in the space reserved for the office of destination¹¹. The receipt may not be used as proof of the procedure having ended¹².

122. Electronic exchange of data.

On release of the goods, the office of departure¹ must transmit details of the Community transit operation² to the declared office of destination³ using the 'Anticipated Arrival Record' message and to each declared office of transit⁴ using the 'Anticipated Transit Record' message⁵. These messages must be based on data derived from the transit declaration⁶, and completed as appropriate; and they must conform to the structure and particulars defined by the customs authorities in agreement with each other⁷. Likewise, where the office of guarantee⁸ and the office of departure are located in different member states the messages to be used for the exchange of guarantee data must conform to the structure and particulars defined by the customs authorities in agreement with each other⁹.

The office of transit must record the passage against the 'Anticipated Transit Record' message received from the office of departure; and any inspection of the goods must be carried out using the 'Anticipated Transit Record' message as a basis for such inspection; the passage must be notified to the office of departure using the 'Notification Crossing Frontier' message, which must conform to the structure and particulars defined by the customs authorities in agreement with each other¹⁰.

The office of destination must keep the transit accompanying document and, using the 'Arrival Advice' message, notify the office of departure of the arrival of the goods on the day they are presented at the office of destination¹¹. The office of destination must generally forward the 'Control Results' message to the office of departure at the latest on the working day following the day the goods are presented at the office of destination¹². The messages must conform to the structure and particulars defined by the customs authorities in agreement with each other¹³.

The examination of the goods must be carried out using the 'Anticipated Arrival Record' message received from the office of departure as a basis for the examination¹⁴.

F. PROVISION OF SECURITY

123. In general.

The holder of the Community transit procedure is deemed to be the principal for the purposes of the provisions relating to the Community transit procedure¹. He is responsible for:

333 (1) production of the goods intact at the customs office of destination² by the prescribed time limit³ and with due observance of the measures adopted by the customs authorities⁴ to ensure identification⁵; and 334 (2) observance of the provisions relating to the Community transit procedure⁶.

Notwithstanding the principal's obligations under the above provisions, a carrier or recipient of goods who accepts goods knowing that they are moving under Community transit is also responsible for production of the goods intact at the customs office of destination by the prescribed time limit having duly observed the measures adopted by the customs authorities to ensure identification⁷.

124. Provision of a guarantee.

As a general rule¹, the principal² must provide a guarantee in order to ensure the payment of any customs debt³ or other charges which may be incurred in respect of the goods⁴. The guarantee is to be either: (1) an individual guarantee⁵ covering a single transit operation; or (2) a comprehensive guarantee⁶ covering a number of transit operations where the principal has been authorised to use such a guarantee by the customs authorities⁷ of the member state where he is established⁸. It is valid throughout the Community⁹.

Except in cases to be determined where necessary in accordance with the committee procedure¹⁰, no guarantee need, however, be furnished for:

- 335 (a) journeys by air¹¹;
- 336 (b) the carriage of goods on the Rhine and the Rhine waterways¹²;
- 337 (c) carriage by pipe-line¹³; or
- 338 (d) operations carried out by the railway companies of the member states¹⁴.

Except where the guarantee is to consist in a cash deposit lodged with the office of departure¹⁵, it is to consist of the joint and several guarantee of any natural or legal third person which satisfies the requirements specified¹⁶ by the Community Customs Code¹⁷.

Where the guarantee is furnished by a guarantor, the guarantor must indicate an address for service or appoint an agent in each member state¹⁸.

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

125. Individual guarantees.

An individual guarantee¹ must cover the full amount of customs debt² liable to be incurred, calculated on the basis of the highest rates applicable to goods of the same kind in the member state of departure³. Individual guarantees in the form of a cash deposit must be lodged at the office of departure⁴. They are to be repaid when the procedure has been discharged⁵.

Where the office of departure is not the office of guarantee⁶, the latter must keep a copy of the instrument by which it has accepted the guarantor's undertaking⁷. The principal must present the original at the office of departure, where it is to be retained⁸. However, where guarantee data is exchanged between the office of guarantee and the office of departure using information technology and computer networks⁹, the original of the guarantee instrument must be retained at the office of departure¹⁰.

An individual guarantee furnished by a guarantor may be in the form of individual guarantee vouchers for an amount of 7,000 euros, issued by the guarantor to persons who intend to act as principal¹¹. The guarantor is liable for up to 7,000 euros per voucher¹². The principal must deliver to the office of departure the number of individual guarantee vouchers corresponding to the multiple of 7,000 euros required to cover the total amount of customs debt¹³, and the vouchers are to be retained by the office of departure¹⁴. The guarantor may issue individual guarantee vouchers which are not valid for a Community transit operation involving specified goods in respect of which there is a higher risk of fraud¹⁵, to do which the guarantor must indorse each individual guarantee voucher diagonally with the phrase 'Limited validity' or its equivalent in one of the other languages of the Community¹⁶. Where the office of guarantee exchanges guarantee data with the office of departure using information technology and computer networks, the guarantor must furnish this office with any required details about the individual guarantee vouchers that he has issued according to the modalities decided by the customs authorities¹⁷.

1 As to provision of guarantees see PARA 124 ante. An individual guarantee furnished by a guarantor must correspond to the specimen in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 49 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(74), Annex XVI; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1792 (OJ L362, 20.12.2006, p 1)): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 346(1), 1st para (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). Where required by national law, regulation or administrative provision, or by common practice, each member state may allow the undertaking to take a different form provided it has the same legal effect as the undertaking shown in the specimen: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 346(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)).

2 For the meaning of 'customs debt' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

3 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 345(1), 1st para (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(15)). For the purposes of that calculation, Community goods carried in accordance with the Convention on a Common Transit Procedure (20 May 1987; OJ L226, 13.8.87, p 2) are to be treated as non-Community goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 345(1), 1st para (as so substituted). However, the rates to take into consideration for the calculation of the individual guarantee cannot be less than a minimal rate, when such a rate is mentioned in the fifth column of Annex 44c (as added): art 345(1), 2nd para (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)).

5 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 345(2) (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

6 For the meaning of 'office of guarantee' see PARA 122 note 8 ante.

In this case, the individual guarantee must correspond to the specimen in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 50 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(74), Annex XVII): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 347(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). Where required by national law, regulation or administrative provision, or by common practice, each member state may allow the undertaking to take a different form provided it has the same legal effect as the undertaking shown in the specimen: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 346(2), 347(1) (art 346(2) substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)).

The individual guarantee voucher must be drawn up on a form corresponding to the specimen in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 54 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(79), Annex XXI): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 347(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). The guarantor must indicate on the voucher the last date on which it may be used, which may not be later than one year from the date of issue: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 347(2) (as so substituted).

12 Ibid art 345(3) (as substituted: see note 11 supra).

13 I.e. the amount referred to in ibid art 345(1) (as substituted): see the text to notes 1-3 supra.

126. Revocation or cancellation of individual guarantees.

The office of guarantee¹ must revoke its decision accepting the guarantor's undertaking² if the conditions laid down at the time of issue are no longer fulfilled³. Equally, the guarantor may cancel his undertaking at any time⁴.

The revocation or cancellation becomes effective on the sixteenth day following the date on which the guarantor or the office of guarantee, as appropriate, is notified⁵. From the date on which the revocation or cancellation becomes effective, no individual guarantee vouchers⁶ issued earlier may be used for placing goods under the Community transit procedure⁷. The member state responsible for the relevant office of guarantee must notify the Commission forthwith of any revocation or cancellation and the date on which it becomes effective; and the Commission must notify the other member states of this⁸.

G. CHECKING THE END OF THE PROCEDURE

127. Non receipt of transit declaration.

If copy number 5 of the transit declaration¹ is not returned to the customs authorities² of the member state of departure³ within two months of the date of acceptance of the declaration, those authorities must inform the principal and ask him to furnish proof that the procedure has ended⁴. Where transit data is exchanged between customs authorities using information technology and computer networks⁵ and the customs authorities of the member state of departure have not received the 'Arrival Advice' message⁶ by the time limit within which the goods must be presented at the office of destination⁷, those authorities must inform the principal and ask him to furnish proof that the procedure has ended⁸.

The proof to be furnished by the principal⁹ may be furnished to the satisfaction of the customs authorities in the form of a document certified by the customs authorities of the member state of destination identifying the goods and establishing that they have been presented at the office of destination or, where authorised consignee status has been granted¹⁰, to the authorised consignee¹¹. The Community transit procedure is also to be considered as having ended where the principal presents, to the satisfaction of the customs authorities, a customs document issued in a third country entering the goods for a customs-approved treatment or use, or a copy or photocopy thereof, identifying the goods¹².

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. 128. Inquiry procedure.

Where the customs authorities¹ of the member state of departure have not received proof within four months of the date of acceptance of the transit declaration² that the Community transit procedure³ has ended, they must initiate the inquiry procedure immediately in order to obtain the information needed to discharge the procedure or, where this is not possible, to establish whether a customs debt⁴ has been incurred, to identify the debtor and to determine the customs authorities responsible for entry in the accounts⁵.

If the customs authorities receive information earlier that the transit procedure has not ended, or suspect that to be the case, the inquiry procedure must be initiated forthwith⁶. Where transit data is exchanged between customs authorities using information technology and computer networks⁷, the customs authorities must also initiate the inquiry procedure forthwith each time they have not received the 'Arrival Advice' message by the time limit within which the goods must be presented at the office of destination⁸ or the 'Control Results' message within six days after having received the 'Arrival Advice' message⁹.

The inquiry procedure must also be initiated if it transpires subsequently that proof of the end of the procedure was falsified and the inquiry procedure is necessary to achieve the objectives set out above¹⁰.

To initiate the inquiry procedure, the customs authorities of the member state of departure must send the customs authorities of the member state of destination a request together with all the necessary information¹¹. The customs authorities of the member state of destination and, where appropriate, the offices of transit called on to act in the context of the inquiry procedure must respond without delay¹².

Where an inquiry establishes that the transit procedure ended correctly, the customs authorities of the member state of departure must immediately inform the principal and, where appropriate, any customs authorities that may have initiated a recovery procedure¹³ in respect of customs debt¹⁴.

H. SIMPLIFICATION OF PROCEDURES

(A) IN GENERAL

129. Right to establish simplified procedures.

Provided that the implementation of Community measures applying to goods is guaranteed:

- 339 (1) member states have the right by bilateral or multilateral arrangement, to establish between themselves simplified procedures consistent with criteria to be set according to the circumstances and applying to certain types of goods traffic or specific undertakings¹; and
- 340 (2) each member state has the right to establish simplified procedures in certain circumstances for goods not required to move in the territory of another member state².

Special simplified procedures for the Community transit procedure are to be laid down in accordance with the committee procedure³. Simplified procedures must be communicated to the Commission⁴.

130. Authorisation of simplifications.

Following an application by the principal¹ or the consignee, as appropriate, the customs authorities² may authorise the following simplifications³:

- 341 (1) use of a comprehensive guarantee or guarantee waiver⁴;
- 342 (2) use of special loading lists⁵;
- 343 (3) use of seals of a special type⁶;
- 344 (4) exemption from the requirement to use a prescribed itinerary⁷;
- 345 (5) authorised consignor status⁸;
- 346 (6) authorised consignee status⁹;
- 347 (7) application of simplified procedures specific to goods: (a) carried by rail or large container; (b) carried by air; (c) carried by sea; (d) moved by pipe-line¹⁰;
- 348 (8) use of other simplified procedures¹¹.

Except where otherwise provided by legislation¹² or the authorisation, where authorisation to use the simplifications referred to in heads (1), (2) and (7) above is granted, the simplifications are to apply in all member states¹³. Where authorisation to use the simplifications referred to in heads (3), (4), and (5) is granted, the simplifications are to apply only to Community transit operations beginning in the member state where the authorisation was granted¹⁴. Where authorisation to use the simplification referred to in head (6) above is granted, the simplification is to apply solely in the member state where the authorisation was granted¹⁵.

The authorisations referred to above may be granted only to persons:

- 349 (i) who are established in the Community, with the proviso that authorisation to use a comprehensive guarantee may be granted only to persons established in the member state where the guarantee is furnished;
- 350 (ii) who regularly use the Community transit arrangements, or whose customs authorities know that they can meet the obligations under the arrangements or, in connection with the simplification referred to in head (6) above, regularly receive goods that have been entered for the Community transit procedure; and
- 351 (iii) who have not committed any serious or repeated offences against customs or tax legislation¹⁶.

To ensure the proper management of the simplifications, authorisations may be granted only where:

- 352 (A) the customs authorities are able to supervise the procedure and carry out controls without an administrative effort disproportionate to the requirements of the person concerned; and
- 353 (B) the persons concerned keep records which enable the customs authorities to carry out effective controls¹⁷.

131. Application for and authorisation to use simplifications.

An application for authorisation to use simplifications¹ must be made in writing². It must be dated and signed³. The application must include all the facts which will allow the customs authorities⁴ to check that the conditions subject to which use of the simplifications may be granted have been met⁵. The application must be lodged with the customs authorities of the member state in which the applicant is established⁶. The authorisation must be issued or the application rejected within three months at most of the date on which the application is lodged⁷.

The dated and signed original of the authorisation and one or more copies of it must be given to the holder⁸. The authorisation must specify the conditions for use of the simplifications and lay down the operating and control methods; it is valid from the date of issue⁹. In the case of authorisation for the use of seals of a special type, the exemption from the requirement to use a prescribed itinerary and the application of simplified procedures specific to goods carried by rail or large container, air or sea or moved by pipeline¹⁰, authorisations must be presented whenever the office of departure¹¹ so requires¹².

The holder of an authorisation must inform the customs authorities of any factor arising after the authorisation was granted which may influence its continuation or content¹³. The date on which the decision takes effect must be indicated in a decision revoking or amending authorisation¹⁴.

The customs authorities must keep applications and attached supporting documents, together with a copy of any authorisations issued¹⁵. Where an application is rejected or an authorisation is annulled or revoked, the application and the decision rejecting or annulling or revoking the application, as the case may be, and all attached supporting documents must be kept for at least three years from the end of the calendar year in which the application was rejected or the authorisation was annulled or revoked¹⁶.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(9) COMMUNITY TRANSIT/(ii) Procedure/H. SIMPLIFICATION OF PROCEDURES/(B) Comprehensive Guarantee and Guarantee Waiver/132. Comprehensive guarantees.

(B) COMPREHENSIVE GUARANTEE AND GUARANTEE WAIVER

132. Comprehensive guarantees.

The use of the comprehensive guarantee¹ is to be granted only to persons:

- 354 (1) who are established in the Community;
- 355 (2) who are regular users of Community transit procedures or who are known to the customs authorities² to have the capacity to fulfil their obligations in relation to these procedures; and
- 356 (3) who have not committed serious or repeated offences against customs or tax laws³.

Persons who satisfy the customs authorities that they meet higher standards of reliability may be authorised to use a comprehensive guarantee for a reduced amount or to have a guarantee waiver⁴. The additional criteria for this authorisation must include:

- 357 (a) the correct use of the Community transit procedures during a given period;
- 358 (b) co-operation with the customs authorities; and
- 359 (c) in respect of the guarantee waiver, a good financial standing which is sufficient to fulfil the commitments of the persons concerned⁵.

The guarantee waiver authorised in accordance with the above provisions is not to apply to external Community transit operations involving goods which, as determined in accordance with the committee procedure, are considered to present increased risks⁶. In line with the principles underlying the above criteria, recourse to the comprehensive guarantee for a reduced amount may, in the case of external Community transit⁷, be temporarily prohibited by the committee procedure as an exceptional measure in special circumstances⁸. Likewise, recourse to the comprehensive guarantee may, in the case of external Community transit, be temporarily prohibited by the committee procedure in respect of goods which, under the comprehensive guarantee, have been identified as being subject to large-scale fraud⁹.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(9) COMMUNITY TRANSIT/(ii) Procedure/H. SIMPLIFICATION OF PROCEDURES/(B) Comprehensive Guarantee and Guarantee Waiver/133. Reference amount of guarantee or waiver.

133. Reference amount of guarantee or waiver.

The principal may use a comprehensive guarantee, or guarantee waiver¹, up to a reference amount². The reference amount is to be the same as the amount of customs debt which may be incurred in respect of goods which the principal places under the Community transit procedure during a period of at least one week³. The office of guarantee⁴ must establish the amount in collaboration with the party concerned on the basis of the information on goods he has carried in the past and an estimate of the volume of intended Community transit operations as shown, inter alia, by his commercial documentation and accounts⁵. The office of guarantee must review the reference amount annually, particularly in the light of information obtained from the office or offices of departure⁶, and must adjust it if necessary⁷.

The principal must ensure that the amount at stake does not exceed the reference amount, taking into account any operations for which the procedure has not yet ended. The principal must inform the office of guarantee when the reference amount falls below a level sufficient to cover his Community transit operations⁸.

The amount to be covered by the comprehensive guarantee is to be the same as the reference amount⁹. However, the amount to be covered by the comprehensive guarantee may be reduced:

- 360 (1) to 50 per cent of the reference amount where the principal demonstrates that his finances are sound and that he has sufficient experience of the Community transit procedure;
- 361 (2) to 30 per cent of the reference amount where the principal demonstrates that his finances are sound, that he has sufficient experience of the Community transit procedure and that he co-operates very closely with the customs authorities¹⁰.

A guarantee waiver may be granted where the principal demonstrates that he maintains the standards of reliability described in head (2) above, is in command of transport operations and has sufficient financial resources to meet his obligations¹¹.

To be authorised to furnish a comprehensive guarantee in respect of the specified types of goods in respect of which there is a higher risk of fraud¹², a principal must demonstrate, not only that he meets the general conditions for the grant of authorisation¹³, but also that his finances are sound, that he has sufficient experience of the Community transit procedure and either that he co-operates very closely with the customs authorities or that he is in command of transport operations¹⁴. The amount to be covered by this comprehensive guarantee may be reduced:

- 362 (a) to 50 per cent of the reference amount where the principal demonstrates that he co-operates very closely with the customs authorities and is in command of transport operations;
- 363 (b) to 30 per cent of the reference amount where the principal demonstrates that he co-operates very closely with the customs authorities, is in command of transport operations, and that he has sufficient financial resources to meet his obligations¹⁵.

These provisions also apply where an application explicitly concerns the use of the comprehensive guarantee for both the specified types of goods in respect of which there is a higher risk of fraud and those not specified under the same comprehensive guarantee certificate¹⁶.

1 As to comprehensive guarantees and guarantee waiver see PARA 134 post.

2 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 379(1), 1st para (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)). For this purpose, a calculation is made of the amount of the customs debt which may be incurred for each transit operation. When the necessary data is not available the amount is presumed to be 7,000 euros unless other information known to the customs authorities leads to a different figure: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 379(1), 2nd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(23)). 3 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 379(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25)).

4 For the meaning of 'office of guarantee' see PARA 122 note 8 ante.

5 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 379(2) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). In establishing the reference amount, account must be taken of the highest rates of duty and charges applicable to the goods in the member state of the office of guarantee: art 379(2) (as so substituted). Community goods carried or to be carried in accordance with the Convention on a Common Transit Procedure (20 May 1987; OJ L226, 13.8.87, p 2) are to be treated as non-Community goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 379(2) (amended by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(17)).

SIMPLIFICATION OF PROCEDURES/(B) Comprehensive Guarantee and Guarantee Waiver/134. Form and effect of comprehensive guarantee.

134. Form and effect of comprehensive guarantee.

The comprehensive guarantee¹ must be furnished by a guarantor and be in the specified² form³.

On the basis of the authorisation⁴, the customs authorities must issue the principal with one or more comprehensive guarantee certificates or guarantee waiver certificates, drawn up as appropriate on a form corresponding to the prescribed specimen⁵, to enable the principal to provide proof of the comprehensive guarantee or guarantee waiver⁶. The certificate must be presented at the office of departure⁷, and particulars of the certificate must be entered on the transit declaration⁸. However, where guarantee data is exchanged between the office of guarantee⁹ and the office of departure using information technology and computer networks¹⁰, no certificate is presented to the office of departure¹¹.

The period of validity of a certificate may not exceed two years; that period may be extended by the office of guarantee for one further period which may not exceed two years¹².

1 As to comprehensive guarantees and guarantee waiver see PARA 132 ante.

SIMPLIFICATION OF PROCEDURES/(B) Comprehensive Guarantee and Guarantee Waiver/135. Revocation and cancellation of comprehensive guarantee.

135. Revocation and cancellation of comprehensive guarantee.

The office of guarantee¹ must revoke its authorisation for the guarantor to use a comprehensive guarantee or guarantee waiver² if the conditions laid down at the time of grant are no longer fulfilled³. Equally, the guarantor may cancel his undertaking at any time⁴.

The revocation or cancellation becomes effective on the sixteenth day following the date on which the guarantor or the office of guarantee, as appropriate, is notified⁵.

From the effective date of revocation of an authorisation to use a comprehensive guarantee or guarantee waiver by the customs authorities, or from the effective date of revocation by the office of guarantee of its acceptance of a guarantor's undertaking, or from the effective date of cancellation of an undertaking by a guarantor, certificates issued earlier may not be used to place goods under the Community transit procedure and must be returned by the principal to the office of guarantee without delay⁶.

Each member state must forward to the Commission the means by which certificates that remain valid and have not yet been returned may be identified, and the Commission must inform the other member states⁷. This also applies to certificates that have been declared as stolen, lost or falsified⁸.

(C) OTHER PROCEDURES

136. Special loading lists.

The customs authorities¹ may authorise principals to use lists which do not comply with all the prescribed requirements² as loading lists³. Use of such lists is to be authorised only where:

- 364 (1) they are produced by firms which use an integrated electronic or automatic data-processing system to keep their records;
- 365 (2) they are designed and completed in such a way that they can be used without difficulty by the customs authorities;
- 366 (3) they include, for each item, the specified⁴ information required⁵.

Descriptive lists drawn up for the purposes of carrying out dispatch or export formalities may also be authorised for use as loading lists, even where such lists are produced by firms not using an integrated electronic or automatic data-processing system to keep their records⁶.

Firms which use an integrated electronic or automatic data-processing system to keep their records and are already authorised under the provisions above to use loading lists of a special type may also be authorised to use such lists for Community transit operations involving only one type of goods if this facility is made necessary by the computer programmes of the firms concerned⁷.

SIMPLIFICATION OF PROCEDURES/(D) Authorised Consignor and Authorised Consignee Status/139. Authorised consignor status.

(D) AUTHORISED CONSIGNOR AND AUTHORISED CONSIGNEE STATUS

139. Authorised consignor status.

Persons wishing to carry out Community transit operations without presenting the goods and the corresponding transit declaration¹ at the office of departure² may be granted the status of authorised consignor³. This simplification is to be granted solely to persons authorised to use a comprehensive guarantee or granted a guarantee waiver⁴.

The authorisation must specify in particular:

- 367 (1) the office or offices of departure responsible for forthcoming Community transit operations;
- 368 (2) how, and by when, the authorised consignor is to inform the office of departure of forthcoming Community transit operations, in order that the office may carry out any necessary controls before the departure of the goods;
- 369 (3) the identification measures to be taken, in which case the customs authorities⁵ may prescribe that the means of transport or the package or packages must bear special seals, approved by the customs authorities⁶ and affixed by the authorised consignor;
- 370 (4) the excluded categories or movements of goods⁷.

The authorisation must stipulate that box C 'Office of departure' of the transit declaration forms must:

- 371 (a) be stamped in advance with the stamp of the office of departure and signed by an official of that office; or
- 372 (b) be stamped by the authorised consignor with a special metal stamp approved by the customs authorities and corresponding to the prescribed⁸ specimen; the stamp may be pre-printed on the forms where the printing is entrusted to a printer approved for that purpose⁹.

The authorised consignor must complete the box by entering the date on which the goods are consigned and must allocate a number to the transit declaration in accordance with the rules laid down in the authorisation¹⁰. The customs authorities may prescribe the use of forms bearing a distinctive mark as a means of identification¹¹.

Not later than on consignment of the goods, authorised consignors must complete the transit declaration and, where necessary, enter¹² the itinerary prescribed¹³ and the period prescribed¹⁴ within which the goods must be presented at the office of destination¹⁵, the identification measures applied and the indorsement 'Authorised consignor' or its equivalent in one of the other languages of the Community¹⁶. Where the customs authorities of the member state of departure check a consignment before its departure, they must record the fact on the transit declaration¹⁷.

Following consignment, copy number 1 of the transit declaration must be sent without delay to the office of departure. The customs authorities may provide in the authorisation that copy number 1 be sent to the customs authorities of the member state of departure as soon as the transit declaration is completed. The other copies must accompany the goods¹⁸.

Where transit declarations are lodged at offices of departure which apply the provisions as to data exchange using information technology and computer networks¹⁹, persons may be granted the status of authorised consignor if, as well as complying with the conditions for the authorisation of simplifications²⁰ and for the grant of authorised consignor status²¹, they lodge their transit declarations and communicate with the customs authorities using a data-processing technique²².

An authorised consignor must lodge a transit declaration at the office of departure before the release of the goods²³. The authorisation must indicate, inter alia, the time limit within which an authorised consignor must lodge a transit declaration so that the customs authorities may, if necessary, carry out checks before the release of the goods²⁴.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(9) COMMUNITY TRANSIT/(ii) Procedure/H. SIMPLIFICATION OF PROCEDURES/(D) Authorised Consignor and Authorised Consignee Status/140. Authorised consignee status.

140. Authorised consignee status.

Persons who wish to receive at their premises or at any other specified place goods entered for the Community transit procedure without presenting them and copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration¹ at the office of destination² may be granted the status of authorised consignee³.

The principal has fulfilled his obligations as to delivery of the goods⁴, and the Community transit procedure is deemed to have ended, when copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration which accompanied the consignment, together with the intact goods, have been delivered within the prescribed period⁵ to the authorised consignee at his premises or at the place specified in the authorisation, the identification measures having been duly observed⁶.

At the carrier's request the authorised consignee must issue a receipt⁷ in respect of each consignment delivered in accordance with these provisions⁸.

The authorisation must specify in particular:

- 373 (1) the office or offices of destination responsible for the goods received by the authorised consignee;
- 374 (2) how and by when the authorised consignee is to inform the office of destination of the arrival of the goods in order that the office may carry out any necessary controls upon arrival of the goods;
- 375 (3) the excluded categories or movements of goods⁹.

The customs authorities must specify in the authorisation whether any action by the office of destination is required before the authorised consignee may dispose of goods received¹⁰.

When the goods arrive at his premises or at the places specified in the authorisation, the authorised consignee must:

- 376 (a) immediately inform the office of destination, in accordance with the procedure laid down in the authorisation, of any excess quantities, deficits, substitutions or other irregularities such as broken seals¹¹;
- 377 (b) without delay, send to the office of destination copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration which accompanied the goods, indicating, except where communicated using a data-processing technique, the date of arrival and the condition of any seals affixed¹².

The office of destination must make the entries as to the date of arrival of the goods and the details of any controls carried out¹³ on copies number 4 and number 5 of the transit declaration¹⁴.

Where the office of destination applies the provisions as to data exchange using information technology and computer networks¹⁵, persons may be granted the status of authorised consignee if, as well as complying with the conditions for the authorisation of simplifications¹⁶, they use a data-processing technique to communicate with the customs authorities¹⁷. The authorised consignee must inform the office of destination of the arrival of the goods before the unloading¹⁸. The authorisation must indicate, in particular, how and by when the authorised consignee receives the 'Anticipated Arrival Record' data from the office of destination¹⁹ for the purpose of examining the goods²⁰.

Where the Community transit procedure is applicable, formalities under that procedure may be simplified¹ for the transport of goods by railway companies under cover of a 'consignment note CIM and express parcels' ('CIM consignment note')². The CIM consignment note is equivalent to a Community transit declaration³.

A railway company which accepts goods for carriage under cover of a CIM consignment note serving as a Community transit declaration is the principal for that operation⁴; and the railway company of the member state through whose territory the goods enter the Community is deemed to be the principal for operations in respect of goods accepted for transport by the railways of a third country⁵.

142. Carriage of goods in large containers.

Where the Community transit procedure is applicable, formalities under that procedure may be simplified¹ for goods carried by the railway companies in large containers² using transport undertakings³ as intermediaries, under cover of transfer notes ('TR transfer notes')⁴. Such operations may include the dispatch of consignments by transport undertakings using modes of transport other than rail, to the nearest suitable railway station⁵ to the point of loading and from the nearest suitable railway station to the point of unloading, and any transport by sea in the course of the movement between those two stations⁶. TR transfer notes used by transport undertakings have the same legal force as transit declarations⁷.

In the case of transport operations which are accepted by the transport undertaking in a member state, the railway company of that member state is deemed to be the principal⁸; and in the case of transport operations accepted by the transport undertaking in a third country, the railway company of the member state through which the goods enter the customs territory of the Community is taken to be the principal⁹.

1 Ie in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 427-442a (as amended).

2 For these purposes, 'large container' means a container that is: (1) designed in such a way that it can be properly sealed where the application of ibid art 435 (as amended) (identification) so requires; and (2) of a size such that the area bounded by the four lower external angles is not less than 7 square metres: art 427(2) (amended by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(27)).

3 For these purposes, 'transport undertaking' means an undertaking constituted by the railway companies as a corporate entity of which they are members, such undertaking being set up for the purpose of carrying goods by means of large containers under cover of TR transfer notes: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 427(1). 'TR transfer note' means the document which comprises the contract of carriage by which the transport undertaking arranges for one or more large containers to be carried from a consignor to a consignee in international transport: art 427(3).

6 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 426 (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

7 Ibid art 428 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(38)). As to transit declarations see PARA 115 ante. Where a transport operation to which the Community transit procedure applies starts and is to end within the customs territory of the Community, the TR transfer note must be presented at the office of departure: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 434(1). For goods moving under the external or internal transit procedure, the TR transfer note must be produced at the office of destination where the goods are declared for release for free circulation or for another customs procedure: art 434(7), 1st para. No formalities need be carried out at the office of destination in respect of goods consigned from one point in the customs territory of the Community to another through the territory of one or more EFTA countries: arts 340c(2), 434(7), 2nd para (art 340c(2) added, and art 434(7), 2nd para amended, by EC Commission Regulation 2787/2000 (OJ L330, 27.12.2000, p 1) art 1(25), (40)). For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante; for the meaning of 'office of departure' see PARA 115 note 2 ante; for the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante; for the meaning of 'office of destination' see PARA 114 note 4 ante; and for the meaning of 'EFTA countries' see PARA 109 note 9 ante. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante.

Where a transport operation starts within the customs territory of the Community and is to end outside it, EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 434(1) applies: art 437(1). The customs office responsible for the frontier station through which the goods leave the customs territory of the Community is to act as the office of destination: art 437(2). No formalities need be carried out at the office of destination: art 437(3). Correspondingly, where a transport operation starts outside the customs territory of the Community and is to end within it, the customs office responsible for the frontier station through which the goods enter the Community is to act as the office of departure: art 438(1). No formalities need be carried out at the office of departure: art 438(1). The customs office to which the goods are presented is to act as the office of destination, where the formalities laid down in art 436 are to be carried out: art 438(2).

(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT

(i) In general

143. In general.

Where the term 'customs procedure with economic impact' is used, it is understood as applying to the following arrangements:

- 378 (1) customs warehousing¹;
- 379 (2) inward processing²;
- 380 (3) processing under customs control³;
- 381 (4) temporary importation⁴; and
- 382 (5) outward processing⁵.

The use of a customs procedure with economic impact is conditional on authorisation being issued by the customs authorities⁶. Without prejudice to the additional special conditions governing the procedure⁷ in question, such authorisation is only to be granted to persons who offer every guarantee necessary for the proper conduct of the operations and in circumstances where the customs authorities can supervise and monitor the procedure without having to introduce administrative arrangements disproportionate to the economic needs involved⁸.

The conditions under which the procedure in question is to be used must be set out in the authorisation⁹; and the holder of the authorisation¹⁰ must notify the customs authorities of all factors arising after the authorisation was granted which might influence its continuation or content¹¹.

The customs authorities may make the placing of goods under a suspensive arrangement conditional upon the provision of security in order to ensure that any customs debt¹² which may be incurred in respect of those goods will be paid¹³. A suspensive arrangement with economic impact is discharged when a new customs-approved treatment or use¹⁴ is assigned either to the goods placed under that arrangement or to compensating¹⁵ or processed products placed under it¹⁶.

The rights and obligations of the holder of a customs procedure with economic impact may, on the conditions laid down by the customs authorities, be transferred successively to other persons who fulfil any conditions laid down in order to benefit from the procedure in question¹⁷.

1 As to customs warehousing see PARA 151 et seq post.

2 As to inward processing see PARA 160 et seq post.

3 As to processing under customs control see PARA 173 et seq post.

4 As to temporary importation see PARA 177 et seq post.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 84(1)(b). As to outward processing see PARA 201 et seq post.

6 Ibid art 85. For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante. The reason for this is that the holder of the authorisation is enabled to use such a procedure for goods which, on release for free circulation, would be liable to customs duty (see art 201; and PARA 277 post) but the duty on which, by reason of the entitlement to use the particular procedure, has been suspended. For this reason, such procedures are known as 'suspensive arrangements' and as 'customs procedures with economic impact', inasmuch as the impact of the procedure is that duty is suspended and not immediately collected in accordance with the provisions of arts 201-232 (as amended): see PARA 277 et seq post. On occasion, a 'drawback' system operates, under which the import duty is paid or becomes due, but may be repaid or remitted on satisfactory completion of the relevant customs procedure: see arts 124-128 (as amended); and PARA 165 et seq post.

7 For these purposes, where the term 'procedure' is used, it is understood as applying, in the case of non-Community goods, to the following arrangements: (1) external transit; (2) customs warehousing; (3) inward processing in the form of a system of suspension; (4) processing under customs control; and (5) temporary importation: ibid art 84(1)(a). For the meaning of 'Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

8 Ibid art 86. An application for authorisation to use a customs procedure with economic impact must be made out in writing, using the model in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 67 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(37), Annex V): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 497(1) (art 497 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). However, the customs authorities may permit renewal or modification of an authorisation to be applied for by simple written request: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 497(2) (as so substituted). In certain cases, the application for authorisation may be made by means of a customs declaration in writing or by means of a data-processing technique using the normal procedure: art 497(3), 1st para (as so substituted). The application for authorisation may be made by means of an oral customs declaration for temporary importation in accordance with art 229 (as amended) (see PARA 90 ante), subject to the presentation of a document made out in accordance with art 499, 3rd para (as substituted), or it may be made by means of a customs declaration for temporary importation by any other act in accordance with art 232(1) (as substituted) (see PARA 94 ante): art 497(3), 2nd and 3rd paras (as so substituted).

Where the customs authorities consider any of the information given in the application inadequate, they may require additional details from the applicant: art 499, 1st para (art 499 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). In particular, where an application may be made by making a customs declaration, the customs authorities must require that the application be accompanied by a document made out by the declarant containing at least the following information, unless such information is deemed unnecessary: (1) the name and address of the applicant, the declarant and the operator; (2) the nature of the processing or use of the goods; (3) a technical description of the goods and compensating or processed products and means of identifying them; (4) codes of economic conditions in accordance with Annex 70 (as substituted); (5) the estimated rate of yield or method by which that rate is to be determined; (6) the estimated period for discharge; (7) the proposed office of discharge; (8) the place of processing or use; (9) the proposed transfer formalities; (10) the value and quantity of the goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 499, 2nd para (as so substituted). The document must be made out in duplicate and one copy is to be indorsed by the customs authorities and given to the declarant: art 499, 3rd para (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante.

For the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 86, when examining whether the administrative costs of customs warehousing arrangements are disproportionate to the economic needs involved, customs authorities must take account, inter alia, of the type of warehouse and the procedure which may be applied therein: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 527(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

The customs authorities competent to decide must grant the authorisation for an application under EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 497(1) (as substituted), using the model set out in Annex 67 (as substituted), for an application under art 497(3) (as substituted), by acceptance of the customs declaration, and for an application for renewal or modification, by any appropriate act: art 505 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). The applicant must be informed of the decision to issue an authorisation, or the reasons why the application was rejected, within 30 days (or 60 days in the case of the customs warehousing arrangements) of the date the application was lodged or the date any requested outstanding or additional information is received by the customs authorities: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 506, 1st para (art 506 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). These periods do not apply in the case of a single authorisation unless it is issued under EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 501 (as substituted) (see PARA 152 note 6 post): art 506, 2nd para (as so substituted). An authorisation generally takes effect on the date of issue or at any later date given in the authorisation: art 507(1) (art 507 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Except for the customs warehousing arrangements, the customs authorities may issue a retroactive authorisation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 508(1), 1st para (art 508 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). A retroactive authorisation takes effect at the earliest on the date on which the application was submitted: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 508(1), 2nd para (as so substituted). However, if an application concerns renewal of an authorisation for the same kind of operation and goods, an authorisation may be granted with retroactive effect from the date the original authorisation expired: art 508(2) (as so substituted). In exceptional circumstances, the retroactive effect of an authorisation may be extended further, but not more than one year before the date the application was submitted, provided a proven economic need exists and: (a) the application is not related to attempted deception or to obvious negligence; (b) the period of validity which would have been granted under art 507 (as substituted) is not exceeded; (c) the applicant's accounts confirm that all the requirements of the arrangements can be deemed to be met and, where appropriate, the goods can be identified for the period involved, and such accounts allow the arrangements to be controlled; and (d) all the formalities necessary to regularise the situation of the goods can be carried out, including, where necessary, the invalidation of the declaration: art 508(3) (as so substituted).

10 For these purposes, 'holder of the authorisation' means the person to whom an authorisation has been granted: ibid art 4(22).

11 Ibid art 87(2).

12 For the meaning of 'customs debt' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

13 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 88, 1st para. Special provisions concerning the provision of security may be laid down in the context of a specific suspensive arrangement: art 88, 2nd para.

14 For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 ante.

15 For the meaning of 'compensating products', in relation to inward processing, see PARA 160 post.

16 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 89(1). The customs authorities must take all measures necessary to regularise the position of goods in respect of which a procedure has not been discharged under the conditions prescribed: art 89(2).

17 Ibid art 90. In Joined Cases 248, 254-258, 309, 316/88 Chimica del Friuli SpA v Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato [1989] ECR 2837, ECJ, it was held that, in the context of the similar rules under EC Commission Regulation 1535/77 (OJ L171, 9.7.77, p 1) arts 3, 7 (repealed: see now EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 291 et seq) under which certain goods were eligible for favourable tariff treatment by reason of their end-use, when goods were transferred within the Community, the transferee had to hold an authorisation granted in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 1535/77 (OJ L171, 9.7.77, p 1) art 3 (repealed), whether the transfer took place between one member state and another or within the same member state, since that interpretation was consistent with the scheme of the regulation, which was designed to secure strict supervision of the end-use of the goods, and that supervision was effected by means of such authorisation. It is to be expected that a similar approach would be applied in the context of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (as amended).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

144. Examination of economic conditions.

Except where the economic conditions¹ are deemed to be fulfilled², the authorisation may not be granted without examination of the economic conditions by the customs authorities³.

An examination of the economic conditions involving the Commission may take place:

- 383 (1) if the customs authorities concerned wish to consult before or after issuing an authorisation⁴;
- 384 (2) if another customs administration objects to an authorisation issued;
- 385 (3) on the initiative of the Commission⁵.

Where such an examination is initiated, the case, which must contain the results of the examination already undertaken, must be sent to the Commission⁶. The Commission must send an acknowledgment of receipt or notify the customs authorities concerned when acting on its own initiative⁷. It must determine in consultation with them whether an examination of the economic conditions by the committee⁸ is required⁹.

Where the case is submitted to the committee, the customs authorities must inform the applicant, or holder¹⁰, that such a procedure has been initiated and, if the handling of the application is not completed, that the prescribed time limits¹¹ have been suspended¹². The committee's conclusion must be taken into account by the customs authorities concerned and by any other customs authorities dealing with similar authorisations or applications¹³. This conclusion may include its publication in the C series of the Official Journal of the European Communities¹⁴.

145. Commercial policy measures.

Commercial policy measures provided for in Community acts are applicable on entry for the arrangements¹ of non-Community goods only to the extent that they refer to the entry of goods into the customs territory of the Community². Where compensating products, with specified exceptions³, obtained under the inward processing arrangements⁴ are released for free circulation, the commercial policy measures to be applied are to be those applicable to the release for free circulation of the import goods⁵. Where processed products, obtained under the arrangements for processing under customs control⁶, are released for free circulation, the commercial policy measures applicable to those products are to be applied only where the import goods are subject to such measures⁷.

Where Community acts provide for commercial policy measures on release for free circulation, such measures do not apply to compensating products released for free circulation following outward processing⁸: (1) that have retained Community origin⁹; (2) involving repair, including the standard exchange system; or (3) following successive processing operations¹⁰.

146. Transfers.

The authorisation¹ must specify whether and under which conditions the movement of goods or products placed under suspensive arrangements between different places or to the premises of another holder² may take place without discharge of the arrangements, subject, in cases other than temporary importation³, to the keeping of records⁴. Transfer is not possible, however, where the place of departure or arrival of the goods is a type B warehouse⁵.

Transfer between different places designated in the same authorisation may be undertaken without any customs formalities⁶. Transfer from the office of entry⁷ to the holder's or operator's facilities or place of use may be carried out under cover of the declaration for entry for the arrangements⁸. Transfer to the office of exit with a view to re-exportation may take place under cover of the arrangements⁹. In this case, the arrangements are not discharged until the goods or products declared for re-exportation have actually left the customs territory of the Community¹⁰.

Transfer from one holder to another can only take place where the latter enters the transferred goods or products for the arrangements under an authorisation to use the local clearance procedure¹¹. Notification to the customs authorities¹² and entry in the records of specified goods or products¹³ must take place upon their arrival at the premises of the second holder; a supplementary declaration is not required¹⁴. In the case of temporary importation¹⁵, the transfer from one holder to another may also take place where the latter enters the goods under the arrangements by means of a customs declaration in writing using the normal procedure¹⁶. Upon receipt of the goods or products, the second holder is obliged to enter them for the arrangements¹⁷.

Transfer involving an increased risk¹⁸ must be covered by a guarantee under conditions equivalent to those provided for in the transit procedure¹⁹.

7 'Accounts' means the holder's commercial, tax or other accounting material, or such data held on their behalf: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 496(i) (art 496 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

8 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 515, 2nd para (as substituted: see note 6 supra).

9 For these purposes, 'supervising office' means the customs office indicated in the authorisation as empowered to supervise the arrangements: ibid art 496(e) (as substituted: see note 7 supra).

10 Ibid art 515, 3rd para (as substituted: see note 6 supra). For the meaning of 'arrangements' see PARA 145 note 1 ante.

11 The records referred to in ibid art 515 (as substituted) and, where they are required, under art 581(2) (as substituted) for temporary imports (see PARA 198 post) must contain the following information: (1) the information contained in the boxes of the minimum list laid down by Annex 37 (as substituted) for the declaration of entry for the arrangements; (2) particulars of the declarations by means of which the goods are assigned a customs-approved treatment or use discharging the arrangements; (3) the date and reference particulars of other customs documents and any other documents relating to entry and discharge; (4) the nature of the processing operations, types of handling or temporary use; (5) the rate of yield or its method of calculation where appropriate; (6) information enabling the goods to be monitored, including their location and particulars of any transfer; (7) commercial or technical descriptions necessary to identify the goods; (8) particulars enabling monitoring of the movements under the inward processing arrangements operating with equivalent goods: art 516, 1st para (art 516 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). However, the customs authorities may waive the requirement for some of this information where this does not adversely affect the control or supervision of the arrangements for the goods to be stored, processed or used: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 516, 2nd para (as so substituted).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(i) In general/148. Rate of yield and calculation formulae.

148. Rate of yield and calculation formulae.

Where relevant for the arrangements¹, a rate of yield or the method for determining a rate, including average rates, must be established in the authorisation² or at the time the goods are entered for the arrangements³. Such rate is to be determined, as far as possible, on the basis of production or technical data or, where these are not available, data relating to operations of the same type⁴. In particular circumstances the customs authorities⁵ may establish the rate of yield after the goods have been entered for the arrangements, but not later than when they are assigned a new customs-approved treatment or use⁶.

The proportion of import/temporary export goods incorporated in the compensating products⁷ is to be calculated in order: (1) to determine the import duties to be charged; (2) to determine the amount to be deducted when a customs debt⁸ is incurred; or (3) to apply commercial policy measures⁹. These calculations are to be made in accordance with the quantitative scale method¹⁰ or the value scale method¹¹ as appropriate, or any other method giving similar results¹².

2 As to the authorisation see PARA 143 ante.

4 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 517(1) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

5 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

6 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 517(2) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). The standard rates of yield laid down for inward processing in Annex 69 (as substituted) apply to the operations mentioned therein: art 517(3) (as so substituted). As to the position where there occurs the total destruction or irretrievable loss of goods in the unaltered state or compensating products see art 520(2) (as substituted); and PARA 150 post.

7 As to compensating products see PARA 160 post. For the purposes of the calculations, compensating products include processed products or intermediate products: ibid art 518(1), 3rd para (art 518 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

8 For the meaning of 'customs debt' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

9 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 518(1), 1st para (as substituted: see note 6 supra).

10 Ibid art 518(2) (as substituted: see note 6 supra) provides that the quantitative scale method is applicable where:

- 8 (1) only one kind of compensating product is derived from the processing operations; in this case the quantity of import/temporary export goods deemed to be present in the quantity of compensating products for which a customs debt is incurred is proportional to the latter category of products as a percentage of the total quantity of compensating products;
- 9 (2) several kinds of compensating product are derived from the processing operations and all elements of the import/temporary export goods are found in each of those compensating products; in this case the quantity of import/temporary export goods deemed to be present in the quantity of a given compensating product for which a customs debt is incurred is proportional to:

9. (a) the ratio between this specific kind of compensating product, irrespective of whether a customs debt is incurred, and the total quantity of all compensating products; and
10. (b) the ratio between the quantity of compensating products for which a customs debt is incurred and the total quantity of compensating products of the same kind.

In deciding whether the conditions for applying the methods described in head (1) or head (2) supra are fulfilled, losses are not to be taken into account: art 518(2) (as so substituted). Without prejudice to art 862, 'losses' means the proportion of import/temporary export goods destroyed and lost during the processing operation, in particular by evaporation, desiccation, venting as gas or leaching: art 518(2) (as so substituted). In outward processing secondary compensating products that constitute waste, scrap, residues, offcuts and remainders are to be treated as losses: art 518(2) (as so substituted).

11 The value scale method is to be applied where the quantitative scale method is not applicable: ibid art 518(3) (as substituted: see note 6 supra). The quantity of import/temporary export goods deemed to be present in the quantity of a given compensating product incurring a customs debt is proportional to: (1) the value of this specific kind of compensating product, irrespective of whether a customs debt is incurred, as a percentage of the total value of all the compensating products; and (2) the value of the compensating products for which a customs debt is incurred, as a percentage of the total value of compensating products of that kind: art 518(3) (as so substituted).

The value of each of the different compensating products to be used for applying the value scale is the recent ex-works price in the Community, or the recent selling price in the Community of identical or similar products, provided that these have not been influenced by the relationship between buyer and seller: art 518(3) (as so substituted).

Where the value cannot be ascertained pursuant to art 518(3) (as substituted) it is to be determined by any reasonable method: art 518(4) (as so substituted).

12 Ibid art 518(1), 2nd para (as substituted: see note 6 supra).

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

149. Compensatory interest.

Where a customs debt¹ is incurred in respect of compensating products² or import goods³ under inward processing⁴ or temporary importation⁵, compensatory interest is due on the amount of import duties for the period involved⁶. The three-month money market interest rates published in the statistical annex of the Monthly Bulletin of the European Central Bank apply⁷. The applicable rate is that applicable two months before the month in which the customs debt is incurred and for the member state where the first operation or use as provided for by the authorisation took place or should have taken place⁸. Interest is to be applied on a monthly basis, starting on the first day of the month following the month in which the import goods for which a customs debt is incurred were first entered for the arrangements, and the period closes on the last day of the month in which the customs debt is incurred⁹.

The above provisions do not apply to the following cases:

- 386 (1) where the period to be taken into account is less than one month;
- 387 (2) where the amount of compensatory interest applicable does not exceed 20 euros per customs debt incurred;
- 388 (3) where a customs debt is incurred in order to allow the application of preferential tariff treatment¹⁰ under an agreement between the Community and a third country on imports into that country;
- 389 (4) where waste and scrap resulting from destruction is released for free circulation;
- 390 (5) where specified secondary compensating products¹¹ are released for free circulation, provided they are in proportion to exported quantities of main compensating products;
- 391 (6) where a customs debt is incurred as a result of an application for release for free circulation under the drawback system¹², as long as the import duties payable on the products in question have not yet actually been repaid or remitted;
- 392 (7) where the holder requests release for free circulation and submits proof that particular circumstances not arising from any negligence or deception on his part make it impossible or uneconomic to carry out the re-export operation under the conditions he had anticipated and duly substantiated when applying for the authorisation;
- 393 (8) where a customs debt is incurred and to the extent a security is provided by a cash deposit in relation to this debt;
- 394 (9) where a customs debt is incurred by the placing of goods under the temporary importation procedure with partial relief from import duties¹³ or is due to the release for free circulation of goods which were entered¹⁴ for the temporary importation arrangements¹⁵.

In the case of inward processing operations in which the number of import goods and/or compensating products makes it uneconomic to apply the above provisions as to the calculation of interest¹⁶, the customs authorities¹⁷, at the request of the person concerned, may allow simplified methods giving similar results to be used for the calculation of compensatory interest¹⁸.

150. Discharge.

Where import or temporary export goods have been entered under two or more declarations for the arrangements¹ by virtue of one authorisation²:

- 395 (1) in the case of a suspensive arrangement, the assignment of goods or products to a new customs-approved treatment or use is to be considered to discharge the arrangements for the import goods in question entered under the earliest of the declarations;
- 396 (2) in the case of inward processing (drawback system)³ or outward processing⁴, the compensating products⁵ are to be considered to have been obtained from the import or temporary export goods in question respectively, entered under the earliest of the declarations⁶.

The holder⁷ may request the discharge to be made in relation to the specific import or temporary export goods⁸.

Where the goods under the arrangements⁹ are placed together with other goods and there is total destruction or irretrievable loss, the customs authorities¹⁰ may accept evidence produced by the holder indicating the actual quantity of goods under the arrangements which was destroyed or lost¹¹. Where it is not possible for the holder to produce such evidence, the amount of goods which has been destroyed or lost is to be established by reference to the proportion of goods of that type under the arrangements at the time when the destruction or loss occurred¹².

At the latest upon expiry of the period for discharge, irrespective of whether aggregation¹³ is used or not:

- 397 (a) in the case of inward processing (suspension system) or processing under customs control¹⁴, the bill of discharge must be supplied to the supervising office¹⁵ within 30 days;
- 398 (b) in the case of inward processing (drawback system), the claim for repayment or remission of import duties must be lodged with the supervising office within six months¹⁶.

Where special circumstances so warrant, the customs authorities may extend the period even if it has expired¹⁷.

The bill or the claim must contain the following particulars, unless otherwise determined by the supervising office:

- 399 (i) reference particulars of the authorisation;
- 400 (ii) the quantity of each type of import goods in respect of which discharge, repayment or remission is claimed or the import goods entered for the arrangements under the triangular traffic system¹⁸;
- 401 (iii) the CN code¹⁹ of the import goods;
- 402 (iv) the rate of import duties to which the import goods are liable and, where applicable, their customs value;

- 403 (v) the particulars of the declarations entering the import goods under the arrangements;
- 404 (vi) the type and quantity of the compensating or processed products or the goods in unaltered state and the customs-approved treatment or use to which they have been assigned, including particulars of the corresponding declarations, other customs documents or any other document relating to discharge and periods for discharge;
- 405 (vii) the value of the compensating or processed products if the value scale method²⁰ is used for the purpose of discharge;
- 406 (viii) the rate of yield²¹;
- 407 (ix) the amount of import duties to be paid or to be repaid or remitted and where applicable any compensatory interest to be paid²²;
- 408 (x) in the case of processing under customs control, the CN code of the processed products and elements necessary to determine the customs value²³.

The supervising office may make out the bill of discharge²⁴.

(ii) Customs Warehouses

A. IN GENERAL

151. Customs warehousing.

'Customs warehouse' means any place approved by and under the supervision of the customs authorities¹ where goods may be stored under the conditions laid down². A customs warehouse may be either a public warehouse or a private warehouse³. 'Public warehouse' means a customs warehouse available for use by any person for the warehousing of goods⁴; and 'private warehouse' means a customs warehouse reserved for the warehousing of goods by the warehousekeeper⁵. The warehousekeeper is the person authorised to operate the customs warehouse⁶.

The customs warehousing procedure allows the storage in a customs warehouse of:

- 409 (1) non-Community goods⁷, without such goods being subject to import duties⁸ or commercial policy measures⁹; and
- 410 (2) Community goods¹⁰, where Community legislation governing specific fields provides that their being placed in a customs warehouse attracts the application of measures normally attaching to the export of such goods¹¹.

There is no limit to the length of time goods may remain under the customs warehousing procedure¹²; but, in exceptional cases, the customs authorities may set a time limit by which the depositor¹³ must assign the goods a new customs-approved treatment or use¹⁴.

Community goods of the kind mentioned in head (2) above, which are covered by the common agricultural policy and are placed under the customs warehousing procedure, must be exported or assigned a treatment or use provided for by the relevant Community legislation¹⁵.

1 For the meaning of 'supervision by the customs authorities' see PARA 77 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 98(2). The customs warehouse system is simply an arrangement for the storage of goods so that eg an importer can accumulate stock, paying duties and other charges on the goods as and when they are released on to the Community market: Case 49/82 EC Commission v Netherlands [1983] ECR 1195 at 1209, [1983] 2 CMLR 476 at 482, ECJ, per Slynn A-G.

Cases in which the goods referred to in art 98(1) may be placed under the customs warehousing procedure without being stored in a customs warehouse are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 98(3). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

13 For these purposes, 'the depositor' means the person bound by the declaration placing the goods under the customs warehousing procedure, or to whom the rights and obligations of such a person have been transferred: ibid art 99, 5th para. As to the transfer of such rights and obligations see PARA 143 ante.

As with all customs procedures, goods placed under the customs warehousing procedure must be covered by a declaration for the procedure: see art 59(1); and PARA 83 ante. Without prejudice to specific provisions, the documents to accompany the declaration of entry for the customs warehousing procedure, in the case of a type D warehouse, are the documents laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 218(1)(a), (b) (see PARA 104 note 9 heads (1), (2) ante), but, in the case of customs warehouses other than type D, no accompanying documents are required: art 220(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(3)). As to the simplified entry procedures available in the case of customs warehousing see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 268-274 (as amended).

Specific time limits may be laid down in accordance with the committee procedure for certain goods referred to in art 98(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text) which are covered by the common agricultural policy: art 108(2).

15 Ibid art 113. For these purposes, 'the relevant Community legislation' means art 98: art 113.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(ii) Customs Warehouses/A. IN GENERAL/152. Classification and location of warehouses.

152. Classification and location of warehouses.

Customs warehouses¹ in which goods are stored under the customs warehousing procedure are classified as follows:

- 411 (1) type A: a public warehouse² under the responsibility of the warehousekeeper³;
- 412 (2) type B: a public warehouse⁴ under the responsibility of each depositor⁵;
- 413 (3) type C: a private warehouse⁶ where the warehousekeeper is the same person as the depositor but is not necessarily the owner of the goods and neither of the special situations under heads (4) and (5) below applies;
- 414 (4) type D: a private warehouse where the warehousekeeper is the same person as the depositor but is not necessarily the owner of the goods, the relevant procedure⁷ being applied;
- 415 (5) type E: a private warehouse where the warehousekeeper is the same person as the depositor but is not necessarily the owner of the goods, and where the arrangements apply although the goods need not be stored in a place approved as a customs warehouse⁸;
- 416 (6) type F: a public warehouse operated by the customs authorities⁹.

When granting the authorisation the customs authorities must define the premises or any other location approved as a customs warehouse of type A, B, C or D. They may also approve temporary storage facilities as such types of warehouse or operate them as a type F warehouse¹⁰.

A location cannot be approved as more than one customs warehouse at the same time¹¹.

1 For the meaning of 'customs warehouse' see PARA 151 ante.

2 I.e. conforming to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 99, 2nd para, 1st indent: see PARA 151 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'warehousekeeper' see PARA 151 ante.

4 See note 2 supra.

5 I.e. in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 102(1) (see PARA 154 post), having regard to art 105, 2nd para (see PARA 154 post). For the meaning of 'the depositor' see PARA 151 note 13 ante.

6 I.e. conforming to ibid art 99, 2nd para, 2nd indent: see PARA 151 ante. Single authorisations may be granted only for private customs warehouses: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 526(5) (art 526 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). 'Single authorisation' means an authorisation involving different customs administrations covering entry for and/or discharge of the arrangements, storage, successive processing operations or uses; 'authorisation' means permission by the customs authorities to use arrangements; and 'arrangements' means a customs procedure with economic impact: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 496(a)-(c) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

Where a single authorisation is applied for, the prior agreement of the authorities concerned is necessary, in accordance with the following procedure: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 500(1) (art 500 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). In the case of temporary importation, the application must be submitted to the customs authorities designated for the place of first use, without prejudice to EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 580(1), 2nd para (as substituted): art 500(2), 1st para (as so substituted). In other cases, it must be submitted to the customs authorities designated for the place where the applicant's main accounts are held facilitating audit-based controls of the arrangements and where at least part of the storage, processing or temporary export operations to be covered by the authorisation are conducted: art 500(2), 2nd para (as so substituted). Where the competent customs authorities cannot be determined, the application must be submitted to the customs authorities designated for the place where the applicant's main accounts are held facilitating audit-based controls of the arrangements: art 500(2), 3rd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1) art 1(13)). The designated customs authorities must communicate the application and the draft authorisation to the other customs authorities concerned, which must acknowledge the date of receipt within 15 days: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 500(3), 1st para (as so substituted). The other customs authorities concerned must notify any objections within 30 days of the date on which the draft authorisation was received; where objections are notified within that period and no agreement is reached, the application must be rejected to the extent to which objections were raised: art 500(3), 2nd para (as so substituted). The customs authorities may issue the authorisation if they have received no objections to the draft authorisation within the 30 days, and they must send a copy of the agreed authorisation to all customs authorities concerned: art 500(4) (as so substituted).

Where the criteria and conditions for the granting of a single authorisation are generally agreed upon between two or more customs administrations, those administrations may also agree to replace prior agreement in accordance with art 500(1) (as substituted) and information to be supplied in accordance with art 500(2), 2nd para (as substituted), by simple notification: art 501(1) (art 501 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Notification is always sufficient where: (1) a single authorisation is renewed, subject to modifications of a minor nature, annulled or revoked; (2) the application for a single authorisation concerns temporary importation and is not to be made using the model in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 67 (as substituted): art 501(2) (as so substituted). No notification is needed where: (a) the only element involving different customs administrations is triangular traffic under inward or outward processing, without use of recapitulative information sheets; (b) ATA or CPD carnets are used (see PARA 195 post); (c) the authorisation for temporary importation is granted by accepting an oral declaration or a declaration by any other act: art 501(3) (as so substituted).

8 An authorisation for a type E warehouse may provide for the procedures laid down for type D to be applied: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 525(3) (art 525 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

9 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 525(1), (2) (as substituted: see note 8 supra). Type A, C, D and E warehouses may be approved as victualling warehouses within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 800/99 (OJ L102, 17.4.1999, p 11) art 40: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 526(4) (as substituted: see note 6 supra). As to victualling warehouses see PARA 695 post.

10 Ibid art 526(1) (as substituted: see note 6 supra).

11 Ibid art 526(2) (as substituted: see note 6 supra).

152 Classification and location of warehouses

NOTE 9--Regulation 800/99 art 40 replaced: EC Commission Regulation 612/2009 (OJ L186, 17.7.2009, p 1) art 40.

153. Establishment of a customs warehouse.

Unless the customs authorities¹ operate the customs warehouse² themselves, the operation of a customs warehouse is subject to authorisation by those authorities³. Any person who wishes to operate a customs warehouse must make a request in writing containing the information required for granting the authorisation, in particular demonstrating that an economic need for warehousing exists⁴. Such an authorisation may be issued only to persons established in the Community⁵ and, when granted, must lay down the conditions for operating the customs warehouse⁶. In addition, such authorisation may be granted only to persons who offer every guarantee necessary for the proper conduct of the operations and in circumstances where the customs authorities can supervise⁷ and monitor the procedure without having to introduce administrative arrangements disproportionate to the economic needs involved⁸.

1 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'customs warehouse' see PARA 151 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 100(1). For the meaning of 'authorisation' see PARA 152 note 6 ante.

4 Ibid art 100(2).

5 Ibid art 100(3). For the meaning of 'person established in the Community' see PARA 84 note 6 ante.

6 Ibid art 100(2).

7 Where goods present a danger or are likely to spoil other goods or require special facilities for other reasons, authorisations may specify that they may only be stored in premises specially equipped to receive them: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 526(3) (art 526 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 86. An application for an authorisation for customs warehousing must be made to the customs authorities designated for the place to be approved as a customs warehouse or where the applicant's main accounts are held: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 498(a) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). As to the granting of such authorisations see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 526-527 (as substituted); and see PARA 143 ante. Authorisations may be granted only if any intended usual forms of handling, inward processing or processing under customs control of the goods do not predominate over the storage of the goods: art 527(1) (art 527 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Authorisations may not be granted if the premises of customs warehouses or the storage facilities are used for the purpose of retail sale: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 527(2), 1st para (as so substituted).

An authorisation takes effect on the date of issue or at any later date given in the authorisation: art 507(1) (art 507 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). In the case of a private warehouse, the customs authorities may exceptionally communicate their agreement to use the arrangements prior to the actual issuing of the authorisation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 507(1) (as so substituted)). For the meaning of 'private warehouse' see PARA 151 ante. For the meaning of 'arrangements' see PARA 152 note 6 ante. No limit on the period of validity is to be fixed for authorisations for the customs warehousing arrangements: art 507(2) (as so substituted).

B. THE WAREHOUSEKEEPER

154. Responsibilities of the warehousekeeper.

The warehousekeeper¹ is responsible for:

- 417 (1) ensuring that, while the goods are in the customs warehouse², they are not removed from customs supervision³;
- 418 (2) fulfilling the obligations that arise from the storage of goods covered by the customs warehousing procedure; and
- 419 (3) complying with the particular conditions specified in the authorisation⁴.

The rights and obligations of the warehousekeeper may, with the agreement of the customs authorities, be transferred to another person⁵.

The depositor⁶ is, however, at all times responsible for fulfilling the obligations arising from the placing of the goods under the customs warehousing procedure⁷.

The person designated by the customs authorities must keep stock records of all the goods placed under the customs warehousing procedure in a form approved by the customs authorities⁸; but stock records are not necessary where a public warehouse is operated by the customs authorities⁹. Goods placed under the customs warehousing procedure must be entered in the stock records¹⁰ as soon as they are brought into the customs warehouse¹¹.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 101. Where, however, the authorisation concerns a public warehouse, it may provide that the responsibilities referred to in art 101(a) and/or (b) (see heads (1), (2) in the text) devolve exclusively on the depositor: art 102(1). Without prejudice to the security which may be demanded under art 88 (see PARA 143 ante), the customs authorities may demand that the warehousekeeper provide a guarantee in connection with the responsibilities specified in art 101: art 104. For the meaning of 'public warehouse' see PARA 151 ante. For the meaning of 'authorisation' see PARA 152 note 6 ante.

8 Subject to the application of ibid art 86 (see PARA 143 ante), the customs authorities may dispense with stock records where the responsibilities referred to in art 101(a) and/or (b) (see heads (1), (2) in the text) lie exclusively with the depositor and the goods are placed under that procedure on the basis of a written declaration forming part of the normal procedure or an administrative document in accordance with art 76(1)(b) (see PARA 96 head (1) ante): art 105, 2nd para.

In warehouses of type A, C, D and E, the person designated to keep the stock records referred to in art 105 must be the warehousekeeper: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 528(1) (art 528 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). In warehouses of type F, the operating customs office must keep the customs records in place of stock records: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 528(2) (as so substituted). As to the classification of customs warehouses see PARA 152 ante.

9 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 105, 1st para. As to the information required to be contained in such stock records see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 529 (as substituted). In type B warehouses, in place of stock records, the supervising office must keep the declarations of entry for the arrangements: art 528(3) (as substituted: see note 8 supra). For the meaning of 'arrangements' see PARA 152 note 6 ante.

C. PERMITTED ACTIVITIES

155. Permitted activities.

Where an economic need exists and customs supervision¹ is not adversely affected thereby, the customs authorities² may allow:

- 420 (1) Community goods of whatever kind³ to be stored on the premises of a customs warehouse⁴;
- 421 (2) non-Community goods⁵ to be processed on the premises of a customs warehouse under the inward processing procedure⁶, subject to the conditions provided for by that procedure⁷;
- 422 (3) non-Community goods to be processed on the premises of a customs warehouse under the procedure for processing under customs control⁸, subject to the conditions provided for by that procedure⁹.

In such cases, the goods are not to be made subject to the customs warehousing procedure¹⁰. The customs authorities may, however, require such goods to be entered¹¹ in the stock records¹².

Non-Community goods may undergo the usual forms of handling¹³.

1 For the meaning of 'supervision by the customs authorities' see PARA 77 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

3 I.e. Community goods other than those referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 98(1)(b): see PARA 151 head (2) ante. For the meaning of 'Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'customs warehouse' see PARA 151 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

6 As to the inward processing procedure see PARA 160 et seq post.

7 The formalities which may be dispensed with are to be determined by the committee procedure: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 106(1)(c). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

8 As to processing under customs control see PARA 173 et seq post.

11 I.e. entered in the stock records provided for in ibid art 105: see PARA 154 ante. Where Community goods are stored on the premises of a customs warehouse or the storage facilities used for goods under the warehousing arrangements, specific methods of identifying such goods may be laid down with a view, in particular, to distinguishing them from goods entered for the customs warehousing arrangements: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 534(1) (art 534 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). The customs authorities may permit common storage where it is impossible to identify at all times the customs status of each type of goods; but pre-financed goods are to be excluded from such permission: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 534(2), 1st para (as so substituted). Goods in common storage must share the same eight-digit Combined Nomenclature code, the same commercial quality and the same technical characteristics: art 534(2), 2nd para (as so substituted). As to the Combined Nomenclature see PARA 10 note 2 ante. For the purposes of these provisions concerning agricultural products, 'pre-financed goods' means Community goods intended for export in the unaltered state which are the subject of the payment of an amount equal to an export refund before the goods are exported, where such payment is provided for in EC Council Regulation 565/80 (OJ L62, 7.3.80, p 5): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 524 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). 'Goods in the unaltered state' means import goods which, under the inward processing procedure or in the procedures for processing under customs control, have undergone no form of processing: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 84(3).

Where operations of inward processing (see PARA 160 et seq post) or processing under customs control (see PARA 173 et seq post) are carried out on the premises of customs warehouses or in storage facilities, the provisions of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 534 (as substituted) apply, mutatis mutandis, to the goods under these arrangements; but where these operations concern inward processing without equivalence or processing under customs control, the provisions of art 534 (as substituted) on common storage do not apply with regard to Community goods: art 535(1) (art 535 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1)). Entries in the records must allow the customs authorities to monitor the precise situation of all goods or products under the arrangements at any time: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 535(2) (as so substituted).

Theft from a warehouse does not relieve the persons responsible for their safe-keeping from liability for the customs duties. 'The reasons for extinction of the customs debt must be based on the fact that the goods have not been used for the economic purpose which justified the application of import duties. In the case of theft, it may be assumed that the goods pass into the Community commercial circuit. It follows that the loss of the goods . . . does not embrace the concept of theft, regardless of the circumstances in which it has been committed. Accordingly, according to the existing Community customs provisions the removal by third parties of goods subject to customs duty, even through no fault of the taxable person, does not extinguish the obligation to pay duty on them': Joined Cases 186, 187/82 Ministero delle Finanze v Esercizio Magazzini Generali SpA [1983] ECR 2951, [1984] 3 CMLR 217, ECJ.

13 Ibid as listed in ibid Annex 72 (as substituted): art 531 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). See PARA 156 note 2 post.

The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(ii) Customs Warehouses/C. PERMITTED ACTIVITIES/156. Import goods placed under the customs warehousing procedure.

156. Import goods placed under the customs warehousing procedure.

Import goods¹ may undergo the usual forms of handling² intended to preserve them, improve their appearance or marketable quality or prepare them for distribution or resale³. Community goods in respect of which, under Community legislation governing specific fields, it is provided that their being placed in a customs warehouse is to attract the application of measures normally attaching to the export of such goods⁴, which are placed under the customs warehousing procedure and which are covered by the common agricultural policy may undergo only the forms of handling expressly stipulated for such goods⁵. Such handling must in each case be authorised in advance by the customs authorities, who are to lay down the conditions under which they may take place⁶.

1 For these purposes, 'import goods' means goods placed under a suspensive procedure and goods which, under the inward processing procedure in the form of the drawback system, have undergone the formalities for release for free circulation and the formalities provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 125 (see PARA 165 post): art 84(2). For the meaning of 'the drawback system' see PARA 160 head (2) post.

2 The lists of the forms of handling referred to in ibid art 109(1) and art 109(2) (see the text and notes 3-5 infra) are to be established in accordance with the committee procedure: art 109(4). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 531, Annex 72 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28), (35), Annex V) lists the usual forms of handling, namely:

- 10 (1) ventilation, spreading-out, drying, removal of dust, simple cleaning operations, repair of packing, elementary repairs of damage incurred during transport or storage in so far as it concerns simple operations, application and removal of protective coating for transport;
- 11 (2) reconstruction of the goods after transport;
- 12 (3) stocktaking, sampling, sorting, sifting, mechanical filtering and weighing of the goods;
- 13 (4) removal of damaged or contaminated components;
- 14 (5) conservation, by means of pasteurisation, sterilisation, irradiation or the addition of preservatives;
- 15 (6) treatment against parasites;
- 16 (7) anti-rust treatment;
- 17 (8) treatment:
11. (a) by simple raising of the temperature, without further treatment or distillation process; or 11
12. (b) by simple lowering of the temperature, 12
- 18 even if this results in a different eight-digit CN code;
- 19 (9) electrostatic treatment, uncreasing or ironing of textiles;
- 20 (10) treatment consisting in:

13. (a) stemming and/or pitting of fruits, cutting up and breaking down of dried fruits or vegetables, rehydration of fruits; or 13
14. (b) dehydration of fruits even if this results in a different eight-digit CN code;
14
 - 21 (11) desalination, cleaning and butting of hides;
 - 22 (12) addition of goods or addition or replacement of accessory components as long as this addition or replacement is relatively limited or is intended to ensure compliance with technical standards and does not change the nature or improve the performances of the original goods, even if this results in a different eight-digit CN code for the added or replacement goods;
 - 23 (13) dilution or concentration of fluids, without further treatment or distillation process, even if this results in a different eight-digit CN code;
 - 24 (14) mixing between them of the same kind of goods, with a different quality, in order to obtain a constant quality or a quality which is requested by the customer, without changing the nature of the goods;
 - 25 (15) dividing or size cutting out of goods if only simple operations are involved;
 - 26 (16) packing, unpacking, change of packing, decanting and simple transfer into containers, even if this results in a different eight-digit CN code; affixing, removal and altering of marks, seals, labels, price tags or other similar distinguishing signs;
 - 27 (17) testing, adjusting, regulating and putting into working order of machines, apparatus and vehicles, in particular in order to control the compliance with technical standards, if only simple operations are involved;
 - 28 (18) dulling of pipe fittings to prepare the goods for certain markets.

Usual forms of handling listed above may not be granted if, in the opinion of the customs authorities, the operation is likely to increase the risk of fraud: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 72 (as so substituted). Unless otherwise specified, none of the forms of handling above may give rise to a different eight-digit CN code: Annex 72 (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante. As to the Combined Nomenclature see PARA 10 note 2 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 109(1), 1st para. A list of cases in which those forms of handling are to be prohibited for goods covered by the common agricultural policy may be drawn up if this is necessary to ensure the smooth operation of the common organisation of markets: art 109(1), 2nd para.

In Case 49/82 EC Commission v Netherlands [1983] ECR 1195, [1983] 2 CMLR 476, ECJ, the court held, in relation to EC Council Directive 69/74 (OJ L58, 8.3.69, p 7) art 9(1) (repealed: see now EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 109), that the essential purpose of customs warehouses was to provide for the storage of goods. For that reason, the handling authorised during storage was confined to 'such usual forms of handling as are needed to ensure preservation or to improve packaging or marketable quality'. It followed, therefore, that such operations were not intended, in principle, to permit the goods to pass from one stage of marketing to another and that an express provision was required for any exceptions to that rule in the case of certain operations concerning specific products. The repacking of bulk butter in small packets for the benefit of the ultimate consumer, therefore, fell not within the usual handling provisions of the customs warehousing procedure but under the inward processing procedure.

4 le the goods referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 98(1)(b): see PARA 151 head (2) ante.

6 Ibid art 109(3). Applications for permission to carry out usual forms of handling must be made in writing on a case by case basis to the supervising office: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 533, 1st para (art 533 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Such applications must contain all particulars necessary to apply the arrangements: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 533, 1st para (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'arrangements' see PARA 152 note 6 ante. Such permission may be granted as part of an authorisation to operate the warehousing arrangements: art 533, 2nd para (as so substituted). In this case the supervising office, in the manner it is to determine, must be notified that such handling is to be carried out: art 533, 2nd para (as so substituted).

D. TEMPORARY REMOVALS

158. Temporary removals from a warehouse and transfers from one warehouse to another.

Where circumstances so warrant, goods placed under the customs warehousing procedure may be temporarily removed from the customs warehouse¹. The customs authorities² must authorise such removals in advance³; and they must stipulate the conditions on which the removal may take place⁴. While they are outside the customs warehouse, the goods may undergo the forms of handling permitted by the Community Customs Code⁵, on the conditions generally applicable⁶.

The customs authorities may allow goods placed under the customs warehousing procedure to be transferred from one customs warehouse to another⁷.

E. DISCHARGE OF GOODS

159. Entry and discharge of goods from the customs warehousing procedure.

Where goods are entered for the type E warehouse arrangements¹, the entry in the stock records² must take place when they arrive at the holder's storage facilities³. Where the customs warehouse also serves as a temporary storage facility, the entry in the stock records must take place at the time the declaration for the arrangements is accepted⁴.

Goods are discharged from the customs warehousing procedure when a new customs-approved treatment or use⁵ is assigned either to the goods placed under that arrangement or to compensating or processed products placed under it⁶.

Entry in the stock records relating to discharge of the arrangements is to take place at the latest when the goods leave the customs warehouse or the holder's storage facilities⁷.

For the purpose of being declared for a customs-approved treatment or use, the goods in common storage⁸ as well as, in particular circumstances, identifiable goods which fulfil specified conditions⁹ may be deemed to be either Community goods¹⁰ or non-Community goods¹¹. However, this is not to result in a given customs status being assigned to a quantity of goods greater than the quantity actually having that status which is stored at the customs warehouse or the storage facilities when the goods declared for a customs-approved treatment or use are removed¹².

(iii) Inward Processing

A. IN GENERAL

160. The basis of inward processing.

Inward processing enables goods which are not intended for the Community market to be imported duty-free so that they may be processed by undertakings based in the Community and then re-exported¹. As a general rule², the inward processing procedure allows the following goods to be used in the customs territory of the Community³ in one or more processing operations:

- 426 (1) non-Community goods⁴ intended for re-export from the customs territory of the Community in the form of compensating products, without such goods being subject to import duties⁵ or commercial policy measures⁶ ('the suspension system')⁷; and
- 427 (2) goods released for free circulation⁸, with repayment or remission of the import duties chargeable on such goods if they are exported from the customs territory of the Community in the form of compensating products ('the drawback system')⁹.

'Processing operations' means:

- 428 (a) the working of goods, including erecting or assembling them or fitting them to other goods;
- 429 (b) the processing of goods;
- 430 (c) the repair of goods, including restoring them and putting them in order; and
- 431 (d) the use of certain goods¹⁰ which are not to be found in the compensating products, but which allow or facilitate the production of those products, even if they are entirely or partially used up in the process¹¹.

'Compensating products' means all products resulting from processing operations¹².

The inward processing procedure, applying the suspension system, also applies in order that the compensating products may qualify for exemption from the export duties¹³ to which identical products obtained from Community goods¹⁴ instead of import goods¹⁵ would be liable¹⁶.

Inward processing arrangements are aimed at promoting exports from Community undertakings, under the international division of labour, by enabling them to import goods from non-member countries without paying import duties where they are to be exported from the Community after processing, but without adversely affecting the essential interests of Community producers: Case C-325/96 Fabrica de Queijo Eru Portuguesa Lda v Subdirector-Geral das Alfândegas [1997] ECR I-7249, ECJ.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(iii) Inward Processing/A. IN GENERAL/161. The equivalent compensation system.

161. The equivalent compensation system.

Where certain conditions are satisfied¹, the customs authorities² must allow:

- 432 (1) compensating products³ to be obtained from equivalent goods⁴; and
- 433 (2) compensating products obtained from equivalent goods to be exported from the Community before importation of the import goods⁵.

'Equivalent goods' means Community goods⁶ which are used instead of the import goods for the manufacture of compensating products⁷.

In order for this arrangement to apply⁸, the equivalent goods must be of the same quality and have the same characteristics as the import goods⁹. However, in specified cases¹⁰ equivalent goods may be allowed to be at a more advanced stage of manufacture than the import goods¹¹.

When this arrangement applies, the import goods are regarded for customs purposes as equivalent goods and the latter as import goods¹².

5 Ibid art 115(1)(b). For the meaning of 'import goods' see PARA 156 note 1 ante. The system referred to in art 115(1)(b) is known as 'prior exportation': EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 536(a) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Measures aimed at prohibiting, imposing certain conditions for or facilitating recourse to this arrangement may be adopted in accordance with the committee procedure: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 115(4) (substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(4)). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. In the case of prior exportation, where the compensating products would be liable to export duties if they were not being exported or re-exported under an inward processing operation, the holder of the authorisation must provide a security to ensure the payment of the duties should the import goods not be imported within the prescribed period: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 115(5). Article 115(1)(b), (5) does not apply under the drawback system: art 126. For the meaning of 'holder of the authorisation' see PARA 143 note 10 ante; and for the meaning of 'the drawback system' see PARA 160 head (2) ante. 7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 114(2)(e).

8 See EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 549(g). Where use is to be made of the equivalent compensation system, the equivalent goods must fall within the same eight-digit subheading of the Combined Nomenclature code, be of the same commercial quality and have the same technical characteristics as the import goods: art 541(1) (art 541 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Special provisions, set out in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 78 (as substituted), apply in respect of specified goods (rice, wheat, sugar, live animals and meat, maize, olive oil, milk and milk products): art 541(3) (as so substituted).

9 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 115(2). An authorisation may be granted only where the applicant has the intention of re-exporting or exporting main compensating products: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 537 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). 'Main compensating products' means compensating products for the production of which the arrangements were authorised: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 496(k) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

10 le to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure. The customs authorities may thus allow equivalent goods to be at a more advanced stage of manufacture than the import goods, where the essential part of the processing with regard to the equivalent goods is carried out in the undertaking of the holder of the authorisation or in the undertaking where the operation is being carried out on his behalf, save in exceptional cases: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 541(2) (as substituted: see note 8 supra).

12 Ibid art 115(3). Article 115(3) does not apply under the drawback system: art 126.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(iii) Inward Processing/B. GRANT OF AUTHORISATION/162. Authorisation of inward processing.

B. GRANT OF AUTHORISATION

162. Authorisation of inward processing.

As a customs procedure with economic impact, the use of the inward processing procedure is conditional on authorisation being issued by the customs authorities¹. Such authorisation is to be issued at the request of the person who carries out the processing operations², or who arranges for them to be carried out³. The authorisation is to be granted only:

- 434 (1) to persons established in the Community⁴;
- 435 (2) where, without prejudice to the use of production accessories⁵, the import goods⁶ can be identified in the compensating products⁷ or, in the case of the equivalent compensation system⁸, where compliance with the conditions laid down in respect of equivalent goods can be verified⁹;
- 436 (3) where the inward processing procedure can help create the most favourable conditions for the export or re-export of compensating products, provided that the essential interests of Community producers are not adversely affected ('economic conditions')¹⁰.

In order to make pertinent information available to other customs offices involved in the application of the arrangements, information sheets¹¹ may be issued at the request of the person concerned or on the initiative of the customs authorities, unless the customs authorities agree other means of exchange of information¹².

1 See EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 85; and PARA 143 ante. For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

4 Ibid art 117(a). For the meaning of 'person established in the Community' see PARA 84 note 6 ante. Authorisation may be granted to persons established outside the Community in respect of imports of a non-commercial nature: art 117(a). 'Goods of a non-commercial nature' means goods whose entry for the customs procedure in question is on an occasional basis and whose nature and quantity indicate that they are intended for the private, personal or family use of the consignees or persons carrying them, or which are clearly intended as gifts: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 1(6).

8 Ie under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 115: see PARA 161 ante.

9 Ibid art 117(b). The authorisation must specify the means and methods of identifying the import goods in the compensating products and lay down the conditions for the proper conduct of operations using equivalent goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 540, 1st para (art 540 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Such methods of identification or conditions may include examination of the records: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 540, 2nd para (as so substituted).

10 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 117(c). The cases in which the economic conditions are deemed to have been fulfilled may be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 117(c) (amended by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(5)). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. As to economic conditions see PARA 163 post. The economic conditions laid down by EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 117(c) (as amended) are applied within the United Kingdom either by the Department of Trade and Industry or by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. In practice, the system operates as follows. Inward processing applications are submitted to and received by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs. The applications are forwarded by the Commissioners to the Department, as appropriate, to enable the economic test, ie whether the essential interests of Community producers are adversely affected, to be applied. The Commissioners examine the subsequent recommendations and, after considering the various factors affecting customs control, will either grant or refuse the application. The application form as submitted is then indorsed with any recommendations made as regards the economic test and, if granted, is also subsequently indorsed with details of the authorisation: see Nacco Material Handling (NI) Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1997) Customs Decision 50 (unreported).

163. Economic conditions.

The economic conditions¹ are deemed to be fulfilled except where the application concerns import goods of specified² types³. However, the conditions are also deemed to be fulfilled where an application concerns such specified import goods provided that:

- 437 (1) the application concerns:
 - 14 22. (a) operations involving goods of a non-commercial nature;
 - 23. (b) a job-processing⁴ contract;
 - 24. (c) the processing of compensating products already obtained by processing under a previous authorisation the granting of which was subject to an examination of the economic conditions;
 - 25. (d) usual forms of handling⁵;
 - 26. (e) repair;
 - 27. (f) the processing of durum wheat⁶ to produce pasta⁷; or
- 15 438 (2) the aggregate value of the import goods per applicant and per calendar year for each eight-digit Combined Nomenclature code does not exceed 150,000 euros⁸; or
- 439 (3) specified⁹ import goods are concerned and the applicant presents a document issued by a competent authority permitting the entry of those goods for the arrangements¹⁰, in the limits of a quantity determined on the basis of a supply balance¹¹.

Except where the economic conditions are deemed to be fulfilled pursuant to these provisions, the authorisation may not be granted without examination of the economic conditions by the customs authorities¹². For the inward processing arrangements, the examination must establish the economic unviability of using Community sources taking account in particular of the following criteria:

- 440 (i) unavailability of Community-produced goods sharing the same quality and technical characteristics as the goods intended to be imported for the processing operations envisaged;
- 441 (ii) differences in price between Community-produced goods and those intended to be imported;
- 442 (iii) contractual obligations¹³.

4 For these purposes, 'job-processing' means any processing of import goods directly or indirectly placed at the disposal of the holder which is carried out according to the specifications and on behalf of a principal established in a third country, generally against payment of processing costs alone: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 536(b) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(iii) Inward Processing/B. GRANT OF AUTHORISATION/164. Application for authorisation to operate the inward processing procedure.

164. Application for authorisation to operate the inward processing procedure.

The application for authorisation to use the inward processing procedure¹ must be made in writing and in conformity with the normal procedure² for applications to use a customs procedure with economic impact³. The application must be submitted to the customs authorities⁴ designated for the place where the processing operation is to be carried out⁵; but, where it is expected that successive operations will be carried out in different member states, an application for a single authorisation may be made⁶.

The application for authorisation may, however, be made by means of a customs declaration in writing or by means of a data-processing technique using the normal procedure where the economic conditions are deemed to be fulfilled⁷, with the exception of applications involving equivalent goods⁸.

The authorisation is granted by the customs authorities to which the application was presented, and must be made out in conformity with the model authorisation or as appropriate⁹. The customs authorities must communicate to the Commission, within the prescribed time limit and in the prescribed format¹⁰, information as to authorisations issued and as to applications refused or authorisations annulled or revoked on the grounds of economic conditions not being fulfilled¹¹. The Commission must make these particulars available to the customs administrations¹².

1 As to the inward processing procedure see PARA 160 ante.

3 See ibid art 497(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). The application must be in accordance with the specimen in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 67 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(37), Annex V). Nevertheless, in cases where the imports exceed the levels of quantity and value provided in the original authorisation, the taxpayer is obliged, in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 87(2) (see PARA 143 ante), to furnish notification of the same to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs and, if necessary, to make application under EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 497(2) (as substituted) for such modification of the authorisation as may have been rendered appropriate: Nacco Material Handling (NI) Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1997) Customs Decision 50 (unreported).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

165. Conditions for the grant of authorisation.

Relief under the inward processing procedure¹ is given in two forms, that is to say by suspension² and by drawback³.

The period of validity may not exceed three years from the date on which the authorisation takes effect, except where there are duly justified good reasons⁴. For specified agricultural products⁵, however, the period of validity may not exceed six months⁶, and in the case of certain milk and milk products⁷, the period of validity may not exceed three months⁸.

The usual rules governing the application for and grant of authorisation apply⁹. Ordinarily, therefore, an authorisation to use the procedure takes effect from the date of issue¹⁰. However, the customs authorities may issue a retroactive authorisation, which may go back to, but not beyond, the time when the application was submitted¹¹, and in exceptional cases, where a proven economic need exists, the retroactive effect of an authorisation may be extended further, but not more than one year before the date on which the application was submitted¹².

2 Under the suspension system the payment of the import duties is suspended until the compensating products are exported from the customs territory of the Community: see PARA 160 head (1) ante.

3 Under the drawback system the relevant amount of duty is deposited with the customs authorities, and is remitted or refunded on the export of the compensating products from the customs territory of the Community: see PARA 160 head (2) ante. The drawback system may be used for all goods, except where, at the time the declaration of release for free circulation is accepted: (1) the import goods are subject to quantitative import restrictions; (2) a tariff measure within quotas is applied to the import goods; (3) the import goods are subject to presentation of an import or export licence or certificate in the framework of the common agricultural policy; or (4) an export refund or tax has been set for the compensating products: Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 124(1) (art 124 substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(6)). For the meaning of 'import goods' see PARA 156 note 1 ante. No reimbursement of import duties under the drawback system is possible if, at the time the export declaration for the compensating products is accepted, these products are subject to presentation of an import or export licence or certificate in the framework of the common agricultural policy or an export refund or tax has been set for them: Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 124(2) (as so substituted). Derogations from these provisions may be laid down in accordance with the committee procedure: art 124(3) (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. The declaration of release for free circulation must indicate that the drawback system is being used and must provide particulars of the authorisation: art 125(1). At the request of the customs authorities, such authorisation must be attached to the declaration of release for free circulation: art 125(2).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(iii) Inward Processing/C. OPERATION OF THE PROCEDURE/166. In general.

C. OPERATION OF THE PROCEDURE

166. In general.

On issuing an authorisation, the customs authorities¹ must specify the period within which the compensating products² must have been exported or re-exported or assigned another customs-approved treatment or use³, taking account of the time required to carry out the processing operations⁴ and to dispose of the compensating products⁵. The period in question runs from the date on which the non-Community goods⁶ are placed under the inward processing procedure⁷. The customs authorities may grant an extension of this period on the submission by the holder of the authorisation⁸ of a duly substantiated request⁹.

In a case where the prior exportation procedure¹⁰ applies, the customs authorities must specify the period within which the non-Community goods must be declared for the procedure¹¹. That period runs from the date of acceptance of the export declaration relating to the compensating products obtained from the corresponding equivalent goods¹².

Under the suspension system, use of equivalent goods for processing operations¹³ is not subject to the formalities for entry of goods for the arrangements¹⁴.

The documents which must accompany the declaration for entry depend on whether the drawback system or the suspension system of inward processing is to be used¹⁵.

In order to determine whether the requirements of the authorisation for the procedure have been complied with, a verification method based on the rate of yield is to be used. The rate of yield is the quantity or percentage of compensating products obtained from the processing of a given quantity of import goods¹⁶. The customs authorities must set either the rate of yield of the operation for which authorisation has been sought or the method of determining the rate¹⁷. The rate is to be determined on the basis of the actual circumstances in which the processing operation is, or is to be, carried out¹⁸. In certain circumstances, standard rates of yield may be set¹⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'compensating products' see PARA 160 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use of goods' see PARA 82 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'processing operations' see PARA 160 ante.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 118(1). As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante. The authorisation must specify the period for discharge of the goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 542(1) (art 542 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Where the circumstances so warrant, this period may be extended even when that originally set has expired: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 542(1) (as so substituted). 'Period for discharge' means the time by which the goods or products must have been assigned a new permitted customs-approved treatment or use including, as the case may be, in order to claim repayment of import duties after inward processing (drawback system), or in order to obtain total or partial relief from import duties upon release for free circulation after outward processing: art 496(m) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Where the period for discharge expires on a specific date for all the goods placed under the arrangements in a given period, the authorisation may provide that the period for discharge is to be automatically extended for all goods still under the arrangements on this date; however, the customs authorities may require that such goods be assigned a new permitted customs-approved treatment or use within the period which they may set: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 542(2) (as so substituted).

6 For the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 118(1), 1st para. For reasons of simplification, it may be decided that a period which commences in the course of a calendar month or quarter is to end on the last day of a subsequent calendar month or quarter respectively: art 118(2), 2nd para.

Correspondingly, specific time limits may be laid down in accordance with the committee procedure for certain processing operations or for certain import goods: art 118(4). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. As to the maximum time limits in the case of certain agricultural products see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 542(3) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). Where successive processing operations are carried out or where exceptional circumstances so warrant, the periods may be extended on request, the total period not exceeding 12 months: art 542(3) (as so substituted).

It had been held that the time limits so established under the former provisions could not be extended: the objective pursued by those provisions was to make application of the inward processing relief arrangements to agricultural products more difficult because of the particular problems raised by the functioning of the common market in those products. It was for that reason that it was decided to set strict bounds at Community level to the time limits within which the inward processing relief arrangements for import goods are to be cleared. That objective would be undermined if the specific time limits referred to in art 560 (repealed) could be extended by the national customs authorities: Case C-325/96 Fabrica de Queijo Eru Portuguesa Lda v Subdirector-Geral das Alfândegas [1997] ECR I-7249, ECJ.

8 For the meaning of 'holder of the authorisation' see PARA 143 note 10 ante.

10 Ie where ibid art 115(1)(b) applies: see PARA 161 head (2) ante.

11 Ibid art 118(3). Article 118(3) does not apply under the drawback system: art 126. In the case of prior exportation the authorisation must specify the period within which the non-Community goods must be declared for the arrangements, taking account of the time required for procurement and transport to the Community: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 543(1) (art 543 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). The period may not exceed: (1) three months for goods subject to a common market organisation; or (2) six months for all other goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 543(2) (as so substituted). The period of six months may, however, be extended where the holder submits a reasoned request, provided that the total period does not exceed 12 months; and where the circumstances so warrant the extension may be allowed even after the original period has expired: art 543(2) (as so substituted).

15 See EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 220 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(3)). In the case of the drawback system, the documents required are those laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 218(1) (see PARA 104 note 9 ante): art 220(1)(b) (as so substituted). In the case of the suspension system, the documents required are those laid down in art 218(1)(a), (b) (see PARA 104 note 9 heads (1), (2) ante): art 220(1)(b) (as so substituted). Where appropriate, the declaration of entry is also to be accompanied by the written authorisation for the customs procedure in question, or a copy of the authorisation, where art 508(1) (as substituted) applies (retroactive authorisation: see PARA 165 ante): art 220(1)(b) (as so substituted; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(1)). The customs authorities may also require transport documents or documents relating to the previous customs procedure, as appropriate, to be produced when the declaration is lodged: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 218(2), 220(2) (as so substituted). The customs authorities may allow the written authorisation of the procedure or a copy of the application for authorisation to be kept at their disposal instead of accompanying the declaration: art 220(3) (as so substituted). However, see also art 275 (as amended), art 276 (simplified entry procedures available in the case of inward processing).

17 Ibid art 119(1). As to the rate of yield see PARA 148 ante.

18 Ibid art 119(1).

19 Ibid art 119(2). Where circumstances so warrant and, in particular, in the case of processing operations customarily carried out under clearly defined technical conditions involving goods of substantially uniform characteristics and resulting in compensating products of uniform quality, standard rates of yield may be set in accordance with the committee procedure on the basis of actual data previously ascertained: art 119(2). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. The standard rates of yield laid down for inward processing in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 69 (as substituted) apply to the operations mentioned therein: see art 517(3) (as substituted); and PARA 148 note 6 ante). They apply only to import goods of sound, genuine and merchantable quality which conform to any standard quality laid down in Community legislation and on condition that the compensating products are not obtained by special processing methods in order to meet specific quality requirements: Annex 69 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(37), Annex V).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

167. Temporary exportation.

Some or all of the compensating products¹ or goods in the unaltered state² held for the purposes of an inward processing procedure³ may be temporarily exported for the purpose of further processing outside the customs territory of the Community⁴ if the customs authority so authorises, in accordance with the conditions laid down in the outward processing provisions⁵.

Where a customs debt⁶ is incurred in respect of re-imported products, the following are to be charged:

- 443 (1) import duties⁷ on the compensating products or goods in the unaltered state⁸; and
- 444 (2) import duties on products re-imported after processing outside the customs territory of the Community, the amount of which is to be calculated in accordance with the provisions relating to the outward processing procedure, on the same conditions as would have applied had the products exported under the latter procedure been released for free circulation⁹ before such export took place¹⁰.

Temporary exportation of compensating products carried out as provided for in art 123(1) is not to be considered to be exportation within the meaning of art 128 (as amended) (see PARA 170 post), except where such products are not re-imported into the Community within the period prescribed: art 127. E. TRIANGULAR TRAFFIC

168. Triangular traffic.

'Triangular traffic' means the traffic where the office of discharge¹ is not the same as the office of entry². Specific information is required where the triangular traffic system is operated³.

1 'Office of discharge' means the customs office or offices indicated in the authorisation as empowered to accept declarations assigning goods, following entry for the arrangements, to a new permitted customs-approved treatment or use, or, in the case of outward processing, the declaration for free circulation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 496(g) (art 496 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). 2 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 496(h) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). For the meaning of 'office of entry' see PARA 146 note 7 ante.

3 In the information sheet INF9 for the communication of information on compensating products to be assigned another customs approved treatment or use in triangular traffic, and the information sheet INF5 for the communication, to obtain duty relief for import goods, of information on prior exportation in triangular traffic: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 523(b) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). As to the details of such information sheets see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 71 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(37), Annex V; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1792 (OJ L362, 20.12.2006, p 1)). However, in the case of the grant of a single authorisation, no notification between two or more customs administrations is needed where the only element involving different customs administrations is triangular traffic under inward or outward processing, without use of recapitulative information sheets: see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 501(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(iii) Inward Processing/F. DISCHARGE OF THE PROCEDURE/169. Discharge of the inward processing procedure.

F. DISCHARGE OF THE PROCEDURE

169. Discharge of the inward processing procedure.

In accordance with general principles, a suspensive arrangement with economic impact¹ is discharged when a new customs-approved treatment or use² is assigned either to the goods placed under the arrangement or to compensating³ or processed products placed under it⁴.

The equivalent goods⁵ and compensating products⁶ made from them become non-Community goods and the import goods become Community goods at the time of acceptance of the declaration discharging the arrangements⁷. However, where import goods are put on the market before the arrangements are discharged, they change their status at the time they are put on the market⁸. In exceptional cases, where the equivalent goods are expected not to be present at that time, the customs authorities⁹ may allow, at the request of the holder¹⁰, the equivalent goods to be present at a later time, to be determined by them and within a reasonable time¹¹. Where the prior exportation procedure applies¹², compensating products become non-Community goods on acceptance of the export declaration on condition that the goods to be imported are entered for the arrangements, and import goods become Community goods at the time of their entry for the arrangements¹³.

The authorisation must specify whether compensating products or goods in the unaltered state may be released for free circulation without customs declaration, without prejudice to prohibitive or restrictive measures. In this case they are considered to have been released for free circulation if they have not been assigned a customs-approved treatment or use on expiry of the period for discharge¹⁴. The products or goods become Community goods when they are put on the market¹⁵.

It will be understood that one significant distinction between inward processing under the suspension system and inward processing under the drawback system is that it is only in the latter case that the import goods have been released for free circulation: see art 114(1); and PARA 160 ante. The cases in which, and the conditions under which, goods in the unaltered state or compensating products are to be considered to have been released for free circulation may be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 120. G. REPAYMENT OR REMISSION OF DUTIES UNDER THE DRAWBACK SYSTEM

170. Repayment or remission of duties under the drawback system.

The holder of the authorisation¹ for the inward processing procedure under the drawback system² may ask for the import duty³ to be repaid or remitted where he can establish to the satisfaction of the customs authorities⁴ that import goods⁵ released for free circulation⁶ under that system in the form of compensating products⁷ or goods in the unaltered state have either been exported or been placed (with a view to being subsequently re-exported) under the transit procedure⁸, the customs warehousing procedure⁹, the temporary importation procedure¹⁰ or the suspensive form of the inward processing procedure¹¹, or in a free zone¹² or free warehouse¹³, provided that all conditions for use of the procedure have been fulfilled¹⁴.

If compensating products or goods in the unaltered state so placed under a customs procedure or in a free zone or free warehouse are released for free circulation¹⁵, the amount of import duties repaid or remitted is deemed to constitute the amount of the customs debt¹⁶.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

H. DETERMINATION OF CUSTOMS DEBT

171. In general.

As a general rule¹, where a customs debt² is incurred, the amount of such debt is to be determined on the basis of the taxation elements appropriate to the import goods³ at the time of acceptance of the declaration of placing of these goods under the inward processing procedure⁴. If, however, at the time of acceptance of that declaration the import goods fulfilled the conditions to qualify for preferential tariff treatment within tariff quotas or ceilings, they remain eligible for any preferential tariff treatment existing in respect of identical goods at the time of acceptance of the declaration of release for free circulation⁵.

1 Ie subject to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 122: see PARA 172 post.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 121(1). Article 121 does not apply under the drawback system: art 126. For the meaning of 'the drawback system' see PARA 160 head (2) ante.

5 Ibid art 121(2). As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante. The import duties to be charged under art 121(1) (see the text to notes 1-4 supra) on import goods eligible, at the time when the declaration of entry for the arrangements was accepted, for favourable tariff treatment by reason of their end-use is to be calculated at the rate corresponding to such end-use: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 547a (added by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(21)). This is to be allowed only if an authorisation for such end-use could have been granted and if the conditions attaching to the granting of favourable tariff treatment would have been fulfilled: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 547a (as so added). As to end-use relief see PARAS 270-273 post.

172. Compensating products.

By way of derogation from the general rule for determining the customs debt due on discharge from the inward processing procedure¹, compensating products²:

- 445 (1) are subject to the import duties³ appropriate to them where:
- 16
28. (a) they are released for free circulation⁴ and appear on the list adopted in accordance with the committee procedure⁵, to the extent that they are in proportion to the exported part of the compensating products not included in that list⁶; or
29. (b) they are subject to charges established under the common agricultural policy, and provisions adopted in accordance with the committee procedure so provide⁷;
- 17
- 446 (2) are subject to import duties calculated in accordance with the rules applicable to the customs procedure in question, or to free zones⁸ or free warehouses⁹, where they have been placed under a suspensive arrangement, or in a free zone or free warehouse¹⁰;
- 447 (3) may be made subject to the rules governing assessment of duty laid down under the procedure for processing under customs control where the import goods could have been placed under that procedure¹¹;
- 448 (4) enjoy favourable tariff treatment owing to the special use for which they are intended, where provision is made for such treatment in the case of identical imported goods¹²; and
- 449 (5) are to be admitted free of import duty where such duty-free provision is made in the case of identical goods imported in accordance with the provisions¹³ relating to reliefs from customs duty in respect of privileged operations¹⁴.

Where a customs debt is incurred in respect of compensating products or goods in the unaltered state¹⁵, compensatory interest is to be paid on the applicable import duty¹⁶.

(iv) Processing under Customs Control

173. Purpose of the procedure.

The procedure for processing under customs control¹ allows non-Community goods² to be used in the customs territory of the Community³ in operations which alter their nature or state, without their being subject to import duties⁴ or commercial policy measures⁵, and allows the products resulting from such operations to be released for free circulation⁶ at the rate of import duty appropriate to them; such products are known as 'processed products'⁷. The cases in and specific conditions under which the procedure for processing under customs control may be used is to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure⁸.

1 For the meaning of 'control by the customs authorities' see PARA 30 note 7 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'commercial policy measures' see PARA 104 note 8 ante.

6 As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante.

7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 130.

8 Ibid art 131 (substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(7)). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. Pursuant to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 131 (as substituted), the arrangements for processing under customs control apply for goods the processing of which leads to products which are subject to a lower amount of import duties than that applicable to the import goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 551(1), 1st para (art 551 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). For the meaning of 'arrangements' see PARA 152 note 6 ante; and for the meaning of 'import goods' see PARA 156 note 1 ante. The arrangements also apply for goods which have to undergo operations to ensure their compliance with technical requirements for their release for free circulation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 551(1), 2nd para (as so substituted).

For the purposes of determining the customs value of processed products declared for free circulation, the declarant may choose any of the methods referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 30(2)(a), (b) or (c) (see PARAS 64-67 ante) or the customs value of the import goods plus the processing costs: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 551(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). 'Processing costs' means all costs incurred in making the processed products, including overheads and the value of any Community goods used: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 551(3) (as so substituted; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(22)).

Authorisation and operation of the procedure.

174. Authorisation and operation of the procedure.

Authorisation for processing under customs control is to be granted at the request of the person who carries out the processing or arranges for it to be carried out¹. Authorisation is to be granted only:

- 450 (1) to persons established in the Community²;
- 451 (2) where the import goods³ can be identified in the processed products;
- 452 (3) where the goods cannot be economically restored after processing to their description or state as it was when they were placed under the procedure;
- 453 (4) where use of the procedure cannot result in circumvention of the effect of the rules concerning origin and quantitative restrictions applicable to the imported goods; and
- 454 (5) where the necessary conditions for the procedure to help create or maintain a processing activity in the Community without adversely affecting the essential interests of Community producers of similar goods ('economic conditions') are fulfilled⁴.

When issuing an authorisation, the customs authorities must specify the period within which the products resulting from the operations must have been exported or re-exported or assigned another customs-approved treatment or use⁵, taking account of the time required to carry out the processing operations and to dispose of the compensating products⁶. The period in question runs from the date on which the non-Community goods⁷ are placed under the procedure for processing under customs control⁸. The customs authorities may grant an extension of this period on the submission by the holder of the authorisation⁹ of a duly substantiated request¹⁰. Once authorisation for processing under customs control has been obtained, the goods must be entered for the procedure¹¹.

The customs authorities must communicate to the Commission, within the prescribed time limit and in the prescribed format¹², information as to authorisations issued and as to applications refused or authorisations annulled or revoked on the grounds of economic conditions not being fulfilled¹³. The Commission must make these particulars available to the customs administrations¹⁴.

In order to determine whether the requirements of the authorisation for the procedure have been complied with, a verification method based on the rate of yield is to be used. The rate of yield is the quantity or percentage of compensating products obtained from the processing of a given quantity of import goods¹⁵. The customs authorities must set either the rate of yield of the operation for which authorisation has been sought, or the method of determining the rate¹⁶. The rate is to be determined on the basis of the actual circumstances in which the processing operation is, or is to be, carried out¹⁷. In certain circumstances, standard rates of yield may be set¹⁸.

1 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 132. The application must be submitted to the customs authorities designated for the place where the processing operation is to be carried out: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 498(b) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'person established in the Community' see PARA 84 note 6 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'import goods' see PARA 156 note 1 ante.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 133. The cases in which the economic conditions are deemed to have been fulfilled may be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 133(e) (amended by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(8)). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. For the types of goods and operations mentioned in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 76 Pt A (as substituted), the economic conditions are deemed to be fulfilled: art 552(1), 1st para (art 552 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). For other types of goods and operations examination of the economic conditions must take place: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 552(1), 2nd para (as so substituted); and see PARA 144 ante. For the types of goods and operations mentioned in Annex 76 Pt B (as substituted) and not covered by Annex Pt A, the examination of the economic conditions is to take place in the committee, and art 504(3), (4) (see PARA 144 text and notes 10-14 ante) is to apply: art 552(2) (as so substituted). Where an examination of the economic conditions is necessary, the examination must establish whether the use of non-Community sources enables processing activities to be created or maintained in the Community: art 502(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

Where the economic conditions are deemed to have been fulfilled, the application for authorisation may be made by means of a customs declaration in writing or by means of a data-processing technique using the normal procedure: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 497(3)(b) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

7 For the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 118(2), 1st para, 134. For reasons of simplification, it may be decided that a period which commences in the course of a calendar month or quarter is to end on the last day of a subsequent calendar month or quarter respectively: arts 118(2), 2nd para, 134. Where the circumstances so warrant, the period specified in the authorisation may be extended, even when that originally set has expired: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 542(1), 551(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Where the period for discharge expires on a specific date for all the goods placed under the arrangements in a given period, the authorisation may provide that the period for discharge is to be automatically extended for all goods still under the arrangements on this date; however, the customs authorities may require that such goods be assigned a new permitted customs-approved treatment or use within the period which they set: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 542(2), 551(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

9 For the meaning of 'holder of the authorisation' see PARA 143 note 10 ante.

10 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 118(2), 134.

11 The documents to accompany the declaration of entry for processing under customs control are those laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 218(1)(a), (b) (see PARA 104 note 9 heads (1), (2) ante) and, where appropriate, the written authorisation for the customs procedure or a copy of the application for authorisation where art 508(1) (as substituted) applies (retroactive authorisation: see PARA 143 note 8 ante): art 220(1)(c) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(3); and amended by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(1)). In addition, as processing under customs control is a customs procedure with economic impact (see PARA 143 ante), EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 218(2) (see PARA 104 note 9 ante) applies: art 220(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(3)).

12 Ie in the cases, within the time limit and in the format set out in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 70 (as substituted).

16 Ibid arts 119(1), 134. As to the rate of yield see PARA 148 ante.

17 Ibid arts 119(1), 134.

18 Ibid arts 119(2), 134. Where circumstances so warrant and, in particular, in the case of processing operations customarily carried out under clearly defined technical conditions involving goods of substantially uniform characteristics and resulting in compensating products of uniform quality, standard rates of yield may be set in accordance with the committee procedure on the basis of actual data previously ascertained: arts 119(2), 134. For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

175. Discharge of the procedure.

In accordance with general principles, a suspensive arrangement with economic impact, such as processing under customs control, is discharged when a new customs-approved treatment or use¹ is assigned either to the goods placed under the arrangement or to compensating or processed products placed under it². The discharge of the procedure is based either on the quantity of import goods³ corresponding, by application of the rate of yield⁴, to the processed products or on the quantity of goods in the unaltered state⁵ which have been assigned to a customs-approved treatment or use⁶.

The holder of the authorisation must, within 30 days of the expiry of the time limit for discharge⁷, supply the supervising office⁸ with a bill of discharge⁹.

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(iv) Processing under Customs Control/176. Customs debts in respect of goods processed under customs control.

176. Customs debts in respect of goods processed under customs control.

Where a customs debt¹ is incurred in respect of goods in the unaltered state² or of products that are at an intermediate stage of processing as compared with that provided for in the authorisation³, the amount of that debt is to be determined on the basis of the items of charge elements appropriate to the import goods⁴ at the time of acceptance of the declaration relating to the placing of the goods under the procedure for processing under customs control⁵.

Where the import goods qualified for preferential tariff treatment when they were placed under the procedure for processing under customs control, and such preferential tariff treatment is applicable to products identical to the processed products which are released for free circulation⁶, the import duties⁷ to which the processed products are subject are to be calculated by applying the rate of duty applicable under that treatment⁸. If that preferential tariff treatment in respect of the import goods is subject to tariff quotas or tariff ceilings, the application of the rate of duty in respect of the processed products is also subject to the condition that such preferential tariff treatment is applicable to the import goods at the time of acceptance of the declaration of release for free circulation; and, in this case, the quantity of import goods actually used in the manufacture of the processed products released for free circulation is to be charged against the tariff quotas or ceilings in force at the time of acceptance of the declaration of release for free circulation and no quantities are counted against tariff quotas or ceilings opened in respect of products identical to the processed products⁹.

CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(v) Temporary Importation/B. TEMPORARY IMPORTATION WITH TOTAL RELIEF/(A) Means of Transport/178. Means of road, rail, air, sea and inland waterway transport.

B. TEMPORARY IMPORTATION WITH TOTAL RELIEF

(A) MEANS OF TRANSPORT

178. Means of road, rail, air, sea and inland waterway transport.

The temporary importation procedure¹ with total relief applies to means of road, rail, air, sea and inland waterway transport² where they:

- 455 (1) are registered outside the customs territory of the Community³ in the name of a person established outside that territory⁴;
- 456 (2) are used by a person established outside that territory⁵;
- 457 (3) in the case of commercial use⁶ and with the exception of means of rail transport, are used exclusively for transport which begins or ends outside the customs territory of the Community⁷.

Where the means of transport referred to above are re-hired by a professional hire service established in the customs territory of the Community to a person established outside that territory, they must be re-exported within eight days of entry into force of the contract⁸.

Persons established in the customs territory of the Community are to benefit from total relief from import duties where:

- 458 (a) means of rail transport are put at the disposal of such persons under an agreement whereby each network may use the rolling stock of the other networks as its own;
- 459 (b) a trailer is coupled to a means of road transport registered in the customs territory of the Community;
- 460 (c) means of transport are used in connection with an emergency situation and their use does not exceed five days; or
- 461 (d) means of transport are used by a professional hire firm for the purpose of re-exportation within a period not exceeding five days⁹.

1 As to the temporary importation procedure see PARA 177 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'means of transport' includes normal spare parts, accessories and equipment accompanying them: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 555(2) (art 555 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

3 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

4 However, if the means of transport are not registered, this condition may be deemed to be met where they are owned by a person established outside the customs territory of the Community: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 558(1)(a) (art 558 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

5 le without prejudice to EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 559-561 (as substituted) (see the text to note 9 infra; and PARAS 179-180 post): art 558(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

6 For these purposes, 'commercial use' means the use of means of transport for the transport of persons for remuneration or the industrial or commercial transport of goods, whether or not for remuneration: ibid art 555(1)(a) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1) art 1(14)).

7 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 558(1) (as substituted: see note 4 supra). However, they may be used in internal traffic where the provisions in force in the field of transport, in particular those concerning admission and operations, so provide: art 558(1)(c) (as so substituted). For these purposes, 'internal traffic' means the carriage of persons or goods picked up or loaded in the customs territory of the Community for setting down or unloading at a place within that territory: art 555(1)(c) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

8 Ibid art 558(2) (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

9 Ibid art 559 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

180. Use by persons outside customs territory etc.

Total relief from import duties¹ is to be granted where means of transport² are to be registered under a temporary series in the customs territory of the Community³, with a view to re-exportation in the name of one of the following persons:

- 465 (1) in the name of a person established outside that territory;
- 466 (2) in the name of a natural person established inside that territory where the person concerned is preparing to transfer normal residence to a place outside that territory⁴.

Total relief from import duties is to be granted where means of transport are used commercially or privately by a natural person established in the customs territory of the Community and employed by the owner of the means of transport established outside that territory or otherwise authorised by the owner⁵. Private use⁶ must have been provided for in the contract of employment⁷. Total relief from import duties is to be granted for containers where they have been durably marked in an appropriate and clearly visible place with the following information:

- 467 (1) the identity of the owner or operator shown by either his full name or an established identification, symbols such as emblems or flags being excluded;
- 468 (2) with the exception of swap bodies used for combined rail-road transport, the identification marks and numbers of the container, given by the owner or operator; its tare weight, including all its permanently fixed equipment;
- 469 (3) with the exception of containers used for transport by air, the country to which the container belongs, shown either in full or by means of the ISO alpha-2 country code⁴ or by the distinguishing initials used to indicate the country of registration of motor vehicles in international road traffic, or in numbers, in the case of swap bodies used for combined rail-road transport⁵.

Containers may be used in internal traffic⁶ before being re-exported⁷. Total relief from import duties¹ is to be granted for goods: (1) carrying sound, image or data-processing information for the purpose of presentation prior to commercialisation, or free of charge, or for provision with a sound track, dubbing or copying; or (2) exclusively used for publicity purposes².

Total relief from import duties is to be granted where professional equipment is:

- 480 (a) owned by a person established outside the customs territory of the Community³;
- 481 (b) imported either by a person established outside the customs territory of the Community or by an employee of the owner (the employee may be established in the customs territory of the Community); and
- 482 (c) used by the importer or under his supervision, except in cases of audiovisual co-productions⁴.

Total relief is not to be granted, however, where equipment is to be used for the industrial manufacture or packaging of goods or, except in the case of hand tools, for the exploitation of natural resources, for the construction, repair or maintenance of buildings or for earth moving and like projects⁵.

Total relief from import duties is to be granted where pedagogic material and scientific equipment are:

- 483 (i) owned by a person established outside the customs territory of the Community;
- 484 (ii) imported by public or private scientific, teaching or vocational training establishments which are essentially non-profit making and exclusively used in teaching, vocational training or scientific research under their responsibility;

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(v) Temporary Importation/C. TEMPORARY IMPORTATION WITH PARTIAL RELIEF/193. Temporary importation with partial relief.

C. TEMPORARY IMPORTATION WITH PARTIAL RELIEF

193. Temporary importation with partial relief.

Use of the temporary importation procedure with partial relief from import duties¹ is to be granted in respect of goods which are not covered by the provisions for total relief² or which are covered by those provisions but do not fulfil all the conditions laid down therein for the grant of temporary importation with total relief³. The list of goods in respect of which the temporary importation procedure with partial relief from import duties may not be used and the conditions subject to which the procedure may be used is to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure⁴. Temporary importation with partial relief from import duties is not to be granted for consumable goods⁵.

The amount of import duties payable in respect of goods placed under the temporary importation procedure with partial relief from import duties is set at 3 per cent, for every month or fraction of a month during which the goods have been placed under the temporary importation procedure with partial relief, of the amount of duties which would have been payable on those goods had they been released for free circulation⁶ on the date on which they were placed under the temporary importation procedure⁷. The amount of import duties to be charged is, however, not to exceed that which would have been charged if the goods concerned had been released for free circulation on the date on which they were placed under the temporary importation procedure, leaving out of account any interest which may be applicable⁸.

The rights and obligations of the holder of a customs procedure⁹ with economic impact¹⁰ may be transferred successively to other persons who fulfil any conditions laid down in order to benefit from the procedure in question¹¹. Where such a transfer occurs in relation to a temporary importation procedure, it does not follow that the same relief arrangements have to be applied to each of the periods of use to be taken into consideration¹². Where, however, such a transfer is made with partial relief for both persons authorised to use the procedure during the same month, the holder of the initial authorisation¹³ is liable to pay the amount of import duties due for the whole of that month¹⁴.

Authorising use of the temporary importation procedure.

D. AUTHORISATION OF USE OF THE TEMPORARY IMPORTATION PROCEDURE

194. Authorising use of the temporary importation procedure.

Authorisation for temporary importation¹ is to be granted at the request of the person who uses the goods or who arranges for them to be used². The application for authorisation must be submitted to the customs authorities³ designated for the place where the goods are to be used⁴, or, for a single authorisation⁵, to the customs authorities designated for the place of first use⁶. It may be made by an oral customs declaration⁷ or by an act considered⁸ to be a customs declaration⁹. The application for authorisation of temporary importation, including use of an ATA or CPD carnet¹⁰, may be made by means of a customs declaration in writing or by means of a data-processing technique using the normal procedure¹¹. Customs authorities may require applications for temporary importation with total relief from the import duties in exceptional cases¹² to be made formally¹³ in writing¹⁴.

The admission of means of transport¹⁵ under the temporary importation procedure may, however, be authorised without written or oral application, by the act¹⁶ constituting the customs declaration¹⁷. Personal effects and goods for sports purposes imported by travellers¹⁸, and welfare materials for seafarers used on a vessel engaged in international maritime traffic¹⁹ may also be considered to have been declared for temporary importation by an act constituting the customs declaration²⁰. Where personal effects, goods imported for sports purposes or means of transport are declared orally or by any other act for entry of the arrangements²¹, customs authorities may require a written declaration when a high amount of import duties is at stake or a serious risk of non-compliance with obligations of the arrangements exists²².

CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(v) Temporary Importation/D. AUTHORISATION OF USE OF THE TEMPORARY IMPORTATION PROCEDURE/195. ATA/CPD carnets.

195. ATA/CPD carnets.

Declarations for entry for the arrangements¹ for temporary importation using ATA/CPD carnets² are to be accepted if they are issued in a participating country³ and indorsed and guaranteed by an association forming part of an international guarantee chain⁴. This applies only if the ATA/CPD carnets: (1) relate to goods and uses covered by the applicable conventions or agreements⁵; (2) are certified by the customs authorities⁶ in the appropriate section of the cover page; and (3) are valid throughout the customs territory of the Community⁷. The ATA/CPD carnet must be presented at the office of entry into the customs territory of the Community, except where this office is unable to check the fulfilment of the conditions for the procedure⁸.

1 For the meaning of 'arrangements' see PARA 152 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'ATA carnet' see PARA 111 note 4 ante. CPD carnets cover private or commercial use of road motor vehicles, and are required to be used for temporary import to certain non-EC countries.

3 Unless otherwise provided for by bilateral or multilateral agreements, 'participating country' means a contracting party to the ATA Convention, or to the Istanbul Convention, having accepted the Customs Co-operation Council recommendations of 25 June 1992 concerning acceptance of the ATA carnet and the CPD carnet for the temporary admission procedure: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 580(1), 2nd para (art 580 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). 'Istanbul Convention' means the Convention on Temporary Admission (Istanbul, 26 June 1990): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 1(11) (added by EC Commission Regulation 1762/95 (OJ L171, 21.7.95, p 8) art 1(1)(b)). The Istanbul Convention combined all existing conventions on temporary admission, including the ATA Convention (Brussels, 6 December 1961).

196. Time limits.

The customs authorities¹ must determine the period within which the import goods are to be re-exported or assigned a new customs-approved treatment or use²; and this period must be long enough for the objective of authorised use to be achieved³. Without prejudice to the special periods established in accordance with the committee procedure⁴, the maximum period during which goods may remain under the temporary importation procedure⁵ is 24 months; but the customs authorities may determine shorter periods with the agreement of the person concerned⁶. Where exceptional circumstances so warrant, the customs authorities may, at the request of the person concerned and within reasonable limits, extend the periods in order to permit the authorised use⁷.

6 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 140(2). The customs authorities must ensure that the total period for which the goods remain under the arrangements for the same purpose and under the responsibility of the same holder does not exceed 24 months, even where the arrangements were discharged by entry for another suspensive arrangement and subsequently entered again for temporary importation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 553(2), 1st para (art 553 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). However, at the holder's request, they may extend this period for the time during which the goods are not used, in accordance with the conditions laid down by them: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 553(2), 2nd para (as so substituted). Discharge of the temporary importation procedure.

F. DISCHARGE

199. Discharge of the temporary importation procedure.

Where the goods placed under the arrangements¹ are entered for one of the suspensive arrangements² or introduced in a free zone of control type I³ or in a free warehouse or placed in a free zone of control type II⁴, enabling temporary importation to be discharged, the documents other than ATA/CPD carnets or records used for the customs-approved treatment or use or any document replacing them must contain the indication 'TA goods' or its equivalent in one of the other languages of the Community⁵.

For means of rail transport used jointly under an agreement⁶, the arrangements are also discharged when means of rail transport of the same type or the same value as those which were put at the disposal of a person established in the customs territory of the Community⁷ are exported or re-exported⁸.

For the purposes of discharging the arrangements in respect of goods to be exhibited or used at a public event⁹, their consumption, destruction or distribution free of charge to the public at the event is to be considered as re-exportation, provided their quantity corresponds to the nature of the event, the number of visitors and the extent of the holder's participation therein¹⁰.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

G. CUSTOMS DEBTS

200. Customs debts incurred on goods imported under the temporary importation procedure.

Where a customs debt¹ is incurred in respect of import goods², the amount of that debt is to be determined on the basis of the taxation elements appropriate to those goods at the time of acceptance of the declaration of their being placed under the temporary importation procedure³. Where, however, provision has been so made under the committee procedure⁴, the amount of the debt is instead determined on the basis of the taxation elements appropriate to the goods in question at the time (as a general rule)⁵ when the customs debt was incurred⁶.

Where a customs debt is incurred in respect of goods placed under the temporary importation procedure with partial relief otherwise than by reason of placing the goods under the procedure⁷, the amount of the debt is taken to be equal to the difference between the amount of duties calculated as stated above⁸ and that payable under the ordinary rules⁹ for goods placed under that procedure¹⁰.

Where goods for public events or for approval placed under the arrangements¹¹ are discharged by their entry for free circulation, the amount of the debt is to be determined on the basis of the elements of assessment appropriate to these goods at the moment of acceptance of the declaration for free circulation¹². Where such goods placed under the arrangements are put on the market, they are to be considered as presented to customs when they are declared for release for free circulation before the end of the period for discharge¹³.

(vi) Outward Processing

A. IN GENERAL

201. In general.

The outward processing procedure allows¹ Community goods² to be exported temporarily from the customs territory of the Community³ in order to undergo processing operations⁴ and the products resulting from those operations to be released for free circulation⁵ with total or partial relief from import duties⁶.

The outward processing procedure is not open to Community goods:

- 498 (1) whose export gives rise to repayment or remission of import duties⁷;
- 499 (2) which, prior to export, were released for free circulation with total relief from import duties by virtue of end-use⁸, for as long as the conditions for granting such relief continue to apply⁹;
- 500 (3) whose export gives rise to the granting of export refunds or in respect of which a financial advantage other than such refunds is granted under the common agricultural policy by virtue of the export of those goods¹⁰.

The temporary exportation of Community goods entails the application of export duties, commercial policy measures¹¹ and other formalities for the exit of Community goods from the customs territory of the Community¹².

202. Outward processing with use of the standard exchange system.

Under certain conditions¹, which are applicable in addition to the provisions which generally apply in respect of outward processing, the standard exchange system permits an imported product (a 'replacement product') to replace a compensating product².

The customs authorities³ must allow the standard exchange system to be used where the processing operation involves the repair of Community goods⁴, other than those subject to the common agricultural policy or to the specific arrangements applicable to certain goods resulting from the processing of agricultural products⁵.

The customs authorities must also, under the conditions which they lay down, permit replacement products to be imported before the temporary export goods⁶ are exported ('prior importation')⁷. In the event of prior importation of a replacement product, security⁸ is required to cover the amount of the import duties⁹.

Replacement products must have the same tariff classification¹⁰, be of the same commercial quality and possess the same technical characteristics as the temporary export goods would have had, had the latter undergone the repair in question¹¹. Where the temporary export goods have been used before export, the replacement products must also have been used and may not be new products; but the customs authorities may grant derogations from this latter rule where the replacement product is supplied free of charge either because of a contractual or statutory obligation arising from a guarantee or because of a manufacturing defect¹².

7 Ibid art 154(4), 1st para. In the case of prior importation, the export goods must be temporarily exported within a period of two months from the date of acceptance by the customs authorities of the declaration relating to the release of the replacement products for free circulation: art 157(1). Where, however, exceptional circumstances so warrant, the customs authorities may, within reasonable limits, extend that period at the request of the person concerned: art 157(2).

203. Repairs.

Where the purpose of the processing operation¹ is the repair of the temporary export goods², those goods may be released for free circulation³ with total relief from import duties⁴ if it is established to the satisfaction of the customs authorities⁵ that the goods were repaired free of charge, either because of a contractual or statutory obligation arising from a guarantee or because of a manufacturing defect⁶. Where, however, the purpose of the processing operation is the repair of temporary export goods in return for payment, the partial relief from import duties⁷ is granted by establishing the amount of the duties applicable on the basis of the taxation elements pertaining to the compensating products⁸ on the date of acceptance of the declaration of release for free circulation of those products and taking into account as the customs value an amount equal to the repair costs, provided that those costs represent the only consideration provided by the holder of the authorisation and are not influenced by any links between that holder and the operator⁹.

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(10) CUSTOMS PROCEDURES WITH ECONOMIC IMPACT/(vi) Outward Processing/B. AUTHORISATION/204. Authorisation of the outward processing procedure.

B. AUTHORISATION

204. Authorisation of the outward processing procedure.

Authorisation to use the outward processing procedure is to be issued at the request¹ of the person who arranges for the processing operations² to be carried out³. Authorisation may be granted only:

- 501 (1) to persons established in the Community⁴;
- 502 (2) where it is considered that it will be possible to establish that the compensating products have resulted from processing of the temporary export goods⁵; and
- 503 (3) where authorisation to use the outward processing procedure is not liable seriously to harm the essential interests of Community processors ('economic conditions')⁶.

The period of validity of an authorisation for the outward processing procedure may not exceed three years from the date the authorisation takes effect, except where there are duly justified good reasons⁷.

Except where the economic conditions are deemed to be fulfilled, the authorisation may not be granted without examination of the economic conditions by the customs authorities⁸. Such examination must establish whether: (a) carrying out processing outside the Community is likely to cause serious disadvantages for Community processors; or (b) carrying out processing in the Community is economically unviable or is not feasible for technical reasons or due to contractual obligations⁹.

The authorisation must specify the means and methods to establish that the compensating products have resulted from processing of the temporary export goods or to verify that the conditions for using the standard exchange system are met¹⁰. Where the nature of the processing operations does not allow it to be established that the compensating products have resulted from the temporary export goods, the authorisation may nevertheless be granted in duly justified cases, provided the applicant can offer sufficient guarantees that the goods used in the processing operations share the same eight-digit CN code, the same commercial quality and the same technical characteristics as the temporary export goods. The authorisation must lay down the conditions for using the arrangements¹¹.

1 The application must be made in conformity with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 497 (as substituted) (see PARA 143 note 8 ante) and submitted to the customs authorities designated for the place where the goods to be declared for temporary exportation are located: art 498(d) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante. The application for authorisation may be made by means of a customs declaration in writing or by means of a data-processing technique using the normal procedure where the processing operations concern repairs, including the standard exchange system without prior importation, and, after outward processing, in the following cases: (1) for release for free circulation after outward processing using the standard exchange system with prior importation; (2) for release for free circulation after outward processing using the standard exchange system without prior importation, where the existing authorisation does not cover such a system and the customs authorities permit its modification; (3) for release for free circulation after outward processing if the processing operation concerns goods of a non-commercial nature: EC Commission

2 For the meaning of 'processing operations' see PARA 201 note 4 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 147(1). By way of derogation from art 147(1), authorisation to use the outward processing procedure may be granted to another person in respect of goods of Community origin (within the meaning of Title II Ch 2 Section 1 (arts 22-26) (non-preferential origin of goods: see PARAS 22-24 ante), where the processing operation consists in incorporating those goods into goods obtained outside the Community and imported as compensating products, provided that use of the procedure helps to promote the sale of export goods without adversely affecting the essential interests of Community producers of products identical or similar to the imported compensating products: art 147(2), 1st para. The cases in which, and the arrangements under which, this derogation is to apply are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 147(2), 2nd para. Article 147(2) does not apply in the context of standard exchange (see PARA 202 ante): art 159. For the meaning of 'compensating products' see PARA 202 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

Where an application for authorisation is made by a person who exports the temporary export goods without arranging for the processing operations, the customs authorities must conduct a prior examination of the conditions set out in art 147(2) on the basis of supporting documents, and EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 503, 504 (as substituted) (examination of economic conditions: see PARA 144 ante) apply mutatis mutandis: art 585(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

The customs authorities must communicate to the Commission in the cases, within the time limit and in the format set out in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 70 (as substituted) authorisations issued in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 147(2): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 522(b)(i) (art 522 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). The Commission must make these particulars available to the customs administrations: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 522 (as so substituted).

5 Ibid art 148(b). For the meaning of 'temporary export goods' see PARA 202 note 6 ante. The cases in which derogations from the condition in art 148(b) may apply, and the conditions under which such derogations are to apply, are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 148(b). Article 148(b) does not apply in the context of standard exchange (see PARA 202 ante): art 159.

6 Ibid art 148(c). Except where indications to the contrary exist, the essential interests of Community processors are deemed not to be seriously harmed: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 585(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)).

The authorisation must specify the period for discharge; and where the circumstances so warrant, this period may be extended even when that originally set has expired: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 588(1) (art 588 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 157(2) (see PARA 202 note 7 ante) applies, even after the original period has expired: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 588(2) (as so substituted).

8 Ibid art 502(1) (art 502 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). As to such examination see PARA 144 ante.

9 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 502(4) (as substituted: see note 8 supra). The customs authorities must communicate to the Commission in the cases, within the time limit and in the format set out in Annex 70 (as substituted) applications refused or authorisations annulled or revoked on the grounds of economic conditions not being fulfilled: art 522(b)(ii) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). The Commission must make these particulars available to the customs administrations: art 522 (as so substituted).

UPDATE20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

C. ENTRY OF GOODS

205. Entry of goods for the outward processing procedure.

The declaration entering the temporary export goods¹ for the arrangements² must be made in accordance with the provisions laid down for exportation³.

The simplified procedures which apply to goods declared for export⁴ apply mutatis mutandis to goods declared for export under the outward processing procedure⁵.

The documents to accompany the declaration are those provided for in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 220 (as substituted) (see PARA 166 ante). The export declaration must be accompanied by all documents necessary for the correct application of export duties and of the provisions governing the export of the goods in question: art 221(1). In addition, as outward processing is a customs procedure with economic impact (see PARA 143 ante), art 218(2) (see PARA 104 note 9 ante) applies: art 220(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(3)).

E. ENTITLEMENT TO RELIEF

207. In general.

Entitlement to relief under the outward processing procedure is subject to the lodging of a declaration for release for free circulation at the office of discharge¹.

The total or partial relief from import duties provided for in relation to the procedure² is to be effected by deducting from the amount of the import duties³ applicable to the compensating products⁴ released for free circulation the amount of the import duties that would be applicable on the same date to the temporary export goods⁵ if they were imported into the customs territory of the Community⁶ from the country in which they underwent the processing operation⁷ or last processing operation⁸. Partial relief from import duties by taking the cost of the processing operation as the basis of the value for duty is to be granted on request⁹.

Total or partial relief¹⁰ from import duties under the outward processing procedure¹¹ is to be granted only where the compensating products are declared for release for free circulation in the name of or on behalf of:

- 504 (1) the holder of the authorisation¹²; or
- 505 (2) any other person established in the Community¹³ where that person has obtained the consent of the holder of the authorisation and the conditions of the authorisation are fulfilled¹⁴.

Such relief is, however, not to be granted where one of the conditions or obligations relating to the outward processing procedure is not fulfilled, unless it is established that the failures have no significant effect on the correct operation of the procedure¹⁵.

1 For the meaning of 'office of discharge' see PARA 168 note 1 ante. In the case of prior importation, the documents accompanying the declaration for free circulation must include a copy of the authorisation unless such authorisation is applied for in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 497(3)(d) (as substituted) (see PARA 204 note 1 ante): art 589(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 220(3) (as substituted) (see PARA 166 note 15 ante) applies mutatis mutandis: art 589(2) (as so substituted).

The simplified procedures provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 76 (see PARA 96 ante) apply to release for free circulation under the outward processing procedure in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 254-267 (as amended): art 278(2).

3 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'compensating products' see PARA 202 note 2 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'temporary export goods' see PARA 202 note 6 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'processing operations' see PARA 201 note 4 ante.

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 151(1). The amount to be so deducted is to be calculated on the basis of the quantity and nature of the goods in question on the date of acceptance of the declaration placing them under the outward processing procedure and on the basis of the other items of charge applicable to them on the date of acceptance of the declaration relating to the release for free circulation of the compensating products: art 151(2), 1st para. The value of the temporary export goods is that taken into account for those goods in determining the customs value of the compensating products in accordance with art 32(1)(b)(i) (see PARA 53 head (1) ante) or, if the value cannot be determined in that way, the difference between the customs value of the compensating products and the processing costs determined by reasonable means: art 151(2), 2nd para. 'Reasonable means' implies the use of means appropriate to the circumstances of each case and can entail taking account of the transaction value of the temporary export goods, which comprises the purchase price and any uplifts, even if the rate of duty is higher for the unprocessed goods than for the compensating products. The possibility of tariff anomalies arising, and resulting in customs advantages for the traders concerned, is a risk inherent in the arrangements introduced by the regulation on outward processing, the primary aim of which is to prevent customs duties from being charged on goods exported from the Community for processing in respect of which art 145 (see PARA 201 ante) permits total relief from import duties in certain circumstances: Case C-142/96 Hauptzollamt München v Wacker Werke GmbH & Co KG [1997] ECR I-4649, ECJ.

By way of exception to the valuation rule in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 151, it is provided that: (1) certain charges determined in accordance with the committee procedure are not to be taken into account in calculating the amount to be deducted; and (2) where, prior to being placed under the outward processing procedure, the temporary export goods were released for free circulation at a reduced rate by virtue of their end-use, and for as long as the conditions for granting the reduced rate continue to apply, the amount to be deducted is to be the amount of import duties actually levied when the goods were released for free circulation: art 151(2), 3rd para. For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. Article 151 is without prejudice to the application of provisions, adopted or liable to be adopted in the context of trade between the Community and third countries, which provide for relief from import duties in respect of certain compensating products: art 151(5). As to end-use relief see PARAS 270-273 post.

For the calculation of the amount to be deducted, no account is to be taken of anti-dumping duties and countervailing duties: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 590(1), 1st para (art 590 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Secondary compensating products that constitute waste scrap, residues, offcuts and remainders are deemed to be included: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 590(2), 2nd para (as so substituted).

In determining the value of the temporary export goods in accordance with one of the methods referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 151(2), 2nd para, the loading, transport, and insurance costs for the temporary export goods to the place where the processing operation or the last such operation took place are not to be included in: (a) the value of the temporary export goods which is taken into account when determining the customs value of the compensating products in accordance with art 32(1)(b)(i); or (b) the processing costs, where the value of the temporary export goods cannot be determined in accordance with art 32(1)(b)(i): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 590(2), 1st para (as so substituted). The loading, transport and insurance costs for the compensating products from the place where the processing operation or the last processing operation took place to the place of their entry into the customs territory of the Community are to be included in the processing costs: art 590(2), 2nd para (as so substituted). Loading, transport and insurance costs include: (i) commissions and brokerage, except buying commissions; (ii) the cost of containers not integral to the temporary export goods; (iii) the cost of packing, including labour and materials; (iv) handling costs incurred in connection with transport of the goods: art 590(2), 3rd para (as so substituted).

9 Ibid art 591, 1st para (art 591 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). With the exception of goods of a non-commercial nature, this does not apply where the temporary export goods which are not of Community origin within the meaning of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) Title II Ch 2 Section 1 (arts 22-26) (see PARA 22 et seq ante) have been released for free circulation at a zero duty rate: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 591, 2nd para (as so substituted).

10 In the case of undertakings frequently carrying out processing operations under an authorisation not covering repair, the customs authorities may, on request of the holder, set an average rate of duty applicable to all those operations ('aggregated discharge'): ibid art 592, 1st para (art 592 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). This rate is to be determined for each period not exceeding 12 months and will apply provisionally for compensating products released for free circulation during that period: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 592, 2nd para (as so substituted). At the end of each period, the customs authorities must make a final calculation and, where appropriate, apply the provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(1) or art 236 (adjustments to accounts: see PARA 298 et seq post): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 592, 2nd para (as so substituted). EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 29-35 (value of goods for customs purposes) apply mutatis mutandis to the processing costs, which are not to take into account the temporary export goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 592, 3rd para (as so substituted).

11 le under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 151(1): see the text and notes 1-8 supra.

12 Ibid art 150(1)(a). For the meaning of 'holder of the authorisation' see PARA 143 note 10 ante.

13 For the meaning of 'person established in the Community' see PARA 84 note 6 ante.

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. 208. Goods qualifying for preference.

Where temporary export goods¹ could qualify on their release for free circulation² for a reduced or zero rate of duty by virtue of their end-use³, that rate is to be taken into account, provided that the goods underwent operations consistent with such an end-use in the country where the processing operation⁴ or last such operation took place⁵.

Where compensating products⁶ qualify for a preferential tariff measure⁷ and the measure exists for goods falling within the same tariff classification as the temporary export goods, the rate of import duty⁸ to be taken into account in establishing the amount to be deducted⁹ is that which would apply if the temporary export goods fulfilled the conditions under which that preferential measure may be applied¹⁰.

Where compensating or replacement products¹ are imported under triangular traffic², in order to make pertinent information available to other customs offices involved in the application of the arrangements³, a specified information sheet⁴ may be issued at the request of the person concerned or on the initiative of the customs authorities⁵, unless the customs authorities agree other means of exchange of information, in order to communicate information on temporary export goods⁶ in triangular traffic in order to obtain partial or total relief for compensating products⁷. The office of entry⁸ must indorse the original and the copy of the information sheet⁹. It must retain the copy and return the original to the declarant¹⁰. The office of exit must certify on the original that the goods have left the customs territory of the Community¹¹ and must return it to the person presenting it¹². (11) EXPORT PROCEDURE

210. Export procedure.

The export procedure allows Community goods¹ to leave the customs territory of the Community². Exportation entails the application of exit formalities, including commercial policy measures³, and, where appropriate, export duties⁴. With the exception of goods placed under the outward processing procedure⁵ or an internal transit procedure⁶, all Community goods intended for export must be placed under the export procedure⁷. This rule is, however, without prejudice to the provision to be made, in accordance with the committee procedure⁸, determining the conditions under which Community goods may move, without being subject to a customs procedure⁹, from one point to another within the customs territory of the Community and temporarily out of that territory without alteration of their customs status¹⁰.

Goods dispatched to Heligoland are, however, not to be considered exports from the customs territory of the Community: art 161(3).

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 161(1), 2nd para. For the meaning of 'export' see Case 118/79 Gebrüder Knauf Westdeutsche Gipswerke v Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas [1980] ECR 1183, ECJ; and for the meaning of 'export duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

Exportation may lead to refunds or monetary compensation amounts. In the absence of any express provision, the headings of the Common Customs Tariff cannot be applied in different ways to the same product depending on whether they are used for the classification thereof in connection with the levying of customs duties, the application of the system of the common organisations of the market or the application of the system of monetary compensatory amounts: Case 5/78 Milchfutter GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Gronau [1978] ECR 1597, ECJ. The classification of goods with regard to the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') Annex I (amended by EC Council Regulation 7a (OJ L7, 30.1.61, p 71)) depends solely on their tariff classification. It follows that neither the incorrect classification of goods upon their importation into the Community, a bona fide mistake by the purchaser as to the origin of the goods, the nature of the product extracted from those goods by processing, nor the fact that the product cannot be considered to be of Community origin because of the insubstantial character of the processing carried out can cause goods not falling under Annex I (as amended) to be regarded as a basic product covered by Annex I (as amended) for the purposes of the subsequent application of the rules on the grant of export refunds and compensatory amounts in trade with non-member countries upon the exportation from the Community of substances extracted from those goods by processing: Case C-295/88 SA Nicolas Corman et Fils v Belgium and Luxembourg [1990] ECR I-129, ECJ.

UPDATE20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(11) EXPORT PROCEDURE/211. Export declarations.

211. Export declarations.

As a general rule¹, the export declaration must be lodged at the customs office responsible for supervising the place where the exporter² is established or where the goods are packed or loaded for export shipment³. The cases in which, and the conditions under which, goods leaving the customs territory of the Community⁴ are not subject to an export declaration are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure⁵.

Ordinarily⁶ the export declaration is to be made on the basis of the single administrative document⁷. Goods not subject to prohibition or restriction and not exceeding 3,000 euros in value per consignment and per declarant may, however, be the subject of an oral declaration at the customs office of exit⁸. Member states may disapply this provision where the person making the export declaration is acting as a professional customs agent on behalf of others⁹.

If goods leave the customs territory of the Community without an export declaration, such a declaration must be lodged retrospectively by the exporter at the customs office competent for the place where he is established¹⁰. Acceptance of this declaration is subject to presentation by the exporter, to the satisfaction of the customs authorities of the customs office concerned, of evidence concerning the nature and quantity of the goods in question and the circumstances under which they left the customs territory of the Community¹¹. Retrospective acceptance of the declaration does not preclude application of the penalties in force nor those consequences which may arise as regards the common agricultural policy¹².

1 Derogations are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 162(5). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. Accordingly, in cases involving sub-contracting, the export declaration may also be lodged at the customs office responsible for the place where the sub-contractor is established: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 789. Where there are duly justified good reasons, an export declaration may be accepted: (1) at a customs office other than that referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 161(5) (see the text and note 3 infra); or (2) at a customs office other than that referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 790 (see note 3 infra): art 791(1), 1st para. In either such case, controls relating to the application of prohibitions and restrictions must take account of the special nature of the situation: art 791(1), 2nd para. In the case of customs procedures with economic impact (see PARA 143 et seq ante), the supervising office may allow the customs declaration to be presented at a customs office other than one of those specified in the authorisation, without prejudice to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 161(5) (see the text and note 3 infra): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 510 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). The supervising office must determine how it is to be informed: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 510 (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'supervising office' see PARA 147 note 9 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'the exporter' is considered to be the person on whose behalf the export declaration is made and who is the owner of the goods, or who has a similar right of disposal over them at the time when the declaration is accepted: ibid art 788(1). Where ownership or a similar right of disposal over the goods belongs to a person established outside the Community, pursuant to the contract on which the export is based, the exporter is considered to be the contracting party established in the Community: art 788(2). For the meaning of 'person established in the Community' see PARA 84 note 6 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 161(5). Where, for administrative reasons, this rule cannot be applied, the declaration may be lodged with any customs office in the member state concerned which is competent for the operation in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 790.

6 As to the circumstances in which other forms may be used see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 205; and as to temporary exportation using an ATA carnet see art 797. An ATA carnet may be used for export where the following conditions are fulfilled: (1) the ATA carnet is issued in a member state of the Community and indorsed and guaranteed by an association established in the Community forming part of an international guarantee chain, the Commission being obliged to publish a list of such associations; (2) the ATA carnet is applicable only to Community goods: (a) which have not been subject on export from the customs territory of the Community to customs export formalities with a view to the payment of refunds or other export amounts under the common agricultural policy; (b) in respect of which no other financial benefit has been granted under the common agricultural policy, coupled with an obligation to export the said goods; (c) in respect of which no request for repayment has been submitted; (3) all documents necessary for the correct application of export duties and of the provisions governing the export of the goods, referred to in art 221 (see PARA 205 note 3 ante), are presented (and note that, in addition, the customs authorities may require production of the transport document); and (4) the goods are intended for re-importation: art 797(1). If the intention to re-import goods which left the customs territory of the Community under cover of an ATA carnet is lost, an export declaration containing the particulars referred to in art 798, Annex 37 (Annex 37 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1) art 1(18), Annex IV) must be presented to the customs office of export: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 798, 1st para. For the meaning of 'ATA carnet' see PARA 111 note 4 ante.

7 See ibid art 792 (amended by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1875 (OJ L360, 19.12.2006, p 64)). In the case of exportation, the single administrative document is in three copies, although the customs authorities of the member states may, for the purpose of completing export formalities, dispense with one or more copies intended for use in the relevant member state, provided that the information in question is available on other media: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 207. The customs office where the export declaration has been lodged ('customs office of export'), on granting release of the goods, must retain Copy 1, send Copy 2 to the statistical office of the member state of the customs office of export and (where arts 796a-796e (as added) (see PARA 212 post) do not apply) return Copy 3 to the person concerned: art 792 (as so amended). Where the export declaration is processed at the customs office of export using a data-processing technique, Copy 3 may be replaced by an accompanying document printed out from the customs authority's computerised system: see art 792(2), (4) (as so amended). When the entire export operation is carried out on the territory of one member state, use of Copy 3 or the export accompanying document may be waived in certain circumstances: see art 792(3) (as so amended). Where goods released for export do not leave the customs territory of the Community, the exporter or the declarant must immediately inform the customs office of export; where applicable, Copy 3 must be returned to that office and the customs office of export must invalidate the export declaration: art 792a(1) (arts 792a, 792b added by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1875 (OJ L360, 19.12.2006, p 64)). See also EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 792a(2) (as so added). The customs office of export may ask the exporter or declarant to provide evidence that the goods have left the customs territory of the Community: art 792b(1) (as so added). Where, after a period of 90 days from the date of release of the goods for export, the goods have not left the customs territory of the Community or sufficient evidence of such export cannot be provided, the export declaration is invalidated; and the customs office of export must inform the exporter or declarant accordingly: art 792b(2) (as so added). As to release of goods for export see PARA 212 post.

8 Ibid art 794(1), 1st para. For these purposes, the customs office of exit is generally the last customs office before the goods leave the customs territory of the Community: see art 793(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1875 (OJ L360, 19.12.2006, p 64)). The reference in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 794 is to the ecu, but from 1 January 1999 this is to be understood as a reference to the euro: EC Council Regulation 3308/80 (OJ L345, 20.12.80, p 1); EC Council Regulation 1103/97 (OJ L162, 19.6.97, p 1).

11 Ibid art 795, 2nd para.

12 Ibid art 795, 3rd para.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(11) EXPORT PROCEDURE/212. Release for export.

212. Release for export.

Release for export is to be granted on condition that the goods in question leave the customs territory of the Community¹ in the same condition as when the export declaration was accepted². To this end, Copy 3 of the single administrative document³ and the goods released for export must be presented together to customs at the customs office of exit⁴. The customs office of exit must carry out appropriate risk-based controls prior to the exit of the goods from the customs territory of the Community, primarily to ensure that the goods presented correspond to those declared; and it must supervise the physical exit of the goods⁵. Where the customs office of exit establishes:

- 506 (1) that goods are missing, it must annotate the copy of the export declaration presented and inform the customs office of export;
- 507 (2) that there are goods in excess, it must refuse exit to these goods until the export formalities have been completed;
- 508 (3) a discrepancy in the nature of the goods, it must refuse exit to these goods until the export formalities have been completed, and must also inform the customs office of exit⁶.

Provision is made for the exchange of export data between customs authorities using information technology and computer networks⁷. The customs office of export authorises release of the goods by issuing the export accompanying document to the declarant⁸. On release of the goods, the customs office of export must transmit particulars of the export movement to the declared customs office of exit using the 'Anticipated Export Record' message⁹. The customs authorities may require notification of the arrival of the goods at the customs office of exit to be communicated to them electronically¹⁰. The customs office of exit must satisfy itself that the goods presented correspond to those declared¹¹; and must supervise the physical exit of the goods from the customs territory of the Community¹². The customs office of exit must forward the 'Exit Results' message to the customs office of export¹³; and upon receipt of that message the customs office of export must certify the physical exit of the goods for the declarant, by use of the 'Export Notification' message or in the form specified by that office for that purpose¹⁴. Where the customs office of export is informed by the exporter or the declarant¹⁵ that goods released for export have not left and are not to leave the customs territory of the Community, or the declaration is to be invalidated¹⁶, the customs office of export must immediately invalidate the export declaration and inform the declared customs office of exit of the invalidation, by use of the 'Export Cancellation Notification' message¹⁷.

(12) OTHER TYPES OF CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE

(i) Free Zones and Free Warehouses

A. IN GENERAL

213. Free zones and free warehouses.

Free zones and free warehouses are parts of the customs territory of the Community¹ or premises situated in that territory and separated from the rest of it in which:

- 509 (1) non-Community goods² are considered, for the purpose of import duties³ and commercial policy import measures⁴, as not being on Community customs territory, provided that they are not released for free circulation⁵ or placed under another customs procedure⁶ or used or consumed under conditions other than those provided for in customs regulations;
- 510 (2) Community goods for which such provision is made under Community legislation governing specific fields qualify, by virtue of being placed in a free zone or free warehouse, for measures normally attaching to the export of goods⁷.

Free zones are classified as either 'control type I', which means controls principally based on the existence of a fence, and 'control type II', which means controls principally based on the formalities carried out in accordance with the requirements of the customs warehousing procedure⁸.

The customs authorities⁹ of the member states must communicate the following information to the Commission:

- 511 (a) the free zones in existence and in operation in the Community according to the above classification;
- 512 (b) the designated customs authorities to which the application for approval of the stock records¹⁰ must be presented¹¹.

The Commission must publish the information referred to in heads (a) and (b) above in the Official Journal of the European Communities, C series¹².

1 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 166(a) refers to 'Community goods'; but it is apprehended that this should be a reference to 'non-Community goods'. For the meaning of 'Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante; and for the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'commercial policy measures' see PARA 104 note 8 ante. Commercial policy measures provided for in Community acts are applicable to non-Community goods placed in a free zone of control type I or free warehouse only to the extent that they refer to the entry of goods into the customs territory of the Community: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 808 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(29)). CUSTOMS DUTIES/(12) OTHER TYPES OF CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE/(i) Free Zones and Free Warehouses/A. IN GENERAL/214. Designation and supervision of free zones.

214. Designation and supervision of free zones.

Member states may designate parts of the customs territory of the Community¹ as free zones². When doing so, they must determine the area to be covered by each zone³. Any person may apply for a part of the customs territory of the Community to be designated a free zone⁴.

Free zones, with the exception of designated free zones⁵, must be enclosed and the member states must define the entry and exit points of each free zone⁶. The construction of any building in a free zone requires the prior approval of the customs authorities⁷.

The perimeter and the entry and exit points of free zones, except designated free zones, are subject to supervision by the customs authorities⁸. Persons and means of transport entering or leaving a free zone may be subjected to a customs check⁹. Access to a free zone may be denied to persons who do not provide every guarantee necessary for compliance with the rules provided for in the Community Customs Code¹⁰. The customs authorities may also check the goods entering, leaving or remaining in a free zone¹¹.

7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 167(4). The application for an authorisation to build (or to convert a building) in a free zone must be made in writing: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 801(1), (4) (art 801 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(29)). The application must specify the activity for which the building will be used and give any other information that will enable the customs authorities designated by the member states to evaluate the grounds for granting the authorisation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 801(2) (as so substituted). The competent customs authorities must grant authorisation in cases where the application of customs rules would not be impeded: art 801(3) (as so substituted).

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 168(1) (substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(12)). The customs authorities may designate free zones in which customs checks and formalities are carried out and the provisions concerning customs debt applied in accordance with the requirements of the customs warehousing procedure: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 168a(1) (art 168a added by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(13)). EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 170, 176, 180 (see PARAS 216-219 post) do not apply to the free zones so designated: art 168a(1) (as so added).

10 Ibid art 168(3).

11 Ibid art 168(4). To enable such checks to be carried out, a copy of the transport document, which is to accompany goods entering or leaving, must be handed to, or kept at the disposal of, the customs authority by any person designated for this purpose by such authorities: art 168(4). Where such checks are required, the goods must be made available to the customs authorities: art 168(4).

215. Authorisation and supervision of free warehouses.

Member states may authorise the establishment of free warehouses¹; and premises which are to be so designated must be approved by member states². Any person may apply to the customs authorities³ designated by the member states for a free warehouse to be set up⁴.

The member states must define the entry and exit points of each free warehouse⁵. The perimeter and the entry and exit points of each free warehouse are subject to supervision by the customs authorities⁶. Persons and means of transport entering or leaving a free warehouse may be subjected to a customs check⁷. Access to a free warehouse may be denied to persons who do not provide every guarantee necessary for compliance with the rules provided for in the Community Customs Code⁸. The customs authorities may also check the goods entering, leaving or remaining in a free warehouse⁹.

CUSTOMS DUTIES/(12) OTHER TYPES OF CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE/(i) Free Zones and Free Warehouses/B. PLACING OF GOODS/216. Placing of goods in a free zone or free warehouse.

B. PLACING OF GOODS

216. Placing of goods in a free zone or free warehouse.

Both Community¹ and non-Community² goods may be placed in a free zone³ or free warehouse⁴; but the customs authorities⁵ may require that goods which present a danger or are likely to spoil other goods or which, for other reasons, require special facilities be placed in premises specially equipped to receive them⁶. There is no limit to the length of time goods may remain in free zones or free warehouses⁷; but, in the case of certain Community goods covered by the common agricultural policy⁸, specific time limits may be imposed in accordance with the committee procedure⁹.

Without prejudice to the right of customs authorities to check goods entering a free zone or free warehouse¹⁰, goods entering a free zone or free warehouse need not be presented to the customs authorities, nor need a customs declaration be lodged¹¹. Goods must be presented to the customs authorities and undergo the prescribed customs formalities only where:

- 513 (1) they have been placed under a customs procedure which is discharged when they enter a free zone or free warehouse¹²;
- 514 (2) they have been placed in a free zone or free warehouse on the basis of a decision to grant repayment or remission of import duties¹³;
- 515 (3) they qualify for measures¹⁴ normally attaching to the export of goods¹⁵; or
- 516 (4) they enter a free zone or free warehouse directly from outside the customs territory of the Community¹⁶.

In addition, customs authorities may require goods subject to export duties or to other export provisions to be notified to the customs department¹⁷.

At the request of the party concerned, the customs authorities must certify the Community or non-Community status of goods placed in a free zone or free warehouse: art 170(4). Such a certificate may be used as proof of the Community or non-Community status of the goods where they are brought into or returned to another part of the customs territory of the Community or placed under a customs procedure: art 180(1). Where the customs authorities certify the Community or non-Community status of the goods, in accordance with art 170(4), they must use a form conforming to the model and provisions in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 109 (certificate of the customs status of goods entered in a free zone or free warehouse): art 812, 1st para (art 812 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(29)). The operator of a free zone of control type I or free warehouse must certify the Community status of the goods by means of that form where non-Community goods are declared for release for free circulation in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 173(a), including where discharging the inward processing or

CUSTOMS DUTIES/(12) OTHER TYPES OF CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE/(i) Free Zones and Free Warehouses/C. MODE OF OPERATION/217. Operation of or within free zones and free warehouses.

C. MODE OF OPERATION

217. Operation of or within free zones and free warehouses.

Any industrial, commercial or service activity may, under the conditions laid down in the Community Customs Code, be authorised in a free zone¹ or free warehouse². The carrying on of such activities must be notified in advance to the customs authorities³, who may impose certain prohibitions or restrictions on the activities, having regard to the nature of the goods concerned or the requirements of customs supervision⁴. The customs authorities may also prohibit persons who do not provide the necessary guarantees of compliance with the provisions laid down in the Community Customs Code from carrying on an activity in a free zone or free warehouse⁵.

All persons carrying on an activity involving the storage, working or processing, or sale or purchase, of goods in a free zone or free warehouse ('operators') must keep stock records in a form approved by the customs authorities⁶. The carrying on of activities by an operator is subject to the approval by the customs authorities of the stock records⁷. Such approval must be issued in writing and must be accorded only to persons offering all the necessary guarantees concerning the application of the provisions on free zones or free warehouses⁸. Goods must be entered in the stock records as soon as they are brought into the premises of an operator⁹. The stock records must enable the customs authorities to identify the goods, and must record their movements¹⁰.

Where goods are transhipped within a free zone, the records relating to the operation must be kept at the disposal of the customs authorities¹¹. For goods brought into a free zone directly from outside the customs territory of the Community or out of a free zone directly leaving the customs territory of the Community, a summary declaration must be lodged¹².

A victualling warehouse¹³ may be set up in a free zone of control type I or a free warehouse¹⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'free zone' see PARA 213 ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 172(1). For the meaning of 'free warehouse' see PARA 213 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 172(1), (2). For the meaning of 'supervision by the customs authorities' see PARA 77 note 2 ante.

5 Ibid art 172(3).

6 Ibid art 176(1). EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 806, 1st para (art 806 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(29)) provides that the stock records to be kept for the free zone or free warehouse must include in particular:

- 29 (1) particulars of marks, identifying numbers, number and kind of packages, the quantity and usual commercial description of the goods and, where relevant, the identification marks of the container;
- 30 (2) information enabling the goods to be monitored at any time, in particular their location, the customs-approved treatment or use assigned to them after storage in the free zone or free warehouse or their re-entry into another part of the customs territory of the Community;

- 31 (3) reference particulars of the transport document used on entry and removal of the goods;
- 32 (4) indication of customs status and, where relevant, reference particulars of the certificate certifying this status referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 812 (as substituted);
- 33 (5) particulars of usual forms of handling;
- 34 (6) as the case may be, one of the indications referred to in art 549, art 550 or art 583 (as substituted);
- 35 (7) particulars concerning goods which would not be subject upon release for free circulation or temporary importation to import duties or commercial policy measures, the use or destination of which must be checked.

For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante. The customs authorities may waive the requirement for some of this information where supervision or control of the free zone or the free warehouse is not affected: art 806, 2nd para (as so substituted). Where records have to be kept for the purposes of a customs procedure, the information contained in those records need not appear in the stock records: art 806, 3rd para (as so substituted).

The inward processing or processing under customs control procedures (see PARA 160 et seq ante) are to be discharged in respect of the compensating products, processed products or goods in the unaltered state situated in a free zone or free warehouse by entry in the stock records of the free zone or free warehouse: art 807 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(29)). Reference particulars of such entry must be recorded in the records for inward processing or processing under customs control, as the case may be: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 807 (as so substituted).

7 Ibid art 803(1) (art 803 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(29)). In the case of a free zone of control type I or a free warehouse, the stock records are those referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 176 (see the text to note 6 supra), and in the case of a free zone of control type II, the stock records are those referred to in art 105 (see PARA 154 ante). For the meanings of 'control type I' and 'control type II' see PARA 213 ante. The application for approval of the stock records must be submitted in writing to the customs authorities designated by the member state where the free zone or free warehouse is located (EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 804(1) (art 804 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(29))); and it must specify which activities are envisaged, this information being considered as the notification referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 172(1) (see the text to notes 3-4 supra) (EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 804(2) (as so substituted)). It must include: (1) a detailed description of the stock records kept or to be kept; (2) the nature and customs status of the goods to which these activities relate; (3) where applicable, the customs procedure under which the activities are to be carried out; (4) any other information needed by the customs authorities in order to ensure the proper application of the provisions: art 804(2) (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'customs status' see PARA 77 note 5 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante.

8 Ibid art 803(2) (as substituted: see note 7 supra).

Theft from a free warehouse does not relieve the persons responsible for their safekeeping from liability for the customs duties. 'The reasons for extinction of the customs debt must be based on the fact that the goods have not been used for the economic purpose which justified the application of import duties. In the case of theft, it may be assumed that the goods pass into the Community commercial circuit. It follows that the loss of the goods for the purposes of the directive does not embrace the concept of theft, regardless of the circumstances in which it has been committed. Accordingly, according to the existing Community customs provisions, the removal by third parties of goods subject to customs duty, even through no fault of the taxable person, does not extinguish the obligation to pay duty on them': Joined Cases 186, 187/82 Ministero delle Finanze v Esercizio Magazzini Generali SpA [1983] ECR 2951, [1984] 3 CMLR 217, ECJ.

218. Special provisions applicable to free zones of control type II.

Without prejudice to the general provisions as to free zones and free warehouses¹ and to the following, the provisions laid down for the customs warehouse arrangements² are applicable to the free zone of control type II³.

Where non-Community goods⁴ which are not unloaded or which are only transhipped are placed under the free zone using the local clearance procedure and re-exported later using the same procedure, the customs authorities⁵ may relieve the operator⁶ from the obligation to inform the competent customs office of each arrival or departure of such goods, and in this case the control measures must take account of the special nature of the situation⁷. The short-term storage of goods in connection with such transhipment is to be considered to be an integral part of the transhipment⁸.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. 219. Customs procedures within a free zone or free warehouse.

Non-Community goods¹ placed in a free zone² or free warehouse³ may, while they remain in a free zone or free warehouse:

- 517 (1) be released for free circulation under the conditions laid down by the relevant procedure⁴;
- 518 (2) undergo the usual forms of handling⁵ without authorisation;
- 519 (3) be placed under the inward processing procedure⁶ under the conditions laid down by that procedure;
- 520 (4) be placed under the procedure for processing under customs control⁷ under the conditions laid down by that procedure;
- 521 (5) be placed under the temporary importation procedure⁸ under the conditions laid down by that procedure;
- 522 (6) be abandoned⁹;
- 523 (7) be destroyed¹⁰, provided that the person concerned supplies the customs authorities¹¹ with all the information they judge necessary¹².

Where goods are placed under one of the procedures referred to in head (3), (4) or (5) above, the member states may, in so far as is necessary to take account of the operating and customs supervision conditions of the free zones or free warehouses, adapt the control arrangements laid down¹³.

In the case of certain Community goods¹⁴ which are covered by the common agricultural policy, those goods may undergo only the forms of handling expressly prescribed for such goods¹⁵; but such handling may be undertaken without authorisation¹⁶.

Where the above provisions¹⁷ are not applied, neither non-Community goods nor certain Community goods¹⁸ may be consumed or used in free zones or in free warehouses¹⁹.

6 As to inward processing see PARA 160 et seq ante. Processing operations within the territory of the old free port of Hamburg, in the free zones of the Canary Islands, Azores, Madeira and overseas departments are, however, not subject to economic conditions: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 173(c), 2nd para. With regard to the old free port of Hamburg, if conditions of competition in a specific economic sector in the Community are affected as a result of this derogation, the Council, acting by a qualified majority on a proposal from the Commission, must decide that economic conditions are to apply to the corresponding economic activity within the territory of the old free port of Hamburg: art 173(c), 3rd para.

Such goods, when placed in a free zone or free warehouse, must be assigned a treatment or use provided for by the rules under which they are eligible, by virtue of their being placed in a free zone or free warehouse, for measures normally attaching to the export of such goods: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 179(1). If such goods are returned to another part of the customs territory of the Community, or if no application for their assignment to such a treatment or use has been made by the expiry of the period prescribed pursuant to art 171(2) (see PARA 216 ante), the customs authorities must take the measures laid down by the relevant legislation governing specific fields relating to failure to comply with the specified treatment or use: art 179(2).

In that event, no declaration of release for free circulation or temporary importation is required, except where the goods are to be charged against a quota or a ceiling: art 175(2), 1st para, 2nd para.

D. REMOVAL OF GOODS

220. Removal of goods from a free zone or free warehouse.

Without prejudice to special provisions adopted under customs legislation governing specific fields, goods leaving a free zone¹ or free warehouse² may be:

- 524 (1) exported or re-exported from the customs territory of the Community³; or
- 525 (2) brought into another part of the customs territory of the Community⁴.

The provisions which are applicable to goods brought into the customs territory of the Community until they are assigned a customs-approved treatment or use⁵ apply to goods brought into other parts of that territory, except in the case of goods which leave that zone by sea or air without being placed under a transit or other customs procedure⁶.

If the Community or non-Community status of goods is not proved by means of a certificate given by the customs authorities⁷, the goods are to be considered to be Community goods for the purposes of applying export duties and export licences or export measures laid down under the commercial policy and non-Community goods⁸ in all other cases⁹.

(ii) Re-exportation, Destruction and Abandonment

221. Re-exportation destruction and abandonment.

Non-Community goods¹ may be:

- 526 (1) re-exported from the customs territory of the Community²;
- 527 (2) destroyed³;
- 528 (3) abandoned⁴ to the Exchequer, where national legislation makes provision to that effect⁵.

Where appropriate, re-exportation involves the application of the formalities laid down for goods leaving the customs territory of the Community⁶, including commercial policy measures⁷. Except in cases determined in accordance with the committee procedure, destruction must be the subject of prior notification⁸ of the customs authorities⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

3 Neither destruction nor abandonment must entail any expense for the Exchequer: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 182(4). Any waste or scrap resulting from destruction must be assigned a customs-approved treatment or use prescribed for non-Community goods; and it must remain under customs supervision until the time laid down in art 37(2) (see PARA 77 ante): art 182(5). For the meaning of 'customs-approved treatment or use' see PARA 82 ante; for the meaning of 'supervision by the customs authorities' see PARA 77 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

4 Abandonment is to be put into effect in accordance with national provisions: ibid art 182(3), 2nd para.

5 Ibid art 182(1).

6 The words 'the customs territory of the Community' do not appear in ibid art 182(2).

7 Ibid art 182(2), 1st para. For the meaning of 'commercial policy measures' see PARA 104 note 8 ante. Cases in which non-Community goods may be placed under a suspensive arrangement with a view to non-application of commercial policy measures on exportation may be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 182(2), 2nd para. For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

The customs authorities must prohibit re-exportation if the formalities or measures referred to in art 182(2) so provide: art 182(3), 1st para (amended by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.11.97, p 1) art 1(15)).

8 For the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 182(3), notification of destruction of goods must be made in writing and signed by the person concerned; and the notification must be made in sufficient time to allow the customs authorities to supervise the destruction: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 842(1). Where the goods in question are already the subject of a declaration accepted by the customs authorities, they must make a reference to the destruction on the declaration and invalidate the declaration in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 66 (see PARA 98 ante); and this provision applies mutatis mutandis to goods abandoned to the Exchequer: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 842(2), (3). The customs authorities present when the goods are destroyed must specify on the form or declaration the type and quantity of any waste or scrap resulting from the destruction in order to determine the items of charge applicable to them and to be used when they are assigned another customs-approved treatment or use: art 842(2), 2nd para.

The notification referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 182(3) is not required in the case of the re-exportation of non-Community goods which are not unloaded or which are transhipped from a free zone of control type I or free warehouse (as to which see PARA 213 ante): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 811 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1)) art 1(29)).

9 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 182(3), 1st para (as amended (see note 7 supra); and further amended by EC Parliament and Council Regulation 648/2005 (OJ L117, 4.2.2005, p 13) art 1(15)). Where goods placed under an economic customs procedure when on Community customs territory are intended for re-exportation, a customs declaration, within the meaning of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 59-78 (see PARA 83 et seq ante) must be lodged; and, in such cases, art 161(4), (5) (export declarations: see PARA 211 ante) applies: art 182(3), 1st para. Where re-exportation is subject to a customs declaration, the provisions of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 787-796e (as amended) (exportation: see PARA 210 et seq ante) apply mutatis mutandis, without prejudice to particular provisions which may apply when the customs procedure with economic impact preceding re-exportation of the goods is discharged: art 841, 1st para (art 841 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1875 (OJ L360, 19.12.2006, p 64)). Where an ATA carnet is issued for re-exportation of goods under temporary importation, the customs declaration may be lodged at a customs office other than that referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 161(5) (see PARA 211 ante): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 841, 2nd para (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'ATA carnet' see PARA 111 note 4 ante.

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

(iii) Goods leaving the Customs Territory of the Community

222. Requirement of customs declaration or summary declaration.

Goods leaving the customs territory of the Community¹, with the exception of goods carried on means of transport only passing through the territorial waters or the airspace of the customs territory without a stop within this territory, must be covered either by a customs declaration² or, where a customs declaration is not required, a summary declaration³.

The committee procedure⁴ is to be used to establish:

- 529 (1) the time limit by which the customs declaration or a summary declaration is to be lodged at the customs office of export⁵ before the goods are brought out of the customs territory of the Community;
- 530 (2) the rules for exceptions from and variations to the time limit referred to above;
- 531 (3) the conditions under which the requirement for a summary declaration may be waived or adapted; and
- 532 (4) the cases in which and the conditions under which goods leaving the customs territory of the Community are not subject to either a customs declaration or a summary declaration, in accordance with the specific circumstances and for particular types of goods traffic, modes of transport and economic operators and where international agreements provide for special security arrangements⁶.

Where goods leaving the customs territory of the Community are assigned to a customs approved treatment or use for the purpose of which a customs declaration is required under the customs rules, this customs declaration must be lodged at the customs office of export before the goods are to be brought out of the customs territory of the Community⁷. Where the customs office of export is different from the customs office of exit⁸, the customs office of export must immediately communicate or make available electronically the necessary particulars to the customs office of exit⁹.

The customs declaration must contain at least the particulars necessary for the summary declaration referred to below¹⁰. Where the customs declaration is made otherwise than by use of a data-processing technique, the customs authorities must apply the same level of risk management to the data as that applied to customs declarations made using a data-processing technique¹¹.

Where goods leaving the customs territory of the Community are not assigned to a customs approved treatment or use for which a customs declaration is required, a summary declaration must be lodged at the customs office of exit before the goods are to be brought out of the customs territory of the Community¹². Customs authorities may allow the summary declaration to be lodged at another customs office, provided that this office immediately communicates or makes available electronically the necessary particulars to the customs office of exit¹³. Customs authorities may accept, instead of the lodging of a summary declaration, the lodging of a notification and access to the summary declaration data in the economic operator's computer system¹⁴.

The committee procedure is to be used to establish a common data set and format for the summary declaration, containing the particulars necessary for risk analysis and the proper application of customs controls, primarily for security and safety purposes, using, where appropriate, international standards and commercial practices¹⁵. The summary declaration must be made using a data-processing technique. Commercial, port or transport information may be used, provided that it contains the necessary particulars¹⁶. Customs authorities may accept paper-based summary declarations in exceptional circumstances, provided that they apply the same level of risk management as that applied to summary declarations made using a data-processing technique¹⁷.

The summary declaration must be lodged by: (a) the person who brings the goods, or who assumes responsibility for the carriage of the goods, out of the customs territory of the Community; or (b) any person who is able to present the goods in question or to have them presented to the competent customs authority; or (c) a representative of one of the persons referred to in head (a) or head (b) above¹⁸. The person referred to above is, at his request, to be authorised to amend one or more particulars of the summary declaration after it has been lodged¹⁹. However, no amendment is possible after the customs authorities: (i) have informed the person who lodged the summary declaration that they intend to examine the goods; or (ii) have established that the particulars in questions are incorrect; or (iii) have allowed the removal of the goods²⁰.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(12) OTHER TYPES OF CUSTOMS-APPROVED TREATMENT OR USE/(iii) Goods leaving the Customs Territory of the Community/223. Goods leaving the customs territory of the Community.

223. Goods leaving the customs territory of the Community.

Goods leaving the customs territory of the Community¹ are subject to customs supervision²; and they may be the subject of checks by the customs authorities in accordance with the provisions in force³. Such goods must leave that territory using, where appropriate, the route determined by the customs authorities and in accordance with the procedures laid down by those authorities⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'supervision by the customs authorities' see PARA 77 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 183. For the meaning of 'provisions in force' see PARA 77 note 4 ante.

4 Ibid art 183. As to the similar provisions relating to supervision of goods entering the customs territory of the Community see PARA 77 ante. Goods moving from one point in the customs territory of the Community to another which temporarily leave that territory, whether or not crossing the territory of a third country, whose removal or export from the customs territory of the Community is prohibited or is subject to restrictions, duties or other charges on export by a Community measure in so far as that measure so provides and without prejudice to any special provisions which it may comprise, are subject to special provisions: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 843(1), 1st para (art 843 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(10)). These conditions do not, however, apply: (1) where, on declaration of the goods for export from the customs territory of the Community, proof is furnished to the customs office at which export formalities are carried out that an administrative measure freeing the goods from restriction has been taken, that any duties, taxes or other charges due have been paid or that, in the circumstances obtaining, the goods may leave the customs territory of the Community without further formalities; or (2) where the goods are transported by direct flight without stopping outside the customs territory of the Community, or by a regular shipping service within the meaning of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 313a (as added): art 843(1), 2nd para (as so substituted). Where the goods are placed under a Community transit procedure (see PARA 108 et seq ante), the principal must enter on the document used for the Community transit declaration, specifically in box 44 'Additional information' of the single administrative document (see PARA 85 note 4 ante) where that is used, the following phrase 'Exit from the Community subject to restrictions or charges under Regulation/Directive/Decision No . . . ' or its equivalent in one of the other languages of the Community: art 843(2) (as so substituted; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 2006/1792 (OJ L362, 20.12.2006, p 1)). Where the goods are: (a) placed under a customs procedure other than the Community transit procedure; or (b) moved without being under a customs procedure, the T5 control copy must be made out in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 912a-912g (as added), and in box 104 of the T5 form a cross must be entered in the square 'Other (specify)' and the phrase stipulated above added: reg 843(3) (as so added).

Control copy T5 is used to furnish proof of compliance where application of Community rules concerning goods imported into, exported from, or moving within the customs territory of the Community is subject to proof of compliance with the conditions prescribed by that measure for the use and/or destination of the goods: see art 912a(2) (art 912a added by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(12)). In addition to obligations imposed under specific rules, any person who signs a T5 control copy is required to put the goods described in that document to the declared use and/or dispatch the goods to the declared destination: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 912a(4) (as so added).

224. Community reliefs from customs duties.

The Council, acting by a qualified majority on a proposal from the Commission, may determine the cases in which, on account of special circumstances, relief from import duties¹ or export duties² is to be granted where goods are released for free circulation³ or exported⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'export duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

3 As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante.

EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) (amended by EC Council Regulation 3822/85 (OJ L370, 31.12.85, p 22); EC Council Regulation 3691/87 (OJ L347, 11.12.87, p 8); EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2); EC Council Regulation 4235/88 (OJ L373, 31.12.88, p 1); EC Council Regulation 3357/91 (OJ L318, 20.11.91, p 3); EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1); EC Council Regulation 355/94 (OJ L46, 18.2.94, p 5); and EC Council Regulation 1671/2000 (OJ L192, 29.7.2000, p 11)) (see PARA 226 et seq post) sets out those cases in which, owing to special circumstances, relief from import or export duties is to be granted when goods are respectively put into free circulation or exported from the customs territory of the Community: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 1(1) (amended by EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2) art 2(17)). For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

The recitals to EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) (as amended) reflect the fact that, at the time when it was made, the single market had yet to be introduced and that it had to be recognised that certain reliefs then currently applied in the member states stemmed from specific Conventions concluded with third countries or international organisations. Accordingly, it was considered unnecessary to define, at Community level, conditions for the granting of the reliefs, it being sufficient to authorise the member state in question to grant the reliefs. As to the implementation of such provisions in the United Kingdom see PARA 857 et seq post.

TEXT AND NOTES--Regulation 918/83 art 1(1) further amended from 1 December 2008: EC Council Regulation 274/2008 (OJ L85, 27.3.2008, p 1) art 1(1), so that relief may also be granted from the application of measures adopted (on the basis of art 133 of the Treaty) to protect trade.

NOTE 4--Regulation 918/83 further amended by Regulation 274/2008 (OJ L85, 27.3.2008, p 1). See further PARAS 226, 230, 232, 237.

225. Entitlement of member states to grant certain forms of relief from customs duties.

Nothing in the provisions relating to relief from import or export duties¹ prevents the member states from granting:

- 533 (1) relief pursuant to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations², the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations³ or other consular Conventions, or the New York Convention⁴ on Special Missions⁵;
- 534 (2) relief under the customary privileges accorded by virtue of international agreements or headquarters agreements to which either a third country or an international organisation is a contracting party, including the relief granted on the occasion of international meetings⁶;
- 535 (3) relief under the customary privileges and immunities accorded in the context of international agreements concluded by all the member states and setting up a cultural or scientific institute or organisation under international law⁷;
- 536 (4) relief under the customary privileges and immunities accorded in the context of cultural, scientific or technical co-operation agreements concluded with third countries⁸;
- 537 (5) special relief introduced under agreements concluded with third countries and providing for common measures for the protection of persons or of the environment⁹;
- 538 (6) special relief introduced under agreements concluded with adjacent third countries, justified by the nature of the frontier-zone trade with the countries in question¹⁰; or
- 539 (7) relief in the context of agreements entered into on the basis of reciprocity with third countries that are contracting parties¹¹ to the Convention on International Civil Aviation¹².

Where an international Convention not covered by any of the categories referred to in heads (1) to (7) above, to which a member state intends to subscribe, provides for the grant of relief, that member state must submit a request to the Commission for the application of such relief, supplying the Commission with all the necessary information¹³. A decision must then be taken¹⁴ on the request¹⁵.

Until the establishment of Community provisions in the field in question:

- 540 (a) member states may grant special relief to armed forces not serving under their flags which are stationed on their territories in pursuance of international agreements¹⁶; and
- 541 (b) the provisions relating to relief from import or export duties¹⁷ do not preclude the retention by member states of relief granted to workers returning to their country after having resided for at least six months outside the customs territory of the Community¹⁸ on account of their occupation¹⁹.

levies and other import charges provided for under the common agricultural policy or under specific arrangements applicable to certain goods resulting from the processing of agricultural products (art 1(2)(a)); and 'export duties' means agricultural levies and other export charges provided for under the common agricultural policy or under specific arrangements applicable to certain goods resulting from the processing of agricultural products (art 1(2)(b)). As to the abolition of agricultural levies see the Uruguay Round Agreement on Agriculture (Marrakesh, 15 April 1994; Cm 2559; Misc 17 (1994); OJ L336, 23.12.94, p 22).

(A) IN GENERAL

226. In general.

The provisions relating to relief from import duties¹ apply both to goods declared for free circulation² coming directly from third countries and to goods declared for free circulation after having been subject to another customs procedure³.

Where relief from import duties is granted conditional upon goods being put to a particular use by the recipient, only the competent authorities of the member state in whose territory such goods are to be put to such a use may grant that relief⁴. The competent authorities of the member states must take all appropriate measures to ensure that goods placed in free circulation, where relief from import duties is granted conditional upon goods being put to a particular use by the recipient, may not be used for other purposes without the relevant import duties being paid, unless such alternative use is in conformity with the prescribed conditions⁵. Where it is provided⁶ that the granting of relief is to be subject to the fulfilment of certain conditions, the person concerned must furnish proof that those conditions have been met, to the satisfaction of the competent authorities⁷.

Where the same person simultaneously fulfils the conditions required for the grant of relief from import duties under different provisions⁸, the provisions in question apply concurrently⁹.

NOTE 3--Regulation 918/83 art 127 amended from 1 December 2008: EC Council Regulation 274/2008 (OJ L85, 27.3.2008, p 1) art 1(6). Goods which may be imported under relief from duties in accordance with Regulation 918/83 are also not subject to quantitative restrictions adopted to protect trade under the EC Treaty art 133: Regulation 918/83 art 127(3).

(B) PERSONAL PROPERTY

227. Personal property belonging to natural persons transferring their normal place of residence from a third country to the Community.

Personal property¹ imported by natural persons transferring their normal place of residence² from a third country to the customs territory of the Community³ is to be admitted⁴ free of import duties⁵.

The relief is limited to personal property which:

- 542 (1) except in special cases justified by the circumstances, has been in the possession of and, in the case of non-consumable goods, used by the person concerned at his former normal place of residence for a minimum of six months before the date on which he ceases to have his normal place of residence in the third country of departure⁶; and
- 543 (2) is intended to be used for the same purpose at his new normal place of residence⁷.

Relief may be so granted only to persons whose normal place of residence has been outside the customs territory of the Community for a continuous period of at least 12 months⁸.

No relief is to be so granted for:

- 544 (a) alcoholic products⁹;
- 545 (b) tobacco or tobacco products;
- 546 (c) commercial means of transport; or
- 547 (d) articles for use in the exercise of a trade or profession, other than portable instruments of the applied or liberal arts¹⁰.

Except in special cases, relief is to be granted only in respect of personal property entered for free circulation¹¹ within 12 months from the date of establishment, by the person concerned, of his normal place of residence in the customs territory of the Community¹².

Until 12 months have elapsed from the date on which its entry for free circulation was accepted, personal property which has been admitted duty-free may not be lent, given as security, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, without prior notification to the competent authorities¹³. Any such loan, giving as security, hiring out or transfer before the expiry of that period entails payment of the relevant import duties on the property concerned, at the rate applying on the date of such loan, giving as security, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of property and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁴.

1 For these purposes, 'personal property' means any property intended for the personal use of the persons concerned or for meeting their household needs: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 1(2) (c), 1st para. The following, in particular, constitute 'personal property': (1) household effects; and (2) cycles and motor cycles, private motor vehicles and their trailers, camping caravans, pleasure craft and private aeroplanes: art 1(2)(c), 2nd para. Household provisions appropriate to normal family requirements, household pets and saddle animals, as well as the portable instruments of the applied or liberal arts required by the person concerned for the pursuit of his trade or profession, also constitute 'personal property'; but personal property must not be such as might indicate, by its nature or quantity, that it is being imported for commercial reasons: art 1(2)(c), 3rd para. 'Household effects' means personal effects, household linen, furnishings and equipment intended for the personal use of the persons concerned or for meeting their household needs: art 1(2)(d).

2 For the purpose of relief conferred by ibid Ch I Title I (arts 2-10) (as amended), Title II (arts 11-15) (as amended) (see PARA 228 post), Title IV (arts 20-24) (as amended) (see PARA 230 post) or Title XVII (art 86) (as amended) (see PARA 250 post), a person's normal place of residence is the country where, in accordance with the following provisions, he is treated as being normally resident: Customs Duty (Community Reliefs) Order 1984, SI 1984/719, arts 2, 3(1). A person is to be treated as being normally resident in the country where he usually lives: (1) for a period of, or periods together amounting to, at least 185 days in a period of 12 months; (2) because of his occupational ties; and (3) because of his personal ties: art 3(2). In the case of a person with no occupational ties, art 3(2) applies with the omission of art 3(2)(b) (see head (2) supra), provided that his personal ties show close links with that country: art 3(3). Where a person has his occupational ties in one country and his personal ties in another country, he is treated as being normally resident in the latter country provided that either: (a) his stay in the former country is in order to carry out a task of a definite duration; or (b) he returns regularly to the country where he has his personal ties: art 3(4). Notwithstanding art 3(4), a United Kingdom citizen whose personal ties are in the United Kingdom but whose occupational ties are abroad may be treated as normally resident in the country of his occupational ties, provided that he has lived there for a period of, or periods together amounting to, at least 185 days in a period of 12 months: art 3(5). 'Occupational ties' does not include attendance by a pupil or student at a school, college or university; and 'personal ties' means family or social ties to which a person devotes most of his time not devoted to occupational ties: art 2.

3 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante. Where, owing to occupational commitments, the person concerned leaves the third country where he had his normal place of residence without simultaneously establishing his normal place of residence in the customs territory of the Community, although having the intention of ultimately doing so, the competent authorities may authorise duty-free admission of the personal property which he transfers into the said territory for this purpose: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 9(1). Duty-free admission of such personal property in such a case is granted in accordance with the conditions laid down in arts 2-7 (as amended), on the understanding that: (1) the periods laid down in art 3, 1st para (a) (see the text and note 6 infra) and art 6, 1st para (see the text and notes 11-12 infra) are to be calculated from the date on which the personal property is brought into the customs territory of the Community; and (2) the period referred to in art 7(1) (see the text and note 13 infra) is to be calculated from the date when the person concerned actually establishes his normal place of residence in the customs territory of the Community: art 9(2). Such duty-free admission must also be subject to an undertaking from the person concerned that he will actually establish his normal place of residence in the customs territory of the Community within a period laid down by the competent authorities in keeping with the circumstances: art 9(3). The latter may require this undertaking to be accompanied by a security, the form and amount of which they are to determine: art 9(3).

4 Ie subject to ibid arts 3-10 (as amended): see the text and notes 6-14 infra. Relief from customs duty conferred by Ch I Title I (arts 2-10) (as amended) is subject: (1) to the condition that the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs are satisfied that the goods in respect of which any such relief is claimed have borne, in their country of origin or exportation, the customs or other duties and taxes to which goods of that class or description are normally liable and have not been subject, by reason of their exportation, to any exemption from, or refund of, such duties and taxes as aforesaid, or any turnover tax, excise duty or other consumption tax (Customs Duty (Community Reliefs) Order 1984, SI 1984/719, art 4); and (2) to the condition that, when any such relief is claimed on importation of the goods, or on their removal from another customs procedure, the goods are produced to the proper officer for examination (art 5). As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post.

5 EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 2. For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 225 note 1 ante.

6 Ibid art 3, 1st para (a). In addition, member states may make relief conditional upon such property having borne, either in the country of origin or in the country of departure, the customs and/or fiscal charges to which it is normally liable: art 3, 2nd para. The competent authorities may derogate from art 3, 1st para (a) and art 3, 1st para (b) (see the text and note 7 infra), art 5(c), (d) (see the text and note 10 infra) and art 7 (see the text and notes 13-14 infra), when a person has to transfer his normal place of residence from a third country to the customs territory of the Community as a result of exceptional political circumstances: art 10.

7 Ibid art 3, 1st para (b). See also note 6 supra.

8 Ibid art 4, 1st para (amended by EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2) art 2(17)). The competent authorities may, however, grant exceptions to this rule, provided that the intention of the person concerned was clearly to reside outside the customs territory of the Community for a continuous period of at least 12 months: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 4, 2nd para (amended by EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2) art 2(17)).

9 For these purposes, 'alcoholic products' means products (beer, wine, aperitifs with a wine or alcohol base, brandies, liqueurs or spirituous beverages etc) falling within the Combined Nomenclature heading nos 22.03-22.08: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 1(2)(e) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 3691/87 (OJ L347, 11.12.87, p 8) art 1(1)). As to the Combined Nomenclature see PARA 10 note 2 ante.

10 EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 5. See also note 6 supra.

11 The personal property may be released for free circulation in several separate consignments within the period referred to: ibid art 6, 2nd para. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante.

12 Ibid art 6, 1st para. By way of derogation from art 6, 1st para, relief may be granted in respect of personal property entered for free circulation before the person concerned establishes his normal place of residence in the customs territory of the Community, provided that he undertakes actually to establish his normal place of residence there within a period of six months: art 8(1). Such an undertaking must be accompanied by a security, the form and amount of which is to be determined by the competent authorities: art 8(1). Where use is made of the provisions of art 8(1), the period laid down in art 3, 1st para (a) (see the text and note 6 supra) is to be calculated from the date on which the personal property is brought into the customs territory of the Community: art 8(2).

13 Ibid art 7(1). See also note 6 supra.

14 Ibid art 7(2). See also note 6 supra.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(B) Personal Property/228. Goods imported on the occasion of a marriage.

228. Goods imported on the occasion of a marriage.

The following are to be admitted¹ free of import duties²:

- 548 (1) trousseaux and household effects³, whether or not new, belonging to a person transferring his or her normal place of residence⁴ from a third country to the customs territory of the Community⁵ on the occasion of his or her marriage⁶; and
- 549 (2) presents customarily given on the occasion of a marriage, which are received by a person fulfilling the conditions laid down in head (1) above from persons having their normal place of residence in a third country⁷.

The relief may be granted only to persons: (a) whose normal place of residence has been outside the customs territory of the Community for a continuous period of at least 12 months⁸; and (b) who produce evidence of their marriage⁹.

No relief is to be so granted for alcoholic products¹⁰, tobacco or tobacco products¹¹.

Save in exceptional circumstances, relief is to be so granted only in respect of goods entered for free circulation¹²:

- 550 (i) not earlier than two months before the date fixed for the wedding, the relief in this case being subject to the lodging of appropriate security, the form and amount of which is to be determined by the competent authorities; and
- 551 (ii) not later than four months after the date of the wedding¹³.

Until 12 months have elapsed from the date on which their entry for free circulation was accepted, goods which have been admitted duty-free on the occasion of a marriage¹⁴ may not be lent, given as security, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, without prior notification to the competent authorities¹⁵. Any such loan, giving as security, hiring out or transfer before the expiry of the prescribed period¹⁶ entails payment of the relevant import duties on the goods concerned, at the rate applying on the date of such loan, giving as security, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁷.

¹ le subject to EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) arts 12-15: see the text and notes 8-17 infra. Relief from customs duty conferred by Ch I Title II (arts 11-15) (as amended) is subject: (1) to the condition that the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs are satisfied that the goods in respect of which any such relief is claimed have borne, in their country of origin or exportation, the customs or other duties and taxes to which goods of that class or description are normally liable and have not been subject, by reason of their exportation, to any exemption from, or refund of, such duties and taxes as aforesaid, or any turnover tax, excise duty or other consumption tax (Customs Duty (Community Reliefs) Order 1984, SI 1984/719, art 4); and (2) to the condition that, when any such relief is claimed on importation of the goods, or on their removal from another customs procedure, the goods are produced to the proper officer for examination (art 5). 229. Personal property acquired by inheritance.

Personal property¹ acquired by inheritance by a natural person having his normal place of residence² in the customs territory of the Community³ is to be admitted⁴ free of import duties⁵.

No relief is to be so granted for:

- 552 (1) alcoholic products⁶;
- 553 (2) tobacco and tobacco products;
- 554 (3) commercial means of transport;
- 555 (4) articles for use in the exercise of a trade or profession, other than portable instruments of the applied or liberal arts, which were required for the exercise of the trade or profession of the deceased;
- 556 (5) stocks of raw materials and finished or semi-finished products; or
- 557 (6) livestock and stocks of agricultural products exceeding the quantities appropriate to normal family requirements⁷.

Relief is to be so granted only for personal property entered for free circulation⁸ not later than two years from the date on which the person concerned becomes entitled to the property ('final settlement of the inheritance')⁹. This period may, however, be extended by the competent authorities on special grounds¹⁰.

The above provisions¹¹ apply mutatis mutandis to personal property acquired by inheritance by legal persons engaged in non-profit making activities who are established in the customs territory of the Community¹².

1 For these purposes, 'personal property' means all the property referred to in EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 1(2)(c) (see PARA 227 note 1 ante) constituting the estate of the deceased: art 16(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(B) Personal Property/230. Household effects for furnishing a secondary residence.

230. Household effects for furnishing a secondary residence.

Household effects¹ imported by a natural person having his normal place of residence² outside the Community for the purpose of furnishing a secondary residence in the customs territory of the Community³ are to be admitted⁴ free of import duties⁵.

The relief is limited to household effects which: (1) except in special cases justified by the circumstances, have been owned and used by the person concerned for a minimum of six months before the date on which the household effects in question were exported; and (2) are appropriate both by nature and by quantity to the normal furnishings of the secondary residence⁶.

Relief is to be so granted only to persons who:

- 558 (a) have had their normal place of residence outside the customs territory of the Community for a continuous period of at least 12 months;
- 559 (b) are the owners of the secondary residence in question or have rented it for not less than two years; and
- 560 (c) undertake not to let this secondary residence to third parties while they or their families are absent⁷.

Relief may be limited to one occasion for one and the same secondary residence⁸.

The hire or transfer of the secondary residence to a third person before the expiry of a period of two years from the date of acceptance of the entry for free circulation⁹ of the household effects entails payment of the relevant import duties on them, at the rate applying on the date of such hire or transfer, on the basis of the type of effects and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁰. Nevertheless, the relief continues to apply¹¹ if the household effects concerned are used to furnish a new secondary residence¹². Any loan, giving as security, hiring out or transfer, whether for a consideration or free of charge, of the household effects themselves to a third person before the expiry of a period of two years from the date of acceptance of their entry for free circulation is likewise to entail payment¹³ of the relevant duties¹⁴.

2 For the meaning of 'normal place of residence' see PARA 227 note 2 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

4 Is subject to EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) arts 21-24 (as amended): see the text and notes 6-14 infra. Relief from customs duty conferred by Ch I Title IV (arts 20-24) (as amended) is subject: (1) to the condition that the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs are satisfied that the goods in respect of which any such relief is claimed have borne, in their country of origin or exportation, the customs or other duties and taxes to which goods of that class or description are normally liable and have not been subject, by reason of their exportation, to any exemption from, or refund of, such duties and taxes as aforesaid, or any turnover tax, excise duty or other consumption tax (Customs Duty (Community Reliefs) Order 1984, SI 1984/719, art 4); and (2) to the condition that, when any such relief is claimed on importation of the goods, or on their removal from another customs procedure, the goods are produced to the proper officer for examination (art 5). As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post.

5 EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 20. For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 225 note 1 ante. 230 Household effects for furnishing a secondary residence

TEXT AND NOTES--This exemption no longer applies. Regulation 918/1983 Ch 1, Title IV (arts 20-24): deleted from 1 December 2008 by EC Council Regulation 274/2008 (OJ L85, 27.3.2008, p 1) art 1(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(B) Personal Property/231. School outfits, scholastic materials and other scholastic household effects.

231. School outfits, scholastic materials and other scholastic household effects.

Outfits¹, scholastic materials² and household effects³ representing the usual furnishings for a student room and belonging to pupils or students⁴ coming to stay in the customs territory of the Community⁵ for the purpose of studying there and intended for their personal use during the period of their studies are to be admitted free of import duties⁶. The relief is to be granted at least once per school year⁷.

1 For these purposes, 'outfit' means underwear or household linen as well as clothing, whether or not new: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 25(2)(b).

2 For these purposes, 'scholastic materials' means objects and instruments, including calculators and typewriters, normally used by pupils or students (see note 4 infra) for the purposes of their studies: ibid art 25(2)(c).

3 For the meaning of 'household effects' see PARA 227 note 1 ante.

4 For these purposes, 'pupil or student' means any person enrolled in an educational establishment in order to attend full-time the courses offered therein: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 25(2)(a).

5 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

(C) CONSIGNMENTS OF NEGLIGIBLE VALUE OR SENT BY PRIVATE INDIVIDUALS

232. Consignments of negligible value.

Any consignments made up of goods of negligible value¹ dispatched direct from a third country to a consignee in the Community are to be admitted² free of import duties³.

The relief does not apply to the following:

- 561 (1) alcoholic products⁴;
- 562 (2) perfumes and toilet waters; or
- 563 (3) tobacco or tobacco products⁵.

1 For these purposes, 'goods of negligible value' means goods the intrinsic value of which does not exceed a total of 22 euros per consignment: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 27, 2nd para (substituted by EC Council Regulation 3357/91 (OJ L318, 20.11.91, p 3) art 1(1)); EC Council Regulation 3308/80 (OJ L345, 20.12.80, p 1); EC Council Regulation 1103/97 (OJ L162, 19.6.97, p 1).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

232 Consignments of negligible value

NOTE 1--Regulation 918/1983 art 27: further amended from 1 December 2008 by EC Council Regulation 274/2008 (OJ L85, 27.3.2008, p 1) art 1(3); the value of 22 euros is replaced by 150 euros.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(C) Consignments of Negligable Value or sent by Private Individuals/233. Consignments sent by one private individual to another.

233. Consignments sent by one private individual to another.

Goods contained in consignments sent from a third country by a private individual to another private individual living in the customs territory of the Community¹ are to be admitted² free of import duties³, provided that such importations are not of a commercial nature⁴. For these purposes, imported consignments are not of a commercial nature if they:

- 564 (1) are of an occasional nature;
- 565 (2) contain goods exclusively for the personal use of the consignee or his family, which do not by their nature or quantity reflect any commercial intent; and
- 566 (3) are sent to the consignee by the consignor free of payment of any kind⁵.

The relief is to apply to a value of 45 euros per consignment⁶. Where the total value per consignment of two or more items exceeds this amount, relief up to that amount is to be granted for such of the items as would, if imported separately, have been granted relief, it being understood that the value of an individual item cannot be split up⁷.

The relief is to be limited, per consignment, to the quantities given against each of the goods listed below:

- 567 (a) tobacco products:
18
 - 30. (i) 50 cigarettes; or
 - 31. (ii) 25 cigarillos (cigars of a maximum weight of three grams each); or
 - 32. (iii) ten cigars; or
 - 33. (iv) 50 grams of smoking tobacco; or
 - 34. (v) a proportional assortment of these different products;
- 19
568 (b) alcohols and alcoholic beverages:
20
 - 35. (i) distilled beverages and spirits of an alcoholic strength by volume exceeding 22 per cent volume; non-denatured ethyl alcohol of 80 per cent volume and over (one litre); or
 - 36. (ii) distilled beverages and spirits, and aperitifs with a wine or alcoholic base, tafia, saké or similar beverages, of an alcoholic strength by volume not exceeding 22 per cent volume; sparkling wines, liqueur wines (one litre, or a proportional assortment of these different products); and
 - 37. (iii) still wines (two litres);
- 21
569 (c) perfumes (50 grams) or toilet waters (0.25 litre)⁸.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(D) Capital Goods etc imported on the Transfer of Activities from a Third Country into the Community/234. Capital goods and other equipment imported on the transfer of activities from a third country into the Community.

(D) CAPITAL GOODS ETC IMPORTED ON THE TRANSFER OF ACTIVITIES FROM A THIRD COUNTRY INTO THE COMMUNITY

234. Capital goods and other equipment imported on the transfer of activities from a third country into the Community.

The capital goods and other equipment belonging to undertakings¹ which definitively cease their activity in a third country and move to the customs territory of the Community² in order to carry on a similar activity there are to be admitted³ free of import duties⁴. Where the undertaking transferred is an agricultural holding, its livestock are also to be admitted free of import duties⁵.

Relief is to be limited to capital goods and other equipment which:

- 570 (1) except in special cases justified by the circumstances, have actually been used in the undertaking for a minimum of 12 months before the date on which the undertaking ceased to operate in the third country from which it has transferred its activities;
- 571 (2) are intended to be used for the same purposes after the transfer; and
- 572 (3) are appropriate to the nature and size of the undertaking in question⁶.

No such relief is to be granted to undertakings the transfer of which into the customs territory of the Community is consequent upon, or is for the purpose of merging with, or being absorbed by, an undertaking established in the customs territory of the Community, without a new activity being set up⁷; nor is any such relief to be granted for:

- 573 (a) means of transport which are not of the nature of instruments of production or of the service industry;
- 574 (b) supplies of all kinds intended for human consumption or for animal feed;
- 575 (c) fuel and stocks of raw materials or finished or semi-finished products; or
- 576 (d) livestock in the possession of dealers⁸.

Except in special cases justified by the circumstances, the relief so granted is to be granted only for capital goods and other equipment entered for free circulation⁹ before the expiry of a period of 12 months from the date when the undertaking ceased its activities in the third country of departure¹⁰.

Until 12 months have elapsed from the date on which their entry for free circulation was accepted, capital goods and other equipment which have been admitted duty-free may not be lent, given as security, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, without prior notification to the competent authorities¹¹. Any loan, giving as security, hiring out or transfer before the expiry of this period entails payment of the relevant import duties on the goods concerned, at the rate applying on the date of such loan, giving as security, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹².

The above provisions¹³ also apply mutatis mutandis to capital goods and other equipment belonging to persons engaged in a liberal profession and to legal persons engaged in a non-profit-making activity who transfer this activity from a third country into the customs territory of the Community¹⁴.

1 For these purposes, 'undertaking' means an independent economic unit of production or of the service industry: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 32(2).

235. Products obtained by Community farmers on properties located in a third country.

Agricultural, stock-farming, bee-keeping, horticultural and forestry products from properties located in a third country adjoining the customs territory of the Community¹, which are operated by agricultural producers having their principal undertaking within that customs territory and adjacent to the third country concerned, are to be admitted² free of import duties³. To benefit from that relief, stock-farming products must be derived from animals which originated in the Community or have entered into free circulation⁴ therein⁵.

Such relief:

- 577 (1) is limited to products which have not undergone any treatment other than that which normally follows their harvest or production⁶; and
- 578 (2) is to be granted only for products brought into the customs territory of the Community by the agricultural producer or on his behalf⁷.

The above provisions⁸ apply mutatis mutandis to the products of fishing or fish-farming activities carried out in the lakes or waterways bordering a member state and a third country by Community fishermen and to the products of hunting activities carried out on such lakes or waterways by Community sportsmen⁹.

Goods contained in travellers' personal luggage.

(F) GOODS CONTAINED IN TRAVELLERS' PERSONAL LUGGAGE

237. Goods contained in travellers' personal luggage.

Goods contained in the personal luggage¹ of travellers coming from a third country are to be admitted² free of import duties³, provided that such imports are of a non-commercial nature⁴. 'Imports of a non-commercial nature' means imports which:

- 581 (1) are of an occasional nature; and
- 582 (2) consist exclusively of goods for the personal use of the travellers or their families, or of goods intended as presents⁵.

The relief is to be so granted⁶ up to a total value of 175 euros per traveller⁷.

In respect of the goods listed below, the relief is to apply subject to the following quantitative limits per traveller:

- 583 (a) tobacco products:
22
 - 38. (i) 200 cigarettes; or
 - 39. (ii) 100 cigarillos (cigars of a maximum weight of three grams each); or
 - 40. (iii) 50 cigars; or
 - 41. (iv) 250 grams of smoking tobacco; or
 - 42. (v) a proportional assortment of these different products⁸;
- 23
584 (b) alcohols and alcoholic beverages:
24
 - 43. (i) distilled beverages and spirits of an alcoholic strength by volume exceeding 22 per cent volume; non-denatured ethyl alcohol of 80 per cent volume and over (one litre); or
 - 44. (ii) distilled beverages and spirits, and aperitifs with a wine or alcoholic base, tafia, saké or similar beverages, of an alcoholic strength by volume not exceeding 22 per cent volume; sparkling wines, liqueur wines (two litres, or a proportional assortment of these different products); and
 - 45. (iii) still wines (two litres)⁹;
- 25
585 (c) perfumes (50 grams) and toilet waters (0.25 litre)¹⁰;
- 586 (d) medicinal products (the quantity required to meet travellers' personal needs)¹¹.

Member states may reduce the value and/or the quantities of goods allowed to enter duty-free if they are imported by:

- 587 (A) persons residing in the frontier zone¹²;
- 588 (B) frontier workers¹³;

589 (c) the crews of means of transport used between third countries and the Community¹⁴.

1 For these purposes, 'personal luggage' means the whole of the luggage which a traveller is in a position to submit to the customs authorities on his arrival in the customs territory of the Community, as well as any luggage submitted to this same authority at a later date, provided that evidence can be produced to prove that it was registered, at the time of the traveller's departure, as accompanied luggage with the company which transported it into the customs territory of the Community from the third country of departure; but, without prejudice to EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 112(1)(b) (as substituted) (see PARA 262 head (2) post), portable containers holding fuel do not constitute personal luggage: art 45(2)(a) (amended by EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2) art 2(17)). For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

5 Ibid art 45(2)(b). The nature and quantity of such goods should not be such as might indicate that they are being imported for commercial reasons: art 45(2)(b).

6 Ie in respect of goods specified in ibid art 45 only: see the text and notes 1-5 supra.

7 Ibid art 47, 1st para (substituted by EC Council Regulation 355/94 (OJ L46, 18.2.94, p 5) art 1(1)); EC Council Regulation 3308/80 (OJ L345, 20.12.80, p 1); EC Council Regulation 1103/97 (OJ L162, 19.6.97, p 1). Member states may, however, reduce this amount to 90 euros for travellers under 15 years of age: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 47, 2nd para (substituted by EC Council Regulation 355/94 (OJ L46, 18.2.94, p 5) art 1(1)). Where the total value per traveller of two or more items exceeds the amounts referred to in EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 47 (as substituted), relief up to those amounts is to be granted for such of the items as would, if imported separately, have been granted relief, it being understood that the value of an individual item cannot be split up: art 48. As to the temporary derogation from art 47, 1st para (as substituted) in favour of Spain see art 47a (added by EC Council Regulation 355/94 (OJ L46, 18.2.94, p 5) art 1(2)).

No relief for the goods referred to in EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 46(1)(a) (as substituted) is to be granted to travellers under 17 years old: art 46(2).

9 Ibid art 46(1)(b) (substituted by EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2) art 2(4)). No relief for the goods referred to in EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 46(1)(b) (as substituted) is to be granted to travellers under 17 years old: art 46(2).

12 For these purposes, 'frontier zone' means, without prejudice to existing Conventions in this respect, a zone which, as the crow flies, does not extend more than 15 kilometres from the frontier: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 49(2), 1st indent. The local administrative districts, part of whose territory lies within the zone, are also considered to be part of this frontier zone: art 49(2), 1st indent. Member states may grant exemptions: art 49(2), 1st indent (amended by EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2) art 2(4)).

13 For these purposes, 'frontier worker' means any person whose normal activities require that he should go to the other side of the frontier on his work days: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 49(2), 2nd indent.

14 Ibid art 49(1), 1st para. These restrictions do not apply where persons having their residence in the frontier zone prove that they are not returning from the frontier zone of the adjacent third country: art 49(1), 2nd para. They do, however, still apply to frontier workers and to the crew of means of transport used between third countries and the Community where they import goods when travelling in the course of their work: art 49(1), 2nd para.

UPDATE237 Goods contained in travellers' personal luggage

TEXT AND NOTES--Regulation 918/1983 arts 45-49: repealed and replaced from 1 December 2008 by EC Council Regulation 274/2008 (OJ L85, 27.3.08, p 1) art 1(4), (5). The replacement provision (art 45) provides that goods contained in the personal luggage of travellers coming from a third country are to be admitted free of import duties provided such imports are exempt from value added tax under provisions of national law adopted in accordance with the provisions of EC Council Directive 2007/74 (OJ L346, 29, 12, 2007, p 6) on the exemption from value added tax and excise duty of goods imported by persons travelling from third countries.

(G) EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL MATERIALS; SCIENTIFIC INSTRUMENTS AND APPARATUS

238. Educational, scientific and cultural materials.

Books, publications and documents and visual and auditory materials of an educational, scientific or cultural character¹ are to be admitted free of import duties² whoever the consignee and whatever the intended use of such materials may be³.

Visual and auditory materials of an educational, scientific or cultural character and collectors' pieces and works of art of an educational, scientific or cultural nature⁴ are to be admitted free of import duties, provided that they are intended:

- 590 (1) either for public educational, scientific or cultural establishments or organisations; or
- 591 (2) for specified establishments or organisations⁵, on condition that they have been approved by the competent authorities of the member states to receive such articles duty-free⁶.

The articles referred to above may not be lent, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, without prior notification to the competent authorities⁷. However, should such an article be lent, hired out or transferred to an establishment or organisation entitled to benefit from relief so granted⁸, the relief is to continue to be granted provided that the establishment or organisation uses the article for purposes which confer the right to such relief⁹. In other cases, the loan, hiring out or transfer is subject to prior payment of import duties, at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁰.

Establishments or organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief¹¹, or which are proposing to use articles admitted duty-free for purposes other than those provided for by the provisions affording relief must so inform the competent authorities¹². Articles remaining in the possession of establishments or organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief are liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which those conditions cease to be fulfilled, on the basis of the type of article and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹³. Articles used by the establishment or organisation benefiting from the relief for purposes other than those provided for by the provisions affording relief¹⁴ are liable to the relevant import duties calculated as applicable on the date on which they are put to another use, on the basis of the type of articles and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁵.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(G) Educational, Scientific and Cultural Materials; Scientific Instruments and Apparatus/239. Scientific instruments and apparatus.

239. Scientific instruments and apparatus.

Scientific instruments and apparatus¹ which are not included in the relief for educational, scientific and cultural materials² are to be admitted³ free of import duties⁴ when they are imported exclusively for non-commercial purposes⁵. The relief is limited to scientific instruments and apparatus which are intended for either:

- 592 (1) public establishments principally engaged in education or scientific research and those departments of public establishments which are principally engaged in education or scientific research; or
- 593 (2) private establishments principally engaged in education or scientific research and approved by the competent authorities of the member states to receive such articles duty-free⁶.

The relief also applies to:

- 594 (a) spare parts, components or accessories specifically suitable for scientific instruments or apparatus, provided that such spare parts, components or accessories are imported at the same time as such instruments or apparatus or, where they are imported subsequently, that they can be identified as being intended for instruments or apparatus:
- 26
- 46. (i) which have previously been admitted duty-free, provided that such instruments or apparatus are still of a scientific nature at the time when relief is requested for the specific spare parts, components or accessories; or
- 47. (ii) which would be entitled to relief at the time when such relief is requested for the specific spare parts, components or accessories;
- 27
- 595 (b) tools to be used for the maintenance, checking, calibration or repair of scientific instruments or apparatus, provided that these tools are imported at the same time as such instruments and apparatus or, where they are imported subsequently, that they can be identified as being intended for instruments or apparatus:
- 28
- 48. (i) which have previously been admitted duty-free, provided that such instruments or apparatus are still of a scientific nature at the time when relief is requested for the tools; or
- 49. (ii) which would be entitled to relief at the time when such relief is requested for the tools⁷.
- 29

If necessary, certain instruments or apparatus may⁸ be excluded from entitlement to relief, where it is found that duty-free admission of such instruments or apparatus is detrimental to the interests of Community industry in the production sector concerned⁹.

The scientific instruments or apparatus which have been admitted duty-free¹⁰ may not be lent, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, without prior notification to the competent authorities¹¹. However, should such an article be lent, hired out or transferred to an establishment or organisation entitled to benefit from relief so granted¹², the relief is to continue to be granted, provided that the establishment or organisation uses the article for purposes which confer the right to such relief¹³. In other cases, the loan, hiring out or transfer is subject to prior payment of import duties, at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁴.

Establishments or organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief¹⁵, or which are proposing to use articles admitted duty-free for purposes other than those provided for by the provisions affording relief, must so inform the competent authorities¹⁶. Articles remaining in the possession of establishments or organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief are liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which those conditions cease to be fulfilled, on the basis of the type of article and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁷. Articles used by the establishment or organisation benefiting from the relief for purposes other than those provided for by the provisions affording relief¹⁸ are liable to the relevant import duties calculated as applicable on the date on which they are put to another use, on the basis of the type of articles and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁹.

1 For these purposes, 'scientific instrument or apparatus' means any instrument or apparatus which, by reason of its objective technical characteristics and the results which it makes possible to obtain, is mainly or exclusively suited to scientific activities: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 54, 1st indent (substituted by EC Council Regulation 3357/91 (OJ L318, 20.11.91, p 3) art 1(2)). See Case 300/82 Gesamthochschule Essen v Hauptzollamt Düsseldorf [1983] ECR 3643, ECJ; Case 236/83 University of Hamburg v Hauptzollamt München-West [1984] ECR 3849, ECJ; Case 13/84 Control Data Belgium Inc v EC Commission [1987] ECR 275, ECJ (all decided under EC Council Regulation 1798/75 (OJ L184, 15.7.75, p 1) (repealed)); Case 43/87 Nicolet Instrument GmbH v Hauptzollamt Frankfurt am Main-Flughafen [1988] ECR 1557, ECJ; Case 303/87 Universität Stuttgart v Hauptzollamt Stuttgart-Ost [1989] ECR 705, ECJ.

2 I.e. which are not included in EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 51: see PARA 238 ante.

3 I.e. subject to ibid art 53 (as substituted) (see the text and note 7 infra), art 54 (as substituted) (see notes 1 supra, 5 infra), art 57 (as substituted) (see the text and notes 10-14 infra) and art 58 (see the text and notes 15-19 infra).

EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) arts 56, 57 (both as substituted) (see the text and notes 8-14 infra) and art 58 (see the text and notes 15-19 infra) apply mutatis mutandis to the products referred to in art 53 (as substituted): art 59.

8 Ibid art 56 (as substituted) refers to exclusion in accordance with the procedure laid down in art 143(2), (3). Article 143 was, however, repealed by EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 252(1). As to the procedure which now obtains see art 249; and PARA 345 post.

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(G) Educational, Scientific and Cultural Materials; Scientific Instruments and Apparatus/240. Equipment imported for non-commercial purposes by or on behalf of a scientific research establishment or organisation based outside the Community.

240. Equipment imported for non-commercial purposes by or on behalf of a scientific research establishment or organisation based outside the Community.

Equipment¹ imported for non-commercial purposes² by or on behalf of a scientific research establishment or organisation based outside the Community is to be admitted free of import duties³.

Relief is to be so granted provided that the equipment:

- 596 (1) is intended for use by or with the agreement of the members or representatives of such establishments and organisations in the context and within the limits of scientific co-operation agreements the purpose of which is to carry out international scientific research programmes in scientific research establishments based in the Community and approved for that purpose by the competent authorities of the member states;
- 597 (2) remains the property of a natural or legal person resident outside the Community during its stay in the customs territory of the Community⁴.

Such equipment⁵ which has been so admitted duty-free in accordance with the conditions laid down for relief under the above provisions may not be lent, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, without prior notification to the competent authorities⁶. However, should equipment be lent, hired out or transferred to an establishment or organisation itself entitled to benefit from relief under the above provisions, the relief is to continue to be granted, provided that the establishment or organisation uses the equipment for purposes which confer the right to such relief⁷. In other cases⁸, the loan, hiring out or transfer is subject to prior payment of import duties, at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of equipment and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities⁹.

Such establishments or organisations¹⁰ which no longer fulfil the conditions to qualify for relief or which are proposing to use equipment admitted duty-free for purposes other than those provided for by the above provisions must so inform the competent authorities¹¹. Equipment used by establishments or organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief is liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which those conditions cease to be fulfilled, on the basis of the type of article and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹².

Equipment used by the establishment or organisation benefiting from the relief for purposes other than those provided for in the above provisions¹³ is liable¹⁴ to the relevant import duties calculated as applicable on the date on which it is put to another use, on the basis of the type of equipment and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁵.

1 For these purposes, 'equipment' is taken to mean instruments, apparatus, machines and their accessories including spare parts and tools specially designed for their maintenance, inspection, calibration or repair, used for the purpose of scientific research: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 59a(3), 1st indent (art 59a added by EC Council Regulation 4235/88 (OJ L373, 31.12.88, p 1) art 1).

2 For these purposes, equipment intended for use for the purpose of scientific research carried out for non-profit making purposes is considered to be 'imported for non-commercial purposes': EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 59a(3), 2nd indent (as added: see note 1 supra).

3 Ibid art 59a(1) (as added: see note 1 supra). For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 225 note 1 ante.

4 Ibid art 59a(2) (as added: see note 1 supra).

5 I.e. the equipment referred to in ibid art 59a (as added): see the text and notes 1-4 supra.

Laboratory animals and biological or chemical substances intended for research.

(H) MEDICAL RESEARCH ETC

241. Laboratory animals and biological or chemical substances intended for research.

Relief from import duties¹ is to be granted in respect of:

- 598 (1) animals specially prepared for laboratory use; and
- 599 (2) biological or chemical substances included in a prescribed list² which are imported exclusively for non-commercial purposes³.

The relief so granted is limited to animals and biological or chemical substances which are intended for:

- 600 (a) public establishments principally engaged in education or scientific research and those departments of public establishments which are principally engaged in education or scientific research; or
- 601 (b) private establishments principally engaged in education or scientific research and authorised by the competent authorities of the member states to receive such articles duty-free⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 225 note 1 ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 60(1) (as substituted) refers to a list drawn up in accordance with the procedure laid down in art 143(2), (3). Article 143 was, however, repealed by EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 252(1). As to the procedure which now obtains see art 249; and PARA 345 post.

The list may include only biological or chemical substances for which there is no equivalent production in the customs territory of the Community and which, on account of their specificity or degree of purity, are mainly or exclusively suited to scientific research: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 60(3) (art 60 substituted by EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2) art 1(6)). The list of biological or chemical substances eligible for admission with relief from import duty provided for in EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 60(1)(b) (as substituted) (see head (2) in the text) is set out in EC Commission Regulation 2288/83 (OJ L220, 11.8.83, p 13) art 1, Annex (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 3692/87 (OJ L347, 11.12.87, p 16) art 1, Annex; and amended by EC Commission Regulation 213/89 (OJ L25, 28.1.89, p 70) art 1). For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 60(1) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

Therapeutic substances of human origin and blood-grouping and tissue-typing reagents.

242. Therapeutic substances of human origin and blood-grouping and tissue-typing reagents.

The following are to be admitted¹ free of import duties²: (1) therapeutic substances of human origin³; (2) blood-grouping reagents⁴; and (3) tissue-typing reagents⁵.

The relief to be so granted:

- 602 (a) extends to the special packaging essential for the transport of therapeutic substances of human origin or blood-grouping or tissue-typing reagents and also any solvents and accessories needed for their use which may be included in the consignments⁶; but
- 603 (b) is limited to products which:
 - 50. (i) are intended for institutions or laboratories approved by the competent authorities, for use exclusively for non-commercial medical or scientific purposes;
 - 51. (ii) are accompanied by a certificate of conformity issued by a duly authorised body in the third country of departure; and
 - 52. (iii) are in containers bearing a special label identifying them⁷.

1 le subject to EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 62: see head (b) in the text.

2 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 225 note 1 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'therapeutic substances of human origin' means human blood and its derivatives (whole human blood, dried human plasma, human albumin and fixed solutions of human plasmic protein, human immunoglobulin and human fibrinogen): EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 61(2), 1st indent.

4 For these purposes, 'blood-grouping reagents' means all reagents, whether of human, animal, plant or other origin used for blood-type grouping and for the detection of blood incompatibilities: ibid art 61(2), 2nd indent.

5 Ibid art 61(1). For these purposes, 'tissue-typing reagents' means all reagents whether of human, animal, plant or other origin used for the determination of human tissue-types: art 62(1), 3rd indent.

6 Ibid art 63.

7 Ibid art 62.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(H) Medical Research etc/243. Instruments and apparatus intended for medical research establishing medical diagnoses or carrying out medical treatment.

243. Instruments and apparatus intended for medical research establishing medical diagnoses or carrying out medical treatment.

Instruments and apparatus intended for medical research, establishing medical diagnoses or carrying out medical treatment which are donated either by a charitable or philanthropic organisation or by a private individual to health authorities, hospital departments or medical research institutions approved by the competent authorities of the member states to receive such articles duty-free, or which are purchased by such health authorities, hospitals or medical research institutions entirely with funds supplied by a charitable or philanthropic organisation or with voluntary contributions, are to be admitted free of import duties¹, provided always that it is established that: (1) the donation of the instruments or apparatus in question does not conceal any commercial intent on the part of the donor; and (2) the donor is in no way connected with the manufacturer of the instruments or apparatus for which relief is requested².

The relief to be so granted also applies, subject to the same conditions, to:

- 604 (a) spare parts, components or accessories specifically suitable for the above instruments or apparatus, provided that these spare parts, components or accessories are imported at the same time as such instruments and apparatus or, where they are imported subsequently, that they can be identified as being intended for instruments or apparatus previously admitted duty-free;
- 605 (b) tools to be used for the maintenance, checking, calibration or repair of instruments or apparatus, provided that these tools are imported at the same time as such instruments and apparatus or, where they are imported subsequently, that they can be identified as being intended for instruments or apparatus previously admitted duty-free³.

244. Reference substances for the quality control of medicinal products.

Consignments which contain samples of reference substances approved by the World Health Organisation ('WHO') for the quality control of materials used in the manufacture of medicinal products and which are addressed to consignees authorised by the competent authorities of the member states to receive such consignments free of duty are to be admitted free of import duties¹.

The relief so given applies only to consignments sent by the WHO Collaborating Centre for Chemical Reference Substances in Stockholm, Sweden to consignees who are authorised by the competent national authorities to receive them duty-free².

Relief from import duties for such consignments is conditional on the display on packages containing reference substances of the stamp of the WHO Collaborating Centre and a label in the prescribed form³, on which the box corresponding to chemical reference substances has been clearly marked with a tick⁴. Relief extends to any special packaging which is essential to the transportation of chemical reference substances and to any requisite accessories which the consignments may contain⁵.

COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(j) Goods for Charitable or Philanthropic Organisations; Articles intended for the Blind and other Handicapped Persons/246. Goods etc for general purposes.

(J) GOODS FOR CHARITABLE OR PHILANTHROPIC ORGANISATIONS; ARTICLES INTENDED FOR THE BLIND AND OTHER HANDICAPPED PERSONS

246. Goods etc for general purposes.

The following are to be admitted¹ free of import duties², in so far as this does not give rise to abuses or major distortions of competition:

- 606 (1) basic necessities³ imported by state organisations or other charitable or philanthropic organisations approved by the competent authorities for distribution free of charge to needy persons;
- 607 (2) goods of every description sent free of charge, by a person or an organisation established in a third country, and without any commercial intent on the part of the sender, to state organisations or other charitable or philanthropic organisations approved by the competent authorities, to be used for fund-raising at occasional charity events for the benefit of needy persons;
- 608 (3) equipment and office materials sent free of charge, by a person or an organisation established outside the customs territory of the Community⁴, and without any commercial intent on the part of the sender, to charitable or philanthropic organisations approved by the competent authorities, to be used solely for the purpose of meeting their operating needs or carrying out their charitable or philanthropic aims⁵.

No relief is to be so granted for: (a) alcoholic products⁶; (b) tobacco or tobacco products; (c) coffee and tea; or (d) motor vehicles other than ambulances⁷.

Relief is to be so granted only to organisations the accounting procedures of which enable the competent authorities to supervise their operations and which offer all the guarantees considered necessary⁸.

The organisation benefiting from the relief may not lend, hire out or transfer, whether for a consideration or free of charge, the goods and equipment so obtaining relief for purposes other than those laid down in heads (1) and (2) above without prior notification to the competent authorities⁹. However, should goods and equipment be lent, hired out or transferred to an organisation entitled so to benefit from relief¹⁰, the relief continues to be granted, provided that the latter uses the goods and equipment for purposes which confer the right to such relief¹¹. In other cases, the loan, hiring out or transfer is to be subject to prior payment of import duties, at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods or equipment and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹².

Organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief, or which are proposing to use goods and equipment admitted duty-free for purposes other than those provided for by heads (1) to (3) above, must so inform the competent authorities¹³. Goods and equipment remaining in the possession of organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief are liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which those conditions cease to be fulfilled, on the basis of the type of goods and equipment and the customs value as ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁴.

Goods and equipment used by the organisation benefiting from the relief for purposes other than those provided for in heads (1) to (3) above are liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which they are put to another use, on the basis of the type of goods and equipment and the customs value as ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁵.

247. Articles for the use of the blind.

Articles specially designed for the educational, scientific or cultural advancement of blind persons, and consisting of printed matter, including printed pictures and photographs¹, are to be admitted free of import duties².

Articles specially designed for the educational, scientific or cultural advancement of blind persons, and consisting of materials, tools and machinery for use by them³, are to be admitted free of import duties, provided that they are imported by either:

- 609 (1) blind persons themselves for their own use⁴; or
- 610 (2) institutions or organisations concerned with the education of, or the provision of assistance to, the blind, approved by the competent authorities of the member states for the purpose of duty-free entry of these articles⁵.

Such relief⁶ also applies to spare parts, components or accessories specifically for the articles in question, and to the tools to be used for the maintenance, checking, calibration or repair of those articles, provided that such spare parts, components, accessories or tools are imported at the same time as those articles or, if imported subsequently, that they can be identified as being intended for articles previously admitted duty-free, or which would be entitled to relief at the time when such relief is requested for the specific spare parts, components or accessories and tools in question⁷.

Articles imported duty-free by the persons to whom relief is so given⁸ may not be lent, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, without prior notification thereof to the competent authorities⁹. However, should an article be lent, hired out or transferred to a person, institution or organisation so entitled to benefit from relief¹⁰, the relief is to continue to be granted, provided that the person, institution or organisation uses the article for purposes which confer the right of such relief¹¹. In other cases, the loan, hiring out or transfer is subject to prior payment of import duties, at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods or equipment and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹².

Articles imported by institutions or organisations eligible for relief¹³ may be lent, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, by these institutions or organisations on a non-profit-making basis to the blind persons with whom they are concerned, without payment of the corresponding customs duties¹⁴. No loan, hiring out or transfer may be effected under other conditions¹⁵, unless the competent authorities have first been informed¹⁶. Should an article be lent, hired out or transferred to a person, institution or organisation entitled to benefit from relief¹⁷, the relief is to continue to be granted, provided that the person, institution or organisation uses the article for purposes which confer the right of such relief¹⁸. UPDATE

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(j) Goods for Charitable or Philanthropic Organisations; Articles intended for the Blind and other Handicapped Persons/248. Articles for the use of other handicapped persons.

248. Articles for the use of other handicapped persons.

Articles specially designed for the education, employment or social advancement of physically or mentally handicapped persons other than blind persons are to be admitted free of import duties¹ where they are imported:

- 611 (1) either by handicapped persons themselves for their own use²; or
- 612 (2) by institutions or organisations that are principally engaged in the education of, or the provision of assistance to, handicapped persons and are authorised by the competent authorities of the member states to receive such articles duty-free³.

Such relief⁴ also applies to spare parts, components or accessories specifically for the articles in question, and to the tools to be used for the maintenance, checking, calibration or repair of those articles, provided that such spare parts, components, accessories or tools are imported at the same time as those articles or, if imported subsequently, that they can be identified as being intended for articles previously admitted duty-free, or which would be entitled to relief at the time when such relief is requested for the specific spare parts, components or accessories and tools in question⁵.

If necessary, certain articles may⁶ be excluded from entitlement to relief, where it is found that duty-free admission of such articles is detrimental to the interests of Community industry in the production sector concerned⁷.

Articles imported duty-free by the persons to whom relief is so given⁸ may not be lent, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, without prior notification thereof to the competent authorities⁹. However, should an article be lent, hired out or transferred to a person, institution or organisation so entitled to benefit from relief¹⁰, the relief is to continue to be granted, provided that the person, institution or organisation uses the article for purposes which confer the right of such relief¹¹. In other cases, the loan, hiring out or transfer is subject to prior payment of import duties, at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods or equipment and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹².

Articles imported by institutions or organisations eligible for relief¹³ may be lent, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, by these institutions or organisations on a non-profit-making basis to the handicapped persons with whom they are concerned, without payment of the corresponding customs duties¹⁴. No loan, hiring out or transfer may be effected under other conditions¹⁵ unless the competent authorities have first been informed¹⁶. Should an article be lent, hired out or transferred to a person, institution or organisation entitled to benefit from relief¹⁷, the relief is to continue to be granted, provided that the person, institution or organisation uses the article for purposes which confer the right of such relief¹⁸. In other cases, the loan, hiring out or transfer is subject to prior payment of customs duties, at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods or equipment and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁹.

Institutions or organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to duty-free admission, or which are proposing to use articles admitted duty-free for purposes other than those provided for²⁰, must so inform the competent authorities²¹. Articles remaining in the possession of institutions or organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief are liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which those conditions cease to be fulfilled, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities²². Articles used by the institution or organisation benefiting from the relief for purposes other than those provided for are liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which they are put to another use, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities²³.

1 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 225 note 1 ante.

2 The direct grant of relief, for their own use, to handicapped persons other than blind persons, as provided for in EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 72, 1st indent (as substituted) (see head (1) in the text), is subject to the condition that the provisions in force in the member states enable the persons concerned to establish their status as handicapped persons entitled to such relief: art 75 (substituted by EC Council Regulation 3357/91 (OJ L318, 20.11.91, p 3) art 1(8)).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(i) Community Reliefs from Customs Duties/B. COMMUNITY RELIEFS FROM IMPORT DUTIES/(j) Goods for Charitable or Philanthropic Organisations; Articles intended for the Blind and other Handicapped Persons/249. Goods for the benefit of disaster victims.

249. Goods for the benefit of disaster victims.

Goods imported by state organisations or other charitable or philanthropic organisations approved by the competent authorities are to be admitted¹ free of import duties² where they are intended:

- 613 (1) for distribution free of charge to victims of disasters affecting the territory of one or more member states; or
- 614 (2) to be made available free of charge to the victims of such disasters, while remaining the property of the organisations in question³.

Goods imported for free circulation⁴ by disaster-relief agencies in order to meet their needs during the period of their activity are also to be granted such relief, under the same conditions⁵.

No relief is to be so granted for materials and equipment intended for rebuilding disaster areas⁶.

The granting of the relief is subject to a decision by the Commission, acting at the request of the member state or states concerned in accordance with an emergency procedure entailing the consultation of the other member states; and this decision must, where necessary, lay down the scope and the conditions of the relief⁷. Pending notification of the Commission decision, member states affected by a disaster may authorise the suspension of any import duties chargeable on goods imported for the purposes described in heads (1) and (2) above, subject to an undertaking by the importing organisation to pay such duties if relief is not granted⁸.

Relief is to be granted only to organisations the accounting procedures of which enable the competent authorities to supervise their operations and which offer all the guarantees considered necessary⁹.

The organisations benefiting from the relief may not lend, hire out or transfer, whether for consideration or free of charge, the goods qualifying for relief¹⁰ under other conditions¹¹ without prior notification thereof to the competent authorities¹². However, should goods be lent, hired out or transferred to an organisation itself entitled to benefit from relief¹³, the relief is to continue to be granted, provided that the latter uses the goods for purposes which confer the right to such relief¹⁴. In other cases, the loan, hiring out or transfer is subject to prior payment of import duties at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹⁵.

Goods which have qualified for relief on the basis that they were imported for distribution free of charge to victims of disasters¹⁶, after they cease to be used by disaster victims, may not be lent, hired out or transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, unless the competent authorities are notified in advance¹⁷. However, should goods be lent, hired out or transferred to an organisation itself so entitled to benefit from relief¹⁸ or, if appropriate, to an organisation entitled to benefit from relief for goods imported as bare necessities for distribution free to needy persons¹⁹, the relief is to continue to be granted, provided that such organisations use them for purposes which confer the right to such relief²⁰. In other cases, the loan, hiring out or transfer is subject to prior payment of import duties at the rate applying on the date of the loan, hiring out or transfer, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities²¹.

Organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief²², or which are proposing to use the goods admitted duty-free for purposes other than those provided for²³ must so inform the competent authorities²⁴. In the case of goods remaining in the possession of organisations which cease to fulfil the conditions giving entitlement to relief, when these are transferred to an organisation itself entitled to benefit from relief²⁵ or, if appropriate, to an organisation entitled to benefit from relief for goods imported as bare necessities for distribution free to needy persons²⁶, relief is to continue to be granted, provided that the organisation uses the goods in question for purposes which confer the right to such relief; in other cases, the goods are liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which those conditions cease to be fulfilled, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities²⁷.

Goods used by the organisation benefiting from the relief for purposes other than those provided for²⁸ are to be liable to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date on which they are put to another use, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities²⁹.

250. Honorary decorations or awards.

On production of satisfactory evidence to the competent authorities by the persons concerned, and provided that the operations involved are not in any way of a commercial character, the following are to be admitted free of import duties¹:

- 615 (1) decorations conferred by governments of third countries on persons whose normal place of residence² is in the customs territory of the Community³;
- 616 (2) cups, medals and similar articles of an essentially symbolic nature which, having been awarded in a third country to persons having their normal place of residence in the customs territory of the Community as a tribute to their activities in fields such as the arts, the sciences, sport or the public service or as in recognition for merit at a particular event, are imported into the customs territory of the Community by such persons themselves;
- 617 (3) cups, medals and similar articles of an essentially symbolic nature which are given free of charge by authorities or persons established in a third country to be presented in the customs territory of the Community for the same purposes as those referred to in head (2) above;
- 618 (4) awards, trophies and souvenirs of a symbolic nature and of limited value intended for distribution free of charge to persons normally resident in third countries at business conferences or similar international events, provided that the nature, unitary value or other features of the award is not such as might indicate that they are being imported for commercial reasons⁴.

255. Products used or consumed at a trade fair or similar event.

The following are to be admitted¹ free of import duties²:

- 632 (1) small representative samples of goods manufactured outside the customs territory of the Community³ intended for a trade fair or similar event⁴, such relief being limited to samples which:
- 32
- 53. (a) are imported free of charge as such from third countries or are obtained at the exhibition from goods imported in bulk from those countries;
 - 54. (b) are exclusively distributed free of charge to the public at the exhibition for use or consumption by the persons to whom they have been offered;
 - 55. (c) are identifiable as advertising samples of low unitary value;
 - 56. (d) are not easily marketable and, where appropriate, are packaged in such a way that the quantity of the item involved is lower than the smallest quantity of the same item actually sold on the market;
 - 57. (e) in the case of foodstuffs and beverages not packaged as mentioned in head (d) above, are consumed on the spot at the exhibition; and
 - 58. (f) in their total value and quantity, are appropriate to the nature of the exhibition, the number of visitors and the extent of the exhibitor's participation⁵;
- 33
- 633 (2) goods imported solely in order to be demonstrated or in order to demonstrate machines and apparatus, manufactured outside the customs territory of the Community and displayed at a trade fair or similar event, such relief being limited to goods which are:
- 34
- 59. (a) consumed or destroyed at the exhibition; and
 - 60. (b) are appropriate, in their total value and quantity, to the nature of the exhibition, the number of visitors and the extent of the exhibitor's participation⁶;
- 35
- 634 (3) various materials of little value such as paints, varnishes, wallpaper etc, used in the building, fitting-out and decoration of temporary stands occupied by representatives of third countries at a trade fair or similar event, which are destroyed by being used⁷;
- 635 (4) printed matter, catalogues, prospectuses, price lists, advertising posters, calendars, whether or not illustrated, unframed photographs and other articles supplied free of charge in order to advertise goods manufactured outside the customs territory of the Community and displayed at a trade fair or similar event, such relief being limited to printed matter and articles for advertising purposes which:

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. Goods imported for examination, analysis or test purposes.

(N) GOODS IMPORTED FOR EXAMINATION, ANALYSIS OR TEST PURPOSES

256. Goods imported for examination, analysis or test purposes.

Goods which are to undergo examination, analysis or tests to determine their composition, quality or other technical characteristics for purposes of information or industrial or commercial research are to be admitted¹ free of import duties².

Relief is so granted³ only on condition that the goods to be examined, analysed or tested are completely used up or destroyed in the course of the examination, analysis or testing⁴; but such relief covers goods which are not completely used up or destroyed during examination, analysis or testing, provided that the products remaining⁵ are, with the agreement and under the supervision of the competent authorities:

- 636 (1) completely destroyed or rendered commercially valueless on completion of examination, analysis or testing; or
- 637 (2) surrendered to the state without causing it any expense, where this is possible under national law; or
- 638 (3) in duly justified circumstances, exported outside the customs territory of the Community⁶.

Save where the above relaxation⁷ is applied, products remaining at the end of such examinations, analyses or tests⁸ are subject to the relevant import duties at the rate applying on the date of completion of the examinations, analyses or tests, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities⁹. However, the interested party may, with the agreement and under the supervision of the competent authorities, convert products remaining to waste or scrap; and, in this case, the import duties are those applying to such waste or scrap at the time of conversion¹⁰.

Goods used in examination, analysis or tests which in themselves constitute sales promotion operations do not enjoy such relief¹¹.

Such relief is to be granted only in respect of the quantities of goods which are strictly necessary for the purpose for which they are imported¹².

³ I.e. without prejudice to ibid art 104: see the text and notes 5-6 infra.

6 Ibid art 104(1).

7 Ie save where ibid art 104(1) is applied: see the text and notes 5-6 supra.

Fuel and lubricants present in land motor vehicles and special containers.

(S) FUEL AND LUBRICANTS PRESENT IN LAND MOTOR VEHICLES ETC

262. Fuel and lubricants present in land motor vehicles and special containers.

The following are to be admitted¹ free of import duties²:

- 659 (1) fuel contained in the standard tanks³ of private and commercial motor vehicles⁴ and motor cycles or special containers⁵, entering the customs territory of the Community⁶;
- 660 (2) fuel contained in portable tanks carried by private motor vehicles and motor cycles, with a maximum of ten litres per vehicle and without prejudice to national provisions on the holding and transport of fuel⁷.

As regards the fuel contained in the standard tanks of commercial motor vehicles and special containers, member states may limit application of the relief to 200 litres per vehicle, per special container and per journey⁸. Member states may also limit the amount of duty-free fuel allowed in the case of:

- 661 (a) commercial motor vehicles engaged in international transport into their frontier zone to a maximum depth of 25 kilometres as the crow flies, provided that such journeys are made by persons residing in the frontier zone; and
- 662 (b) private motor vehicles belonging to persons residing in the specified⁹ frontier zone¹⁰.

Fuel so admitted duty-free may not be used in a vehicle other than that in which it was imported nor be removed from that vehicle and stored, except during necessary repairs to that vehicle, nor be transferred, whether for a consideration or free of charge, by the person benefiting from the relief¹¹. Non-compliance with this condition gives rise to application of the import duties relating to the products in question at the rate in force on the date of such non-compliance, on the basis of the type of goods and the customs value ascertained or accepted on that date by the competent authorities¹².

The relief referred to in heads (1) and (2) above also applies to the lubricants present in the motor vehicles and required for their normal operation during the journey in question¹³.

1 le subject to the provisions of EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 113 (as substituted) and arts 114, 115: see the text and notes 8-12 infra.

2 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 225 note 1 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'standard tanks' means: (1) the tanks permanently fixed by the manufacturer to all motor vehicles of the same type as the vehicle in question and whose permanent fitting enables fuel to be used directly, both for the purpose of propulsion and, where appropriate, for the operation, during transport, of refrigeration systems and other systems, gas tanks fitted to motor vehicles designed for the direct use of gas as a fuel and tanks fitted to the other systems with which the vehicle may be equipped being also considered to be standard tanks; (2) tanks permanently fixed by the manufacturer to all containers of the same type as the container in question and whose permanent fitting enables fuel to be used directly for the operation, during transport, of the refrigeration systems and other systems with which special containers are equipped: EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 112(2)(c) (art 112 substituted by EC Council Regulation 1315/88 (OJ L123, 17.5.88, p 2) art 2(11)).

4 For these purposes, 'private motor vehicle' means any motor vehicle not covered by the definition of 'commercial motor vehicle': EC Council Regulation 918/83 (OJ L105, 23.4.83, p 1) art 112(2)(b) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). For these purposes, 'commercial motor vehicle' means any motorised road vehicle, including tractors with or without trailers, which by its type of construction and its equipment is designed for and capable of transporting, whether for payment or not, more than nine persons including the driver, and goods, and any road vehicle for a special purpose other than transport as such: art 112(2)(a) (as so substituted).

5 For these purposes, 'special container' means any container fitted with specially designed apparatus for refrigeration systems, oxygenation systems, thermal insulation systems, or other systems: ibid art 112(2)(d) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

6 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

270. End-use relief.

Where goods are released for free circulation at a reduced or zero rate of duty on account of their end-use¹, they must remain under customs supervision². Customs supervision ends when the conditions laid down for granting such a reduced or zero rate of duty cease to apply, where the goods are exported or destroyed, or where the use of the goods for purposes other than those laid down for the application of the reduced or zero rate of duty is permitted subject to payment of the duties due³. The customs authorities⁴ may make the release for free circulation at a reduced or zero rate of duty conditional upon the provision of security in order to ensure that any customs debt which may be incurred in respect of those goods will be paid⁵. The rights and obligations of the relevant person may, on conditions laid down by the customs authorities, be transferred successively to other persons who fulfil any conditions laid down in order to benefit from the relief⁶.

The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

271. Application for authorisation.

The granting of a favourable tariff treatment¹ is, where it is provided that goods are subject to end-use customs supervisions, subject to a written authorisation². Where goods are released for free circulation at a reduced or zero rate of duty on account of their end-use and the provisions in force require that the goods remain under customs supervision³, a written authorisation for the purposes of end-use customs supervision is necessary⁴. Applications must be made in writing⁵. The customs authorities⁶ may permit renewal or modification to be applied for by simple written request⁷.

In particular circumstances the customs authorities may allow the declaration for free circulation in writing or by means of a data-processing technique using the normal procedure to constitute an application for authorisation, provided that: (1) the application only invoices one customs administration; (2) the applicant wholly assigns the goods to the prescribed end-use; and (3) the proper conduct of operations is safeguarded⁸.

Where the customs authorities consider any of the information given in the application inadequate, they may require additional details from the applicant⁹. In particular, in cases where an application may be made by making a customs declaration, the customs authorities must require¹⁰ that the application be accompanied by a document made out by the declarant containing at least the following information, unless such information is deemed unnecessary or is entered on the customs declaration: (a) the name and address of the applicant, the declarant and the operator; (b) the nature of the end-use; (c) the technical description of the goods, products resulting from their end-use and means of identifying them; (d) the estimated rate of yield or method by which that rate is to be determined; (e) the estimated period for assigning the goods to their end-use; and (f) the place where the goods are put to the end-use¹¹.

Where a single authorisation¹² is applied for, the prior agreement of the authorities is necessary according to the following procedure¹³. The application must be submitted to the customs authorities designated for the place where the applicant's main accounts¹⁴ are kept facilitating audit-based controls, and where at least part of the operations to be covered by the authorisation are carried out or, otherwise, where the goods are assigned to the prescribed end-use¹⁵. These customs authorities must communicate the application and the draft authorisation to the other customs authorities concerned, which must acknowledge the date of receipt within 15 days¹⁶. The other customs authorities concerned must notify any objections within 30 days of the date on which the draft authorisation was received¹⁷. Where objections are notified within the above period and no agreement is reached, the application must be rejected to the extent to which objections were raised¹⁸. The customs authorities may issue the authorisation if they have received no objections to the draft authorisation within the 30 days¹⁹. The customs authorities issuing the authorisation must send a copy to all customs authorities concerned²⁰.

Where the criteria and conditions for the granting of a single authorisation are generally agreed on between two or more customs administrations, those administrations may also agree to replace prior consultation by simple notification²¹.

4 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 292(1), 2nd para (as substituted: see note 2 supra). The goods must remain under customs supervision and liable to import duties until they are: (1) first assigned to the prescribed end-use; or (2) exported, destroyed or used otherwise in accordance with arts 298, 299 (see PARA 272 post): art 300(1), 1st para (art 300 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(7)). However, where the goods are suitable for repeated use and the customs authorities consider it appropriate in order to avoid abuse, customs supervision must continue for a period not exceeding two years after the date of first assignment: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 300(1), 2nd para (as so substituted). Waste and scrap which result from the working or processing of goods and losses due to natural wastage are considered as goods having been assigned to the prescribed end-use: art 300(2) (as so substituted). For waste and scrap which result from the destruction of goods, customs supervision ends when they have been assigned a permitted customs-approved treatment or use: art 300(3) (as so substituted).

21 Ibid art 292(6), 1st para (as substituted: see note 2 supra). Such notification is always sufficient where a single authorisation is renewed or revoked: art 292(6), 2nd para (as so substituted). The applicant must be informed of the decision to issue an authorisation, or of the reasons why the application was rejected, within 30 days of the date on which the application was lodged or of the date on which any outstanding or additional information requested was received by the customs authorities: art 292(7), 1st para (as so substituted). The 30-day period does not apply in the case of a single authorisation unless it is issued under art 292(6) (as substituted): art 292(7), 2nd para (as so substituted).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(ii) End-use Relief/272. Conditions for authorisation.

272. Conditions for authorisation.

An authorisation using the prescribed model¹ must be granted to persons established in the customs territory of the Community², provided that the following conditions are met:

- 669 (1) the activities envisaged are consistent with the prescribed end-use and with the provisions for the transfer of goods³, and the proper conduct of operations is ensured;
- 670 (2) the applicant offers every guarantee necessary for the proper conduct of operations to be carried out and will undertake the obligations:
- 38
 - 63. (a) to wholly or partly assign the goods to the prescribed end-use or to transfer them and to provide evidence of their assignment or transfer in accordance with the provisions in force;
 - 64. (b) not to take actions incompatible with the intended purpose of the prescribed end-use; and
 - 65. (c) to notify all factors which may affect the authorisation to the competent customs authorities⁴;
- 39
 - 671 (3) efficient customs supervision is ensured and the administrative arrangements to be taken by the customs authorities are not disproportionate to the economic needs involved;
 - 672 (4) adequate records⁵ are kept and retained; and
 - 673 (5) security is provided where the customs authorities consider this necessary⁶.

The authorisation must include the following items, unless such information is deemed unnecessary: (i) identification of the authorisation holder; (ii) where necessary, Combined Nomenclature or TARIC code⁷, type and description of the goods and of the end-use operations and provisions concerning rates of yield; (iii) means and methods of identification and of customs supervision⁸; (iv) the period within which the goods have to be assigned to the prescribed end-use; (v) the customs offices where the goods are declared for free circulation and the offices to supervise the arrangements; (vi) the places where the goods have to be assigned to the prescribed end-use; (vii) the security to be provided, where appropriate; (viii) the period of validity of the authorisation; (ix) where applicable, the possibility of transfer of the goods⁹; (x) where applicable, the simplified arrangements for the transfer of goods¹⁰; (xi) where applicable, simplified procedures for customs declarations¹¹; and (xii) methods of communication¹².

The authorisation takes effect on the date of issue or at any later date given in the authorisation¹³.

For an application under EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 292(3) (as substituted) (see PARA 271 ante), the authorisation must be granted to persons established in the customs territory of the Community by acceptance of the customs declaration under the other conditions set out in heads (1)-(5) in the text: art 293(2) (as so substituted).

7 As to the Combined Nomenclature and TARIC see PARA 10 ante.

8 'Means and methods of identification and of customs supervision' include: (1) arrangements for common storage, as to which EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 534(2), (3) applies mutatis mutandis; and (2) mixed storage of products subject to end-use supervision falling within the Combined Nomenclature Chs 27, 29 or of such products with crude petroleum oils falling within CN code 2709 00: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 293(3), 1st para (c) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(10)). Where the goods falling within head (2) supra do not share the same eight-digit CN code, the same commercial quality and the same technical and physical characteristics, mixed storage may be allowed only where the whole mixture is to undergo one of the treatments referred to in the Combined Nomenclature Ch 27, additional notes 4, 5: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 293(3), 2nd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(10)).

9 Ie in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 296(1) (as substituted).

10 Ie under ibid art 296(2), 2nd para, (3) (as substituted).

11 Ie procedures authorised in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 76 (see PARA 96 ante).

12 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 293(3) (as substituted and amended: see note 6 supra).

13 Ibid art 293(4), 1st para (as substituted: see note 6 supra). The period of validity must not exceed three years from the date on which the authorisation takes effect, except where there are duly substantiated good reasons: art 293(4), 2nd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 444/2002 (OJ L68, 12.3.2002, p 11) art 1(10)). This is without prejudice to the provisions as to retroactive authorisation contained in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 294 (as substituted) (see PARA 273 post).

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. 273. Retroactive authorisation.

The customs authorities¹ may issue a retroactive authorisation². Without prejudice to the following provisions, a retroactive authorisation takes effect on the date the application was submitted³.

If an application concerns renewal of an authorisation for the same kind of operation and goods, an authorisation may be granted with retroactive effect from the date the original authorisation expired⁴. In exceptional circumstances, the retroactive effect of an authorisation may be extended further, but not more than one year before the date the application was submitted, provided a proven economic need exists and: (1) the application is not related to attempted deception or to obvious negligence; (2) the applicant's accounts confirm that all the requirements of the arrangements can be regarded as having been met and, where appropriate, in order to avoid substitution the goods can be identified for the period involved, and such accounts allow the arrangements to be verified; and (3) all the formalities necessary to regularise the situation of the goods can be carried out, including, where necessary, the invalidation of the declaration⁵.

The expiry of an authorisation does not affect goods which were in free circulation by virtue of that authorisation before it expired⁶.

(iii) Returned Goods

274. Relief for returned goods.

Community goods¹ which, having been exported from the customs territory of the Community², are returned to that territory and released for free circulation³ within a period of three years are to be granted relief from import duties⁴ at the request of the person concerned⁵. The three-year period may be exceeded in order to take account of special circumstances⁶.

Where, prior to their exportation from the customs territory of the Community, the returned goods had been released for free circulation at reduced or zero import duty because of their use for a particular purpose, exemption from duty as returned goods is to be granted only if the goods are to be re-imported for the same purpose⁷.

Where the purpose for which the goods in question are to be imported is no longer the same, the amount of import duties chargeable upon them is to be reduced by any amount levied on the goods when they were first released for free circulation; and should the latter amount exceed that levied on the entry for free circulation of the returned goods, no refund is to be granted⁸.

The relief from import duties for returned goods is to be granted only if goods are re-imported in the state in which they were exported⁹. To facilitate this, when completing the customs export formalities, the customs authorities must, at the request of the person concerned, issue a document containing the information necessary for identification of the goods in the event of their being returned to the customs territory of the Community¹⁰.

The above provisions apply mutatis mutandis to compensating products¹¹ originally exported or re-exported subsequent to an inward processing procedure¹².

1 For the meaning of 'Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

3 As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante. Returned goods are exempt from import duties, even where they represent only a proportion of the goods previously exported from the customs territory of the Community; and also where the goods consist of parts or accessories belonging to machines, instruments, apparatus or other products previously exported from the customs territory of the Community: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 845.

4 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 185(1), 1st para. As to the circumstances in which relief is not to be granted see PARA 275 post.

6 Ibid art 185(1), 2nd para, 1st indent.

7 Ibid art 185(1), 2nd para, 2nd indent.

8 Ibid art 185(1), 3rd para.

9 Ibid art 186. The circumstances in which, and the conditions under which, this requirement may be waived are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 186. For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

Accordingly, by way of derogation from art 186, returned goods falling within one of the following situations are to be exempt from import duties: (1) goods which, after having been exported from the customs territory of the Community, have received no treatment other than that necessary to maintain them in good condition or handling which alters their appearance only; and (2) goods which, after having been exported from the customs territory of the Community, received treatment other than that necessary to maintain them in good condition or handling other than that altering their appearance, but which proved to be defective or unsuitable for their intended use, provided that one of the following conditions is fulfilled: (a) such treatment or handling was applied to the goods solely with a view to repairing them or restoring them to good condition; or (b) their unsuitability for their intended use became apparent only after such treatment or handling had commenced: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 846(1). Notwithstanding this, the rules in force for charging duty under outward processing arrangements apply in cases where returned goods have undergone treatment or handling permitted under art 846(1)(b) (see head (2) supra) and such treatment would have rendered them liable to import duties if they had come under outward processing arrangements: art 846(2), 1st para. If, however, the goods have undergone an operation consisting of repair or restoration to good condition which became necessary as a result of unforeseen circumstances which arose outside the customs territory of the Community, and this is established to the satisfaction of the customs authorities, relief from import duties is to be granted, provided that the value of the returned goods is not higher, as a result of such operation, than their value at the time of export from the customs territory of the Community: art 846(2), 2nd para.

For these purposes: (i) 'repair or restoration to good condition which became necessary' means any operation to remedy operating defects or material damage suffered by goods while they were outside the customs territory of the Community, without which the goods could no longer be used in the normal way for the purposes for which they were intended; and (ii) the value of returned goods is to be considered not to be higher, as a result of the operation which they have undergone, than their value at the time of export from the customs territory of the Community, when the operation does not exceed that which is strictly necessary to enable them to continue to be used in the same way as at that time: art 846(3), 1st para (a), (b). When the repair or restoration to good condition of goods necessitates the incorporation of spare parts, such incorporation must be limited to those parts strictly necessary to enable the goods to be used in the same way as at the time of export: art 846(3), 2nd para.

10 Ibid art 847. As to the formalities which must be complied with in order to obtain returned goods relief see arts 848-856 (as amended). Goods for which the following documents are produced in support of the declaration for release for free circulation are to be accepted as returned goods: (1) the copy of the export declaration returned to the exporter by the customs authorities, or a copy of such document certified true by the said authorities; or (2) the information sheet provided for in art 850: art 848(1), 1st indent. Where evidence available to the customs authorities at the customs office of re-importation or ascertainable by them from the person concerned indicates that the goods declared for free circulation were originally exported from the customs territory of the Community, and at that time satisfied the conditions for acceptance as returned goods, the documents referred to in heads (1), (2) supra are not to be required: art 848(1), 2nd para. Article 848, 1st indent does not apply to the international movement of packing materials, means of transport or certain goods admitted under specific customs arrangements where autonomous or conventional provisions lay down that customs documents are not required in these circumstances: art 848(2), 1st para. Nor does it apply in cases where goods may be declared for release for free circulation orally or by any other act: art 848(2), 2nd para.

Goods covered by an ATA carnet issued in the Community are also to be accepted as returned goods: art 848(1), 2nd indent. Such goods may be accepted as returned goods, within the limits laid down by EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 185, even when the validity of the ATA carnet has expired: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 848(1), 2nd para. In all cases, the formalities laid down in art 290(2) must be carried out: art 848(1), 3rd para. For the meaning of 'ATA carnet' see PARA 111 note 4 ante.

Where they consider it necessary, the customs authorities at the customs office of re-importation may ask the person concerned to submit additional evidence for the purposes of identification of the returned goods: art 848(3). It is not disproportionate for the customs authorities to require an importer claiming returned goods relief to establish that the conditions obtain which create the entitlement to the relief: Shaneel Enterprises Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [1996] V & DR 23.

11 For the meaning of 'compensating products' see PARA 160 ante.

12 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 187, 1st para. The amount of import duty legally owed in such a case is to be determined on the basis of the rules applicable under the inward processing procedure, with the date of re-export being regarded as the date of release for free circulation: art 187, 2nd para. As to the inward processing procedure see PARA 160 et seq ante.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(iii) Returned Goods/275. Circumstances in which relief is not to be granted.

275. Circumstances in which relief is not to be granted.

The relief from import duties for returned goods¹ is not to be granted in the case of:

- 674 (1) goods exported from the customs territory of the Community² under the outward processing procedure³ unless those goods remain in the state in which they were exported⁴; and
- 675 (2) goods which have been the subject of a Community measure involving their exportation to third countries⁵.

1 The relief provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 185(1): see PARA 274 ante. For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

3 As to the outward processing procedure see PARA 201 et seq ante.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 185(2)(a).

5 Ibid art 185(2)(b). The circumstances in which, and the conditions under which, the requirement mentioned in art 185(2)(b) may be waived are to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure: art 185(2)(b). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

Accordingly the following are exempt from import duties:

- 41 (1) goods previously exported from the customs territory of the Community, in respect of which the customs export formalities have been completed with a view to obtaining refunds or other amounts provided for on exportation under the common agricultural policy (see AGRICULTURAL LAND VOL 1 (2008) PARA 301 et seq); and
- 42 (2) goods in respect of which a financial advantage other than such refunds or other amounts has been granted under the common agricultural policy, entailing an obligation to export the goods, provided that it is established, as appropriate, that the refunds or other amounts paid have been repaid, or that the necessary steps have been taken by the competent authorities for such sums to be withheld, or that the other financial advantages granted have been cancelled, and that the goods: (a) could not be entered for home use in the country to which they were sent on account of laws in force in that country; (b) were returned by the consignee as being defective or not in accordance with the provisions of the contract relating to them; or (c) were re-imported into the customs territory of the Community because they could not be used for the purposes intended owing to other circumstances outside the exporter's control: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 844(1).

The circumstances referred to in art 844(1)(iii) (see head (c) supra) include the following: (i) goods returned to the customs territory of the Community following damage occurring before delivery to the consignee, either to the goods themselves or to the means of transport on which they were carried; (ii) goods originally exported for the purposes of consumption or sale in the course of a trade fair or similar occasion which have not been so consumed or sold; (iii) goods which could not be delivered to the consignee on account of his physical or legal incapacity to honour the contract under which the goods were exported; (iv) goods which, because of natural, political or social disturbances, could not be delivered to their consignee or which reached him after the mandatory delivery date stipulated in the contract under which the goods were exported; and (v) products covered by the common organisation of the market in fruit and vegetables, exported and sent for sale on consignment, but which were not sold in the market of the third country of destination: art 844(2).

However, goods exported under the common agricultural policy with an export licence or an advance fixing certificate are not to be exempted from import duties unless it is established that the relevant Community provisions have been complied with (art 844(3)); and the goods referred to in art 844(1) are not exempt from import duties unless they are entered for free circulation in the customs territory of the Community within 12 months of the date of completion of the customs formalities relating to their exportation (art 844(4), 1st para). Where, however, the goods are declared for free circulation after expiry of the period referred to in art 844(4), 1st para, the customs authorities of the member state of re-importation may allow the period to be exceeded where exceptional circumstances justify this; and, where the customs authorities do allow the period to be exceeded, they must send details of the case to the Commission: art 844(4), 2nd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 1677/98 (OJ L212, 30.7.98, p 19) art 1(3)).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(13) PRIVILEGED OPERATIONS/(iv) Products of Sea-fishing etc/276. Products of sea-fishing and other products taken from the sea.

(iv) Products of Sea-fishing etc

276. Products of sea-fishing and other products taken from the sea.

Without prejudice to the rules relating to the non-preferential origin of products obtained from sea-fishing or from the sea¹, the following are exempt from import duties² when they are released for free circulation³:

- 676 (1) products of sea-fishing and other products taken from the territorial sea of a third country by vessels registered or recorded in a member state and flying the flag of that state;
- 677 (2) products obtained from products referred to in head (1) above on board factory ships registered or recorded in a member state and flying the flag of that state⁴.

Exemption from import duties for these products is subject to the presentation of a certificate in support of the declaration for release for free circulation relating to them⁵.

1 le without prejudice to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 23(2)(f): see PARA 23 head (6) ante. Article 188 reads 'without prejudice to art 23(1)(f)' but it is apprehended that this is a typographical error.

2 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

3 As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante.

4 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 188. As to the method of proving the Community status of sea-fishing etc see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 325-337 (arts 325, 326, 328-337 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 482/96 (OJ L70/96, 20.3.96, p 4) art 1(4)).

A T2M form, made out in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 327 and arts 328-337 (as substituted), must be produced to prove the Community status: (1) of the products of sea-fishing caught by a Community fishing vessel, in waters other than the territorial waters of a country or territory outside the customs territory of the Community; and (2) of the goods obtained from such products on board that vessel or a Community factory ship, in the production of which other products having Community status may have been used, which may be in packaging having Community status and which are to be brought into the customs territory of the Community in the circumstances set out in art 326 (as substituted): art 325(1), (2) (as so substituted). A T2M form must be presented in respect of such products and goods which are transported directly to the customs territory of the Community: (a) by the Community fishing vessel which caught the products and, where applicable, processed them; or (b) by another Community fishing vessel or by the Community factory ship which processed the products following their transshipment from the vessel referred to in head (a) supra; or (c) by any other vessel on to which those products and goods were transhipped from the vessels referred to in heads (a), (b) supra, without any further changes being made; or (d) by a means of transport covered by a single transport document made out in the country or territory not forming part of the customs territory of the Community where the products or goods were landed from the vessels referred to in heads (a)-(c) supra: art 326(1), 1st para (as so substituted). Once the T2M form has so been presented, it may no longer be used as proof of the Community status of the products or goods to which it refers: art 326(1), 2nd para (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

The customs authorities which are responsible for the port where products and/or goods are landed from a vessel referred to in art 325(1)(a) (as substituted) (see head (1) supra) may, however, waive the requirement to produce a T2M form where there is no doubt about the origin of those products and/or goods, or where the attestation referred to in EC Council Regulation 2847/93 (OJ L261, 20.10.93, p 1) art 8 is applicable: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 326(2) (as so substituted). The master of each Community fishing vessel having an overall length equal to, or more than, 10 metres, or his representative, must, after each trip and within 48 hours of landing, submit a declaration to the competent authorities of the member state where the landing takes place indicating, as a minimum, the quantities landed of each species for which a quota or a limit on the total allowable catch is imposed and the area where they were caught: see EC Council Regulation 2847/93 (OJ L261, 20.10.93, p 1) art 8(1). For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

Proof of the Community status of the sea-fishing products and other products taken or caught in waters other than the territorial waters of a country or territory outside the customs territory of the Community by vessels flying the flag of a member state and listed or registered in a part of a member state's territory forming part of the customs territory of the Community, or of such products taken or caught in territorial waters within the customs territory of the Community by vessels of a non-member country, must be provided by means of the logbook or any other means which establishes that status: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 325(3) (as so substituted).

For these purposes, 'Community fishing vessel' means a vessel which is listed and registered in a part of a member state's territory forming part of the customs territory of the Community, flies the flag of a member state, catches products of sea-fishing and, as the case may be, processes them on board; and 'Community factory ship' means a vessel which is listed or registered in a part of a member state's territory forming part of the customs territory of the Community, flies the flag of a member state and does not catch products of sea-fishing but does process such products on board: art 325(1)(a), (b) (as so substituted).

5 Ibid art 856a(1) (added by EC Commission Regulation 75/98 (OJ L7, 13.1.98, p 3) art 1(22)). As to the form of the certificate, and as to the manner of its completion, see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 856a(2), Annex 110A (added by EC Commission Regulation 75/98 (OJ L7, 13.1.98, p 3) art 1(22), (33)).

(14) CUSTOMS DEBTS

277. Incurrence of a customs debt on importation; in general.

A customs debt¹ on importation is to be incurred through:

- 678 (1) the release for free circulation² of goods liable to import duties³; or
- 679 (2) the placing of such goods under the temporary importation procedure⁴ with partial relief from import duties⁵.

A customs debt is incurred at the time of acceptance⁶ of the customs declaration⁷ in question⁸. The debtor⁹ is the declarant¹⁰; but, in the event of indirect representation¹¹, the person on whose behalf the customs declaration is made is also a debtor¹².

Where a customs declaration in respect of one of the procedures referred to in head (1) or head (2) above is drawn up on the basis of information which leads to all or part of the duties legally owed not being collected, the persons who provided the information required to draw up the declaration and who knew, or who ought reasonably to have known, that such information was false, may also be considered debtors in accordance with the national provisions in force¹³.

Duties legally owed where a customs debt is incurred are to be based on the Customs Tariff of the European Communities¹⁴.

2 As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante. The granting of release gives rise to the entry in the accounts of the import duties determined according to the particulars in the declaration: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 248(1). 6 Where acceptance of a customs declaration gives rise to a customs debt, the goods covered by the declaration may not be released unless the customs debt has been paid or secured; but, without prejudice to ibid art 74(2), this provision does not apply to the temporary importation procedure with partial relief from import duties: art 74(1). Where, pursuant to the provisions governing the customs procedure for which the goods are declared, the customs authorities require the provision of a security, the goods must not be released for the customs procedure in question until such security is provided: art 74(2). UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(14) CUSTOMS DEBTS/278. Customs debt in respect of goods unlawfully introduced into the customs territory of the Community.

278. Customs debt in respect of goods unlawfully introduced into the customs territory of the Community.

A customs debt¹ on importation is incurred through:

- 680 (1) the unlawful introduction into the customs territory of the Community² of goods liable to import duties³; or
- 681 (2) the unlawful introduction into another part of that territory of such goods located in a free zone⁴ or free warehouse⁵.

For these purposes, an introduction of goods is unlawful if it is in violation of the provisions relating to the entry of goods into the customs territory of the Community, and their presentation to customs⁶ or those relating to the removal of goods from a free zone or free warehouse⁷ on being brought into another part of the customs territory of the Community⁸.

The customs debt is incurred at the moment when the goods are unlawfully introduced⁹; and the debtors¹⁰ are:

- 682 (a) the person who introduced the goods unlawfully;
- 683 (b) any persons who participated in the unlawful introduction of the goods and who were aware, or should reasonably have been aware, that such introduction was unlawful; and
- 684 (c) any persons who acquired or held the goods in question and who were aware or should reasonably have been aware at the time of acquiring or receiving the goods that they had been introduced unlawfully¹¹.

Where several persons are liable for payment of one customs debt, they are jointly and severally liable for that debt¹².

By way of derogation from the general rule¹³, no customs debt on importation is deemed to be incurred in respect of specific goods where the person concerned proves¹⁴ that the non-fulfilment of the relevant obligations¹⁵ results from the total destruction or irretrievable loss of the goods as a result of the actual nature of the goods¹⁶, or unforeseeable circumstances, or force majeure¹⁷, or as a consequence of authorisation by the customs authorities¹⁸. For these purposes, goods are irretrievably lost when they are rendered unusable by any person¹⁹.

2 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante. Without prejudice to the provisions laid down concerning prohibitions or restrictions which may be applicable to the goods in question, where a customs debt on importation is incurred pursuant (inter alia) to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 202 and the import duties have been paid, those goods are deemed to be Community goods without the need for a declaration for entry into free circulation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 866. Where customs legislation provides for favourable tariff treatment of goods by reason of their nature or end-use or for relief or total or partial exemption from import or export duties pursuant to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 21, 82, 145 or 184-187 (as amended) (see PARAS 11, 201, 224, 270-275 ante), such favourable tariff treatment, relief or exemption also applies in cases where a customs debt is incurred pursuant to arts 202-205, 210 or 211, on condition that the behaviour of the person concerned involves neither fraudulent dealing nor obvious negligence and he produces evidence that the other conditions for the application of favourable treatment, relief or exemption have been satisfied: art 212a (added by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(16); and substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(14)).

As to end-use relief see PARAS 270-273 ante.

For the purposes of art 206, the customs authorities are, at the request of the person concerned, to take account of the quantities missing wherever it can be shown that the losses observed result solely from the nature of the goods and not from any negligence or manipulation on the part of that person: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 862(1). 'Negligence or manipulation' means, in particular, any failure to observe the rules for transporting, storing, handling, working or processing the goods in question imposed by the customs authorities or by normal practice: art 862(2). The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

279. Customs debt on goods unlawfully removed from customs supervision.

A customs debt¹ on importation is incurred through the unlawful removal from customs supervision² of goods liable to import duties³. The customs debt is incurred at the moment when the goods are removed from customs supervision⁴.

The presentation of a customs declaration for the goods in question, or any other act having the same legal effects, and the production of a document for indorsement by the competent authorities, is considered as removal of goods from customs supervision for this purpose, where these acts have the effect of wrongly conferring on them the customs status of Community goods⁵.

The debtors⁶ are:

- 685 (1) the person who removed the goods from customs supervision;
- 686 (2) any persons who participated in such removal and who were aware or should reasonably have been aware that the goods were being removed from customs supervision;
- 687 (3) any persons who acquired or held the goods in question and who were aware, or should reasonably have been aware, at the time of acquiring or receiving the goods that they had been removed from customs supervision; and
- 688 (4) where appropriate, the person required to fulfil the obligations arising from temporary storage of the goods or from the use of the customs procedure⁷ under which those goods are placed⁸.

1 For the meaning of 'customs debt' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

2 As to the requirement that goods be subject to customs supervision see EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 37(1) (cited in PARA 77 ante) and art 183 (cited in PARA 223 ante). For the meaning of 'supervision by the customs authorities' see PARA 77 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

3 Ibid art 203(1). For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante. If a customs debt is so incurred in respect of goods released for free circulation at a reduced rate of import duty on account of their end-use, the amount paid when the goods were released for free circulation is to be deducted from the amount of the customs debt: art 208, 1st para. This alleviation also applies mutatis mutandis where a customs debt is incurred in respect of scrap and waste resulting from the destruction of such goods: art 208, 2nd para. As to end-use relief see PARAS 270-273 ante.

Where customs legislation provides for favourable tariff treatment of goods by reason of their nature or end-use or for relief or total or partial exemption from import or export duties pursuant to arts 21, 82, 145 or 184-187 (as amended) (see PARAS 11, 201, 224, 270-275 ante), such favourable tariff treatment, relief or exemption also applies in cases where a customs debt is incurred pursuant to arts 202-205, 210 or 211, on condition that the behaviour of the person concerned involves neither fraudulent dealing nor obvious negligence and he produces evidence that the other conditions for the application of favourable treatment, relief or exemption have been satisfied: art 212a (added by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(16); and substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(14)).

As to the United Kingdom domestic rules relating to the recovery of the duty where the goods have enjoyed inward processing relief see the Inward Processing Relief Arrangements (Customs Duties and Agricultural Levies) Regulations 1986, SI 1986/2148, art 2; and PARA 281 note 24 post.

The reasons for extinction of the customs debt must be based on the fact that the goods have not been used for the economic purpose which justified the application of import duties. In the case of theft, it may be assumed that the goods pass into the Community commercial circuit. It follows that the loss of the goods does not embrace the concept of theft, regardless of the circumstances in which it has been committed. Accordingly, according to the existing Community customs provisions the removal by third parties of goods subject to customs duty, even through no fault of the taxable person, does not extinguish the obligation to pay duty on them: Joined Cases 186, 187/82 Ministero delle Finanze v Esercizio Magazzini Generali SpA [1983] ECR 2951, [1984] 3 CMLR 217, ECJ.

5 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 865, 1st para. However, in the case of airline companies authorised to use a simplified transit procedure with the use of an electronic manifest, the goods are not considered to have been removed from customs supervision if, at the initiative or on behalf of the person concerned, they are treated in accordance with their status as non-Community goods before the customs authorities find the existence of an irregular situation and if the behaviour of the person concerned does not suggest any fraudulent trading: art 865, 2nd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 1677/98 (OJ L212, 30.7.98, p 18) art 1(4)). For the meaning of 'Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante; and for the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

Without prejudice to the provisions laid down concerning prohibitions or restrictions which may be applicable to the goods in question, where a customs debt on importation is incurred pursuant (inter alia) to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 203 and the import duties have been paid, those goods are deemed to be Community goods without the need for a declaration for entry into free circulation: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 866.

6 For the meaning of 'debtor' see PARA 95 note 8 ante. Where several persons are liable for payment of one customs debt, they are jointly and severally liable for that debt: see EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 213; and PARA 278 ante.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(14) CUSTOMS DEBTS/280. Customs debt incurred through non-fulfilment of a condition or obligation.

280. Customs debt incurred through non-fulfilment of a condition or obligation.

A customs debt¹ on importation is incurred through:

- 689 (1) non-fulfilment of one of the obligations arising, in respect of goods liable to import duties², from their temporary storage³ or from the use of the customs procedure⁴ under which they are placed; or
- 690 (2) non-compliance with a condition governing the placing of the goods under that procedure or the granting of a reduced or zero rate of import duty by virtue of the end-use⁵ of the goods, in cases other than those where a debt is deemed to have been incurred on the unlawful removal of the goods from customs supervision⁶, unless it is established that those failures have no significant effect on the correct operation of the temporary storage or customs procedure in question⁷.

The customs debt is incurred either at the moment when the obligation whose non-fulfilment gives rise to the customs debt ceases to be met or, where it is subsequently established that a condition governing the placing of the goods under the procedure or the granting of a reduced or zero rate of import duty by virtue of the end-use of the goods was not in fact fulfilled, at the moment when the goods are placed under the customs procedure concerned⁸.

The debtor⁹ is the person who is required, according to the circumstances, either to fulfil the obligations arising, in respect of goods liable to import duties, from their temporary storage or from the use of the customs procedure under which they have been placed, or to comply with the conditions governing the placing of the goods under that procedure¹⁰.

By way of derogation from the general rule in head (1) above, no customs debt on importation is deemed to be incurred in respect of specific goods where the person concerned proves¹¹ that the non-fulfilment of the relevant obligations¹² results from the total destruction or irretrievable loss of the goods as a result of the actual nature of the goods¹³, or unforeseeable circumstances, or force majeure¹⁴, or as a consequence of authorisation by the customs authorities¹⁵; and for these purposes, goods are irretrievably lost when they are rendered unusable by any person¹⁶. Nor is a customs debt on importation to be deemed to have been incurred in respect of goods released for free circulation at a reduced or zero rate of import duty by virtue of their end-use, where those goods are exported or re-exported with the permission of the customs authorities¹⁷.

2 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

3 As to the temporary storage of goods see PARA 81 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante.

5 As to end-use relief see PARAS 270-273 ante. If a customs debt is so incurred in respect of goods released for free circulation at a reduced rate of import duty on account of their end-use, the amount paid when the goods were released for free circulation is to be deducted from the amount of the customs debt: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 208, 1st para. This alleviation also applies mutatis mutandis where a customs debt is incurred in respect of scrap and waste resulting from the destruction of such goods: art 208, 2nd para.

Where customs legislation provides for favourable tariff treatment of goods by reason of their nature or end-use or for relief or total or partial exemption from import or export duties pursuant to arts 21, 82, 145 or 184-187 (as amended) (see PARAS 11, 201, 224, 270-275 ante), such favourable tariff treatment, relief or exemption also applies in cases where a customs debt is incurred pursuant to arts 202-205, 210 or 211, on condition that the behaviour of the person concerned involves neither fraudulent dealing nor obvious negligence and he produces evidence that the other conditions for the application of favourable treatment, relief or exemption have been satisfied: art 212a (added by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(16); and substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(14)).

For the purposes of art 206, the customs authorities are, at the request of the person concerned, to take account of the quantities missing wherever it can be shown that the losses observed result solely from the nature of the goods and not from any negligence or manipulation on the part of that person: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 862. UPDATE

Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(14) CUSTOMS DEBTS/281. Failures which have no significant effect on the operation of temporary storage or of the customs procedure.

281. Failures which have no significant effect on the operation of temporary storage or of the customs procedure.

Provided that:

- 691 (1) they do not constitute an attempt to remove the goods unlawfully from customs supervision¹;
- 692 (2) they do not imply obvious negligence on the part of the person concerned; and
- 693 (3) all the formalities necessary to regularise the situation of the goods are subsequently carried out, the following failures are considered to have no significant effect on the correct operation of the temporary storage or customs procedure in question²:

- 694 (a) exceeding the time limit allowed for assignment of the goods to one of the customs-approved treatments or uses³ provided for under the temporary storage or customs procedure in question, where the time limit would have been extended had an extension been applied for in time;
- 695 (b) in the case of goods placed under a transit procedure⁴, failure to fulfil one of the obligations entailed by the use of that procedure, where the following conditions are fulfilled: (i) the goods entered for the procedure were actually presented intact at the office of destination; (ii) the office of destination has been able to ensure that the goods were assigned a customs-approved treatment or use or were placed in temporary storage at the end of the transit operation; and (iii) where the time limit within which the goods must be presented at the office of destination⁵ has not been complied with and the time limit is not deemed to have been complied with⁶, the goods have nevertheless been presented at the office of destination within a reasonable time;
- 696 (c) in the case of goods placed in temporary storage or under the customs warehousing procedure⁷, handling not authorised in advance by the customs authorities, provided that such handling would have been authorised if applied for;
- 697 (d) in the case of goods placed under the temporary importation procedure⁸, use of the goods otherwise than as provided for in the authorisation, provided that such use would have been authorised under that procedure if applied for;
- 698 (e) in the case of goods in temporary storage or placed under a customs procedure, unauthorised movement of the goods, provided that the goods can be presented to the customs authorities at their request;
- 699 (f) in the case of goods in temporary storage or entered for a customs procedure, removal of the goods from the customs territory of the Community⁹ or their introduction into a free zone of control type I¹⁰ or into a free warehouse¹¹ without completion of the necessary formalities;
- 700 (g) in the case of goods or products physically transferred¹², failure to fulfil one of the conditions under which the transfer takes place, where the following conditions are fulfilled: (i) the person concerned can demonstrate, to the satisfaction of the customs authorities, that the goods or products arrived at the specified premises or

- destination and, in specified cases of transfer¹³, that the goods or products have been duly entered in the records of the specified premises or destination, where the Community provisions require such entry in the records; and (ii) where a time limit set in the authorisation was not observed, the goods or products nevertheless arrived at the specified premises or destination within a reasonable time;
- 701 (h) in the case of goods eligible on release for free circulation¹⁴ for the total or partial relief from import duties¹⁵, the existence of one of the specified situations¹⁶ while the goods concerned are in temporary storage or under another customs procedure before being released for free circulation;
- 702 (i) in the framework of inward processing¹⁷ and processing under customs control¹⁸, exceeding the time limit allowed for submission of the bill of discharge, provided the limit would have been extended had an extension been applied for in time; and
- 703 (j) exceeding the time limit allowed for temporary removal from a customs warehouse, provided the limit would have been extended had an extension been applied for in time¹⁹.

The customs authorities are to consider a customs debt to have been incurred²⁰ unless the person who would be the debtor²¹ establishes that the conditions in heads (a) to (j) above are fulfilled²².

The fact that the failures referred to in heads (a) to (j) above do not give rise to a customs debt²³ does not preclude the application of provisions of the criminal law in force or of the provisions allowing cancellation and withdrawal of authorisations issued under the customs procedure in question²⁴.

282. Customs debt in respect of deficiency in free zone or free warehouse.

A customs debt¹ on importation is incurred through the consumption or use, in a free zone² or a free warehouse³, of goods liable to import duties⁴, under conditions other than those laid down by the legislation in force⁵. If goods disappear and their disappearance cannot be explained to the satisfaction of the customs authorities⁶, the authorities may regard the goods as having been consumed or used in the free zone or the free warehouse⁷.

The customs debt is incurred at the moment when the goods are consumed or are first used under conditions other than those laid down by the legislation in force⁸; and the debtor⁹ is:

- 704 (1) the person who consumed or used the goods; and
- 705 (2) any persons who participated in such consumption or use and who were aware, or should reasonably have been aware, that the goods were being consumed or used under conditions other than those laid down by the legislation in force¹⁰.

Where, however, the customs authorities regard goods which have disappeared as having been consumed or used in the free zone or the free warehouse and it is not possible to apply head (1) or head (2) above, the person liable for payment of the customs debt is taken to be the last person known to the authorities to have been in possession of the goods¹¹.

10 Ibid art 205(3), 1st para. Where customs legislation provides for favourable tariff treatment of goods by reason of their nature or end-use or for relief or total or partial exemption from import or export duties pursuant to arts 21, 82, 145 or 184-187 (as amended) (see PARAS 11, 201, 224, 270-275 ante), such favourable tariff treatment, relief or exemption also applies in cases where a customs debt is incurred pursuant to arts 202-205, 210 or 211, on condition that the behaviour of the person concerned involves neither fraudulent dealing nor obvious negligence and he produces evidence that the other conditions for the application of favourable treatment, relief or exemption have been satisfied: art 212a (added by European Parliament and EC Council

284. Customs debt on removal of goods from the Community without a customs declaration.

A customs debt¹ on exportation is incurred through the removal from the customs territory of the Community² of goods liable to export duties³ without a customs declaration⁴. The customs debt is incurred at the time when the goods actually leave that territory⁵. The debtor⁶ is:

- 706 (1) the person who removed the goods; and
- 707 (2) any persons who participated in such removal and who were aware, or should reasonably have been aware, that a customs declaration had not been but should have been lodged⁷.

286. Goods subject to an absolute prohibition.

A customs debt¹ is incurred even if it relates to goods subject to measures of prohibition or restriction on importation or exportation of any kind whatsoever². No customs debt may, however, be incurred on the unlawful introduction into the customs territory of the Community³ of counterfeit currency or of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances which do not enter into the economic circuit strictly supervised by the competent authorities with a view to their use for medical and scientific purposes⁴. For the purposes of criminal law as applicable to customs offences, a customs debt is nevertheless deemed to have been incurred where, under a member state's criminal law, customs duties provide the basis for determining penalties, or the existence of a customs debt is grounds for taking criminal proceedings⁵.

Moreover, the national authorities must proceed, with respect to infringements of Community law, with the same diligence as that which they bring to bear in implementing corresponding national laws; and that obligation also extends to the initiation of any proceedings under administrative, fiscal or civil law for the collection or recovery of duties or charges which have been fraudulently evaded or for damages: Case C-352/92 Milchwerke Köln/Wuppertal eG v Hauptzollamt Köln-Rheinau [1994] ECR I-3385, ECJ. 20-345 The Community Customs Code

4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(14) CUSTOMS DEBTS/287. Time at which customs debt is deemed to have been incurred for assessment purposes.

287. Time at which customs debt is deemed to have been incurred for assessment purposes.

Save as may otherwise be expressly provided by the Community Customs Code¹, as a general rule² the amount of the import duty³ or export duty⁴ applicable to goods is to be determined on the basis of the rules of assessment appropriate to those goods at the time when the customs debt⁵ in respect of them is incurred⁶. Where it is not possible to determine precisely when the customs debt is incurred, the time to be taken into account in determining the rules of assessment appropriate to the goods concerned is the time when the customs authorities⁷ conclude that the goods are in a situation in which a customs debt is incurred⁸. Where, however, the information available to the customs authorities enables them to establish that the customs debt was incurred prior to the time when they reached that conclusion, the amount of the import duty or export duty payable on the goods in question is to be determined on the basis of the rules of assessment appropriate to the goods at the earliest time when existence of the customs debt arising from the situation may be established from the information available⁹.

6 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 214(1). By way of exception to this rule, where warehoused import goods have undergone the usual forms of handling, within the meaning of art 109 (see PARA 156 note 2 ante), the nature of the goods, the customs value and the quantity to be taken into account in determining the amount of import duties is, at the request of the declarant, to be that which would be taken into account for the goods, at the time referred to in art 214, if they had not undergone such handling: art 112(2). Derogations from art 112(2) may, however, be adopted under the committee procedure: art 112(2). For the meaning of 'declarant' see PARA 11 note 6 ante; and for the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

Where art 112(2) applies, the customs value of the goods before carrying out usual forms of handling is to appear in the stock records referred to in art 105 (see PARA 154 ante): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 529(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 993/2001 (OJ L141, 28.5.2001, p 1) art 1(28)). Furthermore, where warehoused import goods are released for free circulation in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 76(1)(c) (see PARA 96 head (3) ante), the nature of the goods, the customs value and the quantity to be taken into account for the purposes of art 214 (as amended) are those applicable to the goods at the time when they were placed under the customs warehousing procedure: art 112(3) (substituted by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(11)). EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 112(3) (as substituted) applies provided that the rules of assessment relating to those goods were ascertained or accepted at the time when the goods were placed under the customs warehousing procedure, unless the declarant requests their application at the time when the customs debt is incurred; and it is without prejudice to a post-clearance examination (within the meaning of art 78: see PARA 103 ante): art 112(3) (as so substituted).

7 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

289. Liability for a customs debt on inward processing goods for tariff preference purposes.

In so far as agreements concluded between the Community and certain third countries provide for the granting, on importation into those countries, of preferential tariff treatment for goods originating in the Community within the meaning of such agreements, on condition that, where they have been obtained under the inward processing procedure¹, non-Community goods² incorporated in those originating goods will be subject to payment of the import duties payable thereon, the validation of the documents necessary to enable such preferential tariff treatment to be obtained in the third country causes a customs debt³ on importation to be incurred⁴. The moment when the customs debt is incurred is deemed to be the moment when the customs authorities⁵ accept the export declaration relating to the goods in question⁶. The debtor⁷ is the declarant⁸; but, in the event of indirect representation⁹, the person on whose behalf the declaration is made is also taken to be a debtor¹⁰.

The amount of the import duties¹¹ corresponding to this customs debt is to be determined under the same conditions as in the case of a customs debt resulting from the acceptance, on the same date, of the declaration for release for free circulation of the goods concerned for the purpose of terminating the inward processing procedure¹².

290. Place where customs debt incurred.

A customs debt¹ is incurred:

- 708 (1) at the place where the events from which it arises occur;
- 709 (2) if it is not possible to determine that place, at the place where the customs authorities² conclude that the goods are in a situation in which a customs debt is incurred;
- 710 (3) if the goods have been entered for a customs procedure³ which has not been discharged, and the place cannot be determined pursuant to head (1) or head (2) above within a period of time determined, if appropriate, in accordance with the committee procedure⁴, at the place where the goods were either placed under the procedure concerned or were introduced into the Community customs territory under that procedure⁵.

Where the information available to the customs authorities enables them to establish that the customs debt was already incurred when the goods were in another place at an earlier date, the customs debt is deemed to have been incurred at the place which may be established as the location of the goods at the earliest time when existence of the customs debt may be established⁶.

If a customs authority finds that a customs debt has been incurred in respect of goods unlawfully introduced into the customs territory of the Community⁷ in another member state and the amount of that debt is lower than 5,000 euros, the debt is deemed to have been incurred in the member state where the finding was made⁸.

(15) SECURITY TO COVER CUSTOMS DEBTS

291. Provision of security for a customs debt.

Where, in accordance with customs rules, the customs authorities¹ require security to be provided in order to ensure payment of a customs debt², such security must be provided by the person who is liable or who may become liable for that debt³. The customs authorities may only require one security to be provided in respect of one customs debt⁴. Where security is provided under a customs procedure⁵ which may be used for specific goods in several member states, that security is, as laid down in the provisions adopted under the committee procedure, to be accepted as valid in the member states concerned⁶.

The customs authorities may waive the requirement for provision of security where the amount to be secured does not exceed 500 euros⁷.

The customs authorities must, at the request of the person who is to provide security⁸, allow comprehensive security to be provided to cover two or more operations in respect of which a customs debt has been or may be incurred⁹.

292. Provision of security at the option of the customs authorities.

Where such security is not so required, the customs authorities may nevertheless require from the person who is liable or may be liable for the payment of a customs debt⁴ an undertaking to comply with the obligations which that person is legally obliged to fulfil⁵.

Where security may be required at the discretion of the customs authorities, it is to be required at the time of application of the rules requiring such security to be provided or at any subsequent time when the customs authorities find that the customs debt which has been or may be incurred is not certain to be paid within the prescribed period⁶.

The person required to provide security is free to choose between the types of security so required²; but the customs authorities³ may refuse to approve the guarantor or type of security proposed where the latter do not appear certain to ensure payment of the customs debt within the prescribed period⁴. They may also refuse to accept the type of security proposed, or the security itself, where it is incompatible with the proper functioning of the customs procedure⁵ concerned; and the customs authorities may further require that the type of security chosen be maintained for a specific period⁶.

A cash deposit must be made in the currency of the member state in which the security is required⁷. The following are deemed equivalent to a cash deposit:

- 713 (1) submission of a cheque the payment of which is guaranteed by the institution on which it is drawn in any manner acceptable to the customs authorities; and
- 714 (2) submission of any other instrument recognised by those authorities as a means of payment⁸.

Security in the form of a cash deposit or payment deemed equivalent to a cash deposit must be given in accordance with the provisions in force⁹ in the member state in which the security is required¹⁰. Where security is given by making a cash deposit, no interest thereon is payable by the customs authorities¹¹.

The guarantor must be a third person established in the Community¹² and approved by the customs authorities of the member state¹³; and he must undertake in writing to pay jointly and severally with the debtor¹⁴ the secured amount of a customs debt which falls to be paid¹⁵.

Where the rules adopted in accordance with the committee procedure so provide, the customs authorities may accept types of security other than those referred to above¹⁶ where they provide equivalent assurance that the customs debt will be paid¹⁷; but the customs authorities must refuse the security proposed by the debtor where they do not consider that such security is certain to ensure payment of the customs debt¹⁸.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/ (15) SECURITY TO COVER CUSTOMS DEBTS/295. Release of security to cover customs debt.

295. Release of security to cover customs debt.

The security provided in order to ensure payment of a customs debt¹ may not be released until such time as the customs debt in respect of which it was given is extinguished or can no longer arise, but once the customs debt is extinguished or can no longer arise, the security must be released forthwith².

Once the customs debt has been extinguished in part or may arise only in respect of part of the amount which has been secured, part of the security must be released accordingly at the request of the person concerned, unless the amount involved does not justify such action³.

(16) RECOVERY OF THE AMOUNT OF THE CUSTOMS DEBT

(i) Entry in the Accounts

296. Entry in the accounts.

Each and every amount of import duty¹ or export duty² resulting from a customs debt³ ('amount of duty') must be calculated by the customs authorities⁴ as soon as they have the necessary particulars, and entered by those authorities in the accounting records or on any other equivalent medium ('entry in the accounts')⁵. The above provisions do not apply in the following cases:

- 715 (1) where a provisional anti-dumping⁶ or countervailing⁷ duty has been introduced⁸;
- 716 (2) where the amount of duty legally due exceeds that determined on the basis of binding information⁹; or
- 717 (3) where the provisions adopted in accordance with the committee procedure¹⁰ waive the requirement for the customs authorities to enter in the accounts amounts of duty below a given level¹¹.

Member states must determine the practical procedures for the entry in the accounts of the amounts of duty; those procedures may differ according to whether or not, in view of the circumstances in which the customs debt was incurred, the customs authorities are satisfied that the relevant amounts will be paid¹².

297. Time limit for entry in the accounts.

Where a customs debt¹ is incurred as a result of the acceptance of the declaration of goods for a customs procedure², other than temporary importation with partial relief from import duties³, or any other act having the same legal effect as such acceptance⁴, the amount corresponding to the customs debt must be entered in the accounts⁵ as soon as it has been calculated and, at the latest, on the second day following that on which the goods were released⁶. However, provided that payment has been secured, the total amount of duty relating to all the goods released to one and the same person during a period fixed by the customs authorities⁷, which may not exceed 31 days, may be covered by a single entry in the accounts at the end of the period; and the entry in the accounts must take place within five days of the expiry of the period in question⁸.

In cases where it is provided that goods may be released subject to meeting certain conditions laid down by Community legislation which govern either the determination of the amount of the debt or its collection⁹, entry in the accounts must take place no later than two days following the day on which the amount of the debt or the obligation to pay the duties resulting from that debt is determined or fixed¹⁰. If, however, the customs debt relates to a provisional anti-dumping¹¹ or countervailing¹² duty, that duty must be entered in the accounts no later than two months following publication in the Official Journal of the European Communities of the Regulation establishing a definitive anti-dumping or countervailing duty¹³.

Where a customs debt is incurred under conditions other than as a result of the acceptance of the declaration of goods for a customs procedure¹⁴, the relevant amount of duty must be entered in the accounts within two days of the date on which the customs authorities are in a position both to calculate the amount of duty in question and to determine the debtor¹⁵.

The time limits for entry in the accounts laid down under the above provisions¹⁶ may be extended for reasons relating to the administrative organisation of the member states, and in particular where accounts are centralised, or where special circumstances prevent the customs authorities from complying with those time limits¹⁷. Such extended time limit may not, however, exceed 14 days¹⁸. Such time limits¹⁹ are not to apply in unforeseeable circumstances or in cases of force majeure²⁰.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(16) RECOVERY OF THE AMOUNT OF THE CUSTOMS DEBT/(ii) Post-clearance Recovery; Subsequent Entry in the Accounts/A. IN GENERAL/298. In general.

(ii) Post-clearance Recovery; Subsequent Entry in the Accounts

A. IN GENERAL

298. In general.

Where the amount of duty resulting from a customs debt¹ has not been entered in the accounts in accordance with the general rules², or has been entered in the accounts at a level lower than the amount legally owed, the amount of duty to be recovered, or which remains to be recovered, must³ be entered in the accounts within two days of the date on which the customs authorities⁴ become aware of the situation and are in a position to calculate the amount legally owed and to determine the debtor ('subsequent entry in the accounts')⁵.

1 For the meaning of 'customs debt' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

2 In accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') arts 218, 219: see PARA 297 ante.

3 The arrangements for the fixing and the conditions of collection of the financial charges which the Community is empowered to levy and which specifically constitute its own resources, such as customs duties and agricultural levies, must be considered within the framework of the general arrangements on the financial provisions of the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') which, like the corresponding arrangements of the member states, are governed by the general principle of equality which requires that comparable situations may not be treated differently unless difference of treatment is objectively justified. It follows that the system of revenues which are contributed to the Community budget must be so arranged as to constitute a uniform burden on all persons who meet the conditions specified in the Community provisions on such burdens. That requirement implies that there must be equality of treatment in respect of the procedural and substantive conditions on which traders may challenge Community charges imposed upon them by demanding a refund where payment was wrongly made. It implies an analogous equality in the conditions subject to which the authorities of the member states, acting on behalf of the Community, may collect such charges and, if necessary, recover financial benefits which were wrongly granted. The Council has adopted this approach by enacting regulations on the post-clearance recovery of import duties or export duties which have not been required of the person liable for payment on goods entered for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay such duties: Joined Cases 66, 127, 128/79 Amministrazione delle Finanze v Srl Meridionale Industria Salumi [1980] ECR 1237, [1981] 1 CMLR 1, ECJ; Case 265/78 H Ferwerda BV v Produktschap voor Vee en Vlees [1980] ECR 617, [1980] 3 CMLR 737, ECJ. Where the competent authorities find that import or export duties have not been charged, they are obliged to take action to recover them: Joined Cases 212-217/80 Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato v Srl Meridionale Industria Salumi [1981] ECR 2735, ECJ; Case C-64/89 Hauptzollamt Giessen v Deutsche Fernsprecher GmbH, Marburg [1990] ECR I-2535, ECJ; Case C-348/89 Mecanarte-Metalúrgica da Lagoa Lda v Chefe do Serviço da Conferência Final da Alfândega do Porto [1991] ECR I-3277, ECJ.

Where, in the absence of Community rules, the conditions and detailed rules for recovery by the national authorities of Community debts are determined by national law and that law does not contain a principle of protection of legitimate expectations, Community law does not preclude the application of national law in that form, provided, however, that comparable purely national debts are not treated differently. Thus the principle of the protection of legitimate expectations enshrined in Community law, independently of the specific provisions of EC Council Regulation 1697/79 (OJ L197, 3.8.79, p 1) (now re-enacted in significantly amended form in (inter alia) EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220), does not require the national authorities to refrain from post-clearance recovery, pursuant to national law, of an additional agricultural levy which those authorities, following an established and unchallenged practice which was subsequently held unlawful by the court, had not originally charged, where, owing to that practice, traders had believed in good faith that they had to pay only the amount of the levy originally charged: Case 210/87 Padovani v Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato [1988] ECR 6177, ECJ; and see Case 265/78 H Ferwerda BV v Produktschap voor Vee en Vlees [1980] ECR 617, [1980] 3 CMLR 737, ECJ; Joined Cases 205-215/82 Deutsche Milchkontor GmbH v Germany [1983] ECR

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(1). As to circumstances in which subsequent entry is not to occur see PARAS 299-301 post.

It should be noted that the most important provisions of EC Council Regulation 1697/79 (OJ L197, 3.8.79, p 1) art 5(1) were dropped in the course of consolidation. Article 5(1) had provided that no action could be taken by the competent authorities for recovery where the amount of import duties or export duties that were subsequently found to be lower than the amount legally due were calculated: (1) on the basis of information given by the competent authorities themselves which was binding on them; or (2) on the basis of provisions of a general nature subsequently invalidated by a court decision. Head (2) supra remains as EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(2)(a) (see PARA 299 post), but head (1) supra has been lost; and relief afforded to the trader has now been limited to the protection afforded by art 12 (as substituted) (see PARA 330 post). The time limit may be extended in accordance with art 219: see PARA 297 ante.

'The customs authorities of a member state may, on the basis of the conclusions of a Community mission of inquiry, proceed with the post-clearance recovery of customs duties on goods imported from abroad even if, in reliance on EUR.1 certificates issued in good faith by the competent authorities of the exporting country, they did not levy customs duties at the time of importation; and even if the competent authorities of that country dispute the conclusions of the mission of inquiry, in so far as they relate to the interpretation of the relevant Community customs legislation, and maintain that the certificates are in force. The requirements arising from the right to property and the principle of proportionality do not prevent the competent authorities from taking action for the post-clearance recovery of import duties where the conditions for applying EC Council Regulation 1697/79 art 5(2) (repealed: see now EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(2)(b); and PARA 300 post) 'which provides for the possibility of waiver by the authorities' (which now precludes subsequent entry in the accounts) 'are not fulfilled even though the duties are no longer recoverable from the purchaser of the imported products and the amount in question is a large one. It is the responsibility of professional traders to make the necessary arrangements in their contractual relations to guard against the risks of such recovery, and even the fact that large amounts may be claimed in that respect comes within the category of professional risks which such traders undertake': Joined Cases C-153, 204/94 R v Customs and Excise Comrs, ex p Faroe Seafood Co Ltd [1996] ECR I-2465, [1996] All ER (EC) 606, [1996] 2 CMLR 821, ECJ.

The fact of requiring, in certain circumstances, an importer who has acted in good faith to pay customs duties payable on the importation of goods in respect of which the exporter has committed a customs offence, where the importer has played no part in that offence, is not contrary to the general principles of law, in particular the principles of proportionality and legal certainty, which the court must uphold. It is the responsibility of professional traders to make the necessary arrangements in their contractual relations in order to guard against the risks of an action for post-clearance recovery. Furthermore, the fact that the authorities of the state of exportation issued an EUR.1 movement certificate pursuant to a bilateral agreement with the Community without having carried out any prior check to determine the true origin of the goods in question does not constitute a case of force majeure preventing post-clearance recovery of customs duties owed by an importer who has acted in good faith. The authorities of the state of exportation are entitled but not obliged to carry out such a prior check. In those circumstances, a situation in which a customs debt subsequently proves to be due, even though those authorities had decided, in a specific case, not to exercise that option, is neither abnormal nor unforeseeable: Case C-97/95 Pascoal & Filhos Ld v Fazenda Pública [1997] ECR I-4209, ECJ. As to the jurisprudence of the European Court of Justice on force majeure see PARA 78 note 5 ante.

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(16) RECOVERY OF THE AMOUNT OF THE CUSTOMS DEBT/(ii) Post-clearance Recovery; Subsequent Entry in the Accounts/B. EXCEPTIONS/300. Undetectable error on the part of the customs authorities.

300. Undetectable error on the part of the customs authorities.

Except in the cases where the amount of duty legally due exceeds that determined on the basis of binding information¹, or where the provisions adopted in accordance with the committee procedure² waive the requirement for the customs authorities³ to enter in the accounts amounts of duty below a given level, subsequent entry in the accounts⁴ is not to occur where the amount of duty legally owed was not entered in the accounts as a result of an error on the part of the customs authorities⁵ which could not reasonably have been detected by the person liable for payment⁶, the latter for his part having acted in good faith and complied with all the provisions laid down by the legislation in force as regards the customs declaration⁷.

Where the preferential status of the goods is established on the basis of a system of administrative co-operation involving the authorities of a third country, the issue of a certificate by those authorities, should it prove to be incorrect, constitutes an error which could not reasonably have been detected for these purposes⁸. The issue of an incorrect certificate does not, however, constitute an error where the certificate is based on an incorrect account of the facts provided by the exporter, except where, in particular, it is evident that the issuing authorities were aware or should have been aware that the goods did not satisfy the conditions laid down for entitlement to the preferential treatment⁹. The person liable may plead good faith when he can demonstrate that, during the period of the trading operations concerned, he has taken due care to ensure that all the conditions for the preferential treatment have been fulfilled¹⁰. The person liable may not, however, plead good faith if the Commission has published a notice in the Official Journal of the European Communities, stating that there are grounds for doubt concerning the proper application of the preferential arrangements by the beneficiary country¹¹.

2 Ie under art 217(1), 1st para (c): see PARA 296 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'subsequent entry in the accounts' see PARA 298 ante.

5 Incorrect tariff information given to a trader other than the person liable for payment by the customs authorities of a member state other than that of the authority competent to effect post-clearance recovery does not, in the absence of a Community regulation ensuring that such information has the same legal significance in all the member states, constitute error made by the competent authorities themselves. Such an error is, however, made by the authorities competent to effect recovery, within the meaning of that provision, where, despite the number and size of the imports made by the person liable, those authorities raised no objection concerning the tariff classification of the goods in question, even though a comparison between the tariff heading declared and the explicit description of the goods in accordance with the indications of the nomenclature would have disclosed the incorrect tariff classification: Case C-250/91 Hewlett Packard France v Directeur Général des Douanes [1993] ECR I-1819, ECJ.

The fact that the competent authorities of the exporting state certified in the EUR.1 certificates that the goods originated there or the fact that the competent authorities of the importing member state initially accepted that the origin of the goods was as declared in those certificates does not constitute an 'error made by the competent authorities'. Even though the authorities of the exporting state are 'competent authorities' within the meaning of the Community rules, they cannot be held responsible in such circumstances for an error within the meaning of that provision. It is otherwise, however, where the exporter has declared that the goods are of that state's origin in reliance on the actual knowledge by those competent authorities of all the facts necessary for applying the customs rules in question, and where, notwithstanding such knowledge, those authorities have raised no objection concerning the statements made in the exporter's declarations, thereby basing their certification of the origin of the goods on a misinterpretation of the rules on origin: Joined Cases C-153, 204/94 R v Customs and Excise Comrs, ex p Faroe Seafood Co Ltd [1996] ECR I-2465, [1996] All ER (EC) 606, [1996] 2 CMLR 821, ECJ. A designated certifying authority is not required to check the information which it receives for the issue of a certificate of origin: Customs and Excise Comrs v E Reece Ltd [2000] All ER (D) 1092 (Jul).

6 In order to determine whether the error which may have been made by the relevant authorities of the exporting state could not reasonably have been detected by the persons liable, various different tests have been proposed by the European Court of Justice. Account must be taken, in particular, of the nature of the error, the professional experience of the traders concerned and the degree of care which they exercised. It is for the national court to establish whether, on the basis of that interpretation, the criteria for determining the extent to which a possible error by those competent authorities was capable of being detected by the persons liable are satisfied in the particular circumstances of the case. The provision (ie EC Council Regulation 1697/79 (OJ L197, 3.8.79, p 1) (repealed: see now EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(2)(b)) applies to a situation in which the person liable has complied with all the requirements laid down by the Community rules, and by any national rules supplementing or transposing them, so far as his customs declaration is concerned, even if he has, in good faith, supplied the competent authorities with inaccurate or incomplete information, where that was the only information which he might reasonably be expected to possess or obtain: Joined Cases C-153, 204/94 R v Customs and Excise Comrs, ex p Faroe Seafood Co Ltd [1996] ECR I-2465, [1996] All ER (EC) 606, [1996] 2 CMLR 821, ECJ. Compare Sidney Barlow Ltd (t/a Private Property Clothing Co) v Customs and Excise Comrs (1997) Customs Decision 64 (unreported) (where relief was given in a case where the importer was at arm's length to the exporter and the customs authorities of the exporting state had knowingly issued EUR.1 certificates in respect of goods which did not qualify for preference) with Man About Town (MenWear) Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1997) Customs Decision 65 (unreported) (where relief was denied in a case involving identical facts, save that the importer and exporter were fellow subsidiaries of a common parent company; 'prima facie, a subsidiary company should reasonably be expected to have detected an error made by its co-subsidiary when applying for an EUR.1 certificate in relation to goods exported to it').

The relevant factors to be taken into consideration in assessing the nature of the error include the possibility that the terminology used may have caused confusion, the fact that a change of rule was not apparent and the time taken by the competent authorities themselves to realise that such a change had been made: Case C-38/95 Ministero delle Finanze v Foods Import Srl [1996] ECR I-6543, [1997] 1 CMLR 1067, ECJ. The relevant factors to be taken into account include the complexity of the legislation, the terms in which the objective of the provisions at issue is expressed, recurrence of the error in question in other measures of the member state concerned and any divergence of views between the member states as to the proper interpretation of the relevant provisions: Joined Cases C-47-50, 60, 81, 92, 148/95 Olasagasti & Co Srl v Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato [1996] ECR I-6579, ECJ. The errors referred to comprise all errors of interpretation or application of the provisions on import duties and export duties which could not reasonably have been detected by the person liable, in so far as they are the consequence of acts of either the authorities responsible for post-clearance recovery or the authorities of the exporting state, which excludes errors caused by incorrect declarations by the person liable, except in cases where their incorrectness is merely the consequence of incorrect information given by the competent authorities which is binding upon them: Case C-348/89 Mecanarte-Metalúrgica da Lagoa Lda v Chefe do Serviço da Conferência Final da Alfândega, Oporto [1991] ECR I-3277, ECJ.

A trader is not entitled to the waiver of the post-clearance recovery of import duties if the error made by the customs authorities from which he benefited was due to the fact that those authorities, instead of applying the Community provisions relating to the customs tariff published in the Official Journal of the European Communities, referred to a national tariff manual which wrongly incorporated an anticipated reduction in duty proposed by the Commission but rejected by the Council, since it was an error which the trader could reasonably have detected within the meaning of that regulation: Case 161/88 Friedrich Binder GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Bad Reichenhall [1989] ECR 2415, ECJ; Case C-80/89 Erwin Behn Verpackungsbedarf GmbH v Hauptzollamt Itzehoe [1990] ECR I-2659, ECJ; Nacco Material Handling (NI) Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1997) Customs Decision 50 (unreported). It is for the national court to decide whether that condition has been satisfied, having regard to the nature of the error, the professional experience of the trader concerned and the degree of care which he exercised: Case C-371/90 Beirafrio-Indústria de Produtos Alimentares Lda v Alfândega do Porto (Chefe do Serviço da Conferência final) [1992] ECR I-2715, ECJ.

A trader does not exercise sufficient care if, by paying the exporter's invoice before receiving the assessment notice, which contained an error, he takes a financial risk which was not unavoidable by virtue of his contractual obligations and so cannot claim to have entertained a legitimate expectation, subsequently frustrated, as to the absence of any customs debt; and if the error could have been detected by an attentive trader by reading the Official Journal of the European Communities in which the relevant provisions had been published several days before the import transactions in question took place. In that regard, the duty to consult the Official Journal does not apply only to commercial traders whose activities essentially consist of import-export operations but also to those who have gained some experience of importing the goods in question: Case T-75/95 Günzler Aluminium GmbH v EC Commission [1996] ECR II-497, CFI; Customs and Excise Comrs v Invicta Poultry Ltd

[1988] 3 CMLR 70, CA. See also Case C-292/91 Gebr Weis GmbH v Hauptzollamt Würzburg [1993] ECR I-2219, ECJ. In a case where the trader had, in the course of several operations and over a long period of time, been issued with nine certificates each constituting confirmation that the view which subsequently proved to be erroneous was correct, and on which the contested payments were based, the repetition of the error by the customs authority was evidence both of the complex nature of the problem to be resolved and of lack of negligence on the trader's part. Furthermore, the fact that the imports occurred after the withdrawal of the certificates, but by virtue of contractual obligations entered into in good faith prior to the withdrawal, did not affect the consequences flowing from the assessment of the nature of the error: Case C-187/91 Belgium v Société Co-opérative Belovo [1992] ECR I-4937, ECJ.

For a case where a person importing goods for the first time was able to rely on EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(2)(b), where he had been given incorrect tariff information by the Commissioners, see Direct Bargain Supplies Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 24 (unreported).

7 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(2)(b), 1st para (art 220(2)(b) substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(16)). EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(2)(b) applies to circumstances in which the person liable has fulfilled all the requirements laid down by both the Community rules on customs declarations and any national rules which supplement or implement them, even if he supplied, in good faith, incorrect or incomplete information to the competent national authorities, provided that that information is the only information which he could reasonably have knowledge of or obtain: Case C-348/89 Mecanarte-Metalúrgica da Lagoa Lda v Chefe do Serviço da Conferência Final da Alfândega, Oporto [1991] ECR I-3277, ECJ; Case C-250/91 Hewlett Packard France v Directeur Général des Douanes [1993] ECR I-1819, ECJ (even an experienced trader may regard his customs declarations as correct where he relied, for the purposes of the tariff classification of the goods in question, on tariff information provided by the customs authorities of a member state other than that of the authority competent to effect post-clearance recovery to a company belonging to the same group as the person liable and where the tariff classification indicated in the customs declaration was not challenged for a relatively long period by the competent authorities; that the requirement of diligence on the part of the trader concerned must be regarded as satisfied where the trader had no doubt, in view of the existence of tariff information supplied to a company belonging to the same group as the person liable, as to the correctness of the tariff classification of the goods in question). The person making the declaration must supply the customs authorities with all the information required in relation to the customs treatment requested for the goods in question. Particularly where exemption from import duties depends on the tariff classification of the goods, as eg in the application of the generalised system of preferences to certain products, that obligation includes the determination of the correct subheading of the Common Customs Tariff. If, on the sole basis of their description or appearance, goods cannot be classified with sufficient accuracy under a particular subheading of the Common Customs Tariff, the person making the declaration must give all other relevant information, relating in particular to the characteristics and intended use of the goods, in order to enable them to be classified correctly: Case 378/87 Top Hit Holzvertrieb GmbH v EC Commission [1989] ECR 1359, [1991] 1 CMLR 261, ECJ; Case C-64/89 Hauptzollamt Giessen v Deutsche Fernsprecher GmbH, Marburg [1990] ECR I-2535, ECJ; Case C-371/90 Beirafrio-Indústria de Produtos Alimentares Lda v Alfândega do Porto (Chefe do Serviço da Conferência final) [1992] ECR I-2715, ECJ. Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

CUSTOMS DUTIES/(16) RECOVERY OF THE AMOUNT OF THE CUSTOMS DEBT/(ii) Post-clearance Recovery; Subsequent Entry in the Accounts/B. EXCEPTIONS/301. Amounts less than a certain figure.

301. Amounts less than a certain figure.

Except in the cases where the amount of duty legally due exceeds that determined on the basis of binding information¹, or where the provisions adopted in accordance with the committee procedure² waive the requirement for the customs authorities³ to enter in the accounts amounts of duty below a given level, subsequent entry in the accounts⁴ is not to occur where the provisions adopted in accordance with the committee procedure exempt the customs authority from the subsequent entry in the accounts of amounts of duty less than a certain figure⁵.

Under EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 868 (see PARA 296 ante), there is to be no post-clearance recovery of duty where the amount per recovery action is less than 10 euros. This appears to reverse the ruling in Case 214/84 Stinnes AG v Hauptzollamt Kassel [1985] ECR 4045, [1987] 2 CMLR 379, ECJ, that the 'certain figure' (then the 'given amount') was to be interpreted as referring to each individual import or export transaction, and not to the sum sought to be recovered by the recovery action itself.

302. Entitlement to preferential tariff treatment ended but not published.

The customs authorities¹ must themselves decide not to enter uncollected duties in the accounts in cases in which preferential tariff treatment has been applied in the context of a tariff quota, a tariff ceiling or other arrangements when entitlement to this treatment had been ended at the time of acceptance of the customs declaration without that fact having been published in the Official Journal of the European Communities before the release for free circulation² of the goods in question or, where such fact is not published, having been made known in an appropriate manner in the member state concerned, the person liable for payment for his part having acted in good faith and complied with all the provisions laid down by the legislation in force as regards the customs declaration³.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(16) RECOVERY OF THE AMOUNT OF THE CUSTOMS DEBT/(iii) Exceptions to the Obligation to make Entries in the Accounts/304. Other cases.

304. Other cases.

In other cases¹, where it considers that there has been error on the part of the customs authorities² that was not readily detectable³, and: (1) it considers that the Commission has committed an error⁴; (2) the circumstances of the case are related to the findings of a Community investigation⁵; or (3) the amount not collected from the operator concerned in respect of one or more import or export operations but in consequence of a single error is 500,000 euros or more, the customs authority must transmit the case to the Commission to be settled under the prescribed⁶ procedure⁷. However, the cases referred to above must not be transmitted where the Commission has already adopted a decision under the prescribed procedure on a case involving comparable issues of fact and of law, or the Commission is already considering a case involving comparable issues of fact and of law⁸.

The dossier submitted to the Commission must contain all the information required for full consideration⁹. It must include detailed information on the behaviour of the operator concerned, and in particular on his professional experience, good faith and diligence, and this assessment must be accompanied by all information that may demonstrate that the operator acted in good faith¹⁰. The dossier must also include a statement, signed by the applicant for repayment or remission, certifying that he has read the dossier and either stating that he has nothing to add or listing all the additional information that he considers should be included¹¹. As soon as it receives the dossier the Commission must inform the member state concerned accordingly¹². If it is found that the information supplied by the member state is not sufficient to enable a decision to be taken on the case concerned in full knowledge of the facts, the Commission may request that additional information be supplied¹³.

Where (a) the dossier shows that there is a disagreement between the customs authority that has transmitted the dossier and the person who signed the statement referred to above as regards the account of the facts; (b) the dossier is obviously incomplete since it contains nothing that would justify its consideration by the Commission; (c) the dossier should not be transmitted¹⁴; (d) the existence of a customs debt has not been established; or (e) new information relating to the dossier and of a nature to alter substantially its presentation of the facts or legal assessment has been transmitted by the customs authority to the Commission while it is considering the dossier, the Commission must return the dossier to the customs authority and the prescribed procedure is deemed never to have been initiated¹⁵.

The Commission must send to the member states a copy of the dossier within 15 days of the date on which it received it¹⁶. Consideration of the case in question must then be included as soon as possible on the agenda of a meeting of the group of experts mentioned below¹⁷. After consulting a group of experts composed of representatives of all member states, meeting within the framework of the committee¹⁸ to consider the case in question, the Commission must decide whether the circumstances under consideration are such that the duties in question need not be entered in the accounts¹⁹. Such decision must be taken within nine months of the date on which the dossier is received by the Commission²⁰. The member state concerned must be notified of the decision as soon as possible and in any event within one month of the expiry of the period specified²¹ for the making of the decision²². The Commission must notify the member states of the decisions it has adopted in order to help customs authorities to reach decisions in situations involving comparable issues of fact and law²³. Where it is established by the decision that the circumstances under consideration are such that the duties in question need not be entered in the accounts, the Commission may specify the conditions under which the member states may refrain from post-clearance entry in the account in cases involving comparable issues of fact and of law²⁴.

3 Ie that the conditions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 220(2)(b) (as substituted) are fulfilled: see PARA 300 ante.

6 Ie the procedure laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 872-876 (as amended). In such cases, it is not open to the national court to usurp the power of the Commission, or to declare the acts of the Commission invalid; such an approach is open only to the European Court of Justice: Case 314/85 Foto-Frost v Hauptzollamt Lübeck-Ost [1987] ECR 4199, ECJ.

7 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 871(1) (art 871 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1335/2003 (OJ L187, 26.7.2003, p 16) art 1(2)). When the amount of duties not collected is equal to or greater than 50,000 euros, the national authorities are not required to request the Commission to take a decision on the possibility of not proceeding to effect post-clearance recovery of customs duties if they consider that the conditions laid down in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(2)(b) (as substituted) are not fulfilled: see Case C-64/89 Hauptzollamt Gissen v Deutsche Fernsprecher GmbH, Marburg [1990] ECR I-2535, ECJ. When the person liable submits a request that action for post-clearance recovery of import duties or export duties should not be taken, it is for the national authorities to take a decision on that request and it is not incumbent upon them to refer the case for consideration by the Commission unless they intend not to recover an amount of duties equal to or greater than 50,000 euros: Case C-348/89 Mecanarte-Metalurgica da Lagoa Lda v Chefe do Serviço da Conferência Final da Alfândega do Porto [1991] ECR I-3277, ECJ.

EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 871 and art 873 (as substituted) (see the text and notes 18-20 infra) confer on the Commission a decision-making power, in particular, where the competent authorities consider that the criteria for waiving post-clearance recovery of customs duties are fulfilled. That power is designed to ensure the uniform application of Community law; and the machinery for referring cases to the Commission would be rendered pointless if the Commission were required to adhere to the views expressed by the customs authorities in the request. Nonetheless, the power in no way permits the Commission to disregard the right of the person liable to waiver of the post-clearance recovery of customs duties where, having completed its examination of the matter, it concludes that the criteria entitling the undertaking to the benefit of that waiver of recovery are fulfilled: Joined Cases T-10, 11/97 Unifrigo Gadus Srl and CPL Imperial 2 SpA v EC Commission [1998] 34 LS Gaz R 35, CFI.

18 As to the Customs Code Committee see PARA 344 post.

19 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 873, 1st para (art 873 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1335/2003 (OJ L187, 26.7.2003, p 16) art 1(3)). Where, at any time in the procedure provided for in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 872, 873 (as substituted), the Commission intends to take a decision unfavourable towards the person concerned by the case presented, it must communicate its objections to him in writing, together with all the documents on which it bases those objections: art 872a (added by EC Commission Regulation 1677/98 (OJ L212, 30.7.98, p 18) art 1(6)). The person concerned by the case submitted to the Commission must express his point of view in writing within a period of one month from the date on which the objections were sent: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 872a (as so added). If he does not give a point of view within that period, he is deemed to have waived the right to express a position: art 872a (as so added).

20 Ibid art 873, 2nd para (as substituted: see note 19 supra). However, where the declaration or detailed assessment of the operator's behaviour is not included in the dossier, the nine months must be counted only from the date of receipt of those documents by the Commission, and the Commission must notify the customs authority and the person concerned accordingly: art 873, 2nd para (as so substituted). Where the Commission has found it necessary to ask for additional information from the member state in order to reach its decision, the nine months must be extended by a period equivalent to that between the date the Commission sent the request for additional information and the date it received the information, and the Commission must notify the person concerned of the extension of the procedure: art 873, 3rd para (as so substituted). Where the Commission conducts investigations itself in order to reach a decision, the nine months must be extended by the time necessary to complete the investigation; such an extension may not exceed nine months: art 873, 4th para (as so substituted). The Commission must notify the customs authority and the person concerned of the dates on which investigations are opened and closed: art 873, 4th para (as so substituted). Where the Commission has notified the person concerned of its objections in accordance with art 872a (as added) (see note 19 supra), the period of nine months must be extended by one month: art 873, 5th para (as so substituted).

24 Ibid art 875 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1335/2003 (OJ L187, 26.7.2003, p 16) art 1(3)). If the Commission fails to take a decision within the period permitted by EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 873 (as substituted) (see the text and notes 18-20 supra), or fails to notify a decision to the member state concerned within the period referred to in art 874 (as substituted) (see the text and notes 22-23 supra), the customs authorities of that member state must not enter the duties in question in the accounts: art 876.

Under the Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') art 230 (as renumbered) any natural or legal person may institute proceedings against a decision addressed to that person or against a decision which, although addressed to another, is of direct and individual concern to it, on grounds of lack of competence, infringement of any essential requirement, infringement of the EC Treaty itself, or of any rule of law relating to its application or misuse of powers. Such proceedings must be instituted within two months of the publication of the measure, or of its notification to the claimant, or, in the absence of these, of the day on which it came to the knowledge of the claimant, as the case may be. In Case 378/87 Top Hit Holzvertrieb GmbH v EC Commission [1989] ECR 1359, ECJ, the court held that it is only from the moment when a trader receives clear and unequivocal notice, so that he can exercise his right of action, of the contents of an institution's decision, addressed to a member state, refusing to allow a provision of the Community rules to be applied to him, that time for bringing an action for annulment under the EC Treaty art 230 (as renumbered) begins to run.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. (iv) Notification and Payment of Duty

305. Communication of amount of duty to the debtor.

As soon as it has been entered in the accounts¹, the amount of duty must be communicated to the debtor² in accordance with appropriate procedures³. Where the amount of duty payable has been entered, for guidance, in the customs declaration⁴, the customs authorities⁵ may specify that it is not to be so communicated to the debtor unless the amount of duty indicated does not correspond to the amount determined by the authorities⁶. In cases where the customs authorities do so specify, release of the goods by the customs authorities is treated⁷ as equivalent to communication to the debtor of the amount of duty entered in the accounts⁸.

Communication to the debtor is not to take place after the expiry of a period of three years from the date on which the customs debt was incurred⁹. This period is to be suspended from the time an appeal¹⁰ is lodged, for the duration of the appeal proceedings¹¹. Where the customs debt is the result of an act which, at the time it was committed, was liable to give rise to criminal court proceedings¹², the amount may, under the conditions set out in the provisions in force¹³, be communicated to the debtor after the expiry of the three-year period¹⁴.

9 Ibid art 221(3) (substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p17) art 1(17)). The customs authorities may discount amounts of duty which, under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 221(3) (as substituted), could not be communicated to the debtor after the end of the time allowed: art 217(1), 3rd para.

A national rule which concerns the form of measures taken by the authorities for the post-clearance recovery of import duties, and which, when applied, may invalidate such measures without thereby extinguishing the Community debt with which those measures are concerned, does not call into question the fundamental basis of the rule requiring post-clearance recovery, or render such recovery virtually impossible or excessively difficult. Under Community law as it now stands, it is for national law to determine in what circumstances a post-clearance demand for payment of a global sum, part of which is irrecoverable for exceeding the three-year time limit laid down by what is now art 221(3) (as substituted), is to be considered void in its entirety, subject, however, to the limits imposed by Community law, namely that the application of national law may not render the system for collecting Community charges and dues less effective than that for collecting national charges and dues of the same kind, or render virtually impossible or excessively difficult the implementation of Community legislation: Joined Cases C-153, 204/94 R v Customs and Excise Comrs, ex p Faroe Seafood Co Ltd [1996] ECR I-2465, [1996] All ER (EC) 606, [1996] 2 CMLR 821, ECJ. 11 Ibid art 221(3) (as substituted: see note 9 supra).

12 The expression 'act that could give rise to criminal court proceedings' refers to an act which, under the legal system of the member states whose competent authorities are seeking the post-clearance recovery of duties, may be classified as an offence under national criminal law. The punishment of specific conduct by a criminal sanction constitutes a clear criterion which ensures that the application of the provision in question will be clear, both for the economic agent accused of such conduct and for the authorities which must take recovery action. That requirement for legal certainty is particularly important when rules are involved which entail financial consequences for economic agents. It is true that the application of this criterion may, owing to the substantive provisions of the criminal law of the member states, lead to different results. However, this situation arises from the fact that in the present state of Community law the classification of a certain kind of conduct for the purposes of criminal law is not harmonised and is, therefore, governed by national law: Case C-273/90 Meico-Fell v Hauptzollamt Darmstadt [1991] ECR I-5569, ECJ.

306. Time limit for the payment of the amount of duty.

Amounts of duty communicated in accordance with appropriate procedures¹ must be paid by debtors² within the following periods³.

If the person is not entitled to any of the specified payment facilities⁴, payment must be made within the period prescribed⁵. That period must not⁶ exceed ten days following communication to the debtor of the amount of duty owed; and, in the case of aggregation of entries in the accounts⁷, it must be so fixed as not to enable the debtor to obtain a longer period for payment than if he had been granted deferred payment⁸. An extension must be granted automatically where it is established that the person concerned received the communication too late to enable him to make payment within the period prescribed⁹; and extension of the period may also be granted by the customs authorities¹⁰ at the request of the debtor where the amount of duty to be paid results from action for post-clearance recovery; but such extensions must not¹¹ exceed the time necessary for the debtor to take the appropriate steps to discharge his obligation¹².

If the person is entitled to any of the specified payment facilities¹³, payment must be made no later than the expiry of the period or periods specified in relation to those facilities¹⁴.

The cases and conditions in which the debtor's obligation to pay duty are to be suspended may also be provided for in accordance with the committee procedure¹⁵ where an application for remission of duty is duly made¹⁶, or where goods are seized¹⁷ with a view to subsequent confiscation, or where the customs debt was incurred through the unlawful removal from customs supervision of goods liable to import duties¹⁸ and there is more than one debtor¹⁹.

The customs authorities must suspend the debtor's obligation to pay the duties until such time as they have taken a decision on the request, provided that, where the goods are no longer under customs supervision, security is lodged for the amount of those duties, it not being necessary to require a security where such requirement would be likely, owing to the debtor's circumstances, to cause serious economic or social difficulties, and that: (1) in cases where a request for invalidation of a declaration has been presented, this request is likely to be met; (2) in cases where a request has been presented for remission pursuant to art 236 in conjunction with art 220(2)(b) (see PARA 300 ante) or pursuant to art 238 or art 239, the customs authorities consider that the conditions laid down in the relevant provision may be regarded as having been fulfilled; and (3) in cases other than those referred to under head (2) supra, a request has been presented for remission pursuant to art 236 and the conditions referred to in art 244, 2nd para (see PARA 338 post) have been fulfilled: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 876a(1) (added by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(11)(c)). For the meaning of 'supervision by the customs authorities' see PARA 77 note 2 ante.

17 It is in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 233(c), 2nd indent (see PARA 311 head (3)(b) post) or art 233(d) (see PARA 311 head (4) post). In cases where goods in one of the circumstances referred to in art 233(c), 2nd indent or in art 233(d) are seized, the customs authorities must suspend the debtor's obligation to pay the duties if they consider that the conditions for confiscation may be regarded as having been fulfilled: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 876a(2) (added by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(11)(c)).

18 It is under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 203: see PARA 279 ante. Where a customs debt is incurred under art 203, the customs authorities must suspend the obligation of the person referred to in art 203(3), 4th indent to pay the duties where at least one other debtor has been identified and the amount of the duties has also been communicated to him in accordance with art 221 (as amended) (see PARA 305 ante): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 876a(3), 1st para (art 876a(3) added by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(24)). The suspension may be granted only on the condition that the person referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 203(3), 4th indent is not also covered by one of the other indents of art 203(3) and has not been obviously negligent in fulfilling his obligations: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 876a(3), 2nd para (as so added).

The duration of the suspension must be limited to one year: art 876a(3), 3rd para (as so added). However, this period may be extended by the customs authorities for duly justified reasons: art 876a(3), 3rd para (as so added). The suspension is conditional on the lodging by the person for whose benefit it is granted of a valid security for the amount of the duties at stake, except where such a security covering the whole amount of duties at stake already exists and the guarantor has not been released from his undertakings: art 876a(3), 4th para (as so added). Such security need not be required where such a requirement would be likely, owing to the debtor's circumstances, to cause serious economic or social difficulties: art 876a(3), 4th para (as so added).

19 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 222(2) (substituted by European Parliament and Council Regulation 2700/2000 (OJ L311, 12.12.2000, p 17) art 1(18)).

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

307. Methods of making payment of customs duty.

Payment of customs duty must be made in cash or by any other means with similar discharging effect in accordance with the provisions in force¹. It may also be made by adjustment of credit balance where the provisions in force so allow². An amount of duty owed may be paid by a third party instead of the debtor³.

308. Deferment of the payment of duty.

Provided that the amount of duty payable by the person concerned relates to goods declared for a customs procedure¹ which entails the obligation to pay such duty, the customs authorities² must, at that person's request, grant deferment of payment of that amount under the conditions laid down³ in the Community Customs Code⁴. The granting of deferment of payment is conditional on the provision of security by the applicant⁵.

The customs authorities must decide which of various methods is to be used when granting deferment of payment⁶. The period for which payment is deferred is 30 days⁷. Whatever the payment facilities granted to the debtor⁸, the latter may in any case pay all or part of the amount of duty without awaiting expiry of the period he has been granted for payment⁹.

Deferment of payment must not be granted in respect of amounts of duty which, although relating to goods entered for a customs procedure which entails the obligation to pay such duty, are entered in the accounts in accordance with the provisions in force¹⁰ concerning acceptance of incomplete declarations¹¹, because the declarant¹² has not, by the time of expiry of the period set, provided the information necessary for the definitive valuation of the goods for customs purposes or has not supplied the particulars or the document missing when the incomplete declaration was accepted¹³. Deferment of payment may, however, be granted in such cases if the amount of duty to be recovered is entered in the accounts before the expiry of a period of 30 days from the date on which the amount originally charged was entered in the accounts or, if it was not entered in the accounts, from the date on which the declaration relating to the goods in question was accepted¹⁴.

2 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

3 In accordance with the conditions laid down in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') arts 225-227: see the text and notes 5-7 infra.

4 Ibid art 224.

5 Ibid art 225, 1st para. In addition, the granting of deferment of payment may give rise to the charging of incidental expenses for the opening of files or for services rendered: art 225, 2nd para.

6 Ibid art 226. The procedures so available are: (1) separately in respect of each amount of duty entered in the accounts under the conditions laid down in art 218(1), 1st para (see PARA 297 ante) or in art 220(1) (see PARA 298 ante); or (2) globally in respect of all amounts of duty entered in the accounts under the conditions laid down in art 218(1), 1st para during a period fixed by the customs authorities not exceeding 31 days; or (3) globally in respect of all amounts of duty forming a single entry in accordance with art 218(1), 2nd para (see PARA 297 ante): art 226(a)-(c). For the meaning of 'entry in the accounts' see PARA 296 ante.

7 Ibid art 227(1). The period is to be calculated as follows: (1) where payment is deferred in accordance with art 226(a) (see note 6 head (1) supra), the period is to be calculated from the day following the date on which the amount of duty is entered in the accounts by the customs authorities, and, where art 219 (see PARA 297 ante) is applied, the period of 30 days so calculated is to be reduced by the number of days corresponding to the period in excess of two days used to enter the amount in the accounts; (2) where payment is deferred in accordance with art 226(b) (see note 6 head (2) supra), the period is to be calculated from the day following the date on which the aggregation period expires, and is to be reduced by the number of days corresponding to half the number of days in the aggregation period; (3) where payment is deferred in accordance with art 226(c) (see note 6 head (3) supra), the period is to be calculated from the day following the expiry date of the period during which the goods in question were released, and is to be reduced by the number of days corresponding to half the number of days in the period concerned: art 227(1)(a)-(c). Where the number of days in the periods referred to in art 227(1)(b), (c) (see heads (2), (3) supra) is an odd number, the number of days to be deducted from the 30-day period pursuant to art 227(1)(b), (c) is to be equal to half the next lowest even number: art 227(2). To simplify matters, where the periods referred to in art 227(1)(b), (c) are a calendar week or a calendar month, member states may provide that the amount of duty in respect of which payment has been deferred must be paid: (a) if the period is a calendar week, on the Friday of the fourth week following that calendar week; (b) if the period is a calendar month, by the sixteenth day of the month following that calendar month: art 227(3).

14 Ibid art 228(2). The duration of the deferment of payment granted in such circumstances must not extend beyond the date of expiry of the period which, pursuant to art 227 (see note 7 supra), was granted in respect of the amount of duty originally fixed, or which would have been granted had the amount of duty legally due been entered in the accounts when the goods in question were declared: art 228(2).

309. Alternative payment facilities.

The customs authorities¹ may grant the debtor² payment facilities other than deferred payment³. The granting of such payment facilities must:

- 718 (1) be conditional on the provision of security, but such security need not be required where to require it would, because of the situation of the debtor, create serious economic or social difficulties;
- 719 (2) result in credit interest being charged over and above the amount of duty, the amount of such interest to be calculated in such a way that it is equivalent to the amount which would be charged for this purpose on the national money or financial market of the currency in which the amount is payable⁴.

The customs authorities may refrain from claiming credit interest where to claim it would, because of the situation of the debtor, create serious economic or social difficulties⁵.

310. Collection of customs duty.

Where the amount of duty due has not been paid within the prescribed period, the customs authorities¹ must avail themselves of all options open to them under the legislation in force, including enforcement, to secure payment of that amount²; and interest on arrears must be charged over and above the amount of duty³. The customs authorities may, however, waive collection of interest on arrears where:

- 720 (1) because of the situation of the debtor⁴, it would be likely to create serious economic or social difficulties;
- 721 (2) the amount does not exceed a level fixed in accordance with the committee procedure; or
- 722 (3) if the duty is paid within five days of the expiry of the period prescribed for payment⁵.

The customs authorities may fix minimum periods for calculation of interest and minimum amounts payable as interest on arrears⁶.

(v) Extinction of Customs Debt

311. Extinction of customs debt.

Without prejudice to the provisions in force¹ relating to the time-barring of a customs debt² and non-recovery of such a debt in the event of the legally established insolvency of the debtor³, a customs debt is extinguished:

723 (1) by payment of the amount of duty⁴;

724 (2) by remission of the amount of duty⁵;

725 (3) where, in respect of goods declared for a customs procedure⁶ entailing the obligation to pay duties:

66. (a) the customs declaration⁷ is invalidated; or

67. (b) the goods, before their release, are either seized and simultaneously or subsequently confiscated, destroyed on the instructions of the customs authorities⁸, destroyed or abandoned⁹, or destroyed or irretrievably lost as a result of their actual nature or of unforeseeable circumstances or force majeure¹⁰; and

726 (4) where goods in respect of which a customs debt is incurred in consequence of their unlawful introduction into a part of the customs territory of the Community¹¹ are seized upon their unlawful introduction and are simultaneously or subsequently confiscated¹².

In the event of seizure and confiscation, the customs debt is nonetheless, for the purposes of the criminal law applicable to customs offences, deemed not to have been extinguished where, under a member state's criminal law, customs duties provide the basis for determining penalties or the existence of a customs debt is grounds for taking criminal proceedings¹³.

A customs debt otherwise arising on the validation of the documents necessary to enable preferential tariff treatment to be obtained in a third country under an agreement concluded between that country and the Community¹⁴ is extinguished where the formalities carried out in order to enable the preferential tariff treatment to be granted are cancelled¹⁵.

The confiscation of goods pursuant to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 233(c) (as amended) does not affect the customs status of the goods in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 867.

It appears that the reasons for the extinction must be based on the fact that the goods have not been used for the economic purpose which justified the application of import duties; in the case of theft from a customs warehouse, it may be assumed that the goods pass into the Community commercial circuit; it follows that 'loss' of the goods for the purposes of the Directive does not embrace the concept of theft, regardless of the circumstances in which it has been committed: Joined Cases 186, 187/82 Ministero delle Finanze v Esercizio Magazzini Generali SpA [1983] ECR 2951 at 2962, [1984] 3 CMLR 217 at 228, ECJ. Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/312. General provisions for repayment or remission.

(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY

312. General provisions for repayment or remission.

'Repayment' means the total or partial refund of import duties¹ or export duties² which have been paid³, whilst 'remission' means either a decision to waive all or part of the amount of a customs debt⁴, or a decision to render void an entry in the accounts⁵ of all or part of an amount of import or export duty which has not been paid⁶.

Import duties or export duties must be repaid, in so far as it is established that, when they were paid, the amount of such duties was not legally owed⁷ or that the amount has been entered in the accounts contrary to the provisions⁸ limiting subsequent entry⁹. Import duties or export duties must be remitted, in so far as it is established that, when they were entered in the accounts, the amount of such duties was not legally owed or that the amount has been entered in the accounts contrary to the provisions limiting subsequent entry¹⁰. No repayment or remission is, however, to be granted when the facts which led to the payment or entry in the accounts of an amount which was not legally owed are the result of deliberate action by the person concerned¹¹.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 235(a). The distribution of functions between the Community and the member states may justify the application, by a national authority, of a rule of natural justice for which provision is made under its national legislation in connection with the formalities applicable to the imposition of a charge introduced by Community law. A national authority is not, however, entitled to apply the provisions of its national law to an application for exemption, on grounds of natural justice, from charges due under Community law, where to do so would alter the effect of the Community rules relating to the basis of assessment, the manner of imposition or the amount of the charge in question: Case 118/76 Balkan-Import-Export GmbH v Hauptzollamt Berlin-Packhof [1977] ECR 1177, ECJ. See also Case 265/78 H Ferwerda BV v Produktschap voor Vee en Vlees [1980] ECR 617, [1980] 3 CMLR 737, ECJ; Case 113/81 Otto Reichelt GmbH v Hauptzollamt Berlin-Süd [1982] ECR 1957, ECJ; Case C-174/89 Hoche GmbH v Bundesanstalt für landwirtschaftliche Marktordnung [1990] ECR I-2681 at 2711, [1991] 3 CMLR 343 at 366, ECJ (there is no such thing as a general principle of objective unfairness under Community law; there is no legal basis in Community law for exemption on grounds of natural justice from charges due under that law; there is no general legal principle in Community law that a Community provision which is in force may not be applied by a national authority if it causes the person concerned hardship which the Community legislature would clearly have sought to avoid if it had envisaged that eventuality when enacting the provision).

7 Where the request for repayment or remission is based on the existence, at the time when the declaration of release for free circulation was accepted, of a reduced or zero rate of import duty on the goods under a tariff quota, a tariff ceiling or other preferential tariff arrangements, repayment or remission must be granted only on condition that, at the time of lodging the application for repayment or remission accompanied by the necessary documents, in the case of a tariff quota, its volume has not been exhausted, and in other cases, that the rate of duty normally due has not been re-established: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 889(1), 1st para. If these conditions are not fulfilled, repayment or remission must nevertheless be granted where the failure to apply the reduced or zero rate of duty to the goods was the result of an error on the part of the customs authorities themselves and the declaration for free circulation contained all the particulars and was accompanied by all the documents necessary for application of the reduced or zero rate: art 889(1), 2nd para. Each member state must keep at the disposal of the Commission a list of the cases in which the provisions of art 889(1), 2nd para have been applied: art 889(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 75/98 (OJ L7, 13.1.98, p 3) art 1(24)). A subsequent reduction in the price payable for goods returned against a credit not does not reduce the price 'actually paid when sold for export to the customs territory of the Community', giving rise to an entitlement to a repayment of duty: Auto Suture Co UK v Customs and Excise Comrs (1997) Customs Decision 34 (unreported).

8 le EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220(2) (as amended): see PARA 299 et seq ante. Community law does not require an order for the recovery of charges improperly made to be granted in conditions which would involve an unjust enrichment of those entitled. Thus it does not prevent the fact that the burden of such charges may have been passed on to the traders or to consumers from being taken into consideration. Any requirement of proof which has the effect of making it virtually impossible or excessively difficult to secure the repayment of charges levied contrary to Community law is, however, incompatible with Community law. This is particularly so in the case of presumptions or rules of evidence intended to place on the taxpayer the burden of establishing that the charges unduly paid have not been passed on to other persons or of special limitations concerning the form of the evidence to be adduced, such as the exclusion of any kind of evidence other than documentary evidence: Case 104/86 EC Commission v Italy [1988] ECR 1799, [1989] 3 CMLR 25, ECJ; Case 199/82 Amministrazione delle Finanze dello Stato v SpA San Giorgio [1983] ECR 3595, ECJ; Joined Cases 331, 376, 378/85 Les Fils de Jules Bianco SA and J Girard Fils SA v Directeur Général des Douanes et Droits Indirects [1988] ECR 1099, [1989] 3 CMLR 36, ECJ; Joined Cases C-192-218/95 Société Comateb v Directeur Général des Douanes et Droits Indirects [1997] ECR I-165, [1997] 2 CMLR 649, ECJ.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/313. Period within which claim for repayment or remission to be made.

313. Period within which claim for repayment or remission to be made.

Import duties¹ or export duties² are to be repaid or remitted upon submission of an application³ to the appropriate customs office⁴ within a period of three years from the date on which the amount of those duties was communicated to the debtor⁵. That period is to be extended if the person concerned provides evidence that he was prevented from submitting his application within the specified period as a result of unforeseeable circumstances or force majeure⁶. Where, however, the customs authorities⁷ themselves discover within this period that one or other of the situations described above⁸ exists, they must repay or remit on their own initiative⁹.

Import or export duties are to be repaid or remitted only if the amount to be repaid or remitted exceeds an amount fixed in accordance with the committee procedure¹⁰; but the customs authorities may also grant an application for repayment or remission in respect of a lower amount¹¹.

1 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'export duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

3 The application for repayment or remission of import or export duties ('application for repayment or remission') must be made by the person who paid or is liable to pay those duties, or the persons who have taken over his rights and obligations, or by the representative of that person or those persons: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 878(1). Without prejudice to art 882 (as amended) (see PARA 319 post), application for repayment or remission is to be made, in one original and one copy, on a form conforming to the specimen and provisions in art 878(2), Annex 111 (as amended), but it may also be made, on request of the applicant, on plain paper, provided that it contains the information appearing in Annex 111 (as amended): art 878(2). For a case where an informal approach to the (then) Commissioners of Customs and Excise was held to fall within the terms of this latter provision see Anritsu Wiltron Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 23 (unreported).

Applications for repayment or remission, accompanied by the documents referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 6(1) (see PARA 327 post), must be lodged with the customs office of entry in the accounts, unless the customs authorities designate another office for this purpose: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 879(1). As to the position where an application is made in respect of goods for which an import or export licence or advance fixing certificate was produced when the customs declaration was lodged see art 880; and as to the circumstances in which the customs office with which the application is lodged may accept an application not containing all the information required by Annex 111 (as amended), setting a time limit for the provision of the remainder of the information, see art 881. For these purposes, 'customs office of entry in the accounts' means the customs office where the import or export duties whose repayment or remission is requested were entered in the accounts: art 877(1)(a).

Article 898 refers to the ecu, but from 1 January 1999 this is to be understood as a reference to the euro: EC Council Regulation 3308/80 (OJ L345, 20.12.80, p 1); EC Council Regulation 1103/97 (OJ L162, 19.6.97, p 1).

315. Repayment or remission of duties where goods rejected by importer.

Import duties¹ must be repaid or remitted, in so far as it is established that the amount of such duties entered in the accounts² relates to goods placed under the customs procedure³ in question and rejected by the importer⁴ because at the date of acceptance of the declaration by the customs authorities⁵ the goods are defective⁶ or do not comply with the terms of the contract on the basis of which they were imported⁷.

Repayment or remission of import duties must be granted on condition that:

- 727 (1) the goods have not been used, save for such initial use as may have been necessary to establish that they were defective or did not comply with the terms of the contract⁸;
- 728 (2) the goods are exported from the customs territory of the Community⁹.

However, at the request of the person concerned, the customs authorities must permit the goods to be destroyed¹⁰ or to be placed, for the purposes of their re-exportation, under the external transit procedure¹¹ or the customs warehousing procedure¹² or in a free zone¹³ or free warehouse¹⁴, instead of being exported¹⁵.

Import duties are not to be repaid or remitted in respect of goods which, before being declared to customs declaration, were imported temporarily for testing, unless it is established that the fact that the goods were defective or did not comply with the terms of the contract could not normally have been detected in the course of such tests¹⁶.

Import duties are not to be repaid or remitted under the above provisions where the defective nature of the goods was taken into consideration in drawing up the terms of the contract, in particular the price, under which the goods were entered for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay import duties¹⁷, or the goods are sold by the importer after it has been ascertained that they are defective or do not comply with the terms of the contract¹⁸.

2 For the meaning of 'entry in the accounts' see PARA 296 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante.

4 In Customs and Excise Comrs v Barrow, Lane and Ballard Ltd (1 December 1998, unreported), DC, the issue arose whether the goods had been rejected by the importer where they had been customs-cleared and then rejected by the United Kingdom buyer and thereafter sold by the consignee to a new buyer found in Australia. It was held, reversing (1997) Customs Decision 53 (unreported) and relying on the World Customs Organisation's definition of 'importer', that 'importer' might include both the person who brought the goods into a country and the person who caused them to be brought in; but that caution had to be exercised over the application of the expression 'causes to be brought in' because it was potentially very broad in scope; and that it would be absurd to treat all those in a chain of supply as importers for this purpose, although the expression would cover a person who arranged for goods to be brought in, or a merchant who entered into a contract with a foreign supplier for the supply of goods to him as consignee in the United Kingdom. Title was not determinative of who was an importer; but, where a merchant arranged for goods to be imported with the intention of supplying them to a particular customer, that customer was himself an importer for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 238.

6 For these purposes, 'defective goods' are deemed to include goods damaged before their release: ibid art 238(1), 2nd para.

7 Ibid art 238(1), 1st para. Import duties are to be repaid or remitted for the reasons set out in art 238(1) upon submission of an application to the appropriate customs office within 12 months from the date on which the amount of those duties was communicated to the debtor; but the customs authorities may permit this period to be extended in duly justified exceptional circumstances: art 238(4). For the meaning of 'customs office' see PARA 40 note 12 ante; and for the meaning of 'debtor' see PARA 95 note 8 ante. For a case where an importer's appeal against the refusal of the (then) Commissioners of Customs and Excise to apply art 238(4) (not art 236(4) as stated in the report) was allowed see Cohen v Customs and Excise Comrs (1997) Customs Decision 35 (unreported).

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 238(2)(a).

9 Ibid art 238(2)(b). For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

10 Where destruction of the goods authorised by the decision-making customs authority produces waste or scrap, such waste or scrap is to be regarded as non-Community goods once a decision has been taken accepting the application for repayment or remission: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 894. For these purposes, 'decision-making customs authority' means the customs authority competent to decide on an application for repayment or remission of import or export duties in the member state where the duties concerned were entered in the accounts: art 877(1)(b). For the meaning of 'non-Community goods' see PARA 77 note 5 ante.

For the purposes of being assigned one of the customs-approved treatments or uses provided for in art 238(2), 2nd para, the goods are deemed to be non-Community goods: art 238(2), 3rd para. Where the authorisation referred to in art 238(2), 2nd para is granted, the customs authorities must take all necessary steps to ensure that the goods placed in a customs warehouse, free zone or free warehouse may subsequently be recognised as non-Community goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 895.

18 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 892. This is not, however, intended to impose some perpetual restriction on the sale of the goods, which may be sold after export; the relevant policy objectives are satisfied if the goods are exported from the Community without any sale within the Community: Customs and Excise Comrs v Barrow, Lane and Ballard Ltd (1 December 1998, unreported), DC.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/316. Repayment or remission in other circumstances; decision to be taken by customs authorities of member states.

316. Repayment or remission in other circumstances; decision to be taken by customs authorities of member states.

Import duties¹ or export duties² may be repaid or remitted in situations other than those already mentioned³:

- 729 (1) to be determined in accordance with the committee procedure;
- 730 (2) resulting from circumstances in which no deception or obvious negligence may be attributed to the person concerned⁴.

Where the decision-making customs authority⁵ establishes that an application for repayment or remission submitted to it⁶ is based on grounds corresponding to one of a number of specified circumstances⁷, and that these do not result from deception or obvious negligence on the part of the person concerned⁸, it must repay or remit the amount of import or export duties concerned⁹. In other cases, except those in which the dossier must be submitted to the Commission¹⁰, the decision-making customs authority must itself decide to grant repayment or remission of the import or export duties where there is a special situation resulting from circumstances in which no deception or obvious negligence may be attributed to the person concerned¹¹. For the purposes of applying these provisions, the member states must give each other mutual assistance, particularly where an error by the customs authorities of a member state other than that responsible for taking the decision is concerned¹².

Duties are to be repaid or remitted for the above reasons¹³ upon submission of an application to the appropriate customs office within 12 months from the date on which the amount of the duties was communicated to the debtor¹⁴. The customs authorities may, however, permit this period to be exceeded in duly justified exceptional cases¹⁵.

1 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'export duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

3 I.e. under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') arts 236-238: see PARAS 312-315 ante. The situations in which this provision may be applied and the procedures to be followed to that end are to be defined in accordance with the committee procedure; and repayment or remission may be made subject to special conditions: art 239(1), 2nd indent. For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante.

4 Ibid art 239(1). Article 239 derives from the consolidation of EC Council Regulation 1430/79 (OJ L175, 12.7.79, p 1) art 13 (repealed). Article 13 was a 'general equitable provision designed to cover situations other than those which had most often arisen in practice and for which special provision could be made when the regulation was adopted': Case 283/82 Papierfabrik Schoellershammer, Heinrich August Schoeller & Sohne GmbH & Co KG v EC Commission [1983] ECR 4219, ECJ; Case 160/84 Oryzomyli Kavallas v EC Commission [1986] ECR 1633, ECJ. EC Council Regulation 1430/79 (OJ L175, 12.7.79, p 1) (repealed) was intended to apply where the circumstances characterising the relationship between a trader and the administration were such that it would be inequitable to require the trader to bear a loss which he normally would not have incurred: Case 58/86 Co-opérative Agricole d'Approvisionnement des Aviron v Receveur des Douanes de Saint-Denis and Directeur Régional des Douanes, Réunion [1987] ECR 1525, [1988] 2 CMLR 30, ECJ. The sole aim of the general equitable provision in EC Council Regulation 1430/79 (OJ L175, 12.7.79, p 1) art 13 (repealed) was to enable importers to be exempted from payment of the duty payable when certain specific conditions were satisfied and in the absence of negligence or deception, and not to enable them to contest the very principle that the amount was due, which question was to be brought before the competent courts in accordance with the procedures laid down for such purposes. Errors or omissions on the part of administrative authorities could not give rise to the application of the said provision unless such errors or omissions imposed upon a trader a financial obligation which he had no legal means of contesting. The existence of such a legal means of redress prevented the trader from claiming the benefit of art 13 (repealed): Joined Cases 244, 245/85 Cerealmangimi SpA et Italgrani SpA v EC Commission [1987] ECR 1303, ECJ; Joined Cases C-121, 122/91 CT Control (Rotterdam) BV v EC Commission [1993] ECR I-3873, ECJ. Where, in an application actually seeking remission of import duties, the person concerned relied on facts capable of constituting a special situation within the meaning of EC Council Regulation 1430/79 (OJ L175, 12.7.79, p 1) art 13(1) (repealed), without, however, expressly mentioning that provision, that omission did not prevent the national customs authority from considering the application with reference to that provision: Case C-446/93 SEIM-Sociedade de Exportação e Importação de Materiais Lda v Subdirector-Geral das Alfândegas [1996] ECR I-73, ECJ.

The contrast between EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 239, on the repayment or remission of duty in special circumstances, and art 220 (see PARA 298 et seq ante), on the non-adjustment of entries in the accounts, is that the former applies where duty has been paid or entered in the accounts and the latter where no such entry has been made. Although the Commission is wrong in law if it applies the provisions on the repayment or remission of import or export duties in a case submitted to it by national authorities where the duty had not been paid and where it should, therefore, have applied the provisions on the post-clearance recovery of such duties, such an error does not justify annulling the Commission's decision where obvious negligence on the part of the trader, which the Commission considers precludes him from benefiting from the provisions of art 239, is linked to the fact that the error is capable of being detected, which can preclude him from benefiting from the provisions of art 220, and where the Commission's confusion of the two legal bases was of a purely formal nature and did not have any decisive influence as to the outcome of its substantive examination: Case T-75/95 Günzler Aluminium GmbH v EC Commission [1996] ECR II-497, CFI. For a somewhat different approach see the opinion of Darman A-G in Case 161/88 Friedrich Binder GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Bad Reichenhall [1989] ECR 2415, ECJ. See also Case C-250/91 Hewlett Packard France v Directeur Général des Douanes [1993] ECR I-1819 at 1821, ECJ (the fact that a trader has relied on incorrect information supplied to a company belonging to the same group as the person liable by a competent customs authority in a member state other than that of the customs authority competent to effect post-clearance recovery may constitute a special situation of the kind referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 239; it is for the national court to establish whether both the other pre-conditions for the application of art 239, namely the absence of obvious negligence or deception and due compliance with procedural rules, have been satisfied; the question whether the error was detectable, within the meaning of art 220(2) is linked to the existence of obvious negligence or deception within the meaning of art 239 and, therefore, the conditions laid down by the latter provision must be assessed in the light of those laid down in art 220(2)).

A customs authority deliberately allowing offences or irregularities to be committed in the interests of an investigation into possible fraud thereby causing a person liable to incur a customs debt might constitute a 'special situation' for the purposes of EC Council Regulation 1430/79 (OJ L175, 12.7.79, p 1) art 13(1): Case C-61/98 De Haan Beheer BV v Inspecteur der Invoerrechten en Accijnzen te Rotterdam [1999] All ER (EC) 803, ECJ.

7 Ie the circumstances referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) arts 900-903 (as amended): see PARA 317 et seq post.

8 For these purposes, 'the person concerned' means the person or persons referred to in ibid art 878(1) (ie the person who paid or who is liable to pay the duties: see PARA 313 note 3 ante), or their representatives, and any other person who was involved with the completion of the customs formalities relating to the goods concerned or gave the instructions necessary for the completion of these formalities: art 899(3) (art 899 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1335/2003 (OJ L187, 26.7.2003, p 16) art 1(4)). UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/317. Circumstances in which import duties are to be repaid or remitted.

317. Circumstances in which import duties are to be repaid or remitted.

Import duties¹ must² be repaid or remitted where:

- 731 (1) non-Community goods³ placed under a customs procedure involving total or partial relief from import duties or goods released for free circulation⁴ with favourable tariff treatment by reason of their end-use⁵ are stolen, provided that the goods are recovered promptly and placed again in their original customs situation in the state they were in when they were stolen⁶;
- 732 (2) non-Community goods are inadvertently withdrawn from the customs procedure involving total or partial relief from the said duties under which they had been placed, provided that, as soon as the error is found, they are placed again in their original customs situation in the state they were in when they were withdrawn⁷;
- 733 (3) it is impossible to operate the mechanism for opening the means of transport on which goods previously released for free circulation are located and accordingly to unload them on arrival at their destination, provided that they are immediately re-exported⁸;
- 734 (4) goods originally released for free circulation are subsequently returned to their non-Community supplier, under the outward processing arrangements⁹, to enable him, free of charge, to eliminate defects existing prior to the release of the goods (even if found after release of the goods) or to bring them into line with the provisions of the contract under which they were released for free circulation, and the said supplier decides to keep the goods permanently because he is unable to remedy the defects or because it would not be economic to do so¹⁰;
- 735 (5) it is found, when the customs authorities decide on post-clearance entry in the accounts of import duties actually due on goods released for free circulation with full relief from such duties, that the goods in question have been re-exported from the customs territory of the Community without customs supervision, provided that it is established that the substantive conditions laid down in the Community Customs Code for the repayment or remission of such import duties would actually have been met at the time of re-exportation if the amount had been levied when the goods were released for free circulation¹¹;
- 736 (6) a judicial body has forbidden the marketing of an item previously entered for a customs procedure obliging the person concerned to pay import duties under normal conditions, and the item is re-exported from the customs territory of the Community or destroyed under the control of the customs authorities, provided that it is established that the item in question has not actually been used in the Community¹²;
- 737 (7) the goods have been entered for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay such duties by a declarant empowered to do so on his own initiative and, through no fault of the declarant, it has not been possible to deliver them to the consignee¹³;
- 738 (8) the goods have been addressed to the consignee in error by the consignor¹⁴;
- 739 (9) the goods are found to be unsuitable for the use for which the consignee intended them because of an obvious factual error in his order¹⁵;

- 740 (10) after having been released for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay import duties, the goods are found not to have complied, at the time of their release, with the rules in force concerning their use or marketing and, therefore, cannot be used for the purpose intended by the consignee¹⁶;
- 741 (11) the use of the goods by the consignee for the purpose intended is prevented or substantially restricted as a result of measures of general scope taken, after the date of release for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay import duties, by an authority or other body having the appropriate power of decision¹⁷;
- 742 (12) total or partial import duty relief applied for by the person concerned in accordance with existing provisions cannot, through no fault of the person concerned, be granted by the customs authorities, who must accordingly enter in the accounts the import duties which have become due¹⁸;
- 743 (13) the goods reached the consignee after the binding delivery dates stipulated in the contract under which they were entered for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay import duties¹⁹;
- 744 (14) it has not been possible to sell the goods in the customs territory of the Community and they are delivered free of charge to charities: (a) carrying out their activities in a third country, provided that they are represented in the Community; or (b) carrying out their activities in the customs territory of the Community, provided that they are eligible for relief in the case of importation for free circulation of similar goods from third countries²⁰; or
- 745 (15) the customs debt has been incurred otherwise than under the general rule for the incurring of a customs debt²¹ and the person concerned is able to produce a certificate of origin²², a movement certificate²³, an internal Community transit document²⁴ or other appropriate document showing that, if the imported goods had been entered for free circulation, they would have been eligible for Community treatment or preferential tariff treatment²⁵, provided that the other required verification conditions²⁶ were satisfied²⁷.

In addition, the supervising customs office²⁸ must be satisfied that the goods have been neither used nor sold before their re-exportation²⁹.

Repayment or remission of import duties in the cases referred to in art 900(1)(c) and art 900(1)(f)-(n) (see heads (6)-(14) in the text) is, except where the goods are destroyed by order of a public authority or delivered free of charge to charities carrying out their activities in the Community, conditional upon their re-export from the customs territory of the Community under the supervision of the customs authorities: art 900(2), 1st para (art 900(2) substituted by EC Commission Regulation 881/2003 (OJ L134, 29.5.2003, p 1) art 1(26)(a)). If requested, the decision-making authority must permit re-export of the goods to be replaced by their destruction or by placing them under the external Community transit procedure, under the customs warehousing arrangements, or in a free zone or free warehouse: art 900(2), 2nd para (as so substituted). Goods to be assigned one of these treatments are to be considered to be non-Community goods: art 900(2), 3rd para (as so substituted). In this case, the customs authorities must take all requisite measures to ensure that the goods placed in a customs warehouse, in a free zone or in a free warehouse may later be recognised as non-Community goods: art 900(2), 4th para (as so substituted). UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/318. Refund or remission of duties where goods are re-exported or destroyed without customs supervision.

318. Refund or remission of duties where goods are re-exported or destroyed without customs supervision.

Import duties¹ must be repaid or remitted where:

- 746 (1) goods entered in error for a customs procedure² involving the obligation to pay import duties have been re-exported from the customs territory of the Community³ without having been previously entered for the customs procedure under which they should have been placed, provided that the person concerned submits his application for repayment within the periods laid down for submission of the application for invalidation of the customs declaration⁴;
- 747 (2) the goods have been re-exported or destroyed (in accordance with the rules relating to cases where goods are defective or do not comply with the terms of the contract on the basis of which they were imported) but without customs supervision⁵, provided that the other conditions laid down in the relevant provision of the Community Customs Code⁶ have been met; or
- 748 (3) the goods have been re-exported or destroyed in the prescribed circumstances⁷ but without the requisite customs supervision, provided that the other conditions laid down in the relevant implementing provision⁸ have been met⁹.

Repayment or remission of import duties in the circumstances referred to above is conditional on:

- 749 (a) production of all the evidence needed to enable the decision-making customs authority¹⁰ to satisfy itself that the goods in respect of which repayment or remission is requested have actually been re-exported from the customs territory of the Community, or have been destroyed under the supervision of authorities or persons empowered to certify such destruction officially; and
- 750 (b) the return to the decision-making customs authority of any document certifying the Community status of the goods in question under cover of which the goods may have left the customs territory of the Community, or the presentation of whatever evidence that authority considers necessary to satisfy itself that the document in question, cannot be used subsequently in connection with any importation of goods into the Community¹¹.

1 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'customs procedure' see PARA 83 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante.

4 I.e. provided that the other conditions laid down in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 237 (see PARA 314 ante) have not been met.

5 I.e. in accordance with ibid art 238(2)(b): see PARA 315 head (2) ante.

6 I.e. the other conditions laid down in ibid art 238: see PARA 315 ante.

7 le in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 900(1)(c) (see PARA 317 head (3) ante) and art 900(1)(f)-(n) (see PARA 317 heads (6)-(14) ante).

8 le those under ibid art 900(2), (4): see PARA 317 ante.

9 Ibid art 901(1).

10 For the meaning of 'the decision-making customs authority' see PARA 315 note 10 ante.

11 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 901(2). For these purposes, the evidence needed to enable the decision-making customs authority to satisfy itself that the goods in respect of which repayment or remission is requested have actually been re-exported from the customs territory of the Community is to consist of the presentation by the applicant of the original or a certified copy of the declaration for export of the goods from the customs territory of the Community and certification by the customs office through which the goods actually left the customs territory of the Community: art 902(1)(a), 1st para. Where such certification cannot be produced, proof that the goods have left the customs territory of the Community may be presented in the form of: (1) certification by the customs office in the third country of destination confirming that the goods have arrived; or (2) the original or a certified copy of the customs declaration for the goods made in the third country of destination: art 902(1)(a), 2nd para. These documents must be accompanied by administrative and commercial documentation enabling the decision-making customs authority to check that the goods exported from the customs territory of the Community are the same as those which had been declared for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay import duties, namely, the original, or a certified copy of the declaration for the said procedure, and, where this is considered necessary by the decision-making customs authority, commercial or administrative documents (such as invoices, dispatch details, transit documents or health certificates) containing a full description of the goods (trade description, quantities, marks and other identifying particulars) which were presented with the declaration for the said procedure or with the declaration for export from the customs territory of the Community or the customs declaration made for the goods in the third country of destination, as the case may be: art 902(1)(a), 3rd para.

The evidence needed to enable the decision-making customs authority to satisfy itself that the goods in respect of which repayment or remission is requested have actually been destroyed under the supervision of authorities or persons authorised to certify officially such destruction is to consist of the presentation by the applicant of a report or declaration of destruction drawn up by the authorities under whose supervision the goods were destroyed (or a certified copy thereof) or a certificate drawn up by the person authorised to certify destruction, accompanied by evidence of his authority: art 902(1)(b), 1st para. These documents must contain a sufficiently full description of the destroyed goods (trade description, quantities, marks and other identifying particulars) to enable the customs authorities to satisfy themselves, by means of comparison with the particulars given in the declaration for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay import duties and the accompanying commercial documents (invoices, dispatch details etc), that the destroyed goods are those which had been declared for the procedure: art 902(1)(b), 2nd para.

Where the evidence referred to in art 902(1) is insufficient to allow the decision-making customs authority to take a decision on the case submitted to it in full knowledge of the facts, or where certain evidence is not available, such evidence may be supplemented or replaced by any other documents considered necessary by the said authority: art 902(2).

319. Repayment of export duties on returned goods.

In the case of returned goods¹ in respect of which export duty was levied when they were exported from the customs territory of the Community, entry for free circulation gives the right to repayment of the amounts levied².

¹ These provisions apply only to goods which are in one of the situations referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 844 (see PARA 275 note 5 ante): art 903(2), 1st para. It must be proved to the satisfaction of the customs office where the goods are declared for release for free circulation that the goods are in one of the situations referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 185(2)(b) (see PARA 275 head (2) ante): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 903(2), 2nd para. As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante.

For returned goods on which export duties were levied at the time of their export from the customs territory of the Community, repayment or remission of these duties is subject to the presentation to the customs authorities of a request accompanied by: (1) the document issued as evidence of payment, where the amounts concerned have already been collected; (2) the original, or the copy certified by the customs office of re-importation, of the declaration for free circulation relating to the returned goods; and (3) the copy of the export declaration returned to the exporter at the time of completion of the export formalities for the goods, or a copy thereof certified by the customs office of exportation: art 882(1), 1st para. Where, however, the decision-making customs authority is already in possession of the particulars contained in one or more of the declarations referred to in art 882(1)(a), (b) or (c) (see heads (1)-(3) supra), the declaration or declarations concerned need not be produced: art 882(1), 2nd para. The request must be lodged with the relevant customs office referred to in art 879 (see PARA 313 note 3 ante) within 12 months of the date of acceptance of the export declaration: art 882(2). For the meaning of 'export duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante; for the meaning of 'the customs territory of the Community' see PARA 21 ante; and for the meaning of 'the decision-making customs authority' see PARA 315 note 10 ante.

² Ibid art 903(1). Article 903(1) applies even where the returned goods constitute only a proportion of the goods previously exported from the customs territory of the Community: art 903(3).

320. Circumstances in which duty is not to be repaid or remitted.

Import duties¹ must not be repaid or remitted where the only grounds relied on in the application for repayment or remission are, as the case may be:

- 751 (1) re-export from the customs territory of the Community² of goods previously entered for a customs procedure³ involving the obligation to pay import duties⁴, for reasons other than those for which specific relief is afforded under the Community Customs Code⁵ or the relevant implementing provision⁶, notably failure to sell⁷;
- 752 (2) destruction, for any reason whatsoever, save in the cases expressly provided for by Community legislation, of goods entered for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay import duties after their release by the customs authorities⁸;
- 753 (3) presentation, for the purpose of obtaining preferential tariff treatment of goods declared for free circulation⁹, of documents subsequently found to be forged, falsified or not valid for that purpose, even where such documents were presented in good faith¹⁰.

Each member state must communicate to the Commission a list of the cases in which it has itself decided to grant repayment or remission of the import or export duties¹¹, where the amount repaid or remitted in respect of one or more import or export operations but in consequence of a single special situation is more than 50,000 euros, giving a short summary of each case¹². When no communication is required under the above provision, each member state must hold at the disposal of the Commission the list of the cases in which it decided to grant repayment or remission¹³.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/321. Procedure for granting repayment or remission.

321. Procedure for granting repayment or remission.

The decision-making customs authority¹ may authorise completion of the customs formalities to which any repayment or remission may be subject before it has ruled on the application for repayment or remission; and such authorisation is entirely without prejudice to the authority's decision on the application².

Without prejudice to such ad hoc authorisation, and until a decision has been taken on the application for repayment or remission, the goods in respect of which repayment or remission of duties has been requested may not be transferred to a location other than that specified in the application unless the applicant notifies in advance the relevant customs office³, which must in turn inform the decision-making customs authority⁴.

Where an application for repayment or remission relates to a case where supplementary information must be obtained or where the goods must be examined in order to ensure that the specified conditions⁵ for repayment or remission are satisfied, the decision-making customs authority must adopt the measures necessary to that end, if necessary by requesting the assistance of the supervising customs office⁶, specifying the nature of the information to be obtained or of the checks to be carried out⁷.

When the decision-making customs authority possesses all the necessary particulars, it must give the applicant its decision in writing⁸ on the application for repayment or remission⁹. Where the application is approved, the decision must include all the particulars¹⁰ necessary for its implementation¹¹. A decision-making customs authority, having approved an application for repayment or remission of duties, must repay or remit such duty only after receiving the required certificate of satisfaction¹². The decision-making customs authority must¹³ set a deadline, no later than two months from the date of notification of the decision to repay or remit import duties or export duties, for completion of the customs formalities to which the repayment or remission of duties is subject¹⁴. Failure to observe the deadline results in the loss of entitlement to repayment or remission, except where the person concerned by the decision proves that he was prevented from meeting this deadline by unforeseeable circumstances or force majeure¹⁵.

1 For the meaning of 'the decision-making customs authority' see PARA 315 note 10 ante.

6 The supervising customs office must comply promptly with this request and must forward the information obtained and the results of the checks carried out to the decision-making customs authority: ibid art 885(1), 2nd para. For the meaning of 'supervising customs office' see PARA 317 note 28 ante.

Where the application relates to goods which are situated in a member state other than that in which the import or export duties were entered in the accounts, the provisions of arts 910-912 apply: art 885(2). In the cases referred to in art 885(2), the decision-making customs authority must send the supervising customs office two copies of its request made out in writing on a form conforming to the model in Annex 112 (request for examination), accompanied by originals or copies of the application for repayment or remission and of all documents necessary to enable the supervising customs office to obtain the information or carry out the checks requested: art 910. Within two weeks of the date of receipt of the request, the supervising customs office must obtain the information or carry out the checks requested by the decision-making customs authority and enter the results obtained in the request for examination form and return the form to the decision-making customs authority together with all the documents forwarded to it: art 911(1). Where it is unable to obtain the information or carry out the checks requested within the specified two-week period, the supervising customs office must acknowledge receipt of the request submitted to it within that period by returning to the decision-making customs authority the copy of the request for examination duly annotated: art 911(2). The implementing customs office must then send a certificate that the conditions set out in art 887(1) (see note 10 infra) are satisfied to the decision-making customs authority on a form conforming to the specimen in Annex 113: art 912. For these purposes, 'implementing customs office' means the customs office which adopts the measures necessary to ensure that the decision to repay or remit the import or export duties is correctly implemented: art 877(1)(d). 9 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 886(1).

10 Depending on the circumstances, some or all of the following particulars must appear in the decision: (1) the information necessary for identifying the goods to which it applies; (2) the grounds for repayment or remission of the import or export duties and a reference to the corresponding article of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) and, where appropriate, the corresponding article of EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1); (3) the use to which the goods may be put or the destination to which they may be sent, depending on the possibilities available in the particular case under the Community Customs Code and, where appropriate, on the basis of a specific authorisation by the decision-making customs authority; (4) the time limit for completion of the formalities to which repayment or remission of the import or export duties is subject; (5) a statement indicating that the import or export duties will not be repaid or remitted until the implementing customs office has informed the decision-making customs authority that the formalities to which repayment or remission is subject have been completed; (6) particulars of any requirements to which the goods remain subject pending implementation of the decision; and (7) a notice informing the recipient that he must give the original of the decision to the implementing customs office of his choice when presenting the goods: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 886(2).

The implementing customs office must take steps to ensure, where appropriate, that the requirements referred to in art 886(2)(f) (see head (6) supra) are met, and that in all cases the goods are actually used in the manner or sent to the destination specified in the decision to repay or remit import or export duties: art 887(1). Where the decision specifies that the goods may be placed in a customs warehouse, a free zone or a free warehouse, and the recipient avails himself of this opportunity, the necessary formalities must be carried out with the implementing customs office: art 887(2). Where the decision to repay or remit duties specifies a use to which the goods are to be put or a destination to which they are to be sent which can be established only in a member state other than that in which the implementing customs office is located, proof of compliance must be furnished by production of a control copy T5 issued and used in accordance with the provisions of arts 912a-912g (as amended), and of art 887 itself: art 887(3) (amended by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(11)). When the implementing customs office has satisfied itself that the conditions set out in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 887(1) are fulfilled, it must send a certificate to that effect to the decision-making customs authority: art 887(5). UPDATE

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/322. Restrictions on repayment or remission in cases concerning tariff quotas etc.

322. Restrictions on repayment or remission in cases concerning tariff quotas etc.

Where the request for repayment or remission is based on the existence, at the time when the declaration of release for free circulation¹ was accepted, of a reduced or zero rate of import duty on the goods under a tariff² quota, a tariff ceiling or other preferential tariff arrangements, repayment or remission must be granted only on condition that, at the time of lodging the application for repayment or remission accompanied by the necessary documents:

- 754 (1) in the case of a tariff quota, its volume has not been exhausted; and
- 755 (2) in other cases, the rate of duty normally due has not been re-established³.

If these conditions are not fulfilled, repayment or remission must nevertheless be granted where the failure to apply the reduced or zero rate of duty to the goods was the result of an error on the part of the customs authorities themselves and the declaration for free circulation⁴ contained all the particulars and was accompanied by all the documents necessary for application of the reduced or zero rate⁵.

The decision-making customs authority⁶ must grant repayment or remission when: (1) the request is accompanied by a certificate of origin⁷, a movement certificate⁸, a certificate of authenticity, an internal Community transit document or any other appropriate document, indicating that the imported goods were eligible, at the time of acceptance of the declaration for free circulation, for Community treatment, preferential tariff treatment⁹ or favourable tariff treatment by reason of the nature of goods; (2) the document thus produced refers specifically to the goods in question; (3) all the conditions relating to acceptance of the document are fulfilled¹⁰; and (4) all the other conditions for the granting of the Community treatment, a preferential tariff treatment or of a favourable tariff treatment by reason of the nature of goods are fulfilled¹¹. Repayment or remission is to take place upon presentation of the goods¹². If the goods cannot be presented to the implementing customs office¹³, the decision-making customs authority must grant repayment or remission only where it has information showing unequivocally that the certificate or document produced post-clearance applies to those goods¹⁴.

Goods which, under the common agricultural policy, are entered for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay import duties under an import licence or advance fixing certificate¹⁵ are to benefit from the provisions¹⁶ granting a right to repayment or remission of duty only where the relevant customs office¹⁷ is satisfied that the necessary steps have been taken by the competent authorities to cancel the effects with regard to the certificate under which the importation took place¹⁸.

Where it is not the complete article that is exported, re-exported or destroyed or assigned to another authorised customs treatment or use, but one or more parts or components of that article, the amount to be repaid or remitted is the difference between the amount of import duties on the complete article and the amount of import duties which would have been chargeable on the remainder of the article if the latter had been entered in the unaltered state for a customs procedure involving the obligation to pay such duties on the date on which the complete article was so entered¹⁹.

1 As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante. EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 889(1), 1st para refers to a 'declaration of release for free circulation' but it is apprehended that it should read 'declaration for release for free circulation': see Pt I Title IX Ch 2 (arts 254-267); and PARA 104 et seq ante.

2 See EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 20 (as amended); and PARAS 10-11 ante.

3 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 889(1), 1st para. The condition in art 889(1), 1st para that an application for repayment is valid only for so long as the volume of the tariff quota has not been exhausted is not ultra vires art 236 (see PARAS 312-313 ante) but fairly and squarely in line with the relevant provisions of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1).

4 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 889(1), 2nd para refers to a 'declaration for free circulation' but it is apprehended that it should read 'declaration for release for free circulation': see Pt I Title IX Ch 2 (arts 254-267); and PARA 104 et seq ante.

5 Ibid art 889(1), 2nd para. The reference in art 889(1), 2nd para (not art 889(2), as the tribunal decision states) refers to errors made by the customs authorities at the time when goods enter for free circulation and when the reduced or zero rates fall to be applied, and not to errors subsequently made: Saphir Produce Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1998) Customs Decision 74 (unreported) (where, post-entry, additional quota became available).

14 EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 890, 2nd para (as substituted: see note 12 supra).

15 As a general rule, repayment or remission of duty is not to be granted where certificates for the advance fixing of levies are presented in support of the application: ibid art 891.

16 Ie EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) arts 237-239: see PARA 314 et seq ante.

17 Ie the office referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 879, which is either the customs office of entry in the accounts, or such other customs office as may be designated by the customs authorities. For the meaning of 'customs office of entry in the accounts' see PARA 313 note 3 ante.

20-345 The Community Customs Code

4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/323. Decisions on repayment or remission to be taken by the Commission.

323. Decisions on repayment or remission to be taken by the Commission.

Where the application for repayment or remission¹ is supported by evidence which might constitute a special situation resulting from circumstances in which no deception or obvious negligence may be attributed to the person concerned², the member state to which the decision-making customs authority³ belongs must transmit the case to the Commission to be settled under the prescribed procedure⁴ where: (1) the authority considers that a special situation is the result of the Commission failing in its obligations; (2) the circumstances of the case are related to the findings of a Community investigation⁵; or (3) the amount for which the person concerned may be liable in respect of one or more import or export operations but in consequence of a single special situation is 500,000 euros or more⁶.

However, such cases must not be transmitted where: (a) the Commission has already adopted a decision⁷ on a case involving comparable issues of fact and of law; or (b) the Commission is already considering a case involving comparable issues of fact and of law⁸.

The dossier submitted to the Commission must contain all the information required for full consideration⁹. It must include detailed information on the behaviour of the operator concerned, and in particular on his professional experience, good faith and diligence; and this assessment must be accompanied by all information that may demonstrate that the operator acted in good faith¹⁰. The dossier must also include a statement, signed by the applicant for repayment or remission, certifying that he has read the dossier and either stating that he has nothing to add or listing all the additional information that he considers should be included¹¹. As soon as it receives the dossier the Commission must inform the member state concerned accordingly¹². Should it be found that the information supplied by the member state is not sufficient to enable a decision to be taken on the case concerned in full knowledge of the facts, the Commission may request that additional information be supplied¹³.

Where (i) the dossier shows that there is a disagreement between the customs authority that has transmitted the dossier and the person who signed the statement referred to above as regards the account of the facts; (ii) the dossier is obviously incomplete since it contains nothing that would justify its consideration by the Commission; (iii) the dossier should not be transmitted¹⁴; (iv) the existence of a customs debt has not been established; or (v) new information relating to the dossier and of a nature to alter substantially its presentation of the facts or legal assessment has been transmitted by the customs authority to the Commission while it is considering the dossier, the Commission must return the dossier to the customs authority and the prescribed procedure¹⁵ is deemed never to have been initiated¹⁶.

10 Ibid art 905(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). An economic operator seeking repayment of import duties pursuant to this general equitable provision has a right to be heard in the course of the proceedings in which a decision will be taken on his application. That right must be secured in the first place in the relations between the person concerned and the national administration, since the provision governing the procedure for dealing with such applications provides only for contacts to take place between the person concerned and the national administration, on the one hand, and between the national administration and the Commission, on the other. The fact that no provision is made for direct contacts between the Commission's departments and the person concerned does not, however, necessarily mean that in every case where an application for repayment has been brought before it the Commission may deem itself satisfied with the information transmitted to it by the national administration, since it is also provided that the Commission may ask the member state concerned to supply additional information. The Commission must make such a request in order to ensure that the right of the person concerned to be heard is respected through the provision of additional explanations first provided by that person to the national administration and subsequently transmitted to the Commission, where the case transmitted to it by the national authorities, albeit containing a proposal to grant the application, does not appear to it to warrant a favourable decision, in particular in so far as the case does not enable it to rule out obvious negligence on the part of the person concerned. The Commission cannot make a complex legal appraisal enabling negligence to be distinguished from obvious negligence without having available to it all the relevant factual data and the explanations of the person concerned concerning them: Case T-346/94 France-Aviation v EC Commission [1995] ECR II-2841, CFI. 324. Procedure to be adopted on a decision for repayment or remission made by the Commission.

The Commission must forward to the member states a copy of the dossier¹ within 15 days of the date on which it received that dossier². After consulting a group of experts composed of representatives of all member states, meeting within the framework of the Customs Code Committee³ to consider the case in question, the Commission must decide whether or not the situation which has been considered justifies repayment or remission⁴. That decision must be taken within nine months of the date on which the case is received by the Commission⁵.

Where, at any time in the procedure so provided, the Commission intends to take a decision unfavourable towards the applicant for repayment or remission, it must communicate its objections to him in writing, together with all the documents on which it bases those objections⁶. The applicant for repayment or remission must express his point of view in writing within a period of one month from the date on which the objections were sent⁷. If he does not give his point of view within that period, he is deemed to have waived the right to express a position⁸.

The member state concerned must be notified of the decision as soon as possible and in any event within one month of the expiry of the period of nine months specified above⁹. The Commission must notify the member states of the decisions it has adopted in order to help customs authorities to reach decisions on cases involving comparable issues of fact and law¹⁰. The decision-making authority¹¹ must decide whether to grant or refuse the application made to it on the basis of the Commission's decision so notified to it¹². Where it is established by the decision that the circumstances under consideration justify repayment or remission, the Commission may specify the conditions under which the member states may repay or remit duties in cases involving comparable issues of fact and of law¹³.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(17) REPAYMENT AND REMISSION OF DUTY/325. Interest on repayment of duty.

325. Interest on repayment of duty.

Repayment by the competent authorities of amounts of import duties¹ or export duties² or of credit interest or interest on arrears collected on payment of such duties does not, as a general rule, give rise to the payment of interest by those authorities³. Interest⁴ must, however, be paid where a decision to grant a request for repayment is not implemented within three months of the date of adoption of that decision or where national provisions so stipulate⁵.

Where the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs are liable to repay an amount to any person in consequence of the payment to them by way of customs duty (including any agricultural levy of the European Community) of an amount that was not due from that person, or of any requirement to repay an amount of customs duty (including such a levy) in accordance with Community legislation⁶, then, if and to the extent that they would not be liable to do so apart from this provision, the Commissioners must pay interest to him at the prescribed rate⁷ on that amount for the applicable period⁸. The amounts that carry such interest include only so much of any amount as is the subject of a claim that the Commissioners are required to satisfy or have satisfied, and do not include any amount of interest payable under this provision itself⁹. Interest must be claimed (separately from the underlying repayment) in writing, not more than three years after the end of the applicable period to which it relates¹⁰.

1 For the meaning of 'import duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'export duties' see PARA 81 note 6 ante.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 241, 1st para.

4 The amount of such interest must be calculated in such a way that it is equivalent to the amount which would be charged for this purpose on the national money or financial market: ibid art 241, 2nd para.

5 Ibid art 241, 1st para.

6 Ie under EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) or EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1).

7 Ie at the rate applicable under the Finance Act 1996 s 197: see PARA 827 post.

8 Finance Act 1999 s 127(1) (amended by the Finance Act 2000 s 29; and by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (7)). As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 900 et seq post. The 'applicable period' is the period which begins with the thirty-first working day (ie any day other than a non-business day within the meaning of the Bills of Exchange Act 1882 s 92: see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1437) after the making of the claim for repayment of that amount, and ends with the date on which the Commissioners issue the repayment of that amount: Finance Act 1999 s 127(3) (substituted by the Interest on Repayments of Customs Duty (Applicable Period) Order 2000, SI 2000/633, art 2). In determining the applicable period no account is to be taken of any period by which the Commissioners' issue of the repayment is delayed by circumstances beyond their control, in particular by: (1) any unreasonable delay in the making of the relevant repayment claim; (2) the failure by any person to provide the Commissioners (at or before the making of any such claim or subsequently in response to a request for information by the Commissioners) with all the information required by them to enable the existence and amount of the claimant's entitlement to a repayment to be determined; and (3) the making, as part of or in association with such a claim, of a claim to anything to which the claimant has no entitlement: Finance Act 1999 s 128(1)-(5). In determining for the purposes of head (2) supra whether any period of delay is referable to a failure by any person to provide information in response to a request by the Commissioners, there is to be taken to be so referable any period which begins with the date on which the Commissioners request that person to provide information which they reasonably consider relevant to the matter to be determined; and ends with the earliest date on which it would be reasonable for the Commissioners to conclude that they have received a complete answer to their request for information, that they have received all they need in answer to their request, or that it is unnecessary for them to be provided with any information in answer to that request: s 128(6).

'Repayment' for these purposes includes the discharge by way of set-off of the Commissioners' liability to repay: ss 127(6), 129(3). Where the Commissioners have issued an amount to any person (by way of a payment of interest or a repayment of customs duty (including any agricultural levy of the European Community) or of interest on arrears of customs duty) to which that person was not entitled, and which the Commissioners are entitled to recover, that amount is recoverable as if it were customs duty: s 129(1). Such recovery must be made not more than three years after the payment or repayment was issued unless a written notice that the amount is recoverable was given to the person concerned by the Commissioners before the end of those three years: s 129(2).

9 Ibid s 127(2).

10 Ibid s 127(4), (5). The Commissioners may vary s 127 (as amended) by an order made by statutory instrument which is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of the House of Commons: s 127(9)-(11).

(18) DECISIONS RELATING TO THE APPLICATION OF CUSTOMS RULES

327. Requests for a decision.

Where a person requests that the customs authorities¹ take a decision² relating to the application of customs rules, he must supply all the information and documents required by those authorities in order to take a decision³. The decision must be taken and notified to the applicant at the earliest opportunity⁴.

Where a request for a decision is made in writing, the decision must be made within a period laid down in accordance with the existing provisions, starting on the date on which the request is received by the customs authorities; and the decision must also be notified in writing to the applicant⁵. The permitted period may, however, be exceeded where the customs authorities are unable to comply with it; in that case, those authorities must so inform the applicant before the expiry of that period, stating the grounds which justify exceeding it and indicating the further period of time which they consider necessary in order to give a ruling on the request⁶. A decision adopted is immediately enforceable⁷ by customs authorities⁸.

Decisions adopted by the customs authorities in writing which either reject requests or are detrimental to the persons to whom they are addressed must set out the grounds on which they are based and must refer to the right of appeal⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'decision' means any official act by the customs authorities pertaining to customs rules giving a ruling on a particular case, such act having legal effects on one or more specific or identifiable persons; and this term covers (inter alia) binding information within the meaning of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 12 (as substituted) (see PARA 330 post): art 4(5) (amended by EC Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(2)(a)). Where a person making a request for a decision is not in a position to provide all the documents and information necessary to give a ruling, the customs authorities must provide the documents and information at their disposal: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 2.

8 Ibid art 7.

9 Ibid art 6(3). The right of appeal is that for which provision is made in art 243 (see PARA 336 post): art 6(3). Provision may be made for art 6(3), 1st sentence to apply likewise to other decisions: art 6(4).

328. Annulment, revocation or amendment of a decision.

A decision¹ favourable to the person concerned must be annulled if it was issued on the basis of incorrect or incomplete information and the applicant knew or should reasonably have known that the information was incorrect or incomplete, and such a decision could not have been taken on the basis of correct or complete information². The persons to whom the decision was addressed must be notified of its annulment³. Annulment takes effect from the date on which the annulled decision was taken⁴.

A decision favourable to the person concerned must be revoked or amended where, in cases other than those referred to above⁵, one or more of the conditions laid down for its issue were not or are no longer fulfilled⁶. A decision favourable to the person concerned may be revoked where the person to whom it is addressed fails to fulfil an obligation imposed on him under that decision⁷. The person to whom the decision is addressed must be notified of its revocation or amendment⁸. The revocation or amendment of the decision takes effect from the date of notification; however, in exceptional cases where the legitimate interests of the person to whom the decision is addressed so require, the customs authorities may defer the date when revocation or amendment takes effect⁹.

The above provisions¹⁰ are without prejudice to national rules which stipulate that decisions are invalid or become null and void for reasons unconnected with customs legislation¹¹.

A revocation does not, however, affect goods which, at the moment of its entry into effect, have already been placed under a procedure by virtue of the revoked authorisation; but the customs authorities may require that such goods be assigned to a permitted customs-approved treatment or use within a period which they are to set: art 4. (19) INFORMATION

(i) In general

329. Requests for information.

Any person may request information concerning the application of customs legislation from the customs authorities¹. Such a request may be refused where it does not relate to an import or export operation actually envisaged². The information must be supplied to the applicant free of charge; but where special costs are incurred by the customs authorities, in particular as a result of analyses or expert reports on goods, or the return of the goods to the applicant, he may be charged the relevant amount³.

1 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 11(1), 1st para. For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante. As to the absence of any general principle of estoppel in consequence of the activities of the customs authorities of a member state see Case 385/85 SR Industries v Administration des Douanes [1986] ECR 2929, [1988] 1 CMLR 378, ECJ. This must, however, be read in the context of the restriction on post-clearance recovery which used to exist where the error derived from 'information' given by the competent authority itself. The present significantly more limited provision, ie EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 220 (as amended) (see PARA 300 ante), restricts such recovery where 'the amount of duty legally owed failed to be entered in the accounts as a result of an error on the part of the customs authorities which could not reasonably have been detected by the person liable for payment, he for his part having acted in good faith and complied with all provisions laid down by the legislation in force as regards customs declarations'. Under the old rules, it was held that the principle of legal certainty could be relied on without more by a person liable to pay duty with respect to concrete information from an authority which he had consulted in order to deal with a specific case: Case C-80/89 Erwin Behn Verpackungsbedarf GmbH v Hauptzollamt Itzehoe [1990] ECR I-2659, ECJ.

(ii) Binding Information

330. Binding information.

The customs authorities¹ must issue² binding tariff information or binding origin information on written request, acting in accordance with the committee procedure³. Binding tariff information or binding origin information is binding on the customs authorities as against the holder⁴ of the information only in respect of the tariff classification or determination of the origin of goods⁵. Binding tariff information or binding origin information is binding on the customs authorities only in respect of goods on which customs formalities⁶ are completed after the date on which the information was supplied by them⁷.

The holder of such information must be able to prove that, for tariff purposes, the goods declared correspond in every respect to those described in the information, and that, for origin purposes, the goods concerned and the circumstances determining the acquisition of origin correspond in every respect to the goods and the circumstances described in the information⁸.

1 The list of customs authorities designated by the member states to receive applications for, or to issue, binding information is to be published in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 6(5) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). For these purposes, 'binding information' means tariff information or origin information binding on the administration of all Community member states when the conditions laid down in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 6 (as substituted) (see notes 3, 8 infra) and art 7 (as substituted) (see PARA 331 post) are fulfilled: art 5(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). For the meaning of 'customs authorities' see PARA 37 note 2 ante. Applications for binding tariff information must be made by means of a form conforming to the specimen shown in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 1B (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1) art 1(16), Annex II): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 6(1), 2nd para (added by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(2)).

2 Binding information must be notified by means of a form conforming to the specimen shown in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 1 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1) art 1(15), Annex I) (binding tariff information) or EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 1A (added by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(13), Annex I; and substituted by EC Commission Regulation 1602/2000 (OJ L188, 26.7.2000, p 1) art 1(13), Annex I) (binding origin information); and the notification must indicate what particulars will be treated as confidential and the right of appeal referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 243 (see PARA 336 post) must be mentioned: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 7(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). In the case of binding tariff information, the customs authorities of the member states must, without delay, transmit to the Commission the following: (1) a copy of the application for binding tariff information (set out in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) Annex 1B (as substituted)); (2) a copy of the binding tariff information notified (copy number 2 set out in Annex 1 (as substituted)); (3) the data as given on copy number 4 set out in Annex 1 (as substituted): art 8(1) (art 8 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1) art 1(2)). In the case of binding origin information they must, without delay, transmit to the Commission the relevant details of the binding origin information notified, and such transmission must be effected by electronic means: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 8(1) (as so substituted). Where a member state so requests, the Commission must send it without delay the particulars so obtained, and such transmission must be effected by electronic means: art 8(2) (as so substituted). The electronically transmitted data of the application for binding tariff information, the binding tariff information notified and the data as given on copy number 4 of Annex 1 (as substituted), must be stored in a central database of the Commission: art 8(3) (as so substituted). The data of the binding tariff information, including any photographs, sketches, brochures and so forth, may be disclosed to the public via the internet, with the exception of the confidential information contained in boxes 3 and 8 of the binding tariff information notified: art 8(3) (as so substituted).

Where different binding information exists: (a) the Commission is, on its own initiative or at the request of the representative of a member state, to place the item on the agenda of the committee for discussion at the meeting to be held the following month or, failing that, the next meeting; (b) in accordance with the committee procedure, the Commission must adopt a measure to ensure the uniform application of nomenclature or origin rules, as applicable, as soon as possible and within six months following the meeting referred to in head (a) supra: art 9(1) (art 9 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). For these purposes, binding origin information is deemed to be different where it confers different origin on goods which fall under the same tariff heading and whose origin was determined in accordance with the same origin rules and have been obtained using the same manufacturing process: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 9(2) (as so substituted).

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(1) (art 12 substituted by European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(3)). For the meaning of 'committee procedure' see PARA 11 note 4 ante. Applications for binding information must be made in writing, either to the competent customs authorities in the member state or member states in which the information is to be used, or to the competent customs authorities in the member state in which the applicant is established: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 6(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). For these purposes, 'applicant' means: (1) in relation to tariff matters, a person who has applied to the customs authorities for binding tariff information; and (2) in relation to origin matters, a person who has applied to the customs authorities for binding origin information and has valid reasons to do so: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 5(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). An application for binding tariff information must relate to only one type of goods; and an application for binding origin information must relate to only one type of goods and one set of circumstances conferring origin: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 6(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

4 For these purposes, 'holder' means the person in whose name the binding information is issued: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 5(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

5 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(2), 1st para (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

6 In matters of origin, the formalities in question are those relating to the application of ibid arts 22, 27 (non-preferential and preferential origin of goods): see PARAS 23, 25 ante.

7 Ibid art 12(2), 2nd para (as substituted: see note 3 supra). It is not, in any event, binding on the applicant, who may dispute it, by making an appeal: see art 7(2) (as substituted); and note 2 supra. For examples of appeals from binding tariff rulings to the European Court of Justice see Case 223/84 Telefunken Fernseh und Rundfunk GmbH v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1985] ECR 3335; Case C-219/89 WeserGold GmbH & Co KG v Oberfinanzdirektion München [1991] ECR I-1895, ECJ. For a United Kingdom example of the application of the rules on binding tariff information see V Tech Electronics (UK) plc v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 19 (unreported).

8 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(3) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). As to the particulars which must be included in an application see EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 6(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1); and amended by EC Commission Regulation 2286/2003 (OJ L343, 31.12.2003, p 1) art 1(1)). Where the customs authorities consider that the application does not contain all the particulars they require to give an informed opinion, they must ask the applicant to supply the missing information: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 6(4) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). The time limits of three months and 150 days referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 7 (as substituted) (see PARA 331 post) run from the moment when the customs authorities have all the information needed to reach a decision; and the customs authorities must notify the applicant that the application has been received and the date from which the time limit will run: art 6(4) (as so substituted).

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(19) INFORMATION/(ii) Binding Information/331. Time limit for providing binding information.

331. Time limit for providing binding information.

Binding information¹ must be notified to the applicant² as soon as possible³. In the case of tariff matters, if it has not been possible to notify binding tariff information to the applicant within three months of acceptance of the application, the customs authorities⁴ must contact the applicant to explain the reason for the delay and indicate when they expect to be able to notify the information⁵. In the case of origin matters, information must be notified within a time limit of 150 days from the date when the application was accepted⁶.

332. Legal effect of binding information.

Binding information¹ may be invoked² only by the holder of the information³.

So far as tariff matters are concerned, the customs authorities⁴ may require the holder, when fulfilling customs formalities, to inform the customs authorities that he is in possession of binding tariff information in respect of the goods being cleared through customs⁵.

So far as origin matters are concerned, the authorities responsible for checking the applicability of binding origin information may require the holder, when completing any formalities, to inform them that he is in possession of binding origin information covering the goods in respect of which the formalities are being completed⁶.

The holder of binding information may use it in respect of particular goods only where it is established:

756 (1) in relation to tariff matters, to the satisfaction of the customs authorities⁷, that the goods in question conform in all respects to those described in the information presented⁸; and

757 (2) in relation to origin matters, to the satisfaction of the authorities responsible for checking the applicability of binding origin information⁹, that the goods in question and the circumstances determining their origin conform in all respect to those described in the information presented¹⁰.

Binding tariff information supplied by the customs authorities of a member state since 1 January 1991 becomes binding on the competent authorities of all the member states under the same conditions¹¹.

333. Period of validity of binding information.

Binding information¹ is valid for a period of six years in the case of tariffs and three years in the case of origin from the date of issue; but it must be annulled² where it is based on inaccurate or incomplete information from the applicant³.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(19) INFORMATION/(ii) Binding Information/334. Circumstances in which binding tariff information ceases to be valid.

334. Circumstances in which binding tariff information ceases to be valid.

Binding tariff information ceases to be valid¹:

758 (1) where a regulation is adopted² and the information no longer conforms to the law thereby laid down³;

759 (2) where it is no longer compatible with the interpretation of one of the specified nomenclatures⁴:

68. (a) at Community level, by reason of amendments to the explanatory notes to the Combined Nomenclature or by a judgment of the Court of Justice of the European Communities; or

69. (b) at international level, by reason of a classification opinion or an amendment of the explanatory notes to the Nomenclature of the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System⁵; or

760 (3) where it is revoked or amended⁶, provided that the revocation or amendment is notified to the holder⁷.

1 Where, pursuant to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 12(5) (as substituted) (see the text and notes 3-7 infra), binding information is void or ceases to be valid, the customs authority which supplied it must notify the Commission as soon as possible: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 13 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

2 In Case 90/77 Hellmut Stimming KG v EC Commission [1978] ECR 995, ECJ, the court held that official rulings as to tariff classification are issued for general purposes and are of a purely abstract nature, ie without any relation to specific transactions, and so do not oblige the Community authorities, in any adjustments of the rules concerned which they might consider necessary, to take account of any expectations which such documents might have engendered among interested parties. See also Case C-315/96 Lopex Export GmbH v Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas [1998] ECR I-317, ECJ (the aim of binding tariff information is to enable the trader to proceed with certainty where there are doubts as to the classification of goods in the existing customs nomenclature, thereby protecting him against any subsequent change in the position adopted by the customs authorities with regard to the classification of the goods; but such information is not aimed at, nor can it have the effect of, guaranteeing that the tariff heading to which the trader refers will not subsequently be amended by a measure adopted by the Community legislature. Accordingly, in so far it is provided that binding tariff information ceases to be valid where, as a result of the adoption of a regulation amending the customs nomenclature, it no longer conforms to Community law as thus established, not only is it in keeping with the requirements inherent in the principle of legal certainty, but it also precludes the trader from being able to entertain, on the sole basis of binding tariff information, a legitimate expectation that the tariff heading in question will not be amended by a measure adopted by the Community legislature. That does not, however, prevent the principles of the protection of legitimate expectations and legal certainty from imposing on the Community legislature, when the customs nomenclature is amended, the obligation to protect, by means of appropriate measures, traders who would otherwise sustain unforeseeable and irreparable damage, whether or not they are the addressees of binding tariff information).

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(a)(i) (art 12 substituted by EC Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(3)). The date on which binding information ceases to be valid in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(a)(i) (as substituted) and art 12(5)(a)(ii) (as substituted) (see the text and notes 4-5 infra) is the date of publication of those measures or, in the case of international measures, the date of the Commission communication in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series): EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(a), 2nd para (as so substituted).

On adoption of one of the acts or measures referred to in art 12(5) (as substituted), the customs authorities must take the necessary steps to ensure that binding information is thenceforth issued only in conformity with the act or measure in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(1) (art 12 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). For these purposes, the date to be taken into consideration is: (1) for the regulations provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(a)(i) (as substituted) concerning amendments to the customs nomenclature, the date of their applicability; and (2) for the regulations provided for in art 12(5)(a)(i) (as substituted) and establishing or affecting the classification of goods in the customs nomenclature, the date of their publication in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('L' series): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(2)(a), 1st, 2nd indents (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

The Commission must communicate the dates of adoption of these measures and acts to the customs authorities as soon as possible: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

The holder of binding information which ceases to be valid pursuant to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(a)(i) (as substituted) and art 12(5)(a)(ii) (as substituted) (see the text and notes 4-5 infra) may still use that information for a period of six months from the date of publication or notification, provided that he concluded binding contracts for the purchase or sale of the goods in question, on the basis of the binding information, before that measure was adopted: art 12(6), 1st para (as so substituted). However, in the case of products for which an import, export or advance-fixing certificate is submitted when customs formalities are carried out, the period of six months is replaced by the period of validity of the certificate: art 12(6), 1st para (as so substituted). In the case of art 12(5)(a)(i) (as substituted), the regulation or agreement may lay down a period within which art 12(6), 1st para (as substituted) is to apply: art 12(6), 2nd para (as so substituted).

When a holder of binding information which has ceased to be valid for reasons referred to in art 12(5) (as substituted) wishes to make use of the possibility of invoking such information during a given period pursuant to art 12(6) (as substituted), he must notify the customs authorities, providing any necessary supporting documents to enable a check to be made that the relevant conditions have been satisfied: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 14(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). In exceptional cases where the Commission, in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(7), 2nd para (as substituted) (see PARA 335 note 2 post) adopts a measure derogating from the provisions of art 12(6) (as substituted), or where the conditions referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 14(1) (as substituted) concerning the possibility of continuing to invoke binding tariff information or binding origin information have not been fulfilled, the customs authorities must notify the holder in writing: art 14(2) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

4 le one of the nomenclatures referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 20(6): see PARA 11 ante.

5 Ibid art 12(5)(a)(ii) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). As to the date on which binding information ceases to be so valid, and as to the right of the holder of binding information which so ceases to be valid to use that information for a period of six months from the date of publication or notification, see note 3 supra.

The Nomenclature of the Harmonised Commodity Description and Coding System (see PARA 12 et seq ante) is that adopted by the World Customs Organisation established in 1952 under the name 'the Customs Co-operation Council'. Historically, whilst such explanatory notes were a 'valuable aid' to the interpretation of the tariff, they were not considered to have legally binding force: see eg Case C-35/93 Develop Dr Eisbein GmbH & Co v Hauptzollamt Stuttgart-West [1994] ECR I-2655, ECJ. This might appear no longer to be so, in light of the terms of EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5) (as substituted); but the opposite approach was reaffirmed in Case C-201/96 Laboratoires de Thérapeutique Moderne v Fonds d'Intervention et de Régularisation du Marché du Sucre [1997] ECR I-6147, ECJ; Case C-270/96 Laboratoires Sarget SA v Fonds d'Intervention et de Régularisation du Marché du Sucre [1998] ECR I-1121, ECJ. It is also the approach which has consistently been adopted by the VAT and duties tribunal: see eg Tratec UK Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1995) Customs Decision 2 (unreported); Envopak Group Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1995) Customs Decision 7 (unreported); Brite Sparks Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs (1996) Customs Decision 11 (unreported).

On adoption of one of the acts or measures referred to in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5) (as substituted), the customs authorities must take the necessary steps to ensure that binding information is thenceforth issued only in conformity with the act or measure in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(1) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). For these purposes, the date to be taken into consideration is: (1) for the regulations provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(a)(ii) (as substituted) concerning amendments to the customs nomenclature, the date of their publication in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series); (2) for judgments of the Court of Justice of the European Communities provided for in art 12(5)(a)(ii) (as substituted), the date of the judgment; and (3) for the measures provided for in art 12(5)(a)(ii) (as substituted) concerning the adoption of a classification opinion, or amendments to the explanatory notes to the Harmonised System Nomenclature by the World Customs Organisation, the date of the Commission communication in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series): EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(2)(a), 3rd-5th indents (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

The Commission must communicate the dates of adoption of these measures and acts to the customs authorities as soon as possible: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(3) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

6 le in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 9: see PARA 328 ante.

UPDATE

20-345 The Community Customs Code

Community Customs Code replaced: Community Customs Code (Modernised Customs Code) found in European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 450/2008 (OJ L145, 4.6.2008, p 1). The new Code takes account of changes such as the expiry of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community and the entry into force of the 2003 and 2005 Acts of Accession, as well as the Amendment to the International Convention on the Simplification and Harmonisation of Customs Procedures (the revised Kyoto Convention): 2008 Regulation, preamble, 3rd recital. The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. The articles on the basis of which implementing provisions will be adopted are already applicable; as to the application of the implementing provisions themselves and all other provisions of the new Code see art 188.

334 Circumstances in which binding tariff information ceases to be valid

NOTE 2--As to the aim of binding tariff information see Matalan Retail Ltd v Revenue and Customs Comrs [2009] EWHC 2046 (Ch), [2009] STC 2638.

NOTE 5--As to the exercise of rights and obligations akin to membership ad interim by the European Community in the World Customs Organisation, see EC Council Decision 2007/668 (OJ L274, 18.10.2007, p 11).

335. Circumstances in which binding origin information ceases to be valid.

Binding origin information ceases to be valid¹:

- 761 (1) where a regulation is adopted or an agreement is concluded by the Community and the information no longer conforms to the law thereby laid down²;
- 762 (2) where it is no longer compatible with:

- 70. (a) at Community level, the explanatory notes and opinions adopted for the purposes of interpreting the rules or with a judgment of the Court of Justice of the European Communities; and
- 71. (b) at international level, the Agreement on Rules of Origin established in the World Trade Organisation or with the explanatory notes or an origin opinion adopted for the interpretation of that Agreement³;

- 763 (3) where it is revoked or amended⁴, provided that the holder has been informed in advance⁵.

1 Where, pursuant to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 12(5) (as substituted) (see the text and notes 2-5 infra), binding information is void or ceases to be valid, the customs authority which supplied it must notify the Commission as soon as possible: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 13 (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(b)(i) (art 12 substituted by EC Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1) art 1(3)). The date on which binding information ceases to be valid in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(b)(i) (as substituted) and art 12(5)(b)(ii) (as substituted) (see the text and note 3 infra) is the date indicated when the measures are published or, in the case of international measures, the date shown in the Commission communication in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series): EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(b), 2nd para (as so substituted).

On adoption of one of the acts or measures referred to in art 12(5) (as substituted), the customs authorities must take the necessary steps to ensure that binding information is thenceforth issued only in conformity with the act or measure in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(1) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). For these purposes, the date to be taken into consideration for the regulations provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(b)(i) (as substituted) concerning the determination of the origin of goods and the rules provided for in art 12(5)(b)(ii) (as substituted) (see the text and note 3 infra) is the date of their applicability: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(2)(b), 1st indent (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

The Commission must communicate the dates of adoption of these measures and acts to the customs authorities as soon as possible: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(3) (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

The holder of binding information which ceases to be valid pursuant to EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(b)(i) (as substituted) and art 12(5)(b)(ii) (as substituted) (see the text and note 3 infra) may still use that information for a period of six months from the date of publication or notification, provided that he concluded binding contracts for the purchase or sale of the goods in question, on the basis of the binding information, before that measure was adopted: art 12(6), 1st para (as so substituted). However, in the case of products for which an import, export or advance-fixing certificate is submitted when customs formalities are carried out, the period of six months is replaced by the period of validity of the certificate: art 12(6), 1st para (as so substituted). In the case of art 12(5)(b)(i) (as substituted), the regulation or agreement may lay down a period within which art 12(6), 1st para (as substituted) is to apply: art 12(6), 2nd para (as so substituted).

When a holder of binding information which has ceased to be valid for reasons referred to in art 12(5) (as substituted) wishes to make use of the possibility of invoking such information during a given period pursuant to art 12(6) (as substituted), he must notify the customs authorities, providing any necessary supporting documents to enable a check to be made that the relevant conditions have been satisfied: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 14(1) (art 14 substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)). In exceptional cases where the Commission, in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(7), 2nd para (as substituted) adopts a measure derogating from the provisions of art 12(6) (as substituted), or where the conditions referred to in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 14(1) (as substituted) concerning the possibility of continuing to invoke binding tariff information or binding origin information have not been fulfilled, the customs authorities must notify the holder in writing: art 14(2) (as so substituted).

The classification or determination of origin in binding information may be applied, on the conditions laid down in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(6) (as substituted), solely for the purpose of: (1) determining import or export duties; (2) calculating export refunds and any other amounts granted for imports or exports as part of the common agricultural policy; (3) using import, export or advance-fixing certificates which are submitted when formalities are carried out for acceptance of the customs declaration concerning the goods in question, provided that such certificates were issued on the basis of the information concerned: art 12(7), 1st para (as so substituted). In addition, in exceptional cases where the smooth operation of the arrangements laid down under the common agricultural policy may be jeopardised, it may be decided to derogate from art 12(6) (as substituted) in accordance with the procedure laid down in EC Council Regulation 136/66 (OJ 1966 p 3025 (S Edn 1965-66, p 221)) art 38 on the establishment of a common organisation of the market in oils and fats and in the corresponding articles in other regulations on the common organisation of markets: EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(7), 2nd para (as so substituted).

3 Ibid art 12(5)(b)(ii) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). As to the date on which binding information ceases to be so valid, and as to the right of the holder of binding information which so ceases to be valid to use that information for a period of six months from the date of publication or notification, see note 2 supra.

On adoption of one of the acts or measures referred to in art 12(5) (as substituted), the customs authorities must take the necessary steps to ensure that binding information is thenceforth issued only in conformity with the act or measure in question: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(1) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). For these purposes, the date to be taken into consideration is: (1) for the measures provided for in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 12(5)(b)(ii) (as substituted) concerning amendments to the explanatory notes and opinions adopted at Community level, the date of their publication in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series); (2) for judgments of the Court of Justice of the European Communities provided for in art 12(5)(b)(ii) (as substituted), the date of the judgment; (3) for measures provided for in art 12(5)(b)(ii) (as substituted) concerning opinions on origin or explanatory notes adopted by the World Trade Organisation, the date given in the Commission communication in the Official Journal of the European Communities ('C' series); and (4) in the case of the measures provided for in art 12(5)(b)(ii) (as substituted) concerning the Annex to the World Trade Organisation Agreement on rules of origin and those adopted under international agreements, the date of their applicability: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(2)(b), 2nd-4th indents (substituted by EC Commission Regulation 12/97 (OJ L9, 13.1.97, p 1) art 1(1)).

The Commission must communicate the dates of adoption of these measures and acts to the customs authorities as soon as possible: EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 12(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

4 Ibid in accordance with EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) art 9: see PARA 328 ante.

5 Ibid art 12(5)(b)(iii) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

(20) APPEALS

336. Right of appeal.

Any person has the right to appeal against decisions taken by the customs authorities¹ which relate to the application of customs legislation, and which concern him directly and individually². In addition, any person who has applied to the customs authorities for a decision relating to the application of customs legislation and who has not obtained a ruling on that request within the prescribed period³ is entitled to exercise the right of appeal⁴.

The appeal must be lodged in the member state where the decision has been taken or applied for⁵.

The rules in the Community Customs Code relating to appeals⁶ do not apply to appeals lodged with a view to the annulment or revision of a decision taken by the customs authorities on the basis of criminal law⁷.

337. Exercise of the right of appeal.

The right of appeal¹ may be exercised:

764 (1) initially, before the customs authorities² designated for that purpose by the member states³; and

765 (2) subsequently, before an independent body, which may be a judicial authority or an equivalent specialised body, according to the provisions in force in the member states⁴.

The provisions for the implementation of the appeals procedure are to be determined by the member states⁵.

3 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 243(2)(a). As to the right of appeal by means of a review by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 1240 et seq post.

4 Ibid art 243(2)(b). Under United Kingdom domestic law, the right of appeal from the review of the Commissioners is to a VAT and duties tribunal: see PARA 1255 et seq post. There is, however, some doubt whether the provisions of the Finance Act 1994 (which in many cases offers only a judicial review procedure rather than a full appeal) effectively implement the rights of appeal enshrined in the Community Customs Code: see the contentions of the parties on the matter in Shaneel Enterprises Ltd v Customs and Excise Comrs [1996] V & DR 23 (where the VAT and duties tribunal was not required to resolve the issue).

338. Effect of lodging an appeal.

The lodging of an appeal¹ does not cause implementation of the disputed decision to be suspended². The customs authorities³ must, however, suspend implementation of such a decision in whole or in part where they have good reason to believe that the disputed decision is inconsistent with customs legislation or that irreparable damage is to be feared for the person concerned⁴.

Where the disputed decision has the effect of causing import duties⁵ or export duties⁶ to be charged, suspension of implementation of that decision is to be subject to the existence or lodging of a security⁷. Such security need not be required, however, where such a requirement would be likely, owing to the debtor's⁸ circumstances, to cause serious economic or social difficulties⁹.

1 As to the right of appeal see PARA 336 ante; and as to the exercise of the right of appeal see PARA 337 ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') art 244, 1st para. Article 244 is not applicable to demands for repayment of export refunds, which constitute the external aspect of the common agricultural pricing policy within the Community and cannot, therefore, be regarded as measures governed by customs rules. Implementation of a national administrative decision based on a Community act may be suspended by a national court only if certain conditions are satisfied, ie serious doubts must be entertained by the national court as to the validity of the Community act; if the validity of the contested act is not already in issue before the European Court of Justice, it must refer the question to that court; there must be urgency, ie the interim relief must be necessary to avoid serious and irreparable damage from being caused to the party seeking the relief; and due account of the Community interest must be taken by the national court. It is for the national court to decide, in accordance with its own rules of procedure, the most appropriate way of obtaining all relevant information on the Community act in question. In its assessment of all those conditions, any decisions of the European Court of Justice or the court of first instance ruling on the lawfulness of the Community act or on an application for measures seeking similar interim relief at Community level must be respected by the national court: Case C-334/95 Krüger GmbH & Co KG v Hauptzollamt Hamburg-Jonas [1997] ECR I-4517, ECJ.

The new Code streamlines customs procedures and takes into account the fact that electronic declarations and processing are the rule and paper-based declarations and processing are the exception: preamble, 3rd recital. 342. Time limit for the retention of records.

Any person directly or indirectly involved in the operations concerned for the purposes of trade in goods who may be required to provide the customs authorities¹ with all the requisite documents and information² must keep those documents for the purposes of control by the customs authorities, for the period laid down in the provisions in force³ and for at least three calendar years, irrespective of the medium used⁴. That period runs from the end of the year in which:

- 766 (1) in the case of goods released for free circulation⁵ in circumstances other than those referred to in head (2) below, or goods declared for export⁶, from the end of the year in which the declarations for release for free circulation or export are accepted;
- 767 (2) in the case of goods released for free circulation at a reduced or zero rate of import duty⁷ on account of their end-use⁸, from the end of the year in which they cease to be subject to customs supervision⁹;
- 768 (3) in the case of goods placed under another customs procedure¹⁰, from the end of the year in which the customs procedure concerned is completed;
- 769 (4) in the case of goods placed in a free zone¹¹ or free warehouse¹², from the end of the year on which they leave the undertaking concerned¹³.

Where a check carried out by the customs authorities in respect of a customs debt¹⁴ shows that the relevant entry in the accounts has to be corrected, the documents must be kept¹⁵ beyond the time limit provided for in the above provisions, for a period sufficient to permit the correction to be made and checked¹⁶.

(24) COMMON COMMERCIAL POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY

(i) In general

By establishing a customs union between themselves, member states have declared that they aim to contribute, in the common interest, to the harmonious development of world trade, the progressive abolition of restrictions on international trade and the lowering of customs barriers¹. The common commercial policy is to be based on uniform principles, particularly in regard to changes in tariff rates, the conclusion of tariff and trade agreements, and the achievement of uniformity in measures of liberalisation, export policy and measures to protect trade, such as those to be taken in the event of dumping or subsidies². Pursuant to these principles, the EC Council has made regulations on protection against dumped imports from countries not members of the European Community³ and on protection against subsidised imports from countries not members of the European Community⁴.

1 Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) (the 'EC Treaty') art 131, 1st para (art 131 renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). The common commercial policy must take into account the favourable effect which the abolition of customs duties between member states may have on the increase in the competitive strength of undertakings in those states: EC Treaty art 131, 2nd para (as so renumbered).

2 Ibid art 133(1) (art 133 renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam (OJ C340, 10.11.97, p 1)). To this end the Commission is to submit proposals to the Council for implementing the common commercial policy: EC Treaty art 133(2) (as so renumbered).

(ii) Anti-dumping Duties

348. In general.

An anti-dumping duty may be applied to any dumped product whose release for free circulation¹ in the Community causes injury². A product is to be considered as being dumped if its export price to the Community is less than a comparable price³ for the like product⁴, in the ordinary course of trade, as established for the exporting country⁵.

Provisional or definitive anti-dumping duties are to be imposed by regulation, and collected by member states in the form, at the rate specified and according to the other criteria laid down in the regulation imposing such duties; these duties are also to be collected independently of the customs duties, taxes and other charges normally imposed on imports⁶. No product is, however, to be subject to both anti-dumping and countervailing duties⁷ for the purpose of dealing with one and the same situation arising from dumping or export subsidisation⁸.

1 As to release of goods for free circulation see PARA 104 et seq ante.

2 EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 1(1). For the meaning of 'injury' see PARA 354 note 1 post. Special provisions, in particular with regard to the common definition of the concept of origin, as contained in EC Council Regulation 2913/92 (OJ L302, 19.10.92, p 1) (the 'Community Customs Code') (amended by the Fourth Act of Accession (OJ C241, 29.8.94, p 1), as adjusted by EC Council Decision 95/1 (OJ L1, 1.1.95, p 1); European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 82/97 (OJ L17, 21.1.97, p 1)) (see PARA 22 et seq ante) may be adopted pursuant to EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended): art 14(3).

Where the Commission considers that a combination of anti-dumping or anti-subsidy measures with safeguard tariff measures on the same imports could lead to effects greater than is desirable in terms of the Community's trade defence policy, it may, after consultation of the Advisory Committee established by art 15 (see PARA 349 note 11 post) or by EC Council Regulation 2026/97 (OJ L288, 21.10.97, p 1) art 25 (see PARA 377 post) propose to the EC Council that, acting by simple majority, it adopt such of the following measures as it deems appropriate: (1) measures to amend, suspend or repeal existing anti-dumping and/or anti-subsidy measures; (2) measures to exempt imports in whole or in part from anti-dumping or countervailing duties which would otherwise be payable; (3) any other special measures considered appropriate in the circumstances: EC Council Regulation 452/2003 (OJ L69, 13.3.2003, p 8) art 1(1). Any such amendment, suspension or exemption must be limited in time and must apply only when the relevant safeguard measures are in force: art 1(2).

3 As to the carrying out of the comparison see PARA 353 post.

4 For these purposes, the term 'like product' is to be interpreted as meaning a product which is identical, ie alike in all respects, to the product under consideration, or, in the absence of such a product, another product which, although not alike in all respects, has characteristics closely resembling those of the product under consideration: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 1(4).

5 Ibid art 1(2). The exporting country is normally the country of origin: art 1(3). It may, however, be an intermediate country, except where eg the products are merely transhipped through that country, or the products concerned are not produced in that country, or there is no comparable price for them in that country: art 1(3).

Since anti-dumping measures by their nature focus on particular products from a specified geographical area and their application accordingly depends on the origin of the goods, a change in the name or political organisation of the geographical area referred to as the country of origin or of export in a decision imposing a provisional or definitive anti-dumping duty has no impact on the economic purpose of the duty imposed and cannot, therefore, by itself remove products originating in that geographical area from the duty field of application. If a supplier whose products were being dumped could avoid anti-dumping duties solely because the authorities of the territory in which he was situated had declared it independent, the anti-dumping measures could well fall short of their objective, which is to shield an established Community industry from injury. Even if, as a matter of public international law, the supplier came within the jurisdiction of a new state, that does not mean that his dumping practices would cease to injure Community industry: Case C-177/96 Belgium v Banque Indosuez [1997] ECR I-5659, [1998] 1 CMLR 653, ECJ.

7 As to countervailing duties see PARA 367 et seq post.

8 EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 14(1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(24) COMMON COMMERCIAL POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY/(ii) Anti-dumping Duties/349. Initiation of an anti-dumping investigation.

349. Initiation of an anti-dumping investigation.

As a general rule¹, an investigation to determine the existence, degree and effect of any alleged dumping is to be initiated upon a written complaint² by any natural or legal person, or any association not having legal personality, acting on behalf of the Community industry³. However, where, in the absence of any complaint, a member state is in possession of sufficient evidence of dumping and of resultant injury to the Community industry, it must immediately communicate such evidence to the Commission⁴. The complaint must include evidence of dumping, injury and a causal link between the allegedly dumped imports and the alleged injury⁵. The Commission must, as far as possible, examine the accuracy and adequacy of the evidence provided in the complaint to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to justify the initiation of an investigation⁶.

An investigation must not be initiated unless it has been determined, on the basis of an examination as to the degree of support for, or opposition to, the complaint expressed by Community producers of the like product, that the complaint has been made by or on behalf of the Community industry⁷. The authorities must avoid, unless a decision has been made to initiate an investigation, any publicising of the complaint seeking the initiation of an investigation although, after receipt of a properly documented complaint, and before proceeding to initiate an investigation, the government of the exporting country concerned must be notified⁸. The evidence of both dumping and injury are to be considered simultaneously in the decision on whether or not to initiate an investigation, and a complaint must be rejected where there is insufficient evidence of either dumping or of injury to justify proceeding with the case; but proceedings must not be initiated against countries whose imports represent a market share of below 1 per cent, unless such countries collectively account for 3 per cent or more of Community consumption⁹.

The complaint may be withdrawn prior to initiation of an investigation, in which case it is considered not to have been lodged¹⁰.

Where, after consultation¹¹, it is apparent that there is sufficient evidence to justify initiating a proceeding, the Commission must do so within 45 days of the lodging of the complaint and must publish a notice in the Official Journal of the European Communities; but where insufficient evidence has been presented, the complainant must, after consultation, be so informed within 45 days of the date on which the complaint is lodged with the Commission¹².

An anti-dumping investigation must not hinder the procedures of customs clearance¹³.

1 In special circumstances, an investigation may be initiated without a written complaint having been received: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 5(6). If a decision to do so is made, it must be done on the basis of sufficient evidence of dumping, injury and a causal link (as described in art 5(2): see the text and note 5 infra) to justify such initiation: art 5(6). For the meaning of 'dumping' see PARA 348 ante; and for the meaning of 'injury' see PARA 354 note 1 post.

2 The complaint may be submitted to the Commission, or to a member state, which must forward it to the Commission: ibid art 5(1), 2nd para. The Commission must send member states a copy of any complaint it receives: art 5(1), 2nd para. The complaint is deemed to have been lodged on the first working day following its delivery to the Commission by registered mail or the issuing of an acknowledgment of receipt by the Commission: art 5(1), 2nd para.

3 Ibid art 5(1), 1st para. For the meaning of 'Community industry' see PARA 350 post.

4 Ibid art 5(1), 3rd para.

5 Ibid art 5(2). The complaint must also contain such information as is reasonably available to the complainant on the following matters: (1) identity of the complainant and a description of the volume and value of the Community production of the like product by the complainant; where a written complaint is made on behalf of the Community industry, the complaint must identify the industry on behalf of which the complaint is made by a list of all known Community producers of the like product (or associations of Community producers of the like product) and, to the extent possible, a description of the volume and value of Community production of the like product accounted for by such producers; (2) a complete description of the allegedly dumped product, the names of the country or countries of origin or export in question, the identity of each known exporter or foreign producer and a list of known persons importing the product in question; (3) information on prices at which the product in question is sold when destined for consumption in the domestic markets of the country or countries of origin or export (or, where appropriate, information on the prices at which the product is sold from the country or countries of origin or export to a third country or countries or on the constructed value of the product) and information on export prices or, where appropriate, on the prices at which the product is first resold to an independent buyer in the Community; and (4) information on changes in the volume of the allegedly dumped imports, the effect of those imports on prices of the like product on the Community market and the consequent impact of the imports on the Community industry, as demonstrated by relevant factors and indices having a bearing on the state of the Community industry, such as those listed in art 3(3), (5) (see PARA 354 post): art 5(2)(a)-(d). For the meaning of 'like product' see PARA 348 note 4 ante.

6 Ibid art 5(3).

7 Ibid art 5(4). The complaint is to be considered to have been made by or on behalf of the Community industry if it is supported by those Community producers whose collective output constitutes more than 50% of the total production of the like product produced by that portion of the Community industry expressing either support for or opposition to the complaint; but no investigation is to be initiated when Community producers expressly supporting the complaint account for less than 25% of total production of the like product produced by the Community industry: art 5(4).

8 Ibid art 5(5).

9 Ibid art 5(7).

10 Ibid art 5(8).

11 Any consultations provided for in EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended) are to take place within an Advisory Committee, which is to consist of representatives of each member state, with a representative of the Commission as chairman: art 15(1). Consultations are to be held immediately at the request of a member state or on the initiative of the Commission and in any event within a period of time which allows the time limits set by EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended) to be adhered to: art 15(1). The Advisory Committee must meet when convened by its chairman, who must provide the member states, as promptly as possible, but no later than 10 working days before the meeting, with all relevant information: art 15(2) (substituted by EC Council Regulation 461/2004 (OJ L77, 13.3.2004, p 12) art 1(14)). Where necessary, consultation may be in writing only; in that event, the Commission must notify the member states and must specify a period within which they are entitled to express their opinions or to request an oral consultation which the chairman must arrange, provided that such oral consultation can be held within a period of time which allows the time limits set by EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended) to be adhered to: art 15(3). Consultation is to cover, in particular: (1) the existence of dumping and the methods of establishing the dumping margin; (2) the existence and extent of injury; (3) the causal link between the dumped imports and injury; (4) the measures which, in the circumstances, are appropriate to prevent or remedy the injury caused by dumping and the ways and means of putting such measures into effect: art 15(4).

12 Ibid art 5(9). The notice of initiation of the proceedings must: (1) announce the initiation of an investigation, indicate the product and countries concerned, give a summary of the information received, and provide that all relevant information is to be communicated to the Commission; (2) state the periods within which interested parties may make themselves known, present their views in writing and submit information if such views and information are to be taken into account during the investigation; and (3) state the period within which interested parties may apply to be heard by the Commission in accordance with art 6(5) (see PARA 351 post): art 5(10). The Commission must advise the exporters, importers and representative associations of importers or exporters known to it to be concerned, as well as representatives of the exporting country and the complainants, of the initiation of the proceedings and, with due regard to the protection of confidential information, provide the full text of the written complaint received pursuant to art 5(1) (see the text and notes 1-4 supra) to the known exporters and to the authorities of the exporting country, and make it available upon request to other interested parties involved: art 5(11). Where the number of exporters involved is particularly high, the full text of the written complaint may instead be provided only to the authorities of the exporting country or to the relevant trade association: art 5(11).

350. Meaning of 'Community industry'.

The term 'Community industry' is to be interpreted as referring to the Community producers as a whole of the like products¹ or to those of them whose collective output of the products constitutes a major proportion² of the total Community production of those products, except that:

- 772 (1) when producers are related to the exporters or importers³ or are themselves importers of the allegedly dumped product, the term 'Community industry' may be interpreted as referring to the rest of the producers;
 - 773 (2) in exceptional circumstances, the territory of the Community may, for the production in question, be divided into two or more competitive markets and the producers within each market may be regarded as a separate industry if:
- 46
- 72. (a) the producers within such a market sell all or almost all of their production of the product in question in that market; and
 - 73. (b) the demand in that market is not to any substantial degree supplied by producers of the product in question located elsewhere in the Community⁴.
- 47

In such circumstances, injury⁵ may be found to exist even where a major portion of the total Community industry is not injured, provided that there is a concentration of dumped imports into such an isolated market and provided further that the subsidised imports are causing injury to the producers of all or almost all of the production within such a market⁶.

1 For the meaning of 'like product' see PARA 348 note 4 ante.

2 I.e. as defined in EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 5(4): see PARA 349 ante.

3 For these purposes, producers are considered to be related to exporters or importers only if: (1) one of them directly or indirectly controls the other; or (2) both of them are directly or indirectly controlled by a third person; or (3) together they directly or indirectly control a third person, provided that there are grounds for believing or suspecting that the effect of the relationship is such as to cause the producer concerned to behave differently from non-related producers: ibid art 4(2). For this purpose, one person is deemed to control another when the former is legally or operationally in a position to exercise restraint or direction over the latter: art 4(2).

4 Ibid art 4(1). Where the Community industry has been interpreted as referring to the producers in a certain region, the exporters are to be given an opportunity to offer undertakings pursuant to art 8 (see PARAS 357-358 post) in respect of the region concerned: art 4(3). In such cases, when evaluating the Community interest of the measures, special account is to be taken of the interest of the region: art 4(3). If an adequate undertaking is not offered promptly or if the situations set out in art 8(9), (10) (see PARA 358 post) apply, a provisional or definitive duty may be imposed in respect of the Community as a whole: art 4(3). In such cases, the duties may, if practicable, be limited to specific producers or exporters: art 4(3).

5 The provisions of ibid art 3(8) (determination of injury: see PARA 354 post) apply to art 4: art 4(4).

6 Ibid art 4(1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(24) COMMON COMMERCIAL POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY/(ii) Anti-dumping Duties/351. The anti-dumping investigation.

351. The anti-dumping investigation.

Following the initiation of the proceeding, the Commission, acting in co-operation with the member states, must commence an investigation¹ at Community level, covering both dumping² and injury³ and investigating these simultaneously; and, for the purpose of a representative finding, an investigation period is to be selected which, in the case of dumping, must normally cover a period of not less than six months immediately prior to the initiation of the proceeding, and information relating to a period subsequent to the investigation period is normally not to be taken into account⁴.

The Commission may request member states to supply information; and member states must take whatever steps are necessary in order to give effect to such requests⁵. They must send the Commission the information⁶ requested together with the results of all inspections, checks or investigations carried out⁷. The Commission may request member states to carry out all necessary checks and inspections, particularly amongst importers, traders and Community producers, and to carry out investigations in third countries, provided that the firms concerned give their consent and that the government of the country in question has been officially notified and raises no objection, and member states must take whatever steps are necessary in order to give effect to such requests from the Commission; and officials of the Commission are to be authorised, if the Commission or a member state so requests, to assist the officials of member states in carrying out their duties⁸.

Each interested party which has made itself known in accordance with the prescribed procedure⁹ must be heard if it has, within the period prescribed in the notice published in the Official Journal of the European Communities, made a written request for a hearing showing that it is an interested party likely to be affected by the result of the proceeding and that there are particular reasons why it should be heard¹⁰. Opportunities are, on request, to be provided for the importers, exporters, representatives of the government of the exporting country and the complainants, which have made themselves known in accordance with the prescribed procedure¹¹ to meet those parties with adverse interests, so that opposing views may be presented and rebuttal arguments offered¹². As a general rule¹³, the information which is supplied by interested parties and upon which findings are based must be examined for accuracy as far as possible¹⁴.

For proceedings initiated after consultation¹⁵, an investigation must, whenever possible, be concluded within one year¹⁶. In any event, such investigations must in all cases be concluded within 15 months of initiation, in accordance with the findings made for undertakings¹⁷ or in accordance with the findings made¹⁸ for definitive action¹⁹.

Where the complaint is withdrawn, the proceeding may be terminated unless such termination would not be in the Community interest²⁰. Where, after consultation, protective measures are unnecessary and there is no objection raised within the Advisory Committee²¹, the investigation or proceeding must be terminated; but in all other cases, the Commission must submit to the EC Council forthwith a report on the results of the consultation, together with a proposal that the proceeding be terminated, and the proceeding is deemed terminated if, within one month, the Council, acting by a qualified majority, has not decided otherwise²².

1 Parties receiving questionnaires used in an anti-dumping investigation must be given at least 30 days to reply: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 6(2). The time limit for exporters is counted from the date of receipt of the questionnaire, which for this purpose is deemed to have been received one week from the day on which it was sent to the exporter or transmitted to the appropriate diplomatic representative of the exporting country: art 6(2). An extension to the 30-day period may be granted, due account being taken of the time limits of the investigation, provided that the party shows due cause for such extension, in terms of its particular circumstances: art 6(2).

2 For the meaning of 'dumping' see PARA 348 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'injury' see PARA 354 note 1 post.

4 EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 6(1).

5 Ibid art 6(3).

6 Where the information is of general interest or where its transmission has been requested by a member state, the Commission must forward it to the member states, provided that it is not confidential, in which case a non-confidential summary is to be forwarded: ibid art 6(3).

7 Ibid art 6(3).

8 Ibid art 6(4).

9 In accordance with ibid art 5(10): see PARA 349 note 12 ante.

10 Ibid art 6(5). As to the right to inspect information made available to the investigation see note 12 infra.

11 See note 9 supra.

12 EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 6(6). Provision of such opportunities must take account of the need to preserve confidentiality and of the convenience to the parties: art 6(6). There is no obligation on any party to attend a meeting, and failure to do so is not to be prejudicial to that party's case: art 6(6). Oral information provided under art 6(6) is to be taken into account, in so far as it is subsequently confirmed in writing: art 6(6). The complainants, importers and exporters and their representative associations, users and consumer organisations, which have made themselves known in accordance with art 5(10), as well as the representatives of the exporting country, may upon written request inspect all information made available by any party to an investigation, as distinct from internal documents prepared by the authorities of the Community or its member states, which is relevant to the presentation of their cases and not confidential within the meaning of art 19, and that is used in the investigation: art 6(7). Such parties may respond to such information and their comments must be taken into consideration, wherever they are sufficiently substantiated in the response: art 6(7).

Any information which is by nature confidential, eg because its disclosure would be of significant competitive advantage to a competitor or would have a significantly adverse effect upon a person supplying the information or upon a person from whom he has acquired the information, or which is provided on a confidential basis by parties to an investigation, is to be treated, if good cause is shown, as such by the authorities: art 19(1). Interested parties providing confidential information are to be required to furnish non-confidential summaries thereof, which must be in sufficient detail to permit a reasonable understanding of the substance of the information submitted in confidence: art 19(2). In exceptional circumstances such parties may indicate that such information is not susceptible of summary, and, in such exceptional circumstances, a statement of the reasons why summarisation is not possible must be provided: art 19(2). If it is considered that a request for confidentiality is not warranted and if the supplier of the information is either unwilling to make the information available or to authorise its disclosure in generalised or summary form, such information may be disregarded unless it can be satisfactorily demonstrated from appropriate sources that the information is correct: art 19(3). Information received pursuant to EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended) must be used only for the purpose for which it was requested: art 19(6) (substituted by EC Council Regulation 461/2004 (OJ L77, 13.3.2004, p 12) art 1(15)). However, EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 19(6) (as substituted) does not preclude the use of information received in the context of one investigation for the purpose of initiating other investigations within the same proceeding in relation to the product concerned: art 19(6) (as so substituted).

Article 19 (as amended) does not preclude the disclosure of general information by the Community authorities and, in particular, of reasons on which decisions taken pursuant to EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended) are based, or disclosure of the evidence relied on by the Community authorities, in so far as is necessary to explain those reasons in court proceedings: art 19(4). Such disclosure must take into account the legitimate interests of the parties concerned that their business secrets should not be divulged: art 19(4).

The EC Council, the Commission and member states, or the officials of any of these, must not reveal any information received pursuant to EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended) for which confidential treatment has been requested by its supplier, without specific permission from the supplier: art 19(5). Exchanges of information between the Commission and member states, or any information relating to consultations made pursuant to art 15 (see PARA 349 note 11 ante), or any internal documents prepared by the authorities of the Community or its member states, must not be divulged except as specifically provided for in EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended): art 19(5).

13 Ie except in the circumstances provided for in ibid art 18 ('non co-operation'): see PARA 352 note 3 post.

14 Ibid art 6(8).

15 Ie pursuant to ibid art 5(9): see PARA 349 ante.

16 Ibid art 6(9).

17 Ie under ibid art 8: see PARA 357 post.

18 Ie under ibid art 9: see PARA 359 post.

19 Ibid art 6(9).

20 Ibid art 9(1). As to the Community interest see PARA 356 post. For a proceeding initiated pursuant to art 5(9) (see PARA 349 ante), injury is normally to be regarded as negligible where the imports concerned represent less than the volumes set out in art 5(7) (see PARA 349 ante): art 9(3). For the same proceeding, there is to be immediate termination where it is determined that the margin of dumping is less than 2%, expressed as a percentage of the export price, provided that it is only the investigation that is to be terminated where the margin is below 2% for individual exporters and they are to remain subject to the proceeding and may be re-investigated in any subsequent review carried out for the country concerned pursuant to art 11 (see PARA 361 post): art 9(3).

21 As to the Advisory Committee see PARA 349 note 11 ante.

22 EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 9(2).

352. Sampling.

In cases where the number of complainants, exporters or importers, types of product or transactions is large, the investigation may be limited to a reasonable number of parties, products or transactions by using samples which are statistically valid on the basis of information available at the time of the selection, or to the largest representative volume of production, sales or exports which can reasonably be investigated within the time available¹. The final selection of parties, types of products or transactions made under these sampling provisions is to rest with the Commission, although preference must be given to choosing a sample in consultation with, and with the consent of, the parties concerned, provided that such parties make themselves known and make sufficient information available, within three weeks of initiation of the investigation, to enable a representative sample to be chosen².

Where it is decided to sample and there is a degree of non co-operation by some or all of the parties selected which is likely materially to affect the outcome of the investigation, a new sample may be selected³.

2 Ibid art 17(2). In cases where the examination has been limited in accordance with art 17, an individual margin of dumping must nevertheless be calculated for any exporter or producer not initially selected who submits the necessary information within the time limits provided for in EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended), except where the number of exporters or producers is so large that individual examinations would be unduly burdensome and would prevent completion of the investigation in good time: art 17(3).

3 Ibid art 17(4). If, however, a material degree of non co-operation persists or there is insufficient time to select a new sample, the relevant provisions of art 18 (as amended) apply: art 17(4).

In cases in which any interested party refuses access to, or otherwise does not provide, necessary information within the time limits provided in EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended), or significantly impedes the investigation, provisional or final findings, whether affirmative or negative, may be made on the basis of the facts available: art 18(1). Furthermore, where it is found that any interested party has supplied false or misleading information, the information is to be disregarded and use may be made of facts available: art 18(1). Interested parties are to be made aware of the consequences of non co-operation: art 18(1).

Failure to give a computerised response is not deemed to constitute non co-operation, provided that the interested party shows that presenting the response as requested would result in an unreasonable extra burden or unreasonable additional cost: art 18(2).

Where the information submitted by an interested party is not ideal in all respects, it should nevertheless not be disregarded, provided that any deficiencies are not such as to cause undue difficulty in arriving at a reasonably accurate finding and that the information is appropriately submitted in good time and is verifiable, and that the party has acted to the best of its ability: art 18(3).

If evidence or information is not accepted, the supplying party is to be informed forthwith of the reasons therefor and is to be granted an opportunity to provide further explanations within the time limit specified; if the explanations are considered unsatisfactory, the reasons for rejection of such evidence or information must be disclosed and given in published findings: art 18(4).

If determinations, including those regarding normal value (see PARA 353 text and note 5 post), are based on the provisions of art 18(1), including the information supplied in the complaint, it must, where practicable and with due regard to the time limits of the investigation, be checked by reference to information from other independent sources which may be available, such as published price lists, official import statistics and customs returns, or information obtained from other interested parties during the investigation: art 18(5). Such information may include relevant data pertaining to the world market or other representative markets, where appropriate: art 18(5) (amended by EC Council Regulation 1972/2002 (OJ L305, 7.11.2002, p 1) art 1(7)).

If an interested party does not co-operate, or co-operates only partially, so that the relevant information is thereby withheld, the result may be less favourable to the party than if it had co-operated: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 18(6).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(24) COMMON COMMERCIAL POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY/(ii) Anti-dumping Duties/353. Determination of dumping.

353. Determination of dumping.

A product is to be considered as being dumped if its export price to the Community is less than a comparable price for the like product¹, in the ordinary course of trade², as established for the exporting country³. A fair comparison must be made between the export price⁴ and the normal value⁵. This comparison is to be made at the same level of trade and in respect of sales made at as nearly as possible the same time and with due account taken of other differences which affect price comparability⁶. Where the normal value and the export price, as established, are not on such a comparable basis, due allowance, in the form of adjustments⁷, must be made in each case, on its merits, for differences in factors which are claimed, and demonstrated, to affect prices and price comparability⁸.

1 See EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 1(2); and PARA 348 ante. For the meaning of 'like product' see PARA 348 note 4 ante.

2 'Ordinary course of trade' is a concept which relates to the nature of sales themselves. It is meant to exclude, for the purpose of determining the normal value, situations in which sales on the domestic market are not made under ordinary trade conditions, in particular where a product is sold at a price below production costs: Case C-105/90 Goldstar Co Ltd v EC Council [1992] ECR I-677, [1992] 1 CMLR 996, ECJ; and see Case T-118/96 Thai Bicycle Industry Co Ltd v EU Council (1998) Transcript 17 July, CFI.

3 EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 2(10).

4 For these purposes, the export price is the price actually paid or payable for the product when sold for export from the exporting country to the Community: ibid art 2(8). In cases where there is no export price or where it appears that the export price is unreliable because of an association or a compensatory arrangement between the exporter and the importer or a third party, the export price may be constructed on the basis of the price at which the imported products are first resold to an independent buyer, or, if the products are not resold to an independent buyer, or are not resold in the condition in which they were imported, on any reasonable basis: art 2(9), 1st para. In these cases, adjustment for all costs, including duties and taxes, incurred between importation and resale, and for profits accruing, must be made so as to establish a reliable export price, at the Community frontier level: art 2(9), 2nd para. The items for which adjustment is to be made include those normally borne by an importer but paid by any party, either inside or outside the Community, which appears to be associated or to have a compensatory arrangement with the importer or exporter, including usual transport, insurance, handling, loading and ancillary costs; customs duties, any anti-dumping duties, and other taxes payable in the importing country by reason of the importation or sale of the goods; and a reasonable margin for selling, general and administrative costs and profit: art 2(9), 3rd para. For the meaning of 'exporting country' see PARA 348 note 5 ante.

5 Ibid art 2(10). For these purposes, the normal value is normally based on the prices paid or payable, in the ordinary course of trade, by independent customers in the exporting country: art 2(1), 1st para. Where, however, the exporter in the exporting country does not produce or does not sell the like product, the normal value may be established on the basis of prices of other sellers or producers: art 2(1), 2nd para. Prices between parties which appear to be associated or to have a compensatory arrangement with each other are not to be considered to be in the ordinary course of trade and may not be used to establish normal value unless it is determined that they are unaffected by the relationship: art 2(1), 3rd para. In order to determine whether two parties are associated for the purpose of establishing normal value, account may be taken of the definition of related parties in EC Commission Regulation 2454/93 (OJ L253, 11.10.93, p 1) art 143 (see PARA 50 ante); EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 2(1), 3rd para (amended by EC Council Regulation 1972/2002 (OJ L305, 7.11.2002, p 1) art 1(1)).

Sales of the like product intended for domestic consumption are normally to be used to determine normal value if such sales volume constitutes 5% or more of the sales volume of the product under consideration to the Community: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 2(2). A lower volume of sales may, however, be used when eg the prices charged are considered representative for the market concerned: art 2(2).

When there are no or insufficient sales of the like product in the ordinary course of trade, or where because of the particular market situation such sales do not permit a proper comparison, the normal value of the like product is calculated on the basis of the cost of production in the country of origin plus a reasonable amount for selling, general and administrative costs and for profits, or on the basis of the export prices, in the ordinary course of trade, to an appropriate third country, provided that those prices are representative: art 2(3). A particular market situation where sales of a like product do not permit a proper comparison may be deemed to exist when prices are artificially low, when there is significant barter trade, or when there are non-commercial processing arrangements: art 2(3) (amended by EC Council Regulation 1972/2002 (OJ L305, 7.11.2002, p 1) art 1(2)).

Sales of the like product in the domestic market of the exporting country, or export sales to a third country, at prices below unit production costs (fixed and variable) plus selling, general and administrative costs may be treated as not being in the ordinary course of trade by reason of price, and may be disregarded in determining normal value, only if it is determined that such sales are made within an extended period in substantial quantities, and are at prices which do not provide for the recovery of all costs within a reasonable period of time: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 2(4), 1st para. If prices which are below costs at the time of sale are above weighted average costs for the period of investigation, such prices are to be considered to provide for recovery of costs within a reasonable period of time: art 2(4), 2nd para. The extended period of time is normally one year but must in no case be less than six months, and sales below unit cost are to be considered to be made in substantial quantities within such a period when it is established that the weighted average selling price is below the weighted average unit cost, or that the volume of sales below unit cost is not less than 20% of sales being used to determine normal value: art 2(4), 3rd para.

As to the calculation of costs see art 2(5) (amended by EC Council Regulation 1972/2002 (OJ L305, 7.11.2002, p 1) art 1(3)); as to the basis for the amounts for selling, for general and administrative costs and for profits see EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 2(6); and as to the determination of normal value in the case of imports from non-market economy countries see PARA 359 note 12 post.

6 Ibid art 2(10).

7 The factors for adjustment comprise: physical characteristics; import charges and indirect taxes; discounts, rebates and quantities; level of trade; transport, insurance, handling, loading and ancillary costs; packing; credit; after-sales costs; commissions; currency conversions; and other factors: see art 2(10)(a)-(k) (amended by EC Council Regulation 2331/96 (OJ L317, 6.12.96, p 1) art 1; and EC Council Regulation 1972/2002 (OJ L305, 7.11.2002, p 1) art 1(5)).

8 EC Council Regulation 384/96 art 2(10). See eg Case C-93/96 Indústria e Comércio Têxtil SA v Fazenda Pública [1997] ECR I-2881, ECJ (the grant by the seller of a very low rate of interest, relative to those prevailing on the market, would also afford an advantage to the buyer and would, to the extent of that advantage, amount to a form of credit dumping).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CUSTOMS AND EXCISE (VOLUME 12(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1-619; VOLUME 12(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 620-1288)/1. CUSTOMS DUTIES/(24) COMMON COMMERCIAL POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY/(ii) Anti-dumping Duties/354. Determination of injury.

354. Determination of injury.

A determination of injury¹ must be based on positive evidence and involve an objective examination of both the volume of the dumped imports and the effect of the dumped imports on prices in the Community market for like products² and the consequent impact³ of those imports on the Community industry⁴. It must be demonstrated, from all the relevant evidence presented⁵, that the dumped imports are causing injury⁶. Specifically, this entails a demonstration that the volume and/or price levels identified⁷ are responsible for an impact on the Community industry⁸ and that this impact exists to a degree which enables it to be classified as material⁹. Known factors other than the dumped imports which at the same time are injuring the Community industry must also be examined to ensure that injury caused by these other factors is not attributed¹⁰ to the dumped imports¹¹.

With regard to the volume of the dumped imports, consideration is to be given to whether there has been a significant increase in dumped imports¹², either in absolute terms or relative to production or consumption in the Community; and with regard to the effect of the dumped imports on prices, consideration is to be given to whether there has been significant price undercutting by the dumped imports as compared with the price of a like product of the Community industry, or whether the effect of such imports is otherwise to depress prices to a significant degree or prevent price increases, which would otherwise have occurred, to a significant degree; but no one or more of these factors necessarily gives decisive guidance¹³.

A determination of a threat of material injury¹⁴ must be based on facts and not merely on allegation, conjecture or remote possibility; and the change in circumstances which would create a situation in which the dumping would cause injury must be clearly foreseen and imminent¹⁵.

1 For these purposes, 'injury' is to be taken, unless otherwise specified, to mean material injury to the Community industry, threat of material injury to the Community industry or material retardation of the establishment of such an industry, and is to be interpreted in accordance with the provisions of EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 3: art 3(1). For the meaning of 'Community industry' see PARA 350 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'like product' see PARA 348 note 4 ante.

3 The examination of the impact of the dumped imports on the Community industry concerned includes an evaluation of all relevant economic factors and indices having a bearing on the state of the industry, including the fact that an industry is still in the process of recovering from the effects of past dumping or subsidisation, the magnitude of the actual margin of dumping, actual and potential decline in sales, profits, output, market share, productivity, return on investments, utilisation of capacity; factors affecting Community prices; and actual and potential negative effects on cash flow, inventories, employment, wages, growth, ability to raise capital or investments: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 3(5). This list is not exhaustive, nor can any one or more of these factors necessarily give decisive guidance: art 3(5).

4 Ibid art 3(2).

5 Ie in relation to ibid art 3(2): see the text and notes 1-4 supra.

6 Ibid art 3(6). For these purposes, 'injury' has the meaning given by EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) (as amended) (see note 1 supra): art 3(6).

7 Ie pursuant to art 3(3): see the text and notes 12-13 infra.

8 le as provided for in ibid art 3(5): see note 3 supra.

9 Ibid art 3(6). The effect of the dumped imports is to be assessed in relation to the production of the Community industry of the like product when available data permit the separate identification of that production on the basis of such criteria as the production process, producers' sales and profits: art 3(8). If such separate identification of that production is not possible, the effects of the dumped imports is to be assessed by examination of the production of the narrowest group or range of products, which includes the like product, for which the necessary information can be provided: art 3(8).

10 le under ibid art 3(6): see the text and notes 5-9 supra. Factors which may be considered in this respect include the volume and prices of imports not sold at dumping prices, contraction in demand or changes in the patterns of consumption, restrictive trade practices of, and competition between, third country and Community producers, developments in technology and the export performance and productivity of the Community industry: art 3(7).

11 Ibid art 3(7).

12 Where imports of a product from more than one country are simultaneously subject to anti-dumping investigations, the effects of such imports are to be cumulatively assessed only if it is determined that: (1) the margin of dumping established in relation to the imports from each country is more than de minimis (as defined in ibid art 9(3): see PARA 351 note 20 ante) and that the volume of imports from each country is not negligible; and (2) a cumulative assessment of the effects of the imports is appropriate in light of the conditions of competition between imported products and the conditions of competition between the imported products and the like Community product: art 3(4).

13 Ibid art 3(3).

14 In making a determination regarding the existence of a threat of material injury, consideration has to be given to such factors as: (1) a significant rate of increase of dumped imports into the Community market indicating the likelihood of substantially increased imports; (2) sufficient freely disposable capacity of the exporter or an imminent and substantial increase in such capacity indicating the likelihood of substantially increased dumped exports to the Community, account being taken of the availability of other export markets to absorb any additional exports; (3) whether imports are entering at prices that would, to a significant degree, depress prices or prevent price increases which otherwise would have occurred, and would probably increase demand for further imports; and (4) inventories of the product being investigated: ibid art 3(9), 2nd para. No one of the factors listed by itself can necessarily give decisive guidance; but the totality of the factors considered must lead to the conclusion that further dumped exports are imminent and that, unless protective action is taken, material injury will occur: art 3(9), 3rd para.

355. Provisional anti-dumping duty.

Provisional duties may be imposed if proceedings have been initiated¹, if a notice has been given to that effect and interested parties have been given adequate opportunities to submit information and make comments², if a provisional affirmative determination has been made of dumping³ and consequent injury to the Community industry⁴, and if the Community interest calls for intervention to prevent such injury; and the provisional duties must be imposed no earlier than 60 days from the initiation of the proceedings but not later than nine months from the initiation of the proceedings⁵.

The amount of the provisional anti-dumping duty must not exceed the margin of dumping⁶, as provisionally established, but it should be less than the margin if such lesser duty would be adequate to remove the injury to the Community industry⁷. Provisional duties are to be secured by a guarantee, and the release of the products concerned for free circulation in the Community is conditional upon the provision of such guarantee⁸.

Provisional duties may be imposed for six months and extended for a further three months, or they may be imposed for nine months; they may, however, only be extended, or imposed for a nine-month period, where exporters representing a significant percentage of the trade involved so request or do not object upon notification by the Commission⁹. Provisional measures must only be applied to products which enter in free circulation after the time when the decision to impose such a duty¹⁰ has entered into force¹¹.

5 Ibid art 7(1). As to determinations whether the Community interest calls for intervention see PARA 356 post. The Commission is to take provisional action after consultation or, in cases of extreme urgency, after informing the member states: art 7(4). In this latter case, consultations must take place ten days, at the latest, after notification to the member states of the action taken by the Commission: art 7(4). Where a member state requests immediate intervention by the Commission and where the conditions in art 7(1) are met, the Commission must, within a maximum of five working days of receipt of the request, decide whether a provisional anti-dumping duty is to be imposed: art 7(5). The Commission must forthwith inform the EC Council and the member states of any decision taken under art 7(1)-(5): art 7(6). The Council, acting by a qualified majority, may decide differently: art 7(6). Article 7(1) and art 7(4) specify the fundamental Community principle of a right to a fair hearing. If the Commission fails to respect that right, that failure of itself cannot vitiate the Council regulation imposing definitive duties: Joined Cases T-159, 160/94 Ajinomoto Co Inc v EU Council [1997] ECR II-2461, CFI.

The complainants, importers and exporters and their representative associations, and representatives of the exporting country, may request disclosure of the details underlying the essential facts and considerations on the basis of which provisional measures have been imposed: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 20(1). Requests for such disclosure must be made in writing immediately following the imposition of provisional measures, and the disclosure must be made in writing as soon as possible thereafter: art 20(1).

6 For these purposes, the 'dumping margin' is the amount by which the normal value exceeds the export price: ibid art 2(12). Where dumping margins vary, a weighted average dumping margin may be established: art 2(12). Subject to the relevant provisions governing fair comparison, the existence of margins of dumping during the investigation period is normally established on the basis of a comparison of a weighted average normal value with a weighted average of prices of all export transactions to the Community, or by a comparison of individual normal values and individual export prices to the Community on a transaction-to-transaction basis: art 2(11). A normal value established on a weighted average basis may, however, be compared to prices of all individual export transactions to the Community, if there is a pattern of export prices which differs significantly among different purchasers, regions or time periods, and if the methods previously specified would not reflect the full degree of dumping being practised: art 2(11). The use of sampling (in accordance with art 17: see PARA 352 ante) is not precluded by art 2(11): art 2(11).

356. Community interest.

A determination as to whether the Community interest calls for intervention is to be based on an appreciation of all the various interests taken as a whole, including the interests of the domestic industry and users and consumers; such a determination is only to be made where all parties have been given the opportunity¹ to make their views known; and in such an examination the need to eliminate the trade-distorting effects of injurious anti-dumping and to restore effective competition are to be given special consideration². However, measures, as determined on the basis of the dumping³ and injury⁴ found, may not be applied where the authorities, on the basis of all the information submitted, can clearly conclude that it is not in the Community interest to apply such measures⁵.

In order to provide a sound basis on which the authorities can take account of all views and information in the decision as to whether or not the imposition of measures is in the Community interest, the complainants, importers and their representative associations, representative users and representative consumer organisations may, within the time limits specified in the notice of initiation of the anti-dumping investigation, make themselves known and provide information to the Commission; and such information, or appropriate summaries thereof, must be made available to the other parties specified above, and they are entitled to respond to such information⁶.

The parties which have acted in conformity with the above requirements⁷ may request a hearing⁸. Such requests must be granted when they are submitted within the specified time limits⁹, and when they set out the reasons, in terms of the Community interest, why the parties should be heard¹⁰.

The parties which have so acted in conformity with the above requirements may provide comments on the application of any provisional duties imposed; and such comments must be received within one month of the application of such measures if they are to be taken into account, and they, or appropriate summaries thereof, must be made available to other parties who are entitled to respond to such comments¹¹.

The Commission must examine the information which is properly submitted and the extent to which it is representative and the results of such analysis, together with an opinion on its merits, must be transmitted to the Advisory Committee¹².

The parties which have so acted in conformity with the above provisions may request the facts and considerations on which final decisions are likely to be taken to be made available to them; and such information must be made available to the extent possible and without prejudice to any subsequent decision taken by the Commission or the EC Council¹³.

Information may only be taken into account where it is supported by actual evidence which substantiates its validity¹⁴.

357. Voluntary undertakings in lieu of anti-dumping duties.

Upon condition that a provisional affirmative determination of dumping and injury¹ has been made, the Commission may accept satisfactory voluntary undertaking offers² submitted by any exporter to revise its prices or to cease exports at dumped prices, if, after specific consultation³ of the Advisory Committee, it is satisfied that the injurious effect of the dumping is thereby eliminated⁴. In such a case and as long as such undertakings are in force, the provisional duties⁵ imposed by the Commission⁶ or the definitive duties⁷ imposed by the EC Council⁸ do not apply to the relevant imports of the product concerned manufactured by the companies referred to in the Commission decision accepting undertakings, as subsequently amended⁹. Price increases under such undertakings must not be higher than necessary to eliminate the margin of dumping and they should be less than the margin of dumping if such increases would be adequate to remove the injury to the Community industry¹⁰.

Undertakings may be suggested by the Commission, but no exporter is to be obliged to enter into such an undertaking¹¹. The fact that exporters do not offer such undertakings, or do not accept an invitation to do so, must in no way prejudice consideration of the case¹². It may, however, be determined that a threat of injury is more likely to be realised if the dumped imports continue¹³. Undertakings are not to be sought or accepted from exporters unless a provisional affirmative determination of dumping and injury caused by such dumping has been made¹⁴. Save in exceptional circumstances, undertakings may not be offered later than the end of the period during which representations may be made¹⁵ after final disclosure¹⁶. Undertakings offered need not be accepted if their acceptance is considered impractical, such as where the number of actual or potential exporters is too great, or for other reasons, including reasons of general policy¹⁷. The exporter concerned may be provided with the reasons for which it is proposed to reject the offer of an undertaking and may be given an opportunity to make comments thereon¹⁸. The reasons for rejection must be set out in the definitive decision¹⁹.

Where undertakings are, after consultation, accepted and where there is no objection raised within the Advisory Committee²⁰, the investigation is terminated²¹. If the undertakings are accepted, the investigation of dumping and injury is normally to be completed²². In such a case, if a negative determination of dumping or injury is made, the undertaking automatically lapses, except in cases where such a determination is due in large part to the existence of an undertaking²³. In such cases, it may be required that an undertaking be maintained for a reasonable period²⁴. In the event that an affirmative determination of dumping and injury is made, the undertaking is to continue, consistent with its terms and the relevant Community provisions²⁵.

2 Parties which offer an undertaking are to be required to provide a non-confidential version of such undertaking, so that it may be made available to interested parties to the investigation: EC Council Regulation 384/96 (OJ L56, 6.3.96, p 1) art 8(4).

358. Breach of a voluntary undertaking.

The Commission is to require any exporter from which an undertaking¹ has been accepted to provide, periodically, information relevant to the fulfilment of such undertaking, and to permit verification of pertinent data². Non-compliance with such requirements is to be construed as a breach of the undertaking³.
